NYE RIPS DRAFT EXTENSION PLAN AS AEF SCHEME

Brands Move Breach of Faith.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—The administration's proposal to keep conscripted men in the service beyond the one year limit and to destroy the limitations upon where troops shall be sent can have but one objective—the placing of American troops on European battlefields, Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] told the nation tonight.

Gerald P. Nye.

The senator, in a radio broadcast, condemned "propaganda made bold and brazen by the encouragement of our country's top officials" who, he said, seek a second AEF.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt, locked in the seclusion of his study, worked on the message which he will send to congress next week urging passage of legislation permitting conscripted men, National Guardsmen, and reservists to be retained in service longer than one year.

Consults with Aids.

The President consulted with war department officials concerning portions of his speech which are expected to be loaded with statistics purporting to show that the nation's new army will desintegrate if those now in training are not kept in service for an indefinite period.

Senator Nye attacked the theory that returning the draftees to private life at the end of a year's service would "cripple and leave our army a mere skeleton."

He noted that induction of draftees began last October and that additional numbers came in during each month since until nearly 600,000 are now in service.

Cites Rate of Discharge.

"Assuming that we keep faith with these draftees, the year of service will end next November for, in round numbers, 13,000 men," he said. "Next December for 5,000 men, next January for 73,000, next February for 90,000, next March for 153,000, next April for 123,000, next May for 56,000, and next June for 79,000. Only 19,000 men need be mustered out before next January. By that time these men can be replaced by new selectees.

"How is such a process going to cripple the army and leave it only a skeleton? It will be skeletonized only in the degree that the army is skeletonized now. It actually can be strengthened to the extent that the authorities will take more draftees already authorized in the future months than in the past."

Would Bring Maximum.

If a professional army is wanted, why not go about organizing it in a cards-on-the table manner, the senator asked. He said no serious enlistment program had been undertaken, since the army has refused to allow men to enlist until they had completed their 13 week training period. A genuine effort, he said, surely would bring sufficient enlistments to the maximum required by the army.

"Why all this alarm about needing the draftees, reserve officers, and National Guard longer than a year if we would avoid crippling our army?" Senator Nye asked. "If our emergency today, while we are at war with no one, is more desperate than it was when these men were called to service, then our preparedness effort of the last year must have left us worse off than we were before we started. There is no greater need for concern today than a year ago—I would say not as much—since we have had a chance to prepare for emergencies which might arise.

Stand Against War Told.

"There is too much reason to believe that the suggested plans to keep men in the service beyond the one year limit and to destroy the limitations upon where these troops shall be sent is indication of plans to put American troops onto the European battlefields even tho 75 to 80 per cent of the people of America are determined that shall not come to pass.

"Fair play, realization of the sacrifices made, the question of morale, the fact that not even Canada has

STALIN RUNS WAR

Premier Josef Stalin tightened his personal control of Russia's army today by assuming the post of defense commissar. He took over the job, which has been held by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, as the Germans announced that Moscow was now open to attack, whenever the German high command decided to press forward. The Nazis claimed to have pushed past Smolensk, western gate to the Reds' capital. They said the Reds left the city in ruins.

The soviet communique admitted a heavy battle was raging along the road to Moscow but indicated that the German advance had been held up for 24 hours. Heavy fighting in the sectors around Leningrad was also announced by the Russians. The Germans told of advances on the Bessarabian-Ukrainian frontier.

Berlin dispatches said the German strategy was aimed now at the greatest destruction possible of the Red armies rather than assaults on Moscow and other cities.

CALL FOR CUTS IN OUTPUT OF 3 U. S. INDUSTRIES

Autos Head List; Oil to Be Curtailed.

Washington, D. C., July 19 [Special]. Two drastic curtailment programs were announced today by New Deal officials. If effective they will push American consumers nearer to a war economy.

The programs, dependent on public coöperation for enforcement since there is no law that requires obedience, are:

1. By Leon Henderson, administrator of prices and civilian supply—Automobile production to be cut 20 per cent beginning Aug. 1 and 50 per cent beginning Nov. 1; mechanical refrigerator output to be reduced 50 per cent and washing machine production 30 per cent "initially."

2. By Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior—Gasoline consumers in the east are asked to cut their use of motor fuel 33 per cent at once, or have rationing dictated in 16 seaboard states. This would be done, according to reports in New York, so that 100 tanker ships now supplying the coast regions may be transferred to the service of the British Isles.

Makers to Work Out Plan.

Henderson expressed his hope that conferences of manufacturers will arrange the details of production slashes of industrial goods—types of output to be permitted and percentage slashes by each firm. The program, he said, is necessary to conserve raw materials needed in defense production.

Air conditioning, heating, cooking utensils, metal furniture, and household appliances are other industries to be added to the reduction program later, Henderson said.

In Detroit Allan Macaulay, Packard Motors executive and president of the Automobile Manufacturers association, pledged coöperation for any slash deemed necessary. He said he hoped adjustments will be made so no company is penalized unduly.

Speaks for Small Firms.

"The adjustments should be such that small companies can stay in business," he said. "The large ones can be cut 50 per cent and still be big producers. This is not equally true of small ones."

It is estimated that total auto output in the year beginning Aug. 1 will be 2,400,000 vehicles. The 1941 production is estimated at 5,200,000 units.

Ickes, it was learned, has called a conference, to be held in his office Monday afternoon, of tanker owners. They are to be asked to figure out a plan to transfer 25 tankers now and 75 more later to the British supply service. These, plus 50 already put in the overseas service, will give half the tanker tonnage under the American flag to British transport.

Many Cargoes Transferred.

The 50 vessels already transferred were used mainly in supplying seaboard consumers with oil products from the gulf states and the Dutch West Indies. Many of them, however, have been transferring their cargoes to British tankers in American ports.

The new plan, it was said, is to have the transferred tankers go as far as Iceland under United States navy guard and there transship to British bottoms under British convoy.

It was reported authoritatively that the British are taking over 48 Norwegian tankers, chartered by oil interests and engaged in transport in nonbelligerent waters, and will use them in shipping oil direct from western hemisphere points to the United Kingdom.

Convoy System Outlined.

The oil trade has been informed, it was reported, that the American navy will guard these Norse tankers to the meridian passing thru east Iceland and there turn them over to the British navy.

Normally, American registered tankers supply eastern gasoline consumers with 1,200,000 barrels daily. The transfers make it probable that the remaining tankers can supply this region with about half the normal consumption of seaborne petroleum.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—The department of agriculture is about to muster an army of 3,000 agents in a drive to force farmers to agree to produce whatever the department desires and at a government-set price, Representative Bernard J. Gehrmann [Prog., Wis.], charged today.

Gehrmann said he had learned that agriculture department employés were organizing the agents in 3,000 rural counties with a view to interviewing them in the interests of "national defense" and pursuading them to a system of regimentation.

Know Use of Pressure.

The department's soil conservation and marketing quota enforcement agents would be used, according to Gehrmann. These agents are already in touch with farmers who have received government loans and soil conservation payments and thus are in a position to put administration pressure on the farmers.

The farmers, Gehrmann said, will be requested to sign a pledge containing:

1. An oath of loyalty to the United States.

2. An agreement to produce whatever the government wants and to accept any price on this produce that the government deems fair.

Pay Is $5 a Day.

The agents, Gehrmann said, will receive the same $5 a day that they now receive in ordinary agriculture department business. They will remind the farmers of past government benefits and their statements will carry the implied threat, he said, that any refusal to sign the pledge will be followed by a withdrawal of such benefits.

"This is just another move to get the farmers to back the war," Gehrmann said.

Department of agriculture officials withheld comment on the Gehrmann charges.

LA CROSSE PAIR ESCAPE AS AUTO GOES OVER CLIFF

Canon City, Colo., July 19 (AP).—On a vacation trip, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Humfeld of La Crosse, Wis., stopped to watch a mountain road crew.

The car started slowly forward and neither noticed the machine was moving until it was at the edge of a 200 foot cliff.

Mrs. Humfeld jumped out. Humfeld tried to apply the brakes but was too late. He scrambled out as the car plunged to its destruction. Neither was injured.

'JOIN WAR NOW' RALLY DRAWS 101 (INCLUDING SPEAKERS) INTO PARK

South Bend, Ind., July 19 [Special].—Speaking at a rally in Howard park here this afternoon, four orators representing Fight for Freedom, Inc., declared the nation is ready and must start a "shooting war" now.

By actual count 101 persons showed up at the meeting. Of these, 23 [including the speakers] were from Chicago, members of the "cavalcade" that motored here.

Courtney Barber Jr., acting director of the Chicago Fight for Freedom group, said:

"This is a stop Hitler rally, but Hitler cannot be stopped by words alone. We of the Fight for Freedom mean just what our name implies—we mean fight and we mean freedom. That this will mean shooting we do not deny, neither do we deny that shooting will result in hard losses."

Prof. Frances E. McMahon of Notre Dame university, spoke emphatically for a "shooting war" now, stating:

"To dispose of Hitler and clear the Atlantic means a shooting war. We all realize that and are prepared to make the sacrifice."

Members of the America First committee were stationed at the park entrance, passing out leaflets stating that the 20 per cent in the nation who want war can enlist in the Canadian forces and do their fighting and dying in Europe.

Portland, Ore., July 19 (AP).—Lieut. Col. A. E. Hawkins heard a chorus of feminine yoo-hoos while he was playing golf at the Broadmoor course yesterday. Col. Hawkins, who is executive officer of the Oregon military district, was wearing shorts.

A Citizen Does His Bit in Drive for Aluminum

"Mayor Kelly has decided that police stations, fire stations, and ward yards will be designated as collection bins for the national aluminum drive."—James P. Allman, commissioner of police.

Lieut. Leroy Steffens of the Warren avenue police station had just finished reading the foregoing order yesterday when a civilian entered and asked:

"Is it true that police stations are to be used as headquarters for collecting old aluminum?"

"It is," replied Lieut. Steffens.

"Well," the man said, "I have some at home I'm going to turn in, and since I live in this district Warren avenue station might as well have credit for it."

Promises a Contribution.

Lieut. Steffens said that would be splendid, and he and the stranger chatted for a few moments about the miracles of modern science that could turn an old saucepan into something else. Then the man left, promising to return soon with his aluminum.

No sooner was he out of the door than Lieut. Steffens ordered a hurryup cleaning of an old closet so that there would be some place to keep the station's first aluminum. Sergeants Joseph Cassidy and Ralph Petacque, aided by Patrolmen Ignatius Murphy, Charles Buker, and Arthur Swanson, removed old record books, reports, and complaint books for half an hour or so, finally making a fine storage space.

The Stranger Returns.

Then they waited expectantly, but nothing happened. The policemen left. Lieut. Steffens went out on official business. Then the stranger returned. He went up to the desk. He spoke to the sergeant on duty.

"Tell that lieutenant I brought that aluminum," he said pleasantly.

And he laid before the speechless sergeant a small aluminum eye-cup, nodded, and went out into the night.

Pope Picks His Gardener's House as Summer Palace

Three minutes after Valdina Orphan, paying $4.80, beat K. Dorko by two lengths in the third race at Arlington Park yesterday, Sergt. Thomas Lyons and four stalwarts from Commissioner Allman's office raided a shiny new handbook at 3146 North Ashland avenue.

In the ensuing three hours, 350 persons, including 35 women, were hustled into 32 police patrol wagons and trundled off to the detective bureau, where they spent the better part of the night having their fingerprints taken.

The handbook, established only three weeks ago in a former garage, was sandwiched between a hamburger stand and a clothing store in the business section of the 45th ward, whose Democratic destinies are shaped by Charles H. Weber, its committeeman and state representative.

Report It's His Place.

Neighbor rumor had it that the place was Weber's. He has been linked previously to betting establishments, but last night he could not be reached for verification or denial. A few of the more voluble employés, however, grinned at the report and retorted: "Never heard of Weber. This place is owned by a guy named—uh—Klein. That's it, Klein."

The loud speaker was still bursting with the news of Valdina Orphan's triumph, and the blackjack and dice tables were clicking happily when Sergt. Lyons and his aids appeared suddenly from the two-by-four cigar store which, in keeping with handbook tradition, fronts the establishment.

Immediately there was a frantic hubbub. The ladies shrilled their protests; a little group of quick thinkers shinnied up a ladder and out thru a skylight; a peanut vending machine was overturned and its contents crunched beneath patrons' shuffling feet. Men in polo shirts, others in business suits, a tearful waitress from a nearby restaurant who had dropped in "just for one tiny minute," housewives in aprons all shoved, pushed, cursed, or merely sat on benches or leaned placidly against the gaming tables.

They're Coming Out.

As the bettors, in tens and twenties, were led thru a gauntlet of hundreds of spectators' grinning faces into the patrol wagons, Sergt. Lyons was being harassed inside by those who desired for one reason or another to be spared the ride and attendant embarrassment downtown.

One man in a tattered straw hat whispered: "Gee, sergeant, I got a weak heart, I got a cold, I . . ."

"That's what everybody says," shouted Sergt. Lyons. "I can't let you——"

At this the little man burst into tears, nestling his head against Sergt. Lyons' shoulder and the sergeant said, "O. K. Out the back way."

Another pleaded a sick wife, a third a mother who was waiting dinner, 10 others 10 invalid fathers. Few of these were allowed to leave, and most of them straggled back to their chairs and waited to be taken to the wagons.

A gaunt man with watery eyes was sent home when he pleaded: "I have been laid up four months with a bum leg."

"Sooner the Better."

To those reluctant to be among the first to get into the wagons, Policeman Irving Kipnis, an especially enthusiastic raider, yelled: "C'mon! C'mon! The sooner you get down there the sooner you get out. Hurry up, the wagons are blocking traffic."

The arrival of the 350 prisoners taxed the facilities of the detective bureau. The confusion was made worse by the appearance of scores of the relatives of the prisoners, seeking their releases. Then in the midst of the hubub Judge Thomas A. Green of the Municipal court arrived, dressed in golfing slacks, open neck shirt, and golf shoes.

Judge Green Helps Out.

Judge Green established temporary court in the showup room. Facing the prisoners, he said, "I'm Judge Green. I have come here to help you out as a favor to my friends and neighbors." Then he began signing personal recognizance bonds for the prisoners, requiring only their signatures.

The judge later said he lives in the 45th ward and that he was called from a golf game by "business men and residents of the ward" to sign bonds. He didn't stop to change from his golf clothes, he mentioned.

Those for whom bonds were signed, and who passed thru the finger print examinations, were promptly released. The releases were being made at the rate of about 25 an hour. Many were not released until today.

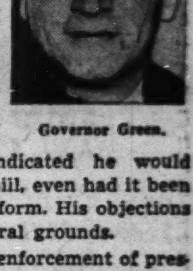
GREEN REFUSES TO SIGN ACT ON MORAL GROUNDS

Acts After Barrett Rules It Illegal.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., July 19.—Gov. Dwight Green today vetoed the bill to legalize handbooks or parlors where bets might be made on horse races. His action followed an opinion by Attorney General George F. Barrett that the bill, as drafted, was unconstitutional.



Governor Green.

Gov. Green's veto message indicated he would have vetoed the bill, even had it been in constitutional form. His objections to it were on moral grounds.

Discussing the enforcement of present laws against gambling, he called attention to two kinds of enforcement—one kind just before election, the other after election. He said he is not convinced that gambling laws cannot be enforced.

Power Vested in Cities.

Approval of the bill by the governor would have enabled the city of Chicago, as well as other cities and villages in the state, to pass ordinances licensing handbooks. The Kelly-Nash Democratic organization of Chicago was known to favor the bill because of the power it would have put in the mayor's hands.

It did not purport to license or legalize any other form of gambling—dice, cards, roulette wheels or other devices. It covered only race betting away from race tracks.

The bill was supported in both houses of the legislature by Republicans as well as Democrats, but the Kelly-Nash delegation voted for it almost to a man. It emerged from the session on the last day, June 30, a conference between the two houses having been necessary because of minor changes made in the senate after its passage in the house.

The bill was introduced by Representative Emmett McGrath of Brookfield [Cook county], a Democrat. It provided for a Cook county licensing commission and a downstate licensing commission, to act as appeal boards from the local authority which would have issued licenses to operate horse race betting parlors.

Text of Veto Message.

After summarizing the bill and its purposes the governor's veto message said:

"The first obvious objection to the bill is that it prescribes no qualifications for those seeking a license. Presumably, any person who desires to operate a gambling place could obtain a license, even tho he may previously have been convicted of crime or be notoriously disreputable. It is well known that there is a tendency for a hoodlum element to gravitate to gambling places. For that reason it would seem that at least there should be some prerequisite of good character and reputation to the issuance of a license.

"This bill has been highly controversial. During many months of discussion involving it, I have kept my mind open and unbiased. I have listened patiently to the arguments for and against this legislative proposal.

Three Arguments Answered.

"Three principal arguments seem to be advanced in its favor. The first is that because of the desire in human nature to gamble it cannot be suppressed and therefore should be legalized and licensed. Second, that those who have the time and money to attend race tracks have the opportunity to bet, while those not so fortunately circumstanced are deprived of an equal opportunity and should be given it by the institution of legalized gambling places. Third, that since gambling flourishes illegally for the profit of those who conduct it, it should be legalized and part of the profits obtained by the state and city.

These arguments strike me as being of doubtful validity. It is true that the love of risk-taking is present in a greater or less degree in all human beings; but it is a characteristic that must be held in check rather than encouraged. If it were to be developed, it certainly should

'WAY TO MOSCOW' SMASHED OPEN, GERMANS CLAIM

Drive on Capital Waits Hitler's Word.

BERLIN, July 19 (AP).—Germans declared tonight that the western "gate to Moscow" had been opened by the thrust of a Nazi spearhead past Smolensk, and implied that the advantage would be pressed at a time to be chosen by Adolf Hitler's high command.

There was no indication that the reichswehr units which led the advance across the land bridge between the Dvina and Dnieper rivers proposed another full-fledged drive eastward immediately along the 230 mile motor road to the Russian capital.

Aerial preliminaries, however, went on. The official German news agency said German planes yesterday tore up various sections of the Leningrad-Moscow railway, which runs northeast of Smolensk, smashed five trains in low flying attacks, and destroyed eight tanks set beneath a railway embankment.

The chief purpose of the German leadership, military commentators said, remains the destruction of the largest possible portion of the Russian army as a fighting force. They attached less importance to getting to specific places than to pinching off and mopping up of as many red army divisions as possible.

List 406,000 Reds Taken.

This theme was enlarged by the authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, while the high command listed Russian losses to July 10 at 6,233 planes, 406,000 prisoners, 4,400 cannon, and 7,615 tanks.

"It might be false to assume there will be an immediate smash at Moscow just because there seems to be a good chance," said the Dienst. "Thoughts of the German leadership are not centered on the big name cities [such as Moscow, Kiev, and Leningrad], but rather on the possibilities of destroying the enemy.

"It would be incorrect to call the battle area about Smolensk and the break between Mogilev and Vitebsk [which was the forerunner of the reported thrust past Smolensk] the central point of the attack in the east.

"Operations in the direction of Leningrad [menaced both by a German drive from the Baltic states and a German-Finnish campaign which the high command said had pushed the defenders south to the northern shores of Lake Ladoga] and in the vicinity of Kiev [objective of a Ukrainian offensive] are no less significant."

Reds Move Last Reserves.

The Dienst declared that on all three sectors of the Baltic-to-Black sea front German military observers reported the Russians' last reserves were moving into action.

"With numerous counter thrusts," it said, "they seek to hold up the German advance or get out of more or less complete encirclement operations. The action requires the utmost ability on both sides to work out problems in strategy. Perhaps never before in military history have such complicated considerations been presented to general staffs."

Escaping encirclement movements over vast terrain requires good communications, and the Germans report Russian military communications at the front are virtually 100 per cent disrupted.

Confusion in Red army ranks is stressed in Nazi reports, and prisoners are quoted as telling of the destruction of aerial, rail, highway, and wire services, largely by the German air force.

Russians Fight One Another.

At one point, Germans said, Russians were so uncertain of the position of their own and German forces that one soviet division started firing on another.

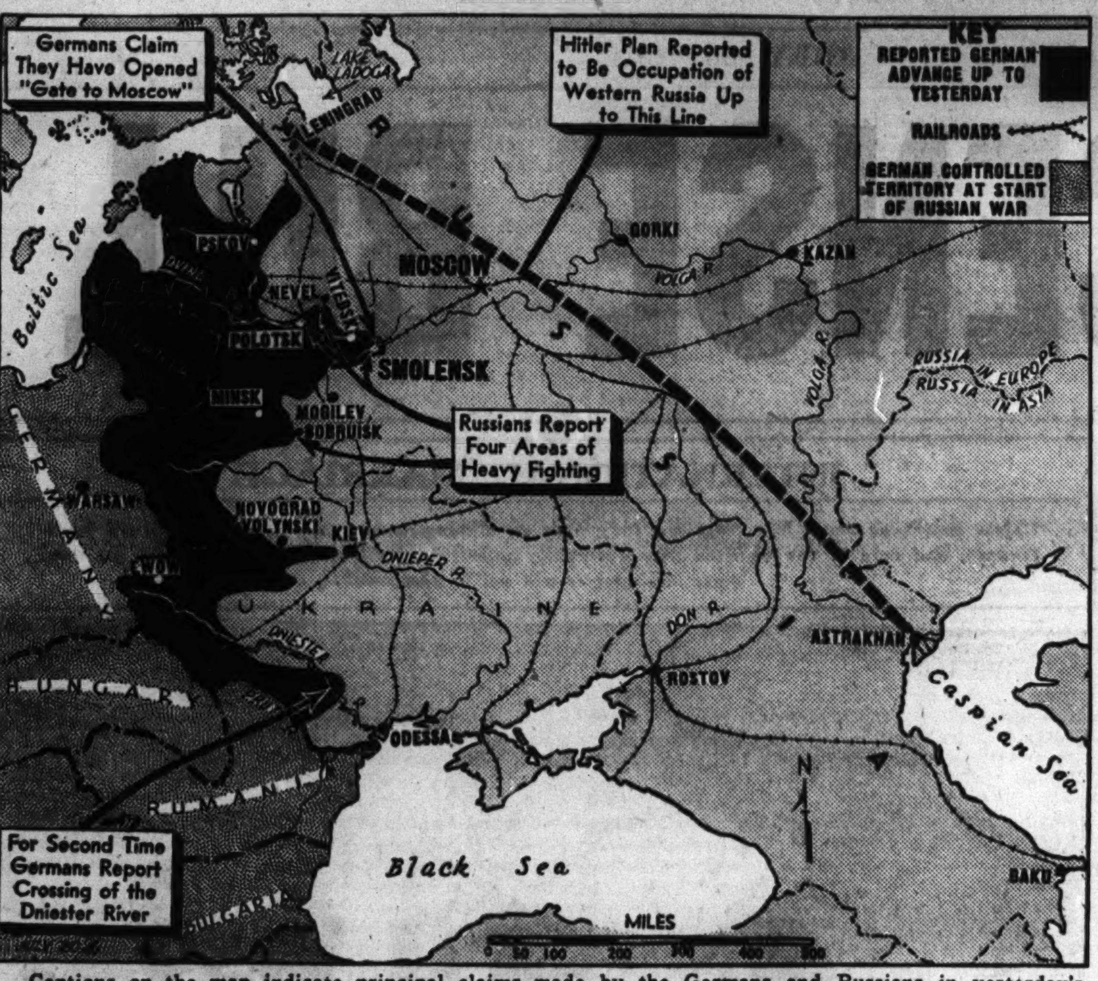
Today's communique devoted a brief sentence to fighting on the Bessarabian-Ukrainian frontier: "German and Rumanian troops advancing from Bessarabia forced a crossing over the Dniester in several places."

The Dniester had been reported crossed days ago.

A dispatch from Smolensk said that city was a smoking scene of desolation, wrecked and burned by retiring Russian troops. It charged that hundreds of dead were found in the city's jails, identifying them as persons accused of treachery by the Russians and killed as the Germans approached.

German Aim to Conquer European Russia Is Reported

(Stories in adjoining columns.)



Captions on the map indicate principal claims made by the Germans and Russians in yesterday's communiques, and also the line thru Leningrad, Moscow, and Astrakhan, which is said to be the farthest goal of German invasion in Russia.

LONDON, July 19 (AP).—A reliable foreign source said tonight that private reports from the continent indicated the Germans had thrown so much of their air and land power into the Russian campaign that it appeared unlikely that they could attempt to invade Britain before next year.

These reports state that the Germans still have 750,000 of their 2,500,000 soldiers in western Europe, but that only about 200,000 are front line fighting men, the remainder being garrison or occupation troops. German air strength in the west was pictured as considerable, but designed now principally for defense.

As a result, Adolf Hitler probably has decided to defer any attempt to invade Britain until next year, the foreign informant said.

RAF Bombings Called Factor.

The mere problem of reassembling German forces into invasion armies in the west would take a minimum of six weeks under even the most favorable conditions.

"But favorable conditions," he added, "do not exist because of two factors: One, the heavy losses in men and material inflicted by the Russians, and two, damage to communications and bases in western Germany and along the German occupied French 'invasion coast' inflicted by the RAF."

As a result Hitler probably will rely on a renewed heavy aerial offensive beginning at the end of August, this source said. This prediction recalled the warning of Prime Minister Churchill July 14 that British cities this fall and winter probably would "have to go thru the same ordeal as last year, only rather worse."

Nazi Aim: Annihilate Reds.

"The best information now indicates," the foreign source continued, "that the German objective is the destruction of the Red army and occupation of western Russia on a line from Leningrad to Astrakhan by September."

Astrakhan is at the mouth of the Volga river of the Caspian sea, and such a line would run thru Moscow and behind virtually all European Russia, including most of its industries, agriculture, and raw materials.

Britons are watching with some impatience for signals of a British move to relieve German pressure against Russia. Press speculation on the feasibility of landing an expedition to create a real two front war for Germany has tapered off but there are signs of a growing restiveness over a lack of material support to Russia beyond the raiding of the RAF.

Berlin Hears Bela Kun Is Captured by Ukrainians

BERLIN, July 19 (AP).—Bela Kun, leader of the communist revolt in Hungary in 1919, has been taken prisoner by Ukrainian nationals, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung said today, quoting a Budapest report. Kun was active in the Ukraine, the report said, and was surprised by the swift advance of the Germans. He was seized, the report added, as he was about to take off in a plane.

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

CHUNGKING, China, July 19.—Fearing an adverse effect on Chinese morale and the development of popular feeling against America, the ministry of publicity has limited the publication of stories about the extent of American sales of gasoline and oil to Japan since the beginning of 1941.

The continuing large volume of petroleum exports surprised and shocked Chinese officials, who charge that the United States is supplying a common enemy of both China and America.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has repeatedly brought up the question of United States oil sales to Japan in discussions with American representatives here.

Minister of Publicity Wang Chin-chien refuted the validity of the argument that American supplies to Japan would forestall a Japanese attack on the Netherlands Indies to get oil by force.

"Different factors will determine whether the Japanese forces attack the Indies," he said. "Japan is now merely building up oil reserves for the time when she considers these factors favorable. The United States could prevent the building up of Japanese reserves by banning export of them."

STALIN ASSUMES CONTROL OVER REDS' DEFENSES

Nazis' Advance Held Up, Moscow Claims.

The story of Josef Stalin's bloody path to political power in soviet Russia is told in today's Graphic section.

MOSCOW, July 20 [Sunday].—(AP)—Josef Stalin, premier, today assumed the duties of people's defense commissar, succeeding Marshal Semeon Timoshenko. Timoshenko, active commander of the western zone of the Russian front, was appointed deputy commissar.

This development was officially announced as the soviet information bureau reported great battles were continuing in the Polotsk-Nevel and Smolensk sectors. Since these are areas in which fighting was reported in progress yesterday, the implication was that the German army's eastward thrust had been held up.

Stalin's Grip Tightened.

Timoshenko had been a defense commissar since May 8, 1940, and is credited in a large measure with modernization of the Red army.

[A further tightening of Stalin's personal control of Russia's defense against the German invaders is evident in his assumption of the defense portfolio. On May 7 he cast off official anonymity as secretary general of the communist party to become chairman of the council of people's commissars [premier]. On July 1, with the Germans pushing east across the buffer lands of sovietized Poland and the Baltic states, Stalin created a defense council with himself at its head.]

Fresh military activity was announced both north and south of the Polotsk-Nevel and Smolensk sectors, where the Russians are defending the path to Moscow.

Today's communique reported no important changes on other sectors of the 2,000 mile front, but said the soviet air force destroyed German motorized units and aircraft, and air and naval units raided German convoys in the Baltic sea.

12 Ships Reported Sunk.

"As a result of an attack by our air force, motor torpedo boats and destroyers," it said, "eleven enemy transports and one tanker were sunk. One enemy fighter was brought down. Our losses in this combat were one airplane and one motor torpedoboat. The crew was saved."

In the fighting of the central zone, where a German vanguard was reported at Smolensk, tremendous casualties were noted on both sides in a communique yesterday. Four areas of heavy fighting in a 200 mile zone were noted by the information bureau.

The four were at Bobruisk, in the heart of White Russia; Smolensk, rail and highway center 230 miles southwest of Moscow; Polotsk, on the Dvinsk-Vitebsk rail line, and the nearby lakes town of Nevel. [The German high command reported that Smolensk was captured last Wednesday.]

Nazis Center Fury on Highway.

Under lowering clouds, the full fury of the German offensive was declared to be concentrated on the Smolensk to Moscow highway and Russians crowded the flanks of the vanguard in an effort to crush it while their mates to the west blocked off Nazi reënforcements.

Using a technique which the British employed on Crete, Red troops were reported by the government newspaper Izvestia to have resorted to entrenchments to wait out German artillery fire and aerial strafing. Then they emerged with machine guns, mortars and bayoneted rifles, Izvestia said, to meet the advance of the Reichwehr infantry.

Delaying tactics of the soviet armies, it was said, helped guerrilla bands to get in their maximum blows behind the German lines.

ADOPT A DEFINITE PEACE AIM, BRITISH LIBERALS ARE URGED

BY GUY MURCHIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 19.—The first Liberal party assembly in two years today heard Wilfrid Roberts, Liberal member of parliament, seeking to put new life into the decadent party, urge the adoption of a definite peace aim.

Roberts, a gentleman farmer from Cumberland, declared:

"If it is possible to form some sort of federation with the other peace loving nations, I am certain that all Liberals will welcome that possibility. We all accept now the importance of having an international police force to prevent aggression.

"I believe the people of Russia will have something to tell us concerning the reconstruction of Europe after the war."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister and leader of the Liberal party, dwelt cautiously on the farsightedness of the Liberals.

"During the troubled truce between 1918 and 1939," he said, "never did the Liberal party bow its knee to tyranny and aggression. Russia is now fighting where the Liberals believed she would have been long ago had it not been for the vagaries of British and French politics before the war."

The international-mindedness of the Liberals was indicated by a resolution urging the "closest possible collaboration with Russia in the active prosecution of the war."

Striking at isolationism, George Gary, a young Liberal in an army officer's uniform, warned: "We have our middlewest in this country, too. Let us not forget this when we hear of Col. Wedgwood [Col. Josiah C. Wedgwood, Laborite member of parliament who is visiting in the United States] saying unkind things about Senator [Burton K.] Wheeler, and Senator Wheeler saying even more unpleasant things about Col. Wedgwood."

Lord Davies of the house of lords told the party "the league of nations has faded thru no fault of the Liberal party."

Critics Reason: New AEF in Making.

Turn to today's Graphic section for the illustrated story of how America, on three occasions over the years, has defeated attempts to invade her. Also an editorial on page 12.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Proof that the Roosevelt administration is working toward another American expeditionary force is indicated by the long held opinion of military experts—including the army general staff—that 500,000 troops would be ample to defend the United States.

A well trained mobile force of this strength, or about one-third the 1,500,000 troops which the administration claims to be a "must" for defense of this hemisphere, could stave off any attempted invasion, according to expert opinion.

Army generals expressed this belief, too, until war mongers and politicians within the administration pressed for a gradually expanded army and increased intervention in the war abroad.

Forced to Tackle Program.

High ranking officers have said privately that they were forced to undertake a program which they did not desire. Instead of expert training and complete modern equipment for a small but adequate army of about 500,000 men, the war department and industry have strained to instruct and equip an unwieldly, awkward force which today is without weapons for essential training. This summer troops again will engage in maneuvers using dummy weapons for tactical training.

Observers will see wooden guns, stovepipe mortars, cardboard tanks, oak boughs for machine guns, etc., the same as last summer, according to a recent statement by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, who at 73 is one of the leading interventionists.

Little Equipment Added.

Despite the administration enthusiasm for involvement in the war, a recent survey by THE TRIBUNE showed that the army has little more equipment today—for an army of more than 1,400,000 men—than it had a year ago for a total force of 519,000 men. In some categories there is less equipment than a year ago because of extreme generosity in transferring weapons to the British and their allies, who now include communist Russia.

The army today totals 1,477,000 officers and men, and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, told the senate military affairs committee this week that this force plus the new men being drawn in, or about 1,500,000 altogether, is now needed to defend the western hemisphere.

General Does About Face.

This was one of a series of "about faces" Gen. Marshall has done on army recommendations.

A little more than a year ago—in February, 1940—Marshall told another congressional committee that a regular army of 242,000, together with the National Guard, then numbering about 235,000—or a total of 477,000 men—could defend the United States and its hemisphere commitments.

A short time later he appeared before a congressional committee and supported an increase in the regular army to 375,000 men as adequate for defense. And he opposed conscription.

Then the administration, abetted by war mongers, cooked up the conscription bill, and July 12, 1940, found Gen. Marshall testifying in favor of that bill. But he told the senate military affairs committee on that occasion that he opposed a suggested increase in the regular army to 750,000 men.

Now the United States not only has an army approaching 1,500,000 men, but Marshall, again at the behest of the policy-makers, has proposed retention of the draftees, Guardsmen, and reservists beyond one year's training. This would permit the government to keep this army intact and add 900,000 new draftees for training each year, as provided by present law, making a prospective force of about 2,400,000 men—with talk increasing of an army of 3,000,000 or 4,000,000 men.

Funds already have been requested for raising the strength of the army to 1,725,000 and to provide additional equipment for a total force of 3,000,000.

This drive for an old-fashioned mass army has gone ahead despite the lesson of France, where Hitler's mechanized forces, said not to exceed 150,000 men, plowed thru and conquered France's big but slow army of 5,000,000. A million or more Germans followed the mechanized troops to occupy the conquered territory.

Critics of the administration's policy ask what possible use could be made of the expanding army except for an expedition, in view of earlier expert testimony that a force of 500,000 would be ample for defense alone.

AEF PLAN MAY BE REVIVED.

At least temporarily, the administration has abandoned plans for legislation permitting the President to use draftees and Guardsmen outside of the western hemisphere. But those familiar with administration tactics look for a revival of this plea, once the matter of keeping the men in service is out of the way.

The latest plan is for a congressional declaration of a national emergency to authorize retention of the men. The possibility also exists that the President will merely extend the "western hemisphere" indefinitely. He already has stretched the hemisphere zone in the Atlantic to include Iceland, which is about 40 miles beyond the commonly accepted hemisphere line of demarcation.

Noninterventionists question whether the Azores, the Cape Verde Islands, and possibly even the French port of Dakar on the bulge of Africa, may not be interpreted likewise by the President. Significantly, the newly revised army manual of field regulations and operations provides special instructions for the first time on fighting in jungles, deserts, and fields of perpetual snow—conditions alien to the United States.

New Anti-Tank Gun Carrier

Armored car designed by Maj. Howard P. Johnson, anti-tank unit officer of 2d army corps, as it was demonstrated at Fort Meade, Md. It carries four machine guns, and a 37 mm. anti-tank gun firing thru slit in rear, and the sides are pierced with slits for rifle fire. Pictures in order, reading down, show the car from the front, the rear with steel panel lowered showing how the anti-tank gun is carried inside the car, unloading the gun from car for use on the ground, and setting it up for ground use. At present such guns are towed behind a truck, so that gunners must leave the truck and unlimber the gun for action. The new device has not yet been accepted by the army.

22 ITALIANS GO TO PRISON FOR DAMAGING SHIP

Houston, Tex., July 19 (AP).—Sentences ranging from two years in a reformatory to four in the federal penitentiary were pronounced today by Federal Judge James V. Allred upon the captain and crew of the Italian freighter Mongioia, seized in March after the vessel had been damaged in port.

Convicted by a jury in federal court Thursday on four counts of an indictment charging tampering with a vessel in violation of federal law, Capt. Ernesto Ranise and 21 officers and crewmen appeared for sentence.

Capt. Ranise was sentenced to serve four years imprisonment on each of four counts, sentences to run concurrently. Chief Engineer Giuseppi Tassara and First Engineer Luigi Ferlenga were given concurrent sentences of three years and six months on each of the counts. Two deck boys were ordered sent to a federal reform school for two years, and 18 other members of the crew were sentenced to three years in federal prison on each court counts, terms to be concurrent.

Soldier Dies Following Bout in Camp Grant Ring

Rockford, Ill., July 19 [Special].—Private Chester E. Kuniuk, 23 years old, of Lincoln Park, Mich., died last night at the Camp Grant hospital, it was reported, from injuries incurred earlier in the evening in a boxing match in the recruit reception center. Officials said Kuniuk was injured in an outdoor ring used for boxing bouts between soldiers. The contests are supervised and a physician is in attendance. Kuniuk and his opponent used regulation gloves.

BRITISH MOBILIZE 'V' TERROR ARMY IN MIDST OF NAZIS

Conquered Peoples Told: Be Ready for Victory!

LONDON, July 20 [Sunday] (AP).—A post-midnight broadcast with a message from Prime Minister Churchill opened "V for Victory" day on the German occupied continent today. Conquered peoples were urged to go out under cover of darkness and smear "millions of new V's on walls and doors and pavements all over Europe" as a symbol of resistance to Nazilsm.

Today was set aside as a special day for manifestations of resistance after a campaign started almost as a joke had swept thru the occupied territories and assumed major proportions in the last few days, according to British reports.

First Big Propaganda Offensive.

It was Britain's first major propaganda offensive in the occupied nations, a call for organization thruout these lands of "an invisible army of many millions" to launch a "fear offensive" against German troops and authorities and to refuse all collaboration with them.

Churchill's message, read by "Col. Britton," radio commander of the campaign, said:

"The V sign is the symbol of the unconquerable will of the occupied territories and a portent of the fate awaiting the Nazi tyranny. So long as the peoples of Europe continue to refuse all collaboration with the invader, it is sure that his cause will perish and that Europe will be liberated."

Call to Arms Is Hinted.

After reading this message "Col. Britton" urged his listeners to "wait for the word," and he promised that "when the moment comes" the action would be such that the Germans would be powerless to halt it.

This was interpreted as an indication that Britain would call on the occupied nations to rise in arms against the Germans when and if the British army again gets a foothold on the continent.

"Col. Britton" proclaimed confidently that "in a few minutes there will be millions of new V's on walls and doors and pavements all over Europe."

"Darkness is your chance," he said. "Put your V up as a member of this army."

Urged to Tap Out Terror.

He asked his listeners to tap the V sign out in Morse code—three dots and a dash—"so that your comrades of the vast army will hear it and the Germans will hear it too.

He cautioned that the "V army must be a disciplined army," lending further weight to the interpretation that the organization might later be called upon for more potent measures.

By raising the first two fingers to form a V, by writing the letter V on the backs of unwary German soldiers and officials, by ordering and reordering the playing of Beethoven's Fifth [Vth] symphony, which opens with a Morse V in three short notes and a long one, and by many other such devices the people of the occupied countries are urged to wage a nerve war against the Nazi troops and authorities.

Nazis Counter in Netherlands.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, July 19 (AP).—A German counter offensive against the British "V for Victory" campaign was started in a big way today thruout the Netherlands.

Residents of Amsterdam awoke this morning to find a large 30 foot white banner flying from Queen Wilhelmina's former palace with the inscription: "V is for Viktoria, for Germany is winning for Europe on all fronts." Similar banners were flown in other public places. Newspapers and billboards also stressed the phrase.

Reports from Oslo said a similar counter campaign was under way thruout Norway.

COL. M'CORMICK DISCUSSES NAZI WAR WITH REDS

Says High Casualty Toll Is Only Certainty.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, last night discussed the Russian-German war in a speech delivered over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. He spoke during the Chicagoland hour.

Col. McCormick said that in a struggle with as many imponderables as the Nazi-soviet conflict, the only thing one may be certain of, is that hundreds of thousands—and perhaps millions—of young men are being killed.

This, however, might have its beneficent effect should America enter into war, he added. There would be that many fewer enemy troops against which the Americans would have to fight, he said.

Loyal in Last War.

Col. McCormick said the people of Russia may be fretting under the Stalin dictatorship, or indoctrinated with communism. Then, recalling his observations when he was on the Russian front in the World war, Col. McCormick said the Russians were fanatically loyal in that conflict, but that they lacked adequate arms to resist the Germans.

The present German seizure of Russian territory, Col. McCormick declared, will be of no value if the Russian army can preserve its organization. Fighting within the vast reaches of Russia, he asserted, is far different from war in western Europe, where troops may be driven against the sea or mountains and forced to capitulate.

Modern Equipment of Germans.

Pictures from the new war, Col. McCormick declared, had shown clearly the modern equipment of the German soldier, and particularly the ever presence of automatic arms. The Germans, Col. McCormick said, had learned this lesson of automatic arms power from the Americans. Now, he asserted, the Americans should not be reluctant to learn from the Germans.

Col. McCormick in pleading for the acceptance of new ideas within the army, once again urged that responsible commands be placed in younger officers.

Col. McCormick said in part:

"I have consented to talk about the battle in Russia, in spite of certain misgivings.

"We can probably accept as correct the German statements as to the towns they have taken. They may even be farther advanced than they claim, both because the supreme command may not be informed as to the location of its most advanced elements, and because of delay in issuing its statements.

"But that is all we can be sure of. The Russians may be putting up a stubborn resistance, or they may be badly beaten, and the German failure to advance farther may be due to the extraordinary difficulty in moving millions of men, their munitions, and supplies, over a country of poor roads, few railroads, and these, of course, all damaged.

Discounts Communiques.

"There is nothing in our experience to indicate a war can be carried on at all in the way the Russians and Germans are carrying it on. We have never had in our army anything like the equipment they have, and until the equipment has been received and practiced with, estimates of ours are little better than guess work.

"We cannot put much confidence in the reports of the two headquarters, because they are put out more to confuse and dismay the enemy, and to influence world opinion, than to convey information.

"We can learn something from the photographs so extraordinarily transmitted by radio. We know, for instance, that in addition to being used in battle, tanks are carrying infantrymen on the march. If they can average 20 men to a tank, 10,000 tanks can move a lot of men.

Pull Gasoline Trailer.

"We know also that when on the march, the tanks pull trailers loaded with gasoline. That helps explain how they move the vast quantities of fuel needed for mechanized warfare.

"I have not seen a single picture of a German soldier that I can be sure is carrying an old-fashioned rifle or a bayonet. They all appear to have automatic weapons, and weapons more like a Tommy gun than a Garand rifle.

"Men who have been under fire know that men with ordinary repeating rifles are utterly helpless at close range when opposed by men armed with automatics.

"The Boer war is more than 40 years behind us. We should not let it continue to control our military thinking.

Thousands of Spies in America.

"While the Russians have thousands of spies in America, we know nothing about the Russians. The people may be heartily sick of their dictator, or they may have been indoctrinated with communism, which is the only form of organization the younger people have ever seen.

"I have never understood the purpose of the allied propaganda to discredit the efforts of the Russian army in the World war.

"It may be that the purpose of propaganda being to deceive, it can only lie, and the Russian army having been very good in the World war, the allied propagandists called it bad.

"The Russian army took greater punishment than any other army had to submit to. When I was there in 1915, it was short of both munitions and weapons. I remember seeing a Russian soldier shot, and an unarmed replacement come to take his gun.

Ordeal for Infantry.

"At the time I was there, Russia had no ammunition for bombardment. Everything had to be saved for the moment of attack. German bombardment had to be taken without reply. Soldiers know what an ordeal that is for the infantry.

"I happened to be at the front at Warsaw the day of the German breakthru in May. The old tactics were still in use, as they were used by us three years later. Infiltration had not yet been invented. To the defender, an attack by waves appears irresistible, but where we were, the Russian infantry stood; their machine guns opened fire; the waves disappeared. Whether the men were shot or whether they went back into their trenches, I was too excited to notice. The few men who passed the first trench, surrendered very quietly.

"There was great exultation at the headquarters of the army commander at supper. After supper some of us went to Warsaw and to the theater where the performance was stopped to hear the good news. None of us knew at that time, nor for days afterward, that 100 miles away the Germans had broken the line, and that all of the Russian armies would be compelled to retreat.

Collapse of Morale.

"I saw no signs of disaffection in Russia in 1915, but after two more years of the horrors of war, Russian civilization collapsed. But let us remember that the German morale collapsed in 1918; the French were only saved from revolution in 1917 by the arrival of the Americans; there were mutinies in both the British army and fleet immediately after the war; and something very like a mutiny in our own army at Archangel.

"The glory of war is for the war workers.

"The Russians have been military people for hundreds of years. It was against the Russian army that Napoleon pounded his army to pieces in 1812. He was unable to surround and destroy his enemy as he had done so often before in western Europe. History may be repeating itself.

Difference in Distances.

"The gain of territory in Russia will be of no value if the Russian army can preserve its organization. In western Europe, distances are small—vital spots like Paris, Berlin, or Vienna are easily reached—and a defeated army can be pushed against the sea or a mountain barrier like Switzerland, and compelled to surrender.

"Do not think that the Russian army has always been fighting in its own country. It has taken Berlin several times. It has been as far west as Denmark, as far south as Genoa, and has twice been to Paris, and once to the gates of Constantinople, and, of course, to Port Arthur in Corea.

"If the purges of officers have been less wholesale than has been believed, there is a mass of military experience and tradition to call upon.

"That is about all I can say about the war in Russia. The only thing we can be sure of is that hundreds of thousands—maybe millions—of young men have been killed."

CHICAGOLAND MUSIC

A medley of songs by Victor Herbert and several selections from Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" featured the musical portion of the Chicagoland hour.

Marion Claire, soprano; Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Mark Love, basso, were the soloists. Miss Claire sang "A Kiss in the Dark," in the Herbert medley; "The Jewel Song," from Gounod's "Faust"; "Cielito Lindo," by Romero, and "I'm Called Little Buttercup," from "H. M. S. Pinafore."

The concert orchestra was directed by Henry Weber. William A. Bacher was the producer.

BRITISH FLYING BOAT BRINGS 31 TO BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., July 19 [Special].—Carrying 19 passengers and a crew of 12, the British Overseas Airways flying boat Bristol arrived here tonight from England. The passengers, all British, were brought to set up a permanent maintenance base at the airport.

The flying boat was anchored off the airport not far from its sister ships, the Bangor and the Berwick. All three are 42 ton four motored Boeing machines and were recently acquired by the BOA from Pan American Airways.

[Negotiations by British officials for use of the Baltimore seaplane facilities have been under way for some time. The port would be used as a base for repairs and not as a passenger terminal.]

Cavalry's 'Surprise' Value Shown in Desert Maneuvers

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

With the 1st Cavalry Division in the Desert of New Mexico, July 19.—The eyes of the 1st cavalary division in its present war maneuvers are the heavy armored cars, light whippet tanks, and comical but deadly little bantam buggies of the swift moving 91st reconnaissance squadron. Scouting miles ahead of the division's horse mounted units, this mechanized unit is designed to seek out enemy weak points, guard against ambushes, and, when possible, seize prisoners.

For the last 36 hours this correspondent has been with the squadron on its missions into the blistering desert 30 miles northeast of Fort Bliss and during its frequent theoretical dog fights with the "enemy"—in this instance the 56th cavalry brigade.

Motor Versus Horse.

The purpose of the sham battle was to determine the efficiency of mechanized forces operating against horse mounted infantry and horse drawn artillery. The writer learned this and other things, not the least of which was how heavenly water can be even when served hot and sandy from not-too-clean canteens, in such burning, dry spots on the map as Flat Tank Charley and Owl Tank Canyon, N. M.

The writer joined the squadron before dawn yesterday in its field bivouac area, in the 24 mile square sector between the Hueco mountains on the east and the El Paso-Alamogordo highway on the west, which is the maneuver area for the war games.

In a blacked out journey to the bivouac, while walking ahead of an army jeep to be sure it didn't run over a sleeping soldier, I bumped into the business end of a picketed horse and was scared into a jump of Olympic proportions by the whirr of a nearby rattlesnake.

Move at Dawn.

At 4 a. m., just as dawn made the nearby Huecos look like painted mountains daubed in blue on a gold horizon, Lieut. Col. Eugene A. Regnier ordered the 91st to move. The mission: reconnaissance preceding the northerly advance of the division.

Troops A and B, with 20 scout cars each, moved out first, followed by the bantam cars of C troop. The 13 tanks of D troop moved at the rear, ready to jump to the front if the lighter elements encountered too strong enemy resistance.

Yesterday was a nightmare of blazing sun, temperatures reaching 110 degrees and choking sand dust rolling up in clouds to fill the eyes and lungs of the 91st.

It was during this day, in missions to feel out enemy strength, that the bantam troop proved its great worth. Among the hummocks and clumps of mesquite which dot the desert its little cars could scarcely be seen. Time and time again they moved behind the enemy lines on scouting assignments. Once their crews surprised and captured three high enemy officers, and again the bantams brought back most of a troop of cavalry they had happened into.

Armed with Submachine Guns.

In the 91st, the bantams, each of which carry four men, are armed only with Thompson submachine guns. In other army organizations, however, .30 and .50 caliber machine guns have been mounted on them, increasing their battle efficiency.

The bantams proved they could charge forward at 30 miles an hour over terrain where the 7 ton scout cars had difficult going. Motorcycle runners of the squadron found it impossible to catch them.

The whole squadron proved, however, that in combat with cavalry it would be able to give more than a good account of itself, especially if favored by the element of surprise. Men of the 91st, crouching at their machine guns behind walls of steel, would do untold damage to mounted cavalry, ideally high target silhouette.

The end of the "war," ordered by the umpires at 1 p. m., found the squadron at an absolutely barren spot deep in enemy country. Speedy return to El Paso looked like a problem. But it was easily solved by Col. Regnier.

Climbing into a scout car, he radioed back to the division command post. Ten minutes later a "grasshopper" plane, one of the dozen little civilian ships being tested during the war games, plopped down nearby. Thirty minutes later the story was on its way from the El Paso airport.

Pot-Pan Drive on Tomorrow; Whistles Signal Start in City

Door to Door Canvass

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—The American housewife will be besieged by an army of collectors of used pots and pans next week as the government begins the salvage of aluminum to offset what the administration describes as a shortage of the metal in rearmament production.

The collection will be made thru a door to door canvass, beginning Monday, with numerous civic groups and municipal organizations, such as police and fire departments, taking part.

A statement issued by the Office of Production Management warned of a probable shortage of aluminum to meet military requirements during the rest of the current year. It also asserted there is a severe shortage of scrap aluminum for remelting. None of the metal is available for civilian needs, the statement added.

15 Million Pounds Sought.

The government hopes the salvage campaign will yield 15 million pounds of aluminum, which in the virgin state would be enough to build 2,000 fighting planes or 500 four engined bombers.

According to metallurgists, however, impurities in most of the scrap will make it unacceptable for use in the manufacture of war supplies. Government officials admitted only the higher grade salvage would go directly to swell the virgin supply vital for airplanes, tanks, battleships, and other articles of combat. But, they continued, that of lower grade would be acceptable for secondary armaments needs, releasing the same amount of first rate material for rearmament.

The drive is under the joint direction of William S. Knudsen, director general of the Office of Production Management, and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York City, director of the Office of Civilian Defense. Officials said no one will make any profit out of the drive and all workers will contribute their services.

Psychological Aim Reported.

Instruction have been issued for precautions against fraud and profiteering. These followed early reports the administration was not nearly as interested in obtaining aluminum as in making American women war conscious and bringing President Roosevelt's emergency to every doorstep in the nation. La Guardia, whose organization conceived of the plan, is one of the foremost war advocates in the President's inner circle.

When Boy Scouts and neighborhood club and civic group members begin punching doorbells in quest of the scrap Monday morning they will set a vast organization in motion. It was devised after earlier attempts to woo the unused articles from the homes by other methods ended in failure.

The scrap gathered in individual communities will be deposited under police guard in central bins—fire stations, schoolhouses, and city halls—whence it will be trucked to centrally located points in each state.

In Illinois these points are Chicago, Aurora, Springfield, Peoria, East St. Louis, Bloomington, Champaign, Rockford, and Rock Island. The material will remain under guard until it is taken over by the federal government.

Highest Prices Assured.

When the articles reach the state collection points they will be handed over to procurement officers of the treasury department and representatives of the OPM and will be shipped to the nearest available smelter holding a preparedness preference rating. The smelters have agreed to pay maximum prices prescribed by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, it was announced.

Each local community chairman has been directed to keep a record of the weight of the aluminum collected in his area. A statement of the total is to be forwarded to the OPM's division of information for comparison with statements from smelters and with sales records.

Money derived from the sales will be deposited to the account of the National scrap aluminum fund in the Federal Reserve bank in Richmond, Va. It will be used to buy training planes for the army and navy.

Goal 500,000 Pounds

The scream of hundreds of factory whistles at 9 a. m. tomorrow will be the signal for 40,000 volunteer workers, most of them Boy Scouts, to begin a house to house canvass of Chicago homes to collect aluminum kitchenware. By Saturday the Chicago Commission on National Defense hopes to have a 500,000 pound pile of scrap aluminum, which is to be contributed to the national preparedness program.

From community collection centers in police and fire stations and ward offices, the aluminum will be moved to the main collection bin in the Congress street plaza at Michigan avenue. Soldiers and sailors from Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes will guard the metal until it is directed to smelting plants by the Office of Production Management.

Workers Will Bear Cards.

Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel and vice chairman of the Chicago commission, said all volunteer workers would be provided with identification cards to prevent collection by unauthorized persons.

Many theaters, stores, and community organizations will install bins to aid in the drive. Commuters riding the Chicago and North Western railway may hang their kitchenware on hooks which will be built in the station. Loop collection bins will be installed in the concourse at Congress street and Michigan avenue.

The anticipated 15 million pounds of pots and pans to be collected in the national roundup will be refined and used in needed arms projects now using virgin aluminum, according to R. D. T. Hollowell, secretary of the Aluminum Research institute, 308 West Washington street.

Acts to Curb Reaction.

In a statement designed to forestall unfavorable public reaction to the comment of several Chicago metallurgists that it will be impossible to purify scrap aluminum to an extent called for in government specifications, Hollowell said:

"There are hundreds of possible applications of secondary aluminum in the mass of defense needs in which refined secondary aluminum and its alloys are entirely satisfactory—perhaps even more so in some cases than the virgin metal and its alloys."

Hollowell said that statements of some Chicago metallurgists that it is impossible to obtain pure aluminum from pots and pans "should not be construed as collusion on the part of Illinois and Indiana secondary aluminum smelters to discourage the defense commission's national drive."

Cites Unwise Promotion.

"Some earlier governmental promotional releases may have unwisely attempted to popularize the public aluminum scrap collection by hookups with airplane construction needs," he admitted.

W. A. Singer, president of the Apex Smelting company, 2537 Taylor street, one of the concerns scheduled to remelt much of the Illinois scrap, said last night that his company "fully subscribes and coöperates with the defense program and its regulations and the motives of all government agencies."

The vice president and chief metallurgist of the company, George H. Skarmann, one of the technicians who on Friday said it would be impossible to get pure aluminum from pots and pans for use in vital airplane parts, reiterated this belief but added that the ingots resulting from the collection would be used for many rearmament needs.

Italy Levies New Excess Profits Tax of 10 to 50%

ROME, July 19 (AP).—Italy imposed a special tax ranging from 10 to 50 per cent today on excess profits from the sale of industrial securities, ostensibly as a measure against inflation. Finance Minister Paolo Thaon di Revel Jr. declared Europe has shown it could do without gold, which had fled to the United States. He said stocks of raw materials stored up by the government "and not gold will be able to guarantee [monetary] circulation."

Goering Honors Parachute Heroes of Crete Conquest

BERLIN, July 19 (AP).—The official German news agency announced tonight that Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering held a reception at his field headquarters last Thursday for parachuters who distinguished themselves in the conquest of Crete. He decorated them with the knight's cross of the Iron Cross.

BRITISH FLYERS BOMB WARSHIPS IN SICILY HARBOR

CAIRO, Egypt, July 19 (AP).—Axis destroyers and cruisers in the Sicilian harbor of Palermo were hit or closely missed in an air assault Thursday night "but full results could not be observed owing to smoke," the royal air force said today. Aircraft of the fleet air arm also attacked air bases on the island off the toe of Italy's boot, its communique reported.

British forces at Tobruk, Libya, made three simultaneous raids on the axis forces yesterday, inflicting serious casualties, a communique said.

Attacks Repulsed, Says Rome.

ROME, July 19 (AP).—British troops moved out of besieged Tobruk and attacked two Italian positions but were repelled, the Italian high command said today.

PAINTER REPORTED MISSING.

Chicago Lawn police were asked last night to search for Walter Novak, 27 years old, 3639 West 69th place, a painter, who disappeared from his home last Wednesday.

BOLIVIA UNDER STATE OF SIEGE; OUST NAZI ENVOY

Cabinet Acts to Thwart Threatened Putsch.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 19 (AP).—The Bolivian government proclaimed a state of siege tonight and ordered the German minister to leave the country within 48 hours in a swift move to suppress what informed persons called a threatened Nazi putsch.

The government announcement said the siege decree was to thwart "a revolutionary attempt being plotted by groups with totalitarian tendencies."

Cabinet Orders Envoy Out.

Altho the government did not directly link the two actions simultaneously with the declaration of a state of siege, it announced that the German minister, Ernest Wendler, had been declared persona non grata at a cabinet meeting and was ordered to leave Bolivia.

The announcement did not mention the other members of the embassy staff, but usually well informed persons said it was believed they likewise would be expelled.

Country Reported Tranquil.

Police took measures to maintain order thruout the republic and official reports said the situation was tranquil everywhere.

[Bolivia has had similar troubles in the past, but has not attributed them so clearly to Nazis as in the present case. Last May 21 it was announced that steps had been taken to suppress "totalitarian" action. President Enrique Penaranda last October decreed amnesty for various political offenses in an announced attempt to unify the country. This followed a clash in La Paz last July between leftists and alleged Fascists in which one person was killed. On March 26, 1940, the government put down a revolt by an army regiment.]

See Plot to Hold Up Tin.

Washington, D. C., July 19.—Government circles tonight declared that "in all probability" the situation in Bolivia had resulted from an attempt by Nazi agents to foment disturbances, and probably revolution, to interrupt Bolivian tin shipments to the United States and Britain. Bolivia is the third largest tin producer in the world, with an output last year of 27,000 tons.

NAVY IS GIVING MEN 'SHOTS' FOR YELLOW FEVER

Inoculations against yellow fever were given to 130 members of the naval personnel in Chicago and the suburbs yesterday morning in the United States courthouse. This is the first time the navy has attempted to immunize men who might be exposed to the disease in the new Atlantic island bases or elsewhere.

The Chicago group included 22 marines from the marine recruiting station and its five substations in this area. Officers' families also are being inoculated. Mrs. A. D. Willis, whose husband, a lieutenant, has been ordered to Panama, and their children, Leslie, 3 years old, and Arthur, 5, were the only family at the courthouse yesterday.

A special vaccine developed by the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research is being used. Only one shot is administered, and it is said to be effective for life. It took two naval surgeons only 50 minutes to inoculate the group of 130, according to Lieut. David N. Goldenson, chief of the naval recruiting office.

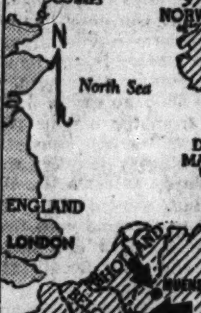
RAF SAYS BOMBS RAZE ONE-THIRD OF 2 NAZI CITIES

Tells of Havoc in Aachen and Muenster.

LONDON, July 20 [Sunday] (AP).—Britain today claimed at least a third of the German cities of Muenster and Aachen have been destroyed or seriously damaged by the royal air force.



Arrows point to cities hit by big British raids.

After detailing the damage in those cities, the air ministry news service said more than 120 raids have been made on Germany and Nazi occupied territory in the last few weeks.

"The German people are beginning to appreciate that the war which they hoped to wage on territory other than their own is being brought to their doorsteps," the service said.

The service announced that during the 31 days ending July 14 RAF daylight offensives yielded a bag of 301 Messerschmitt 109s, including many of the new 109F type. In the same period, Britain was said to have lost only 118 fighters.

All of Aachen Damaged.

The service said fighter pilots had flown more than 2 million miles in 36 offensive raids in the 31 days.

At Aachen, the service said, no part of the city escaped havoc. The effect of the heaviest RAF bombs were shown in Muenster where there is "one devastated area of more than 7,000 square yards," the service said.

It stressed the effectiveness of the daylight bombings against the industries in northern France which are helping to supply German war needs.

While these successes were being recounted, the air ministry announced RAF bombers "probably destroyed" four ships totaling 22,000 tons off the Netherlands today.

Heavy bombers attacked the docks at Dunkirk, occupied France, this afternoon.

The air ministry said four German fighters were destroyed and acknowledged the loss of five planes.

Freighter Sunk, Nazis Claim.

BERLIN, July 19 (AP).—German bombers sank a 1,500 ton freighter and hit two other merchantmen during the night in waters off England, the German high command said today. An authoritative source said a 3,000 ton ship was damaged seriously off Hull yesterday.

One British bomber and four fighter planes were reported shot down over northern France and Belgium during the day. Reports from the Netherlands said two more British planes were downed there.

NEW SHELTERS WILL OFFER LONDON ALL THE COMFORT OF HOME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 19.—Ultramodern reinforced oncrete surface shelters such as are being built in London streets may soon replace all the old type, which are of brick construction with slabs of concrete for roofs.

The new shelter, designed by Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, architect of Liverpool's cathedral, has heating, cooking, and sanitary arrangements and bunks for 50 persons. It withstood the concussion of a heavy test bomb that exploded close to it. A big advantage is that the roof cannot be blown off, which has happened to the old style.

EXPECT NEW JAP CABINET TO BE FRIENDLY TO U. S.

Konoe Reported Ready to Patch Up Rift.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Japan, July 19.—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe's new streamlined cabinet, shorn of such frills as an advisory board, is expected to pursue a friendly policy toward the United States. It was indicated tonight that should the American government show any disposition to bring relations between the two countries back to a normal state, Tokio would gladly respond.

However, it was pointed out that the new government will not go out of its way to court the United States' favor, as it considers this meaningless in view of what it regards as many recent rebuffs.

Two Matsuoka Aids Resign.

The only setbacks so far suffered by the government are the resignations of the minister to China, Kumataro Honda, and the vice minister of foreign affairs, Chuichi Ohashi. Both were close to Yosuke Matsuoka, who was replaced as foreign minister by Vice Admiral Teijoro Toyoda.

The semiofficial Japan Times tonight forecast that the government will adhere to the fundamental Japanese foreign policy which aims at the establishment of an East Asia common prosperity sphere by disposing of the China affair as quickly as possible.

Indo-China Chief Returns.

SAIGON, French Indo-China, July 19 (AP).—Uncertainty over Japan's future intentions was heightened today when Gov. Gen. Admiral Jean Decoux, who had set up a summer capital near here, announced that he was returning by air immediately with his entire staff to Hanoi, the regular seat of government.

There have been rumors for days that Japan is on the verge of operations in or against this Vichy colony.

Nazis Blame U. S. Threat.

BERLIN, July 19 (AP).—Reorganization of the Japanese cabinet was necessitated by a threat from the United States, the newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung declared today.

"Without American permission, Britain could not continue the war and on the Pacific Britain no longer has anything to say," the newspaper contended. "Therefore, its threat to Japan can only be a threat with American weapons. That has been understood in Japan and the reason for rebuilding the Japanese cabinet is very plain."

RAF REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVE IN SINGAPORE; FLED FROM BISMARCK

SINGAPORE, July 19 (AP).—New contingents of the royal air force arrived here from England today, continuing a bolstering of Britain's far eastern defenses. The number was not disclosed, but RAF headquarters described the units as "large reinforcements."

The men said that the German battleship Bismarck, which was sunk by the British May 27 in the Atlantic, once approached within 50 miles of the ship which brought them here.

LIBRARY SEEKS BOOKS TO LEND TO ARMY MEN

A drive by the Chicago public library to obtain 10,000 books for soldiers at army camps in the 6th corps area will open tomorrow. Chicagoans are invited to leave current and classic fiction and nonfiction at the main library, Michigan avenue and Randolph street, or at any of the 46 local branches.

Requests have been made for best sellers, classics, thrillers, detective yarns, contemporary biography, and popular educational books. Men in the army find little interest in outdated magazines, and the library suggests that old magazines be sold for waste paper and the money used for new subscriptions for soldiers. The names of soldiers wanting magazines may be had by writing the commanding officer of any army camp in the area.

The first 1,000 books received at Camp Grant circulated at the rate of 115 a day. Books may be kept by soldiers for two weeks with the privilege of renewal. No fines are charged for overdue books, but lost books must be replaced or paid for.

". . . hand embroidered . . . delicate . . . lacy . . .

BUT I'VE ALWAYS SENT THEM TO THE LAUNDRY"

Mrs. Bert H. Blackmore,
5024 S. Kedzie, Chicago, Ill.

"To save yourself and enjoy life more,
Call the laundryman
to your door."

Why wear yourself out over a tedious washing when the laundry does the thankless job for so little? Call the laundry . . . "this week, enjoy a 10-minute washday," just the time needed to gather up your clothes. There's a service to fit any budget.

and don't forget . . .

THE LAUNDRY WASHES WITH CARE:

Latest type washing equipment washes everything in protective net bags;

Rain-soft water, NOT hard water, is used—it's EASY on clothes. And thanks to rain-soft water, the laundry washes with Milder soaps than you can use at home. They're EASY on your clothes.

And as many as 10 to 12 complete water changes are made in washing a SINGLE batch of your clothes!

In this voluntary story Mrs. Blackmore tells why she knows the laundry washes whiter and is easy on clothes. Read what she says . . .

"I did a foolish thing once. After years of using laundry service I tried home washing. I bought soap, bluing, water softener, etc., and for two months used a rental machine. That was a S-A-D experience! I wasn't saving money. And what was worse, I was completely worn out afterward and my clothes weren't really clean. No wonder I'm using the laundry again.

"Everything I get back from the laundry is so clean, fresh. And I know they wash clothes carefully. Take my prize pillowcases as an example. They're hand embroidered in two shades of lace. I've sent them to the laundry off and on for 14 years and they're still not faded or worn. Our laundry bill for two runs a little under a dollar a week for everything washed and my husband's shirts finished."

MORTGAGE YOUR FUTURE FOR WAR, AUSTRALIA TOLD

Menzies Asks Everything Beyond Frugal Needs.

BY W. A. O'CARROLL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, July 6 [By Air Mail].—After making frugal provision for his real wants, the private citizen will have to devote everything he has to the war effort, Prime Minister R. G. Menzies said recently in a broadcast which he designated as "the prospectus of an unlimited war effort."

"It is necessary," he said, "that we Australians should, without more ado, organize ourselves so that it can be said that we are prepared, not only to devote the whole of our present efforts but to mortgage our futures for the winning of the war. What the private citizen pays for war must no longer be what he thinks he can afford after spending what he chooses on the amenities of life. For the winning of this war the government will completely disregard all sectional interests, business profits, and private comforts.

"Our national organization must become one primarily for war. War industry must no longer be what we can carve out of civil industry. Civil industry must become that which we can afford out of the total organization of a country which is at war. It is my solemn belief that this year of 1941 will determine whether we are to lose, while in 1942, with defeat averted, we shall build our strength more and more rapidly for victory."

An All-In War Plan.

The prime minister announced a sweeping all-in war plan, the main points of which were: A drastic review of civil production of all goods and enlarged government powers to commandeer or close factories; plants to be switched from civil to war production; all reserved occupations, except those directly related to the war effort, to be scrapped; ministers to confer with women's organizations on the employment of women in clerical and wartime activity, and stoppages in war industries to end.

Communists "who harm the war effort will be interned," he warned.

Menzies also announced that section 40 of the arbitration act will be repealed so that the Arbitration court may award preference to unionists, where such a course is considered proper.

Building to Be Curbed.

Other salient features of the war plan are: a sharp limit on competitive private building to divert skilled tradesmen to war work; appointment of a coal commission empowered to requisition mines; a severe cut in the gasoline ration; a search for substitute fuels; expansion of aircraft production, and steps to secure "maximum use" of railway, road, and ship transport.

Touching on war production, he said: "The time has passed for merely protesting against strikes or lockouts in war or allied industries. We propose to prohibit them. "Where employers were found at fault, he said that, "if necessary, we will take over the business."

Attorney General W. M. Hughes warned that "the right of the commonwealth is unlimited. There is nothing we cannot do, no property we cannot take over, or funds we cannot confiscate. Our powers are limited only by the constitution."

To reduce gasoline consumption, the government placed a ceiling of 1,000 miles a year for private motorists.

Two thousand Chicagoans of Irish descent gathered for an outdoor celebration called the Festival of Gael last night in St. Philip's stadium, Kedzie avenue and Van Buren street. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil spoke.

Green was the color theme. Music was lilting and fast, and trained Irish feet were busy demonstrating famous dances, jigs, and reels. Part of the program, supervised by Thomas Gibbons, 4313 Madison street, was devoted to boxing by Catholic Youth organization members.

The festival was sponsored by the combined Irish societies. It marked the 172d anniversary of the modern version of the Festival of Gael which, according to legend, goes back actually 1,608 years.

COSTA RICA FIRMS HASTEN TO DODGE BLACKLIST OF U.S.

Dismiss German and Italian Employes.

BY EMILIO ROBERT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, July 19.—Numerous Costa Rican commercial houses that employ Germans and Italians are hastily discharging them. The concerns apparently fear that retention of these employés might cause the companies to be placed on the British and American blacklists.

[President Roosevelt proclaimed recently that 1,800 persons and companies in Latin America have axis ties and imposed an embargo on exports to them. At the same time a treasury order froze their assets in the United States.]

German and Italian business men who have adopted Costa Rican nationality in the last two or three years were among the first to be discharged.

Many Costa Ricans and other residents are declared to sympathize secretly with the Nazi cause. When it was learned that the British battleship Hood had been sunk, the Spanish club and the German club held champagne celebrations, at which numerous Costa Ricans were seen.

Among influential old Costa Rican families and members of the aristocratic Union club, it is common talk that members of the government occupying high posts are believed to possess strong Nazi sympathies.

Well informed sources estimated that a census unobstructed by fears of reprisals would reveal that possibly 50 per cent of the people favor the axis cause.

When newsreels depict democratic war activities or snow pictures of Prime Minister Churchill of Britain or President Roosevelt, they are vigorously applauded, but so are pictures of axis personalities and activities. At times the axis scenes receive a surprising volume of applause.

Recently it was rumored that authorities were contemplating freezing funds of totalitarian nationals in Costa Rican banks. As a result, totalitarian clients have withdrawn large amounts.

MUNITIONS TRAIN BLOWS UP AFTER CRASH IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM, July 19 (AP).—A Swedish munitions train exploded today in a head-on collision with an express train at Krylbo station north of Stockholm. The initial detonation was heard for miles and a series of shell bursts continued for hours.

Twelve persons were injured and taken to a hospital, but none was killed. Others took refuge in an air raid shelter.

The express train caught fire and the important railway junction where the crash occurred was jammed. The munitions train was reported partly made up of German cars.

Transport of a German division across Sweden from Norway to Finland was reported virtually finished at the end of last week.

BRITAIN TO DRAFT FRIENDLY ENEMY LABOR FOR WAR

Order Germans, Italians Registered for Jobs.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 19.—German, Austrian, and Italian nationals in Britain soon may be conscripted into useful jobs to help the national war effort.

Heretofore these "friendly enemies" have been exempt from compulsory industrial registration, but Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin announced today that next month's registration by the ministry of labor of men from 16 to 65 years and women from 16 to 50 would include all persons regardless of nationality or position. The only classes to be exempted are men already in the armed forces, women in the auxiliary organizations, prisoners of war, and internees.

Anti-Dictator Groups Assisting.

The labor ministry said "there are some tens of thousands of anti-Nazi Germans and Austrians and anti-Fascist Italians in this country, a considerable proportion of whom already are making a valuable contribution to the war effort. The registration will classify the number and capabilities of those still seeking to put their services at the disposal of this country as well as those whose services might better be used than at present."

The voluntary transfer of women to essential work has not come up to expectations, and Minister of Labor Bevin may have to use his compulsory powers after all, according to tonight's Evening News.

"Willing Worker" Idea Fails.

Too few of the 1,250,000 registered girls who were born between 1917 and 1920 have voluntarily accepted jobs in the essential services and the "willing worker" idea upon which Bevin has so far relied is not proving satisfactory, the paper declares.

The Evening News blames employers, who, it says, persuade girls to continue in their present jobs. Bevin probably will issue a strong warning soon, pointing out that if he has to use compulsion the girls will not have such a good chance of getting the jobs they prefer.

Men generally are accepting transfers to war work much more readily, altho in some men's cases the minister of labor's compulsory power has been used.

SHAKEUP SENDS NEW CHIEFS TO FOUR AIR UNITS

Second Big Army Change Within Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—New commanders were assigned to the four army air forces of the continental United States today as the second major shakeup of general officers within a week jarred the army command. Twenty other generals were shifted last Wednesday.

The shifts announced today sent Maj. Gen. Herbert A. Dargue, assistant chief of the air corps here, to command the 1st air force at Mitchel field, New York.

Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon, head of the interceptor command 4th air force, Riverside, Cal., was assigned to the 2d air force at Fort George Wright, Wash.

Maj. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, commander of the 17th bombardment wing, Savannah, Ga., goes to the 3d air force at Tampa, Fla., and Brig. Gen. William O. Ryan, commander of the 10th pursuit wing, Hamilton field, Cal., will command the 4th air force, Riverside, Cal.

World War Veteran.

Gen. Dargue, who is 54 years old, is a graduate of West Point and has been in the air service since 1913. During the World war he had charge of the aviation school in San Diego, Cal., and later saw service on the western front. He has been attached to a number of air units thruout the country.

Gen. Harmon, who is 53 years old, also is a graduate of West Point. He has been in the air service since 1914. He was assistant chief of the air service advance zone of the American expeditionary force in the World war, participating in the Somme offensive for which he was awarded the Croix de Guerre with bronze star.

Graduate of Naval Academy.

Gen. Brereton is a graduate of the United States Naval academy. He resigned from the navy to accept a commission as second lieutenant in the army coast artillery in 1911. He is 51 years old, and has served in the field artillery and signal corps beside the air force. After duty in the Philippines he was ordered overseas during the World war and commanded the 12th aero squadron, one of the first American flying units on the western front, where he won the distinguished service cross and the Croix de Guerre with two palms.

Gen. Ryan, who is 50 years old, was graduated from West Point and served with the cavalry before joining the air force in 1916. He was chief of air training at aviation schools in Italy during the World war. He is a graduate of the Command and General Staff school, Fort Leavenworth, Kas., and of the Air Corps Tactical school, Maxwell Field, Ala. He has served as an aviation instruction at the Army War college in Washington, D. C.

U. S. CONSULAR GROUP FREED; LEAVES ITALY

ROME, July 19 (AP).—Members of United States consular staffs for Italy and Greece, who had been held at San Remo pending their exchange for expelled axis consular members aboard the United States naval transport West Point, were released today and left by train for Lisbon, Portugal.

They had been held pending the departure for home of axis diplomats ordered expelled by the United States. The axis group is now en route to Lisbon on the West Point, which will start home with the Americans on July 25. Seventy-six are in the American party.

[American consular agents, who have been assembled at Frankfurt, Germany, will leave for Lisbon today, a spokesman of the United States embassy at Berlin said.]

UNDECLARED WAR OBJECT OF F. D. R., SHIPSTEAD SAYS

People and Congress for Peace, He Insists.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 19 (AP).—A majority of American citizens still are opposed to entry into the present European war despite what he said were efforts by President Roosevelt and his advisers to draw this nation into undeclared war, Senator Henrick Shipstead [R., Minn.] declared tonight in a radio speech.

Senator Shipstead listed five objectives for the United States—not to let public officials exceed their responsibilities nor usurp authority, to mind our own business, to get rid of the idea that we cannot keep out of war, to have the strongest navy and air force in the world, and to have unity in the nation's foreign policy.

The Minnesotan declared that there are some people who are "urging the President to adopt policies that bring us nearer and nearer to a state of war, hoping that incidents will precipitate us into a state of belligerency without a declaration of war by the congress."

Flays Cabinet Members.

Declaring that "members of the President's cabinet are notorious for making prowar speeches," the senator declared that "step by step we are being dragged nearer and nearer war, in spite of the fact that the congress or the people of the United States are overwhelmingly opposed to our going into war."

"The New York Daily News," he said, "has taken a poll involving more than a half million voters in the state of New York where most of the war propaganda comes from. These votes show that the people of the state of New York are opposed to becoming involved in a shooting war by a ratio of 3 to 1.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has taken a similar poll in Illinois on the same question. The poll was taken in all Illinois districts and showed the vote to be 4 to 1 against entering the war.

Sees Congress Oppose War.

"In spite of the sentiment of the people and the sentiment of congress—which has the only legal authority to take us into war—the President and his cabinet are following a policy that sooner or later will bring about such a condition that a state of war will actually exist without a declaration of war by congress.

"It is very clear that the American people overwhelmingly support the present attitude of congress. It is a libel upon congress to say that a majority of congress is opposed to going to war for partisan reasons. All congress asks and all that the American people ask is that if our policy shall be war, that policy shall be declared by the only authority that has the power to declare it and that is congress. The President has no right to conduct a policy or use the army and navy for purposes that will involve us in war without the consent of congress.

Calls on F. D. R. to Speak Out.

"If and when war is declared by the congress there will be no question of national unity. If the President is opposed to going to war, he should say so, and have a cabinet who speaks the same language and conduct public business accordingly.

"There can be no question that the American people are united in a determination to defend our institutions from attack at sea, on land or in the air, but an overwhelming majority do not think America can best be defended on the shores of Asia, Africa, or Europe."

NEW TRADE PACT IS CONCLUDED BY SWISS, GERMANS

BERNE, Switzerland, July 19 (AP).—After six weeks of negotiations, Germany and Switzerland today concluded a commercial agreement which appeared to relax some wartime restrictions which were threatening to cripple Switzerland's vital foreign trade.

Observers said, however, the practical benefits would depend upon how the agreement is administered.

A communique said Germany was granted the privilege of buying merchandise "according to its choice and within certain limits," a provision termed by one foreign source as an unequal arrangement not accorded other nations.

From the Swiss viewpoint, a vital clause of the accord, which extends until the end of 1942 the countries' clearing arrangement, is a provision exempting certain goods, including fine watch movements and electrical machinery, from requirement of German permits for export and reducing "hinderances" in delivery of transit certificates. Germany, it was said recently, had virtually stopped granting transit permits, a countermeasure to the British blockade.

BLOWOUT BLAMED FOR CRASH DEATHS.

Iron River, Mich., July 19 [Special].—A tire blowout was blamed by Coroner M. L. Fansher today for an automobile accident Friday in which Dr. C. W. Walker, Iron Mountain physician and Mrs. Walker were injured fatally.

If Back Aches or Ankles Swell, Flush Your Kidneys

If you're feeling out o' sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3 Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c. The guarantee protects you.

Senator Brands Proposal Breach of Faith.

yet found it necessary to conscript trainees for more than four months, all these seem to demand that our government keep faith with the boys in the service."

Under the new strategy drafted by his congressional leaders, the President is expected in his message to ask approval of a national emergency resolution which automatically would permit the Chief Executive to retain men in service indefinitely. Under the conscriptive service act of 1940 the President may keep draftees in service longer than 12 months if congress declares that the national interest is imperiled.

Seek to End Opposition.

In this manner the leaders hope to dissipate some of the congressional opposition to an outright extension of the one year period of service. They also hope that the President's message will frighten many reluctant Democrats into line. Polls of the house have shown a majority of Democrats—and almost all Republicans—opposed at the moment to any legislation breaking contract with the drafted men.

Considerable resentment was expressed among noninterventionists senators today as a result of the Presidential wisecrack at yesterday's press conference which hit at the prediction of Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] of the entrance of American troops into Iceland.

Asked about future troop movements, Mr. Roosevelt said he wasn't going to "pull a Wheeler."

Wheeler Blasts "Motley Crew."

"If the President would 'pull a Wheeler'," said Wheeler today, "he would keep his promise to keep us out of war. He made that promise during the last campaign, and he also made a promise to the draftees that they would be permitted to return to their homes after one year of service."

Wheeler said that the President is basing his foreign policy on the advice of "a motley crew" consisting of Secretaries Knox, Stimson, and Ickes, Lease-Lend Coördinator Harry Hopkins, and Felix Frankfurter, an associate justice of the Supreme court.

"The President seems to be wholly dependent for his information on a little handful of men surrounding him who couldn't be elected to the office of dog catcher in their own home towns," Wheeler continued. "And yet they, along with Winston Churchill, British prime minister, and the royal refugees in the United States are determining our foreign policy."

Assails Hopkins' Statement.

Wheeler said that if such a group "keeps on flouting public opinion, the main issue will be not whether we can save democracy in Europe and Asia but whether we can save it here in this country."

Wheeler took particular exception to Hopkins' statement in London yesterday that the United States would see to it that American goods were delivered to Great Britain "and every theater in the world where democracies are fighting Hitler."

"Mr. Hopkins apparently is completely out of touch with sentiment in the United States," Wheeler said. "Both the United States and Great Britain are in a pretty bad way if we have to rely on Harry Hopkins to tell us what to do."

Senator D. Worth Clark [D., Idaho] asserted: "If the President really pulls a Wheeler, he will keep this country out of war and will release the selectees. Every one hopes that he will carry out his commitments."

Age Pensions Mount

ILLINOIS OLD AGE PICTURE—MORE, BIGGER PENSIONS

1 Out of 4 Residents Over 65 on Rolls.

Month by month more and more old persons in Illinois are receiving bigger pensions, a survey of state public welfare statistics disclosed yesterday. And sociologists predict a continuing upward trend as time goes on.

Only 22,386 persons were on the old age pension rolls when federal funds were first made available to Illinois in July, 1936. Five months later the total had jumped to 93,452 persons. Since then monthly figures have increased steadily until last May 145,883 persons—25.6 per cent of all persons in Illinois over 65 years old—were receiving old age assistance.

Checks totaling $131,690,503, contributed by state and federal governments on a 50-50 basis, have been mailed to indigent aged in the state since January, 1937.

Average Check Totals $22.97.

Figures on the checks averaged $14 five years ago. Last May the average check totaled $22.97. State and federal governments paid out $1,437,340 in old age assistance awards in December, 1936. By last May the monthly total had passed $3,350,000.

Even greater increases may be expected, sociologists agree, because the old are living longer as the result of improvements in health and medical science. Ten years ago Illinois had 421,073 persons over 65 years of age, 5.5 per cent of the total population. Today the total is 565,543, or 7.2 per cent.

The census bureau estimates that by 1960 more than 931,000 Illinoisans will be over 65—or about 10 per cent of the population.

If the present averages are maintained [one-fourth of all persons over 65 receiving average monthly old age assistance checks of about $23], the state and federal governments will be awarding more than 5 million 300 thousand dollars to the aged in Illinois every month by 1960.

But increasing grants by both governments indicate even greater totals. The monthly averages are going up. They were increased by $1.52 in 1938, $1.40 in 1939, $1.87 in 1940, and 76 cents so far this year. The state legislature increased the maximum old age assistance grant from $30 to $40 a month last summer.

Altho Illinois ranks second among the states in the total number of old age recipients [California is first with 153,594 persons receiving grants], it ranks 12th in the average size of monthly awards, behind California [$37.82], Washington [$32.82], Massachusetts [$29.15], Connecticut [$28.22], Arizona [$28.06], Colorado [$27.78], Nevada [$26.56], Utah [$26.46], New York [$24.87], Wyoming [$24.00], and Ohio [$23.14].

Yearly Totals Listed.

The following table shows the yearly amounts spent by the federal and state governments on old age assistance in the state, Cook county, and downstate:

Year.	Illinois.	Cook County.	Downstate.
1938	26,416,062	10,962,028	15,454,034
1939	30,715,902	12,744,377	17,971,525
1940	35,123,634	14,234,523	20,889,111
Jan.-May, 1941	16,293,130	6,517,626	9,775,504

County bureaus of public welfare act as agents of the state in the administration of old age assistance. The state, thru the department of public welfare, makes general policies and has the final determination on recommendations made by the counties, however. Each quarter the state reports to the federal social security board the number of aged persons it intends to aid and how much this aid will cost. The federal government then advances one-half the cost.

U. S. AMBASSADOR CONFERS WITH PETAIN, DARLAN

VICHY, France, July 19 (AP).—United States Ambassador William D. Leahy and H. Freeman Matthews, first secretary of the embassy, conferred today with Chief of State Petain and Vice Premier Darlan in an interview described as "a pleasant talk."

Marshal Petain later called in his new ministers for the first cabinet meeting since this week's shakeup. Six bills were approved.

One of the laws suppresses Sunday mail delivery. Others concern means of stopping infanticide, restoring buildings destroyed in the war, the creation of temporary shelters for the homeless and repairing historic buildings damaged by war.

FESTIVAL THRONG TO HEAR MASSED MARIMBA MUSIC

Festival Tickets

Tickets for the 12th Chicagoland Music Festival, which will be held on Saturday night, Aug. 16 in Soldiers' field, are on sale at 50 cents and $1 at the Chicago Tribune Public service offices in Tribune Tower and at 1 South Dearborn street. Mail order checks should be made payable to Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. All seats are reserved.

Clair Omar Musser.

Color, light, and melody, blended into an event unique in musical history, will make the 12th Chicagoland Music Festival outstanding among the great festivals that have preceded it. The throng that gathers on the night of Aug. 16 in Soldiers' field will hear 150 artists from 20 states play in symphony upon an instrument never before presented at the Festival.

It is an instrument most everybody knows. In its various forms it has been played along the Nile in Egypt since 3700 B. C., and 3,700 years ago the Chinese played the Kota marimba, an ancestor of the modern instrument. It has been heard in the jungles of Africa and Bali, in the high fastness of the Andes, in Central America, ancient Mexico, and finally in the United States. Mozart and Mendelssohn were intrigued by it.

Seldom Heard in Numbers.

Yet so massive and costly is this instrument that it seldom is heard in numbers. It is—the marimba. And the Festival audience that sees and hears 150 marimbas being played in concert will be witnesses to the making of musical history.

Only once before has anything approaching the Festival Marimba orchestra been accomplished. This was during the world's fair of 1933.

There the Imperial Marimba symphony orchestra of 100 pieces was presented by Clair Omar Musser. It set a musical attendance record at the fair and was awarded the exclusive arts medal. In a music critique in THE TRIBUNE the late Edward Moore wrote:

"In many ways the Imperial orchestra is the finest musical organization that has so far had any connection with A Century of Progress exposition. In Wagner's Tannhauser they manifest new tonal effects better than any other orchestra is able to produce."

Value Instruments at $100,000.

After the fair, Musser took the orchestra on a tour of the United States and Europe, playing for royalty in Belgium and other countries. It is Musser, conductor, composer, and instrument designer, who will head the Festival Marimba orchestra. His pupils and fellow artists will travel a total of 110,000 miles to participate in the spectacle.

They will bring 27 tons of marimbas valued at $100,000. In their appearance on the Festival stage they will expend 37 tons of foot pound energy, producing their melodious, liquid thunder thru more than three miles of golden pipes.

But a word about the instrument itself. The modern marimba appears as a long table, along whose frame-like top are spaced sounding keys made of tropical rosewood. Beneath each key a golden pipe, closed at the bottom, extends directly downward.

Strike Keys with Hammers.

The space in each pipe is scientifically measured in relation to the sound vibrations of the key above it. The marimba is played by striking the keys with hammers, whose heads are wound with silk, flax, and wool. Its music is of a rare and beautiful sonority, capable of awakening the human emotions with subtlety and power.

Musical critics have declared that a marimba symphony can translate certain of the classics in a manner far surpassing any conventional symphony orchestra. The Festival orchestra will use no instruments except marimbas. The necessary bass rythm beat will be supplied not by conventional tubas or bass viols, but by two specially built contrabass marimbas—the only ones in the world.

Players Stand on Runways.

These amazing instruments stand more than six feet in height and their players move along elevated runways to reach the massive rosewood sounding keys. The two were designed by Musser and recently were loaned to Leopold Stokowski for his appearance in Chicago.

Presentation of the Festival Marimba orchestra will employ the three elements that make the Chicagoland festivals the unforgettable spectacles that they are—music, color, and light.

Up a terrace at the north end of the vast arena, the orchestra will rise in 15 rows, each 75 feet long. With all field lights extinguished, the orchestra will appear as a gleaming rainbow beneath a starlit sky. Concealed, colored lights glowing against the golden pipes of the marimbas will produce this effect.

Control of Colors.

As tempo and expression of the music change, the prime colors of the rainbow will heighten and dim—controled by a motor driven rheostat, specially built for the occasion. As a finale the rainbow will reverse itself, the broad red upper bar changing to blue, the blue lower bar to red, and the intermediate bars reassembling themselves in inverse order.

And the music? It will testify to the versatility of the instruments and players. "Suites of Carmen," by Bizet, will open the concert, to be followed by Sibelius' "Tone Poem." The ever popular South American "Carioca," will be the finale. In this the marimbas will be augmented by claves, maraccas, congas, and bongos—gourds to you—and tambourines. In the other selections, 40 voices in chorus will blend with the thrilling music.

And this extravaganza will be only one of many great events that will make musical history at the 12th Chicagoland festival. Massed choruses and bands and pageantry and community song that give the great spectacle its individuality will be presented again.

And there will be additional events, as new as the marimba orchestra, to lend zest and suspense.

Gifts from the Past

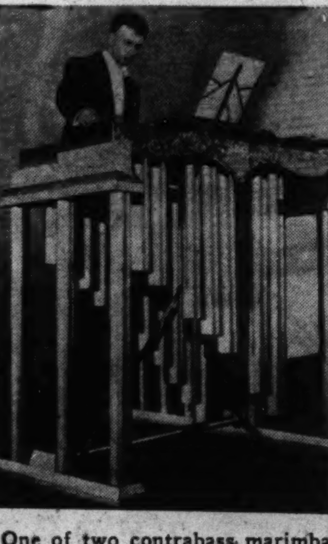
Vera Claire McNary of Kansas City, Mo., marimba soloist who will appear with the festival marimba symphony orchestra during the Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field on Aug. 16.



One of two contrabass marimbas in existence. Both will be played in Soldiers' field on Aug. 16.

MAYOR DELAYS TRIP TO QUESTION EX-POLICE CHIEF

Minneapolis, Minn., July 19 [Special].—Mayor Marvin L. Kline today said he will not go to Duluth to interview Edward B. Hansen, resigned Minneapolis police chief, until he receives word that Hansen is in condition to see visitors in the hospital where he is a patient. Hansen's abrupt resignation and departure without explanation has created a furor here.

Dr. Harry Klein, attending Hansen in a Duluth hospital, still declined to name his illness. After a conference with Mrs. Hansen, the doctor said he was unable to give any particulars of Hansen's case.

Mayor Kline, who has hinted that an underworld angle may be involved in Hansen's strange actions, said he stands ready to coöperate if the Hennepin county grand jury desires to investigate the mystery or the numerous rackets here.

PURDUE MUSICAL FETE IS TRIUMPH FOR ONE FAMILY

5,000 Hear University's Festival Preliminary.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

West La Fayette, Ind., July 19.—The Purdue university music festival, a preliminary to the Chicago Tribune's festival Aug. 16, was attended by 5,000 persons tonight in the new hall of music.

And it was definitely Albert Stewart's festival even tho Lanny Ross, favorite radio tenor, returned a half dozen times to sing encores for the applauding audience. Stewart, who is director of musical organizations at Purdue, shared the day's triumphs with his mother, Mrs. Bert Macy of Battle Ground, and his wife, Charlotte Stewart, lyric soprano, both members of the winning Tippecanoe County Home Economics chorus.

Farm Woman Is Winner.

First place winner among women vocalists was Mrs. Lillie Shaw, 25, mezzo, who lives on a farm near Danville, Ind. She is soloist at the Central Christian church in Indianapolis. Second place went to Patti Stewart, 16, of Connersville, a dramatic soprano.

Second place went to Paul Kunze, 34, a baritone, who directs a choir.

Lynn Girl Is Victor.

Mildred Pickett, 10, of Lynn, Ind., won the juvenile baton twirling contest. Second place went to Jean Jones, 6, also of Lynn.

In the junior division, Katherine Evans, 16, Lafayette, drum majorette of the Jefferson High School band won the first place medal; second went to Marilyn Berger, 14, of Windfall, Ind., and third to Marilyn Moore, 15, of Williamsport, Ind.

In the senior baton twirling, first place went to Gene C. Huffman, 18, of Logansport. He is one of the twirlers in the Purdue University band. Joan Lash, 17, of Avilla, Ind., won second place.

ASKS FOR WRIT TO REGAIN CHILD FROM RELATIVES

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Norman Bickel, 2210 North Racine avenue, to obtain custody of his daughter, Shirley, 5 years old. He charged that the girl's aunt and uncle, Miss Helen Troy and Frank Troy of 2437 North Ashland avenue, took his daughter to their home after his wife's funeral last Tuesday and refuse to give her up. The Troys said that the girl's mother, Mrs. Leona Bickel, requested before she died that they care for Shirley.

UNDERTAKER'S EMPLOYE DISAPPERS

Peter Granata, owner of an undertaking establishment at 1704 West 69th street, asked police yesterday to search for Anthony Barbarosa, 32 years old, an employé, who allegedly disappeared after being given $180 by Granata with which to pay a bill.

VARIED CHORUSES SING IN FOREST PRESERVES TODAY

Two church choirs, a community opera company, and an industrial concern's chorus will sing this afternoon at 5 o'clock in three forest preserves in the Chicago area. The programs are the 6th concert in a series of 21 open air entertainments which are being sponsored by the Cook County Board of Commissioners and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The location of the recitals, name of the organizations, and their directors are as follows:

Caldwell woods [northwest], Pullman Choral society, William Francis Bergmann; Thatcher woods [River Forest], St. Cecilia's Choir of Our Lady of Sorrows church, and the Columbus Park Opera company, Miss Bessie Ryan directing both, and at Dan Ryan woods [south], Young People's Choir of Hartzell Methodist church, James Campbell .

COUNCIL TO GET BILL DIRECTED AT ABANDONED CARS

An ordinance empowering police to remove abandoned parked cars from the streets and haul them to the new city car graveyard at 3000 California boulevard, will be submitted to the city council Thursday, Ald. Joseph S. Gillespie [29th] said yesterday. Gillespie is chairman of a subcommittee of the council traffic committee assigned to study the parking and abandoned car problems.

"For years abandoned cars have been taken to city quarters at Navy pier," Gillespie said. "Recently the police department was forced out of that space because it is needed by the navy. Space near the Bridewell has been acquired."

The new car graveyard has 67,000 square feet of space and is expected to hold 800 automobiles. Under the new ordinance police will take abandoned cars to the lot.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR 1941

PLATFORM FOR AMERICA

1. Adopt an American Foreign Policy.
2. Adopt an American Domestic Policy.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR AMERICA FIRST.

In the America First movement the people of the United States have an organization bound together solely by principles of national policy. In this respect there has been nothing properly comparable to the rise of America First since the formation of the Republican party. In this respect, too, the movement has a quality of integrity which distinguishes it from either of the major political parties.

Today the Democratic party is nothing but a political machine. Its greatest strength in the north lies in the boss ridden metropolitan cities. It exists for corruption and by corruption. It buys votes with doles and political favors. These are all that hold it together.

The Republican party, having had little in the way of spoils to distribute for many years, is far more reputable. The Republican apple is mostly sound, but it is not without its rotten spots, especially in the east, where it has long been under the influence of the wealthy and the socially ambitious.

The position of America First today is very strong. The public has confidence in its leaders and in their integrity and every poll proves that the committee is expressing the will of the vast majority of the people from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The committee, if it will, can contribute a great deal toward returning the government of this country to the people.

America First should resolve now to indorse those candidates for the senate and the house of representatives who have stood by America in her hour of need. There will be a national election a year from November. Candidates for reelection who have helped push America toward war, who have participated in the conspiracy to send American soldiers to Europe and Africa, must be defeated. Candidates who can be trusted to keep faith with their constituents must be elected. To achieve that end will require careful study and organization. It is not too soon for America First to start its preparations.

THE BRITISH CALL FOR OUR ARMY.

The Honorable Mr. Wedgwood, M. P., in this country to sell the war and a sideline of crockery, has been a bit more outspoken than smoother British representatives have thought wise. Mr. Wedgwood remarks that we are in the war up to our necks and we'd better get a sensible congress and get going. "The trouble with you Americans," he said, "is you are afraid to assume responsibility." It is our war, said Mr. Wedgwood.

Mr. Roosevelt has said there can be no peace with Hitler. Mr. Bullitt says this is our war and the people have chosen their course. Mr. McNutt says it has to be our war. Mr. Hull, and Mr. Knox, and Mr. Stimson, and Mr. Ickes say it is our war. The American people have said it is not. If the British government officials are listening to Mr. Roosevelt and his proxy voices and listening only to them, they may have the idea that the United States is withholding payment on a long over-due promissory note. The American people didn't sign it.

The British generals say that to do the fighting properly and get the desired results Germany must be fought on German territory and annihilated there, which will require an American expeditionary force of millions. The British can keep an invader from getting to the island but they can't throw an expedition on the continent. Their generals and their spokesmen say that there is where the war must be carried, and for that purpose the Americans are needed.

Probably the British can't understand how a government such as Mr. Roosevelt's could exist when it misrepresents so large a majority of the people. They may think that such a government would have to resign. If a British government tried to take the British people into a war they saw no reason for entering, a war they knew would be the most deadly in which they had ever engaged, that British government would give way to one which was representative of the people.

The American people apparently must reconcile themselves to being deceived by their executive branch of government. They look to congress to represent them and to make good on the pledges Mr. Roosevelt has given the country. He does not intend to abide by his promises but congress can hold him to them.

Of this much the American people may be certain: When Gen. Wavell and Gen. Auchinleck—incidentally from the occupied lands of India and Egypt—call for our army, when their call is echoed by Parliamentarian Wedgwood, by the foreign office man Vansittart and others, they are demanding what they have been promised. They reveal to the United States why Mr. Roosevelt asks authority to hold the men in service and to send them anywhere he wishes.

The British knew the American army was being raised to fight its way to Berlin. They want it now for the western front while the Russians are still fighting on the eastern. Mr. Wedgwood voices the impatience.

COLD WEATHER COMING.

The smart people in coal mining communities fill their basements with coal in the summer, particularly if general business happens to be fairly active. The reason for this is that at such times there is a good demand for screenings and to produce screenings the mines bring to the surface coal of every size. Since the city people haven't the foresight of the squirrel, the mines have more coal of domestic sizes than they know what to do with. They are willing to sell this excess at a concession.

Hence, even in the average year, it is good sense to fill the home coal bins during the summer. This year there are even better reasons for laying in a stock of fodder for your furnace or heating stove. The most important special reason this year is transportation. The railroads are already carrying more freight than in any summer in 11 years. The prospect is for a jump in traffic and from Washington come stories about rationing cars, letting some freight move and not some other. There may not be enough coal coming to town this winter to keep all homes as warm as they were last winter. A government official has already declared that people who burn oil in their furnaces down east should keep their homes cooler as a patriotic duty.

At present the best Illinois mines are working an average of four days a week in meeting the large industrial demand. Industry is expanding and the demand for fuel to run the wheels of business is going to be greater than ever this fall. There isn't much lost time to be absorbed. Five days constitutes a full working week for the miners. Over five days a week the rate of pay is time and a half and there is some question about the willingness of miners to work on Saturday.

Those who delay making preparations to heat their homes will find themselves bidding against industry for such coal supply as there may be. If your house is cold this winter don't say we didn't warn you.

INVASION OF AMERICA.

An article, with maps, in the Graphic section of this issue of The Sunday Tribune, tells the story of invasions of American territory since 1774 by expeditions from Europe. Included in them is the French attack on Mexico. All were failures. What couldn't be done then can't be done now.

In the Revolutionary war and the War of 1812 America was at extraordinary disadvantage, confronted with overwhelming sea power and armies of disciplined and well equipped troops. Nevertheless, every British invasion, north or south, beginning with successes, ended in stalemate or failure. Howe's Long Island campaign, after the evacuation of Boston, came the closest to a decision.

Burgoyne's expedition from the north by Lake Champlain was well planned and his forces admirably organized and backed by a naval auxiliary which controled the water approaches. Nevertheless, he was stopped at Bennington and Saratoga and compelled to capitulate. Howe made a sea approach to Philadelphia by Chesapeake bay, and after two battles took the city but gained nothing, and Clinton was in luck to get the army back to New York by land.

Clinton and Cornwallis made the sea approach from New York to Charleston, and Cornwallis meandered all over the south, winning battles and losing his campaign, and came to his end at Yorktown.

In the War of 1812 sea power was again with the British, but their major campaigns ended in defeat. The raid on Washington was successful, but when Prevost tried the lake route into New York he was stopped by Macdonough's naval victory on Lake Champlain, and the largest British force which ever had tried to penetrate the United States retreated from positions which the commanding general thought had become untenable. The attack on New Orleans was made by Pakenham and Gibbs from Jamaica with a powerful naval force and Wellington's peninsular veterans. The British army was nearly annihilated.

The French attack on Mexico, with British and Spanish collaboration in the beginning, started from Toulon, touched at Havana, and landed in Vera Cruz early in 1862. The British and Spanish withdrew in a few months. The French captured Mexico City, put Maximilian on the throne, and extended their operations over a large part of the country. The United States had a free hand at the close of the Civil war. That was the end of this invasion of the continent.

The Americans in their struggles with British invaders did not have a navy which could challenge the landing of an army. The invader was guaranteed his foothold by his sea power. The defenders had few resources. They had no great industries, their supplies were obtained with the greatest difficulty, they had to raise and train their troops as they fought, and yet they successfully resisted and the invader in the end was beaten off.

Now the country has the greatest industries of the world, its resources are greater than those of any other country, it has the world's first navy, it can have the world's greatest air force, and it can have the best equipped army. The invader could be met at sea and destroyed. Modern warfare has not added to the vulnerability of this continent. Its mechanism has increased the defenses.

The talk of invasion is something to scare people who are not being scared. Their common sense tells them that the hucksters of fear aren't thinking about the United States at all, but are trying to get into other people's wars to satisfy their own desires and ambitions. That's a pretty rotten thing to do, but it hasn't yet worked out the way the conspirators want it to.

THEY WANT NOTHING OF MR. BIOFF.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

The weakness which comes to labor organizations when their officials have criminal records or are under present charges is illustrated in a situation at Hollywood.

The Screen Cartoon guild, union of workers producing animated picture films, is on strike at the Walt Disney studios. But it chooses to conduct its battle alone because otherwise it would have to submit to the leadership of Willie Bioff, agent of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés.

The cartoon workers know Mr. Bioff as the expander who even evaded his jail term until the law caught up with him and brought him back to Chicago to serve. They also know that he is now under indictment with George E. Browne, international head of the stagehands' union and himself an associate of racketeers, on the charge that the two of them shook down four motion picture producers for $500,000.

The Screen Cartoon guild wants its own controversy to appear on the up and up. So it will fight its battle alone. We give it a hand on that. But, of course, this makes things more difficult for it. Also, such a split tends to weaken labor rather than strengthen it.

Labor will never be able to command its full potential strength until it cleans the nogoods out of its leadership ranks. There are some workers, happily, who simply will not submit to the leadership of expanders and men who cannot keep out from under indictments.

SHALL THE UNITED STATES ENTER THE WAR TO HELP BRITAIN DEFEAT HITLER?

[FROM THE NEW YORK DAILY NEWS OF JULY 15.]

The News postcard poll of New York state on the above question closed yesterday. Detailed story and final figures will be found elsewhere in today's paper.

Out of a total of 696,011 postcard ballots mailed, we got back 174,309, or just about 25%—a tremendous response. We take it that this was because the isolation vs. intervention dispute is the dispute which most interests most Americans at this time.

Final tabulation showed 70.5% of the postcard voters voting NO on the question which heads this editorial, and 29.5% voting YES. This was a slightly better than 2⅓ to 1 victory for the isolationists thruout New York state. Breakdowns of the returns show that, in general, rural counties are about 2 to 1 against war, urban counties about 2½ to 1, and suburban counties about 3 to 1.

The total of 696,011 ballots originally mailed out was exactly 10% of the number of voters registered in New York state last November. Cost of the whole enterprise was approximately $23,000.

Is this reliable, this showing that New York state, supposedly the most interventionist state in the north and casting about 13% of the total national Presidential vote, is 2⅓ to 1 against entering the war?

We have every confidence that it is reliable; that this actually is the New York frame of mind.

We picked the 696,011 ballot recipients from registration lists of all election districts. The first name was selected by chance from the first 10 names on each list. A caliper devised to select every 10th name on these lists went on from that point, and the ballots went to the names it picked.

We had numerous requests for ballots, plus numerous protests from people who didn't receive ballots because the selector apparatus didn't select them. We honored none of these requests or protests, because to have honored any of them would have thrown the statistical picture out of shape.

When the tallies began to roll strongly in favor of isolation, various interventionists began to protest that we had worded the question unfairly. We contend that the question was fair; that the question, "Shall the United States enter the war to help Britain defeat Hitler?" is the immediate question, boiled down to its essentials, which is worrying most Americans today.

We could have weighted the question in various ways, by adding assorted ifs, provisos, etc. We could, for example, have phrased the question: "Shall the United States preserve its own liberty as well as that of Britain by giving all aid to Britain in its fight with Hitler?" Or we could have weighted it the other way by saying: "Should the United States enter the war to help Russia beat Hitler so as to make Europe safe for communism?"

But we didn't. We left it to each voter to vote YES or NO on that simple, straight out question, supplying his or her own reasons for deciding which way to vote. The ballots have been preserved, and are held for inspection by any responsible investigator.

The Chicago Tribune has taken a similar poll in Illinois, on the same question, in all Illinois election districts having election rolls. Result: About 4 to 1 against entering the war.

It is obvious from all this that the American people's war fever has not yet been warmed to fighting pitch, in spite of the efforts of large and well managed and well financed propaganda machines to raise that fever.

The American people evidently feel that the time is not ripe for our entry into the war, assuming it ever will be. They have to date resisted all efforts to persuade them that we must jump into it now or tomorrow morning.

If, contrary to his 1940 campaign pledges, the President leads or pushes us into this war any time soon, he will be taking an unwilling people into a hated war.

In such event, the President must risk the verdict of history.

Editorials of the Day

FACTS ON ARMS SHIPMENTS.

[New Haven (Conn.) Register.]

A Washington dispatch describes officials familiar with the administration of the $7,000,000,000 so-called lease-lend fund as saying that upwards of a ship a day is the present rate of munitions delivery from the United States to British forces in the middle east. The shipments reportedly have been going by both Atlantic and Pacific routes to the Red sea.

Another Washington dispatch reports that Great Britain has requested the shipment of 20,000 bales of cotton per month until 600,000 bales have been delivered, and has given notice that ships for the transportation of the material will be made available immediately. The dispatch describes department of agriculture officials as viewing the step as a definite indication of improved shipping conditions in the North Atlantic.

The most warlike public utterance made up to this time by any member of an administration expressly committed against engaging the armed forces of the nation in combat except in case of attack, was that by Secretary of the Navy Knox a week ago in connection with the governors' conference at Boston. He urged that the United States strike at Germany now with a "smashing blow."

He based his demand for such action, which would be straight-out war despite the evasion of the term, on the British losses of war goods at sea. He cited the gross shipping tonnage losses over a period of months, a manifestly shocking total, and from that the impression was to be gained that food, ammunition, planes, and other materials were going to the bottom in comparable amount.

Before this country is put into war to stop the sinking of the food and oil and ammunition which it manufactures and ships abroad, there should be disclosed some explicit facts not on gross British empire ship losses on all the seas, including ships traveling light and those operating in active combat areas, but on shipments sent from the United States to which a degree of United States responsibility might be attached in connection with the so-called lease-lend law. These two fresh developments suggest that impressions of such losses have been exaggerated or, at the least, that the truth needs an examination.

The loss of American made British aid war goods was revealed many weeks ago, at the time of the then current propaganda and pressure for convoys, to have been not at all what the excited statements and inferences at that time made it out to be. The drive then petered out for the time being. These fresh developments suggest again that some of the impressions circulated as to such losses are greatly inflated, and that if citizens make up their minds from some of the broad official and pressure group assertions alone they are in grave danger of being misled.

WHERE EXPERTS ARE NEEDED.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Maj. Gen. George A. White, commander of the 51st division, in an interview the other day deplored the fact that politicians like Congressman Ross A. Collins should pose as authorities in military matters and create the impression thru the press that the American army is out of date.

He wound up his attempt to justify a mass army, rather than the type of mechanized force advocated by the Mississippi representative, by saying that "there are too many military experts in congress."

And not enough, perhaps, in the army?

FEEDING THE FIRING LINE.

THOSE who have not been under fire from enemy forces are unable to understand the effect of active warfare upon soldiers. On many occasions, great exertion is called for, whereupon fatigue will mount higher and higher until one is ready to "drop in his tracks." Bad weather adds to the difficulties, as well as to discomfort. At times resistance may drop to zero because of insufficient rest, badly cooked food, improper drinking water, wet or soggy clothing, exposure, etc.

But suppose many of these factors have been surmounted, what about combat? Rookies, with but few exceptions, coördinate poorly. Lack of experience and training is the answer. Students of western history may recall that one of the explanations of Custer's defeat on the Little Big Horn in 1876 was that many recruits were enrolled in the 7th cavalry just before the regiment started its march westward from Fort Abraham Lincoln [Bismarck, N. D.].

In all probability, however, the most vital error in the campaign against the warlike Sioux was the fact that Custer attacked the Indian village at 2 o'clock in the afternoon with exhausted men and horses. They had marched 20 out of the last 24 hours and then charged the foe with jaded animals.

Reports from the World war reveal many a soldier, brave enough in his own right, who was betrayed by his nervous system. The advent of hysteria can best be overcome by constantly schooling oneself into a state bordering on emotional insensibility. Under strain, certain individuals will become mute—apparently unable to speak—or they will forget where they are or who they are. This is a manifestation of amnesia which is not feigned.

The incident is cited of a young man who went "over the top" in 1918 and whose buddy fell by his side. He stooped over and removed his comrade's watch — a present from a devoted mother—and then proceeded forward with the suvivors. He lived to return to his home, but to this day he has no memory of the event. The possession of the timepiece and the tales of observing men of his organization testify to the shock which he sustained.

Then there are some who seem to be unable to overcome anxiety. This trait may develop into a fixed neurosis, wherein sleep is impossible. The pulse is rapid, and the victim may refuse to go off duty even when relieved. It may be necessary to induce slumber with strong sedatives. Involuntary tremors, or movements which simulate St. Vitus' dance, are not uncommon. The muscles of the face, forearms, and the legs may be affected. In such cases, an intense feeling of responsibility, of the desire to do one's full share of the job, has resulted in so much nerve confusion that motor response has ceased.

Now, these young men are not cowards. They became so keyed up that natural behavior is out of the question. As a rule, there is no atrophy or weakening—except loss of weight which follows exposure, dysentery, or lack of rest. Sometimes special nerves are influenced and examples of dull hearing, vision defects, pain in the side of the face or the neck are complained of.

Many of these lads, when they resumed civil life, were able to live normally. Some were bothered periodically, especially when under tension. The crowded condition of veteran and state hospitals explains what happened to still others.

CHEMICALS.

P. E. writes: 1. What is acetanilid?
2. What is phenolphthalein?

REPLY.

1. A white, crystalline powder made from aniline, employed to reduce fever and combat pain. It is not used today as extensively as some years ago.

2. A chemical indicator to determine whether a substance is acid or alkaline. It turns red in the presence of an alkali. Because of its laxative effect, it is included in many purgative pills. Both are coal tar products.

HEART SYMPTOMS.

D. S. writes: Is it possible for a nervous person, with heart and lungs in perfect order, to have a heart attack?

REPLY.

A pumping organ "in perfect order" will not act up. One that is unduly irritable, however, because of misdirected nerve impulses, may give no end of trouble. In other words, the structure can reflect the emotions.

VETERAN VISITS THE CAMPS.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 16.—I visited several of our concentration camps en route from Florida this summer. The maneuvers brought out some interesting features. The most outstanding was lack of coördination of the units of the army.

The panzer division had a walkaway. Why not? It was opposed by out of date and insufficient equipment. The whole picture would have been materially changed had there been both supporting and opposing airplanes.

Can a panzer be stopped? Had it been opposed by approved anti-tank guns it would have been stopped cold; as it was it was staggered.

Let us examine the anti-tank outfit: [1] The 37 mm. is a neat looking job but it is defectively sighted and lacks maneuverability. [2] The 75 mm. possesses fire power but is seriously defective from maneuverability and is atrociously sighted for moving target. It lacks ability to strike here and there and get away. The trouble is that the gun is artillery and not anti-tank.

Tactically these guns are well located—at division headquarters near the front.

Let us follow a few of these guns into action. They are hauled by trucks or tractors, they halt, unlimber, swing to the front, get set, lay on the target by the action of several men, and are fired several minutes after the halt. Too slow. All this is the action of artillery.

Let us examine a proposed gun and its action:

The gun is a 75 mm. mounted on the front end of a caterpillar tractor armored against machine gun fire. The tractor on its wheels can travel on the highway at 60 to 70 miles an hour, cross-country on its apron and wheels, 20 to 30 miles. It is driven forward and backward at the same speed. It is sighted with a rifle extension on the side of the gun. The gunner changes elevation, deflection and fires the piece.

The D. C. observes a panzer unit pushing thru his lines, orders two groups of the antis to attack. They close in on both flanks of the panzer, halt and fire an aimed shot within two seconds. The mission accomplished the guns are withdrawn.

If you go into the next war with implements of the last war you are whipped before you start. Why train with such equipment? Perhaps some day we will be fully equipped and have thoroly trained men before the war starts—perhaps.

We are not going to turn our draftees into trained men within a year, but we are going to give the boys a splendid health promoting course—that's something.

THE FLAG INSPIRES HER.

Chicago, July 15.—As a lover of the flag of the United States I am writing to express my gratitude for your having displayed our flag at the peak of the staff on Tribune Tower for so many years, where its brightness reflects Americanism to the whole of Chicago and the thousands of visitors to our great city.

Every morning when I pick up The Tribune I feel thankful to you for displaying our flag on the front page at the top of the news summary, clearly and correctly printed, waving as it were, ahead of all the news.

SUMMER JOB FOR TEACHERS.

Chicago, July 14.—If I were the political boss of Cook county I would introduce a few public services that would require the coöperation of our schoolteachers. This plan would bring the teachers back to the schoolroom refreshed in body and spirit, and it would at the same time perform a service to the city's millions.

During the vacation period I would have all the women teachers detailed to our many beaches to help watch the children while their elders swam and bathed. It would be the duty of these ladies to instruct the children in games and to keep them entertained. Many could act in a hostess capacity, distributing free sunburn oil to the bathers or fetching ice cream cones or soft drinks.

As to the male teachers, I would place most of them in the street cleaning department. Our alleys need cleaning and no doubt these men would feel a just pride in knowing that they had done their part in making Chicago beautiful. Others I would delegate to gather twigs in the forest preserves for the fire pits so the public could have fuel for their wiener roasts. Many are versed in Boy Scout woodcraft and camping.

Chicago is an ideal vacation spot, so why must our teachers travel to Lake Louise or Mexico City when they can obtain the same benefits here at much less cost to themselves? Three months' vacation must be a tiresome thing for them; also expensive to the public which must shell out 12 months' pay for nine months' leisurely work.

I am sure most schoolteachers would be satisfied with the regular two weeks' vacation that we wage slaves anticipate so eagerly.

Talk about the CIO and a 40 hour week! Our schoolteachers make them look like pikers with their 35 hour week, 3 months' summer vacation, spring vacations, holidays with pay, etc.

RANK AND FILE ANTI-WAR.

Wilmette, Ill., July 14.—Some utterances by national officers of the American Legion are being construed to indicate that the Legion at large is in support of entry of the United States into the European-Asiatic war.

The vast majority of the rank and file is definitely opposed to our involvement upon any pretext as yet made known to the American people. This is my conclusion after an extended trip in the central states and the entire Pacific coast area. All are unqualifiedly for a real national defense program which will maintain this country as invincible. Delegates to the approaching national convention at Milwaukee will make this known.

In the interim all Legionnaires should not hesitate to voice their individual convictions and act thereon with respect to such subversive and insolent propaganda societies as "Union Now," and the lending of aid to communist Red Russia and its bloody butcher, Joseph Stalin, in the name of democracy, the four freedoms and to "defend" America. What a travesty upon our patriotism!

Get goin', buddies—for the sake of the United States of America, your sons and your sons' sons!

A PLACE IN THE NAZI SUN.

Cleveland, O., July 14.—Hitler has been so generous in "admitting" other nations into all the privileges of membership in the third reich that he might be willing to admit the U. S. A., too. Has our "new leadership" thought of appealing to Der Fuehrer's magnanimity to have the Nazi friendship extended to us with cordiality equal to that with which he welcomed France and Belgium?

Hitler would then have the added responsibility of taking Mexico and Central America into custody in much the same way as he took Norway, Denmark, and Holland under his wing. The South American countries would, of course, follow the example of Rumania, Bulgaria, and Hungary, and seek inclusion in the Nazi empire for protection against their potential enemies. All of this would be a labor of love, but it wouldn't be too irksome to a self-forgetting fellow like Der Fuehrer.

Our admission fee might be our gold, our fleet, and our foreign trade, which would be a small price to pay for the privilege of a place in the Nazi sun, wouldn't it?

Cyrus S. Eaton.

WHOOP IT UP FOR WAR!

Plainfield, Ill., July 14.—I notice that the Tribune vote is going 80 per cent against war. Shame on you, Eighty Percenters. Have you forgotten the benefits and glories of the first Democratic war under Wilson? True, it cost billions of dollars and many lives, but was it not worth it? How the hearts of Gold Star mothers must rejoice when they hear it mentioned, knowing that their sons died to win it.

Whoop it up for an expeditionary force, send the boys by the million, don't stop to arm them, send them with their wooden rifles and gas pipe cannon without aerial support. Throw them upon the German war machine till they crush it by sheer weight of flesh and blood. For America we ask nothing, knowing well that we will get nothing.

Ho hum! And to think that in 20 years more we will have to send another expedition to get Stalin.

AN EFFECTIVE CARTOON.

Chicago, July 14.—Your picture on the editorial page of today's Tribune, "Presidential Message to Congress," should be republished by every self-respecting newspaper in the United States and every congressman and senator should have one mailed to him.

It is, without doubt, one of the most striking and realistic messages ever printed and should bring the truth to every reader and show him what is going on in Washington.

A POLL FOR EVERY TOWN.

Holland, Mich., July 14.—The people who are being treated as Hessians and denied a voice in determining war and peace should take lesson from the polls in New York and Chicago and organize the same form of ascertaining public sentiment in every town and city. That would effectively put the George III. war party on the spot.

Thanks to The Tribune for its enlightened leadership.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts 5 points. Then look for the correct answers on page 8, part 2.

1. The man who founded the great missionary work of the Catholic church was De Soto Descartes La Salle Loyola.
2. Which one of these sizes of thread requires the largest eye in a needle? No. 8 No. 20 No. 40 No. 60.
3. Which one of the following words is misspelled? Gullible Embarrass Dissappoint Cemetery.
4. In producing homemade ice cream, we take ice at 32° Fahrenheit and sprinkle it profusely with salt. This makes the ice melt but the temperature in the freezer is approximately 4° F. 18° F. 25° F. 33° F.
5. The fabric that usually shrinks most when it is washed is Linen Cotton Wool Silk.
6. Below are five common statements which we hear almost every day. Pick out the one word in each sentence which is wrong, and jot down the substitute which should be used. You are entitled to one point for each correct judgment.
   - [a] She looked real attractive in her new dress.
   - [b] She said she preferred dark complected men.
   - [c] Wait on me at the entrance to the theater.
   - [d] Everybody brings their own lunch to the picnic.
   - [e] Who did they send for the ice cream?

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

ESTATE ASSETS.

Galesburg, Ill., July 2. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died in June, 1925, leaving some real estate, but no will. This estate was never settled. It was in his name. In August, 1940, my mother died, also leaving some real estate and some personal property. She left a will by which all of her children would have an equal share.

1. I am co-administrator with my brother.

2. In January, 1934, my sister left home and nothing has been heard from her since. We have advertised for her with no result. I have an insurance policy which has lapsed. Am informed by the insurance company that the extended insurance on the policy will expire June 7, 1941. They sent in a disappearance sheet to fill out regarding her absence.

3. If I file this then what procedure do I have to follow? The policy is payable on the receipt of notice of death.

4. Will I have to prove her death before June 7, 1941?

5. How long have they to find her?

6. If I file this disappearance sheet can I collect the extended insurance even if this policy does expire?

7. Do I have to have her declared dead before the expiring date thru the court or will the disappearance sheet hold it as filed before expiring date?

8. What is the proper procedure to follow?

L. F.

1. The personal representative named in a will is called the executor.

2. The father's estate could be closed on the basis of paying the sister's share to the county treasurer. Similarly as to the mother's estate. After seven years unexplained absence, the sister's estate could be probated on the reliance of presumption of death.

3. Depends largely on the wording of the policy. It seems probable that the instructions that have been sent to you are largely self-explanatory. We cannot tell what additional information to supply without knowing what you now have.

4. After seven years the presumption of death will be enough unless the policy contains wording to the contrary.

5. See 4.

6. Depends on the wording of the policy.

7. Same.

8. If the company is willing to pay without court proceedings then you would not seem to need legal advice. If they are not willing to pay, then you should employ an attorney.

William J. Smith Jr.

Springfield, Ill., July 19.—How would you prevent crime in Chicago and the rest of Illinois? Your suggestions and ideas are sought by the new state superintendent of crime prevention, William J. Smith Jr. of Aurora. Not that Smith hasn't ideas or plans of his own. He has, he said today, but will welcome help from the public.

Supt. Smith is an earnest young baldheaded man of 32, who expects to spend considerable time in Chicago.

As superintendent of crime prevention for the state of Illinois, Smith is one of five members of the parole board. For a week or so of each month he will consider the release of convicts from various state prisons. The balance of the month will be devoted to crime prevention activities—of whatever sort the future determines, he said.

New Undertaking.

Crime prevention is something new in Illinois. T. P. Sullivan, state director of the department of public safety, in which the crime prevention bureau is a division, said it is an experiment. Smith is the experimenter, under Sullivan's guidance.

Chicago never has had a crime prevention bureau. Neither has Illinois. Nor has any other state had one that is remembered by crime fighters here. So, Smith said, he is a trail blazer. The legislature, in creating his job, which started July 1, imposed neither restrictions nor obligations on him. It did not define his duties nor tell him how to prevent crime. It just gave him the opportunity and Gov. Dwight Green gave him the appointment.

For eight years Smith was chief clerk of the board of election commissioners at Aurora, Consequently, he said, he knows there is a connection between crime and politics. He expects to learn something about labor goons, terrorists, racketeers, gangsters, and syndicated crime.

The lawless element shouldn't entertain the thought that Smith is a small town crusader, reformer, or uplifter. Nor should the law abiding folk consider him a dreamer, theorist, social worker, or windmill fighter.

Sullivan, a former police chief, classes Smith as a practical man.

Protection for Youth.

If gambling contributes to the criminal burden of the public, it will come under the scrutiny of Smith's department, he declared. And if gambling is related to vote frauds, and vote thieves are encouraged to commit other crimes, Smith will be seeking the who and the why, he added.

"I hope we can save a lot of youngsters from lives of crime," said the crime prevention chief. "In that way our efforts will be justified.

"My main job will be to keep young men—or old ones, either—from committing crimes that will land them in prison. I want to give more time to that endeavor than to the other part of the job, which has to do with paroling those already imprisoned. But I also will have a duty toward the parolee, to see that he doesn't return to crime."

MORIARITY TELLS OWN STORY TO JURY TOMORROW

Daniel Moriarity, suspended state's attorney's office policeman, who is on trial for the murder of the daughter of the alleged head of a million dollar abortion ring, will take the witness stand tomorrow in his own defense, Defense Attorney James M. Burke said yesterday.

The trial is being held in the Criminal court before Judge John A. Sbarbaro and a jury of seven men and five women. Testimony thus far has revolved principally around Moriarity's confession of the crime, and his charges that at least four other men in the prosecutor's office were corrupted by the abortion ring.

Moriarity confessed that he shot and killed Ada Jane [Jennie] Martin, daughter of Mrs. Ada Martin, the alleged brain of the ring. In the document, which was read to the jury, he said he killed the daughter by mistake; that he intended to kill Mrs. Martin because she threatened to expose graft payments when he told her he could not fix the latest case against her. Attorney Burke is attempting to show Moriarity was mentally unbalanced at the time of the crime.

Gem Society Members to Hear Museum Speaker

Members of the Chicago and Milwaukee chapters of the American Gem society will hear two lectures today by Paul G. Dallwig, the "layman lecturer" of the Field museum. Dallwig will speak this afternoon at the museum on "Gems, Jewels, and Junk." He will address the Chicago chapter's dinner for the Milwaukee group in the Stevens hotel tonight on "The Romance of Diamonds from Mine to Man."

GUILTY AS SLAYER OF NIECE; GIVEN A LIFE SENTENCE

Watseka Man on Cot at His Trial.

Robert Fiester.

Watseka, Ill., July 19 [Special].—Robert Fiester, an Iroquois county farmer, was found guilty of the murder of his niece by a jury of eight women and four men late tonight. His punishment was fixed at life imprisonment. The jury deliberated 11 hours.

Fiester, who has suffered two severe heart attacks during the trial, sat in a wheel chair under guard of bailiffs while the verdict was read. He showed no evidence of emotion.

Fiancé Also Is Killed.

The victim of the murder of which he was convicted was Miss Royalene Hinkle, 26 years old. She was shot to death last March 28. Also shot and killed at the same time was Lowell Gray, 25, her fiancé. Fiester was tried only for her death.

State's Attorney A. Fred Kendall in his prosecution sought to show that Fiester, 55, killed Miss Hinkle because he was indebted to her. Fiester, he charged, had accepted financial aid from her, and had given her a deed to his farm with the stipulation that the property would revert to him after her death.

Seek to Prove an Alibi.

Fiester's defense was largely an effort to prove an alibi. In addition, his lawyer, Claude Saum, attempted to show that Gray shot Miss Hinkle in a lovers' quarrel and then killed himself. Against this the prosecution contended that the death weapon—a rifle—bore only Fiester's fingerprints.

The trial was conducted before Judge Roscoe C. South. It overshadowed the war in interest in this area. Fiester was ill during several days of the trial and lay on a cot this forenoon while Judge South was instructing the jury.

Judge South will hear a motion for a new trial in 10 days.

GOV. GREEN SIGNS 27 MORE BILLS; 156 AWAIT ACTION

Springfield, Ill., July 19 (AP).—Gov. Green signed 27 more bills today, leaving only 156 measures to be acted upon before clearing his desk of legislation passed by the general assembly. Among those signed were:

Ward—Provides that municipal central committee of each political party shall nominate candidates if an election to fill a city office is necessary before Nov. 5, 1941.

A. P. Benson—Creates state commission with authority to lease state owned lands for drilling oil wells.

Powell-Browner—Permits counties to issue revenue bonds for construction or purchase of bridges over rivers forming boundary lines between Illinois and any other state or between two counties within the state.

Hitter—Authorizes state to lease concessions in state parks for a period not exceeding five years.

YOUNG SLAYER ORDERED HELD TO GRAND JURY

Richard Martin Wesolik, parolee from the Illinois State Training school for Boys near St. Charles, was held to the McHenry county grand jury without bond yesterday on a charge of murdering Mrs. Margaret Jung, 37 years old, wife of the farmer who employed him.

He was arraigned before Police Magistrate Grant Nolan in Woodstock. William M. Carroll, state's attorney, said the grand jury probably will meet next week to consider Wesolik's case. The slayer, who is 16 years old, will be held in the Woodstock jail until his trial.

He confessed he killed Mrs. Jung when she said she might send him back to the training school because he had stayed out late at night. He was captured last Wednesday night in Belleville, where he had fled to seek refuge with an elder brother.

PRISON FUGITIVE NEED NO LONGER FEAR THE PAST

Joseph A. Zettle, 51 years old, a fugitive from justice for 19 years, no longer need fear the past. He was notified yesterday that his petition to vacate a two year sentence imposed by a North Dakota court had been granted.

Zettle, whose home is at 6535 Peoria street, is a carpenter foreman at the government munitions plant near Wilmington. Routine fingerprinting in connection with his work disclosed that he escaped from the North Dakota state penitentiary while serving a two year sentence for the theft of two horses. Zettle's own team had been stolen a short while before. His defense was that he thought the horses he took were his own.

Illinois authorities already had refused an extradition request.

Arson Squad Investigates Blaze in Arms Tool Plant

Omaha, Neb., July 19 (AP).—A large stock of machine tools and equipment for armaments industries was damaged in a fire that destroyed the Fuchs Machinery and Supply company building today. Fire Chief Arthur Olsen said an arson squad is investigating the blaze. Bert Fuchs estimated damage at between $40,000 and $50,000.

not be under the auspices of gambling houses.

"I am not convinced that gambling houses cannot be suppressed. We have seen that before elections, when city or county administrations in our metropolitan centers are striving to create a good impression upon the public, there seems to be no difficulty in closing places of gambling. It also has been rumored that in the metropolitan district, those who are politically unacceptable to the officers in power are successfully suppressed, while the supposed impossible of suppression is only in reference to those who are politically friendly.

Barrier to Gambling.

"If gambling houses can be closed before elections there would seem to be no reason why further headway could not be made if a conscientious effort were instituted by law enforcing officers and agencies in our metropolitan area. Before we surrender it may be necessary to try the experiments of electing public officials who are honestly interested in suppressing gambling. That would at least be worth trying before giving up in defeat.

"The second argument seems likewise untenable. The placing of bets is made more difficult by the requirement that they be made only at a race meeting. If wholesale gambling were a benefit to the community there would be no doubt that opportunities for betting should be increased, but the contrary is true.

"The third argument is that since the operation of gambling houses appears to be difficult to suppress, the state should acquiesce and participate in the profits.

Ages of Legal Background.

"This argument is really one for imposing new and additional taxes upon the people. Whether money is gotten for the state or city directly by taxation or thru taking part of the profits on gambling, the result to the people is the same. Eventually, the money comes from the pockets of the taxpayers. This plan would amount to collecting greater taxes in the dishonest guise of a privilege license.

"The arguments for this bill seem to me to be without sound foundation. This bill proposes a novel experiment in law making. For many centuries the common law, upon which our legal system and constitution is founded, has condemned gambling and gambling contracts as illegal. The constitution of 1870 expressly prohibits the general assembly from authorizing lotteries or gift enterprises for any purpose. Those rules of the common law and the constitution have been developed out of centuries of experience of intelligent people—an experience which has shown that widespread gambling devastates the character and enterprise of individuals and communities.

"No normal parents would train their children in gambling rather than in the arts of hard work and thrift. This bill asks the state to do in the community what no parent would think of doing in his own home.

"Years of observation have taught us that gambling leads to idleness and indolence. Honest work and thrift become difficult for him who indulges in it. Gambling often has resulted in poverty, in broken families and in theft and embezzlement. I do not desire to be a party to increasing that train of disastrous consequences.

"I am convinced that the large majority of people in our state are not yet ready to reverse the basic principle of law and conduct which has been developed thru centuries. They are not prepared to admit that the state is beaten and cannot enforce its laws.

"In addition to the foregoing, the attorney general has held this bill to be in violation of the constitution.

"For the reasons stated by me above, and for the further reasons stated by the attorney general in his opinion, copy of which is transmitted herewith, I veto and withhold my approval from house bill No. 372."

SCHOOLGIRL MISSING FOR 4 DAYS IS FOUND SLAIN IN PARSONAGE

Constance Shipp.

Reading, Mass., July 19 (AP).—Constance Shipp, 15 years old, high school girl, daughter of an unemployed salesman, who vanished four days ago as she walked homeward from a store, was found slain tonight in a parsonage a block from her home.

The mutilated body bore a stab wound in the left breast. Police theorized she had been overpowered on the parsonage lawn—the minister was away on vacation—or felled by a blow on the head and dragged inside.

District Attorney Robert F. Bradford declared a bread knife found clutched in her left hand had been "planted" and that the breast wound apparently had been inflicted in an effort to leave the appearance of suicide. A telephone caller was reported to have said that a young man had been seen calling to the girl from the parsonage yard, presumably Tuesday while she was on her way home.

WOMAN ROBBED OF $193.

A purse containing the $193 pay roll for six employés of the La Salle Bedding company, 213 West Division street, was snatched yesterday from Miss Rebecca Heller, the company cashier, by a Negro in front of the plant.

NEW YORK BEGINS TO SIMMER OVER MAYORAL BATTLE

Tammany Names Strong Foe for La Guardia.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 19.—New York City is starting to show the first simmering of what portends to be a boiling hot campaign for mayor this fall. The results will have an important bearing on the state election next year and on the congressional race in 1942.

William O'Dwyer.

In one corner is Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, whom the right wing of the American Labor party has "drafted" for a third term. In the other is District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn, hard hitting prosecutor, designated as the regular Democratic candidate for mayor.

Sitting on the sidelines is District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey. Dewey has not made up his mind whether to run for reëlection in New York county [Manhattan]. He has ambitions to try again for governor.

Willkie May Back Mayor.

Also on the sidelines and watching closely is Wendell L. Willkie, ex-Republican Presidential nominee and now a Wall street lawyer. A possible candidate for governor against Dewey next year, Willkie is expected to line up with La Guardia for mayor.

O'Dwyer, an ex-policeman who went to night school and is a former judge, is not the setup that La Guardia faced in his last two times out.

O'Dwyer is not a Tammany hack, incidentally, but he towered so far above the other Democratic possibilities the machine had to take him.

In his successful prosecution of "Murder, Inc.," the syndicate that spread terror thru Brooklyn for years, O'Dwyer uncovered possible campaign ammunition in La Guardia's career as a labor attorney a decade ago.

This information revolves around the killing in 1931 of Guido Ferreri, manufacturer of boys' suits, during a strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America. Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated and now one of the main cogs in President Roosevelt's defense machinery, was called for questioning in connection with the slaying.

Walks Out with La Guardia.

La Guardia arrived on the scene as attorney for Hillman and shortly thereafter the Amalgamated president walked out of the station house. The Ferreri case is unsolved to this day.

An interesting sequel is the subsequent career of Vincent J. Sweeney, police inspector in the case. After La Guardia was elected mayor in 1933, he named Sweeney as a deputy police commissioner. Then when a vacancy occurred on the bench in Brooklyn, La Guardia appointed Sweeney as magistrate at $10,000 a year.

One of the mayor's weak spots is the Republican party, of which he has been in the past a member—an apostate member. La Guardia is anathema to the G. O. P. rank and file because he indorsed Roosevelt for a third term last fall.

Nevertheless, the city hall has parceled out enough jobs to practical minded Republican leaders so that La Guardia may wind up with the nomination. Election of a Simon pure Republican candidate for mayor in New York City is considered well nigh impossible. Republican strategists would rather take what they can get under La Guardia than try to survive under a Democratic régime.

HEAR LA GUARDIA AVOIDS PRIMARY OF DEMOCRATS

New York, July 19 [Special].—Ignoring the advice of political friends, Mayor Fiorello La Guardia was reported tonight to have decided against entering the Democratic mayoral primaries. He is slated to announce his candidacy for reëlection in a radio broadcast Monday night.

La Guardia is believed to have based his decision not to contest the Democratic candidates on the probability that he could not carry to victory Controler Joseph D. McGoldrick and Newbold Morris, president of the city council. Ed Flynn, national chairman of the Democratic party, had expressed opposition to La Guardia.

The city Democratic machine, however, which last week picked District Attorney William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn as their mayoral candidate, faces the prospect of a La Guardia fight in the form of independent Democratic opponents to the regular party candidates for various borough positions. La Guardia is assured of Fusion and American Labor party backing, but Republican leaders have not decided on their choice.

PANTS AND 55 CENTS LOST IN 2 HOUR SWIM, BUT HE SAVES HIMSELF

Toledo, O., July 19 (AP).—David H. Doherty, 23 years old, a Flint, Mich., sailor, toppled from the deck of the steamer Great Buffalo into Lake Erie off Ashtabula and the big boat plowed on into the night.

Doherty paddled in a circle, 25 miles from land, for two hours. His clothes became heavy, so he kicked them off. Finally he sighted the British-American oil tanker Britamolene and hailed it.

Doherty, clutching $17 in water-soaked bills in his hand, was pulled on deck, complaining of losing 55 cents in change when he discarded his clothes.

WASHINGTON CITY GIRL ATTACKED; ESCORT SLASHED

Another Girl Slain; Her Boy Friend Held.

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—A girl's story that a Negro raped her and slashed the throat of her soldier escort sent a posse of 50 policemen on a manhunt thru a patch of woods in the northeast part of the capital tonight.

The soldier, Private Edward L. McCullough, 32 years old, of Fort Meade, Md., was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. The girl, Miss Joyce Smith, 18, also was taken to a hospital and treated for shock.

Accosted in Federal Park.

Miss Smith said that she and McCullough were accosted by the man as they sought shelter from a shower beneath a tree in Patterson Hill woods, an undeveloped federal park, where they had been strolling.

The man first represented himself as a watchman, she related, told them they were trespassing on private property and offered to let them off for $5. An altercation followed, she said, in which the Negro struck McCullough on the head with a rock.

Then, she continued, the assailant forced her to submit to him, slashed the soldier across the throat with a razor as he started to regain consciousness from the blow on the head, and fled.

Girl Is Shot to Death.

In another violent crime in the capital today a high school girl, blonde Ellen Cannon, 15, was shot to death. Police arrested Guy Edwards Oden, 19, on an open charge. Detective Chief Ira Keck quoted him as saying that "she was going to have a baby, her family had been nagging us about it and I made up my mind last night that the only thing to do was to kill her."

The area where the attack on the girl and the soldier took place is in another part of the city from where Miss Jessie Elizabeth Strieff, 28, a war department stenographer, was raped and strangled June 15 by an assailant who has never been caught.

Quebec Keeps Pace with Canada's Volunteer Rate

OTTAWA, Ont., July 19 [Special].—The success of the two month campaign for recruits for Canada's overseas army has temporarily stilled the demand for conscription. Significantly, the province of Quebec made as good a showing as the others. Figures showed the French-Canadian province contributed more than one-seventh of the men recruited in all 13 military districts.

Springfield, Ill., July 19 (AP).—Junior chambers of commerce will sponsor a state-wide jitterbug contest at the state fair next month, it was announced today by William V. Ward, general manager of the fair.

RED LENSED SPECS TAME A FLOCK OF CANNIBAL HENS

Everything Rosy Now on Wisconsin Farm.

Lynxville, Wis., July 19 [Special].—Everything looks rosy in the chicken yard on the W. L. Tallmadge farm near Lynxville, because each of Tallmadge's 100 white hens wears red lensed glasses.

Tallmadge found that his hens produced better and were healthier with scientific handling, also that hens, like people, may get into mischief if they have too much idle time.

Blood Makes 'Em See Red.

Tallmadge said he discovered that despite centuries of domestication, there still remains a trace of the cannibalism in even the most aristocratic of hens. If one of a flock is injured and blood stains its feathers, the other hens "see red." They will pick at the unfortunate chicken, often keeping up a mass attack until it is dead.

White chickens are particularly vulnerable because blood shows so plainly on their feathers.

The first year that he had his flock confined, Tallmadge suffered considerable loss due to cannibalism.

Everything Now Rosy.

This spring he bought several gross of spectacles and experimented, fitting his layers with them. Recently he reported: "I haven't lost a hen or even had one picked on."

Lenses Are Red.

The glasses have red celluloid lenses set in aluminum bows. They fasten across the hen's eyes by means of a tiny aluminum bar thru the nostrils.

Seeing everything thru the rosy lenses, all objects appear red to the hens and spots of blood on another hen go unnoticed, Tallmadge said.

Occasionally a hen peering sideways gets an uncolored glimpse of another hen and sees blood marks. Then she makes a sidelong dash for the injured chicken. However, as the aggressor gets close she sees only straight ahead, the injured hen again appears to be all red, and the attacker stops her attack in confusion.

CONGRESS GROUP TO VIEW POWER SITES IN CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., July 19 (AP).—Representatives of the Canadian government will be hosts Monday to members of the rivers and harbors committee of the United States house of representatives who are touring the site of power developments involved in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin power and navigation project.

A delegation headed by John Read, counselor to the external affairs department, will join the Americans Monday morning and motor with them to Dorval, Que., near Montreal, where the dominion government will be host at dinner.

The United States committee started a tour of the international rapids section today and will cross the international boundary at the Thousands Islands bridge Monday. Traveling by motor the party will visit Barnhart Island, site of the proposed power house, and look over Long Sault rapids.

Chicago and National Realty Markets Gain More Speed

FORECLOSURES FEWEST FOR 15 YEARS IN COUNTY

Surveys Show Mortgage Recordings Rise.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Evidence of Chicago's increasing real estate activity in particular and of the nation's livelier realty market in general is found in surveys and reports for the first six months of this year made public yesterday by the Chicago Mortgage Bankers association, the Chicago Title and Trust company, and the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Ralph A. Hunt.

Recording of trust deeds and mortgages in Cook county, regarded as a reliable index of real estate conditions, reached the highest figure since 1931, according to a statistical survey compiled by the mortgage bankers. The total was 24,043. During the last four years, the survey showed, there has been an increase each month in the number of recordings over the corresponding month of the preceding year. In the first six months of this year they showed an increase of 19 per cent in number and 9 per cent in dollar consideration over a year ago.

Foreclosures Lowest in 15 Years.

A study made by the Mortgage Bankers association of foreclosures of trust deeds filed in Cook county during the first half of this year showed that 1941's total of 810—which is 15 per cent less than during the same period a year ago—was the lowest since 1926.

More building permits were issued in the six months' period this year than in any similar period since 1929 for Chicago alone. The total of 2,544 permits so far this year represents an increase of 46 per cent over last year's 1,736. Approximately 80 per cent, or 2,047, of the permits issued were for residential construction and represented a dollar value of $11,108,784, an average of $5,400 for each residence.

See Benefits of Owning Homes.

"Last year there were only 1,369 permits for residences issued by the Chicago building commissioner up to this time," said Ralph A. Hunt, president of the Mortgage Bankers' association. "This year's increase of almost 50 per cent indicates conclusively that Chicago people are becoming more and more conscious of the benefits to be derived from home ownership.

"Even tho building costs are rising, I believe residential building in Chicago will continue to increase, provided our armament program doesn't of necessity curtail delivery of building materials."

Half year figures of the number of orders for title guarantee policies received by the Chicago Title and Trust company also show realty conditions continue active in this city. There were 25 per cent more policies issued so far this year than during the same period of 1940 and 42 per cent more than in the first half of 1939.

Title orders for June were 29 per cent greater than for the same month last year and 34 per cent more than the corresponding month in 1939.

Subdivision Market Improves.

The subdivision market is more active than it was a year ago in 61 per cent of the cities of the country, a semi-annual survey of the real estate market just completed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards disclosed. Old subdivisions are being revived.

Purchase of home sites is running almost 27 per cent ahead of residential construction, altho home building is now more active thruout the country than it has been at any time during the last decade.

Merchandise Mart Gains 40 New Tenants in Last 6 Months

With 40 new tenants signing for nearly 38,000 square feet of space since Jan. 1, the Merchandise Mart closed the six month period with 12 per cent more space rented than during the first half of last year, Percy Wilson, managing director of the mart and vice president of Marshall Field & Co., reported yesterday.

Chicago's growing importance as a marketing center was shown, Wilson said, by an analysis of firms leasing space during the last 12 months. More than 68 per cent, he said, had no previous representation in Chicago.

"This shows that manufacturers, long absorbed in perfecting new techniques of production, but now confronted with many problems caused by restrictive government measures, today are intent on improving their distributing methods," Wilson said.

"Chicago will benefit from this shift of interest, for it is apparent that this city stands first in advantages, not only as a manufacturing center but also as a distribution hub because of its central location and its superior marketing and transportation facilities."

Improvements in the mart during the half year period include a metal canopy over the Wells street sidewalk, opposite the entrance, and the enlargement of the entranceway to make room for more revolving doors. The building's daily traffic is about 75,000, and 60 per cent enters from Wells street.

$250,000 TRUCK TERMINAL TO BE BUILT ON S. SIDE

Construction will be started this week on a $250,000 truck terminal and office building for the Denver-Chicago Trucking company, at the northwest corner of 31st street and Ashland avenue. Mark D. Kalischer is architect. The B-W Construction company has the general contract. Completion is set for Nov. 1. Laurence Cohen, president of the trucking company, organized it in 1931. It operates 300 trucks in Illinois and western states and has terminals in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Pueblo, and Denver, where the general offices are located.

Finance Company Leases Broadway-Wilson Corner

The Provident Finance company, specializing in automobile purchase paper and direct loans to the public, yesterday leased space on the second floor at the southeast corner of Broadway and Wilson for five years from June 1 from Mrs. Theodore Sheldon and the Northern Trust company. N. J. Duncan of Gordon Strong & Co. represented all parties.

RAZE KIMBALL 20 ROOM HOME IN HIGHLAND PARK

Following the trend along the north shore of razing old, oversized homes, a contract was signed yesterday with the Federal Wrecking company, and work has been started demolishing the 20 room Highland Park residence of the late C. N. Kimball, former president of the W. W. Kimball company, piano manufacturer.

The house, at 320 Green Bay road, stands on a 15 acre tract, which it is understood will be cut up into smaller homesites. Originally the Kimball property comprised 80 acres along Green Bay road, extending south to Bob o' Link Golf club. Fifteen homes were built some time ago.

The Kimball property is owned by Miss Elizabeth Kimball, Mrs. Mary K. Van Steenberen, her sister; D. W. Kimball, treasurer of the piano company, and W. W. Kimball, vice president. The Kimball house, built 35 years ago, is one of the largest on the north shore. It is 100 feet wide.

'SOLAR HOUSE' OWNER STARTS HOMES PROJECT

Has 20 Acre Development in Glenview.

Success of the "solar house" at 825 Glenview road, in Glenview, in reducing fuel bills by using sun rays as a secondary heating agent has led its owner, Howard M. Sloan of the H. M. Sloan Realty company, to open a 20 acre residential development in that suburb. It is known as Meadowbrook village. The project, on the east side of Harms road, just north of the Skokie limits, already has one house completed and occupied, a second under roof, one on which work will be started in 10 days, another in three weeks, a fifth in 30 days, and a sixth on which bids now are being taken. Three of the six are solar houses.

Howard M. Sloan.
[Tribune Photo.]

One street has been set aside for modern homes and one story California ranch type houses. The rest of the property will be improved with colonial, Cape Cod, French, and other conventional types of architecture.

Keck Makes Discovery.

Last fall Sloan built the solar house on Glenview road from plans by Architect George Fred Keck of Chicago. Keck discovered during the erection of his "House of Tomorrow" at A Century of Progress in Chicago that sun rays will heat a building if most of the windows face south. On an unusually cold winter day Keck found workmen inside the "House of Tomorrow," built almost entirely of glass, working in their shirt sleeves and complaining of the heat. There was no artificial heat in the building.

Keck pondered this discovery and studied statistics on solar heat. The result was the solar house. For several months Sloan permitted visitors to go thru the house. A visit made on a cold but sunny winter day found a 78 degree temperature, altho the gas fired furnace had been off for several hours.

Furnace Off 7 Hours in Zero Spell.

Sloan yesterday told of a test made last December. At 6 a. m. it was 11 below at the Glenview airport. At 8:30 he set his thermostat at 55 and left the house. He came back at 2 p. m. The temperature on his north porch was 1 below zero. He found the furnace cold but the temperature in the house was 73. The furnace heat went on at 3:30 p. m., after having retired in favor of the sun for nearly 7 hours.

One solar house in the new Meadowbrook village project was built and is occupied by M. J. O'Connel, a government employé. Work will start on another solar house for Stanley C. Stewart, an artist, within 10 days, and one for Arthur Missner of the state highway department within 30 days. All three were designed by Keck.

Saves 20% in Fuel.

Sloan, who is living in the solar house at 825 Glenview road, estimated he saved about 20 per cent in fuel cost last winter.

The house eave line projection is so arranged that the summer sun high in the heavens doesn't enter the house, but the winter sun, nearer the horizon, does.

BUYS OAK PARK FLATS.

The 13 flats and 3 story building at the southeast corner of North and Lombard avenues was sold by Jerry L. and Amelia Manda to the Prairie State bank, which took title for an undisclosed buyer, for $46,500. Leonard F. McGee, of the McGee Realty company, was broker.

Pay $243,500 Cash for Tall Flat Building

Cornell Towers, 5346-50 Cornell avenue, one of Hyde Park's largest and tallest apartment buildings, was sold yesterday by the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to the 5346 Cornell corporation, Arthur Baum, president, for $243,500 in cash, it was reported yesterday.

A new first mortgage 10 year loan of $175,000 was negotiated thru Irvin Jacobs & Co. Milton J. Wohl of Landau & Perlman was broker for the buyer, and Jack Davidson for the seller.

The 14 story building, built in 1928, contains 120 furnished apartments, equally divided between 2 and 3 room units.

The buying corporation recently acquired the vacant lot adjoining Cornell Towers on the south. This 100x200 foot lot will be landscaped for use by the hotel guests for recreational purposes.

Wieboldt Buys Building for Warehouse Purposes

Wieboldt department stores bought from the Colorado Garage company the building, 50 by 210, at 7226 Central avenue, River Forest, for $17,500 cash, and will use it for storage, Horace A. Young, attorney for the buyer, said.

CIO AUTO UNION GAINS 200,000 WITHOUT FORD

Income Up 87 Per Cent to Near 2 Millions.

Detroit, Mich., July 19 [Special].—The total income of the CIO United Automobile Workers increased by more than 87 per cent and approximately 200,000 new or reinstated members were added to its rolls in the fiscal year ended April 30, 1941, George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer, said today in his annual financial report. The report will be submitted to the sixth annual convention of the union in Buffalo Aug. 4.

A highlight of the report was Addes' recommendation that the union set up a reserve fund of 5 million dollars to be used to cushion the effects of the mass unemployment among the union members which is expected to follow national rearmament.

Income Near 2 Millions.

Total income of the union was $1,921,149, exceeding that of the previous fiscal year by $895,930, a percentage increase of 87 per cent, Addes reported.

During the year 118 new charters were granted and approximately 200,000 workers initiated or reinstated to membership, bringing the total paid up membership as of last April 30 to 438,413. Addes said this was before the union shop went into effect in the plants of the Ford Motor company.

Total expenditures were put at $1,543,189, an increase of 37 per cent of this sum; $138,914 was expended on the drive to organize Ford employés.

Sees Depression Ahead.

"The economic and social situation in which we are now working" is bound to change within the not far distant future. Today millions of workers are employed in war industries. Today the financial resources of organized labor are expanding.

"This is not likely to be true when the present emergency has passed. Then we shall face industrial depression, with mass unemployment.

"A reserve fund of 5 million dollars built up during the present period of prosperity is indispensable for the protection of workers in the auto industry. This means a reserve of $10 a member."

Among other recommendations were action to unionize 500,000 aircraft workers and the cleanup of organizational problems in the tool and die division, parts plants, and the farm equipment fields.

SHOW WOMEN'S LIFE SPAN 4 YRS. MORE THAN MEN

Washington, D. C., July 19 [Special].—If you want a long life, you should be a woman. The average life of white women in the United States today is 64.5 years, while the average for men is only 60.6 years, the bureau of census reported today.

The figures also contain solace for males, showing that in the last decade the average life of the American citizen has increased 3.3 years, and counting both sexes is 62.5 years.

The increase since the beginning of the century has been enormous, for then the average life was only 50.5 years. By 1920 it had increased to 57 years, and a decade ago was 59.2 years. In 1900 women averaged 51 years as against 50 for the men, and now their margin is nearly four years—and still going up.

Nonwhites, the statistics show, have much shorter life spans than the whites, the average for men being 50 years and for women 43 years.

The substructure of the $21,000,000 water filtration plant, under construction on a peninsula of made land off 79th street, is completed and the contract for the superstructure of steel girders has been awarded. City Engineer W. W. DeBerard said the plant is expected to be ready for use in 1943.

The steel to be used in the superstructure will weigh 2,800 tons. The contract was awarded to the Strobel Construction company for $384,000.

Members of the city council are discussing a request from Commissioner of Public Works Oscar Hewitt that the city purchase 115,000 water meters and prepare to meter all private homes in the area to be serviced with filtered water. That area is bounded by the city limits on the south and west and 39th street and the sanitary canal on the north.

Girl, 11, Raped; Hunt Man Who Lured Two Into Auto

Police of the south side districts were searching last evening for a man about 24 years old who enticed two small girls into a dilapidated automobile near 51st and Laflin streets and took them to a shack on Roosevelt road near Laflin street, where he raped one of them. The injured child, 11 years old, was taken to a hospital for examination and released.

'GROWING CRISIS' SEEN IN REPORT ON SEIZURE BILL

Senators Approve Mobilizing Industry.

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—Asserting that there was a growing crisis in the acquisition of critical defense materials, the senate military committee formally reported the armament property seizure bill to the senate today with the admonition that delay in meeting this situation may be fatal.

In its written report on the measure, which is scheduled for senate consideration Monday, the committee drew attention to the enactment of conscription legislation 10 months ago adding:

"Since then, the danger to this country has increased, rather than diminished. The mobilization of industry to equip our army and navy cannot be left to a volunteer system any more than the recruiting of our man power."

Defends Seizure of Property.

The committee report, made by Senator Albert B. Chandler [D., Ky.], discussed and defended provisions of the bill which would permit the President to seize military and naval equipment, supplies, munitions, machinery, tools and materials necessary for rearming the United States.

It is noted that before such action was taken the President must determine that the need was pressing and that other means could not be found to reach the same objective. The authority granted under the measure would expire June 30, 1943.

Can't Wait for War.

"Today we can no longer afford to withhold such power from the government until 'time of war,'" the committee said. "Every power necessary to mobilize industry for national defense must be available in time of emergency before actual conflict.

"Modern war has taught us that to delay in preparation of defense invites the attack of aggressor nations. Only complete preparation may avoid actual conflict. Delay may be fatal."

The report substantiated reports that the army had been balked thus far in obtaining the plans for a new secret weapon. It said that suitable requisitioning power would have eliminated some serious delays in getting needed products, in one case an improved military weapon which may be of inestimable value.

Downey Sees Revolution.

Senator Sheridan Downey [D., Cal.], who opposes some of the provisions of the bill, told the committee the country might face collapse and revolution if it permitted itself to be converted into an armed camp.

Downey said he had been informed that Great Britain and the United States already were outproducing Germany in airplanes and tanks.

"I don't believe," he said, "with the population we have and our preparation and materials, that we stand in the slightest danger of conquest from Hitler."

Other symptoms of weak kidneys and irritated bladder may be backache, puffy eyes, shifting pains, burning or scanty passage.

Cheap and Simple

Montgomery, Ala., July 19 [Special].—One of war's most fearsome weapons, the flame thrower, has been adapted to a beneficial use on the farm of Capt. Price McLemore, army reserve officer. Jets of flame are used to cultivate the cotton and do the work of weed and grass killing generally done by hoeing.

Both grass and cotton are subjected to one-fifteenth of a second treatment of 2,200 degree heat. Grass is killed by the explosion of steam within its thin blades while the thicker stalk of crops can distribute the heat so that no portion is burned. It actually helps the crops, McLemore says.

Capt. McLemore figures that this type of cultivation costs only 10 cents an acre and that flame throwers he devised can be built for one mule plows at $10 each. The flame is provided by fuel oil and compressed air. The Alabama extension service is working with McLemore in developing the new method.

CIVIL SERVICE GLUTTED WITH UNFILLED JOBS

The nation's largest employment service—the United States Civil Service commission—is glutted with unfilled jobs, J. V. Swanson, director for the 7th district, said yesterday.

Since 1939 and the start of the armament program, the load on the commission has been steadily increasing, according to Swanson. In his district, composed of Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, there were 95,738 inquiries about civil service jobs in 1939. This year there will be 470,000 inquiries, he estimates.

Thousands of jobs paying from $600 to $6,500 a year are open to those who can qualify, and competitive examinations are being held constantly. This job mecca for the qualified is on the 11th floor of the new postoffice in Chicago.

Most of the workers wanted are mechanics, machinists, toolmakers, and other craftsmen needed for armament industries, but many openings exist for auditors, inspectors, chemists, attendants, etc.

Swanson has doubled his staff until it numbers about 75 employés, and despite overtime work, the office is still behind.

U. S. ENTERS WAR ON RACKETEERING UNION OFFICIALS

Caldwell's Income Among Those Under Scrutiny.

Nearly 100 of the federal government's keenest investigators have entered the war against racketeering labor union officials in Chicago, it was learned yesterday.

The same group of men who were largely responsible for the destruction of the old Capone gang and who upset the biggest gambling figures in the city now are massing evidence against labor chiefs who are reputed to have plundered the treasuries of their own unions.

The combined efforts of three divisions of the bureau of internal revenue have been thrown into the fight. There are field examiners directed by Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue; intelligence unit investigators under Arthur P. Madden, and auditors under E. C. Wright—a combination which has a perfect record of convictions against the men and corporations it has brought to trial.

Probe Caldwell Income.

One labor leader whose income is reported to be under investigation is Max Caldwell, deposed boss of local 1248 of the Retail Clerks' International Protective association. Caldwell's union is reputed to have yielded more than $20,000 a month in dues. Rebellious members of the union have filed a civil suit for an accounting charging that their treasury has been systematically raided for five years. They ask that Caldwell account for $910,000 in union funds.

Internal revenue agents are equally interested in knowing whether Caldwell got the money and whether he paid tax on it. Several books of union accounts were seized and examined more than a year ago. It is believed, however, that many of the ledgers still are missing and a search for them is now in progress.

Another Target.

George H. Meyers, czar and business agent of local 27 of the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paperhangers of America, also is the target of federal inquiry. The books of his union were confiscated thru court order by internal revenue agents last January.

Meyers and two other business agents of the union were defendants in an anti-trust indictment voted last year, in which it was charged that the union collected $100,000 in tribute from glass contractors who paid for the privilege of hiring union men. All three men were fined $5,000 after they pleaded no defense to this indictment.

The income of George E. Browne, president of the International Association of Theatrical Stage Employés, was the object of investigation two years ago. The inquiry is said to be still alive and is reported to have gained new vigor since Browne and Willie Bioff, Hollywood boss of the stagehands union, were indicted in New York last May 24 on charges of extorting $550,000 from four motion picture companies thru threats of strikes.

Albert (Shorty) Herbert pointing to his home on map.

One of Chicago's most interested visitors is Albert Herbert, 59 years old, a French-Canadian guide who last saw a large city 42 years ago. He is from the White Fish bay country in Ontario, 800 miles away. Except for a visit to Duluth, Minn., in 1899 he has never been out of the wilds until now.

In Chicago, Herbert has seen for the first time a street car, an elevated train, a streamliner, an electric refrigerator, and a gas stove, to mention a few. He said they're all grand. He also said Chicago's girls "are the best I ever see." And Chicago's whisky, he mentioned, is better than any in Canada.

Herbert, called "Shorty" because he is only 5 feet 2 inches tall, is known to dozens of Chicago sportsmen. One of them, Alex Flicht, 6801 Wayne avenue, brought him to Chicago as a reward for service as a guide.

TALMADGE PURGE ENDS GEORGIA U. EDUCATION FUND

All Assistance Cut Off by Foundation.

Atlanta, Ga., July 19 [Special].—The General Education board has withdrawn all its financial assistance from the University of Georgia as a result of the action of Gov. Eugene Talmadge in seizing personal control of the university and its branches, it became known today. It was predicted withdrawal of support by the Rosenwald fund and by other national foundations for aid to education would follow.

The General Education board was founded in 1902 by the late John D. Rockefeller and has spent more than 262 million dollars on education. Of this total, $140,068,448 has been devoted to education in the south.

Only last year the board granted 2½ million dollars toward development of the Southeastern university center here on condition that a 5 million dollar matching fund be provided. The 5 millions is reported to be virtually on hand. Coöperating in the university center program will be Emory university, Agnes Scott college, Columbia Theological seminary, Georgia Tech, the University of Georgia, and the Atlanta Art association.

Funds Still Forthcoming.

No part of the 2½ million dollar grant has been received, but a spokesman at the education board's New York headquarters said commitments will be honored as long as conditions under which they were made are fulfilled.

Notified of the board's action in withdrawing funds from the University of Georgia, Dr. James R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott college and a trustee of the board, said: "This is not the action of the trustees, but rather of the officers of the general education board. I am positive that none of the 2½ million to Emory and Agnes Scott—or smaller amounts granted jointly to other institutions with the University of Georgia—will be affected."

Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory, also expressed confidence the action would not affect plans for the university center.

President Tells of Letter.

President Harmon Caldwell of the University of Georgia said he received a letter from the headquarters of the general education board saying that "events have occurred which in our judgment make it impossible for the general education board to continue relations with the University of Georgia. We do not have to explain the grounds for this action."

Dr. Caldwell said the university had applied for a general education board grant of $74,000 for the next three years. He explained that grants to the university averaging $25,000 a year had been made heretofore by the general board.

It was believed that the "recent events" to which the letter referred included the outsting of Dean Walter D. Cocking of the university school of education and others by a board of regents which Gov. Talmadge revamped for that purpose.

In his purge of five members of the university system faculty, Gov. Talmadge said three of them participated in the Rosenwald fund. His spokesmen at the ouster of the educators sought to prove that the fund advocates racial equality.

ROSENWALD FUND WILL BE USED UP IN NEXT 7 YEARS

Julius Rosenwald instructed that the fund he left for the "well being of mankind" be spent within 25 years after his death, or by 1957. But the remaining $4,000,000 is expected to be used up by 1948, Edwin R. Embree, president of the fund said yesterday.

"Since 1917 the fund has expended $16,620,000, he explained. "The policy of the fund is to continue to make expenditures as opportunities are offered. The fund will probably complete its work in another five to seven years."

In the year ended June 30 the fund programs in education and Negro welfare required $769,061. Of this amount $300,000 was spent for rural education among both Negroes and whites in the south. In addition, $170,000 was spent in Negro university centers, including Washington, D. C.; $110,000 for fellowships for Negroes and white southerners; the same amount for general medical services and other activities, and $80,000 for Negro health.

N. Y. Broker's Daughter Shot to Death in Maine

Berwick, Me., July 19 [Special].—Miss Jeanne A. Lyon, 26 years old, the daughter of W. Wallace Lyon, New York broker, was found shot to death today in a wooded section near here. According to state police Miss Lyon was killed with a shotgun. Dr. Stephen Cobb, the medical examiner at Sanford, said she had killed herself. No motive was given.

More Than 50 Belong

West side youngsters are tending their own garden plots in Garfield park this summer. More than 50 boys and girls work in their little garden at every opportunity, almost killing their struggling plants with care. Few of them have more than a plant or a window box at home. Miss Evelyn Hall, parks physical instructor, is teaching the children how to plant the flowers in rows, not too close together, and how to recognize the weeds. Already they can identify marigolds, bachelor buttons, snap dragons, nasturtiums and petunias, and before the summer is over they will have added others to their list. The project is sponsored by the Chicago Park district.

OBITUARIES

Mrs. Lydia V. Hutton.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lydia V. Hutton, former secretary of the Highland Park Y. M. C. A., will be held at 4 p. m. tomorrow in Kansas, Ill. Burial will be in Kansas. Mrs. Hutton died Friday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Myra Jane Hutton Sunderland, in Cincinnati, O. She was 51 years old. For the last six years Mrs. Hutton was rental manager for an Evanston hotel. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Sunderland.

Mrs. Maurine Green Jamieson.

Mrs. Maurine Green Jamieson, wife of Stillman B. Jamieson, former master of chancery in Chicago, died Friday in her home in Pasadena, Cal., it was learned here yesterday. She was a native of Ann Arbor, Mich., and went to Pasadena with her husband 20 years ago. Surviving besides Mr. Jamieson are a son, Hamer H. Jamieson, and three granddaughters. Services will be held in Pasadena tomorrow.

Bishop Gouverneur F. Mosher.

New York, July 19 [Special].—The Rt. Rev. Gouverneur Frank Mosher, retired Episcopal bishop of the Philippine Islands, died here today. He was 69 years old. Bishop Mosher had been in the far east mission field since, as a young deacon, he volunteered in 1896 for work in the rescue mission maintained in Shanghai by St. Bartholomew's church of New York. In 1920 he was made a missionary bishop.

John Martin Schreiber.

Orange, N. J., July 19 (AP).—John Martin Schreiber, 65 years old, automotive engineer who developed the all service and deisel powered buses for the Public Service corporation, died last night.

TWO GOVERNORS SPURN PLEA FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

Tallahassee, Fla., July 19 (AP).—The governor of Florida, Spessard L. Holland, tonight joined with the governor of Georgia, Eugene Talmadge, in declining to issue an executive order calling for daylight saving time, as asked by President Roosevelt.

The President on Tuesday requested the time change for eight southeastern states, primarily as an aid to utilities creating power for use in national defense projects.

Gov. Holland said Florida's electric power plants are producing much under their capacity, and that he would have to be sure "the losses sustained will be adequately offset by contributions effectively made to national defense before I issue an executive order so vitally affecting the economic life of our people and our state."

Talmadge said Georgia only recently switched from central to eastern time by legislative act, and that another change would cause confusion.

DR. W. NUTTING, CLERGYMAN AND ARTIST, IS DEAD

Framingham, Mass., July 19 [Special].—Dr. Wallace Nutting, 80 years old, whose curiously varied career brought him fame successively as a clergyman, artist, antiquarian, and author, died at his home here today.

Ill health literally forced him from the pulpit and into the outdoors in 1905 after he had held pastorates in several large cities. But recuperation did not mean idleness for he soon became noted in other fields.

Wide admiration given his delicately tinted sketches of old New England homes acknowledged a newly developed talent. This was followed by a love for antiques that led to fame as a collector and expert. His series of "state-beautiful" books achieved a popularity almost as great as his pictures. He also wrote and illustrated similar books in England and Ireland as well as a number of treatises on antiques. His widow, Mariet, survives him. They had no children.

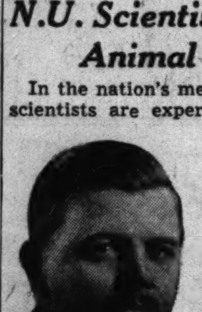
Woodstock Baby Dies In Bed from Strangulation

Stephen P. Schwabe, one year old son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Schwabe of Woodstock, McHenry county, was accidentally strangled in bed last night when bed clothing was wound around his throat. The Schwabes are well known in Woodstock.

SHOWS HUMANE METHODS USED BY RESEARCHERS

N.U. Scientist Explains Animal Tests.

In the nation's medical laboratories scientists are experimenting on animals and on volunteers among themselves. One of the outstanding research units is that of Northwestern university headed by Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, director of the department of physiology.



Dr. Andrew C. Ivy.

Dr. Ivy paused in his work yesterday to show a reporter thru the laboratory and to explain the necessity and value and character of animal experimentation—vivisection.

An "Unfair" Word.

"That word 'vivisection' is an unfair one," Dr. Ivy said. "It implies pitiless, unnecessary examination. Actually, we exercise the humaneness and care that are used in any grade A hospital."

In all except rare instances, dogs are placed under an anesthetic and are kept in that condition until the experiment is finished, Dr. Ivy said.

"Those dogs have helped and are helping us to find the answer to human ills," the scientist said. "Eighty per cent of modern diagnostic and therapeutic knowledge can be traced to animal experimentation."

Out of such laboratories as that at Northwestern have come insulin, the reprieve drug for millions of diabetics; the cures for syphilis, rabies, and hundreds of other diseases. Many millions of lives have been saved by such research, according to Dr. Ivy.

Work Night and Day.

Working night and day in Dr. Ivy's laboratory, workers are striving to find the answer to gall bladder trouble, an affliction of 70 per cent of the women who are mothers.

"A large proportion of those mothers have gallstones," Dr. Ivy explained. "What is the cause, and how can we prevent it?

"Dogs are helping us to find the answers. For example:

"We've found that a human gallstone, when placed in a dog's bladder, dissolves in from 60 to 120 days. Obviously, there is a difference in bladder chemistry.

"If and when, thru animal experimentation, we find what that chemical difference is, there will be far fewer gallstone operations."

The tour of the laboratory and kennels—made while experiments were under way—disclosed no instances of suffering. The animals on the operating tables were under anesthetic, without exception.

BAKERY'S FIGHT WITH OAK PARK IN COURT AGAIN

The open and shut case of the Schlosser Bakery vs. the Village of Oak Park—and vice versa—will be in court again tomorrow, this time before Judge Thomas J. Lynch in Criminal court.

First, the village tried to keep the bakery at 1145 Lake street, Oak Park, from remaining open on Sunday under a local ordinance. The Schlosser chain secured an injunction to keep the village from enforcing the ordinance.

On May 18 the bakery stayed open. Village attorneys found an 1874 blue law prohibiting work on Sunday and arrested Miss Mary Jack, the store manager. She was fined several days later by Justice of the Peace Joseph E. O'Connell.

SEEK TO ANNUL MARRIAGE OF DAIRYMAN, 87

A suit to annul the marriage of Stanley Dowgialowicz, 87 years old, owner of the Emerald Dairy company, to his housekeeper, was filed in the Superior court yesterday.

The suit, filed by Attorneys David J. Hayes and Joseph L. Mack for relatives of Dowgialowicz, relates that he was adjudged incompetent on July 2. It charges that three days later his housekeeper had him carried to the Marriage court, where they were married.

Charges also are made that she married Dowgialowicz to gain control of his estate, valued at $100,000. She had been his housekeeper since the death of his first wife, 30 years ago. On July 8 Dowgialowicz was taken from his home at 3245 Emerald avenue on court order and placed in St. Elizabeth's hospital. A hearing on a habeas corpus action, filed by Mrs. Dowgialowicz, will be heard before Judge John C. Lewe tomorrow.

Returns from Funeral; Finds Wife Poison Victim

Mrs. Lydia Broderick, 47 years old, 3842 Maypole avenue, died last night in the Garfield Park hospital from the effects of poison swallowed earlier in the day. She was found unconscious by her husband, Raymond, a railway engineer, on his return home from Janesville, Wis., where he had attended a funeral.

3 BURN TO DEATH IN AUTO CRASH ON HIGGINS ROAD

Two Trapped in Car When It Bursts into Flame.

Three persons were burned to death early today, and three others were injured in a crash between two cars at Nagle avenue and Higgins road, in which one of the automobiles caught fire. One of the victims was a man, about 35 years old. Another was a woman perhaps 30. The third was either a girl or young woman.

Police were not able to establish their identifications immediately, but said that the man and woman were trapped in a car, the license of which was issued to Alex G. Zetterlund, 1464 Leland avenue. The third victim—the girl or young woman—was found lying outside the burning car.

Struck by Car in Rear.

Police said that the Zetterlund automobile had stopped for a stop sign at Nagle avenue, when it was struck from the rear by the second machine, and set ablaze. In the second car were George Vervishar, 30, 4411 Walton street, the driver; his wife, Adeline, 25; Frank Kuchyna Jr., 33, 2257 North Major avenue, and his wife, Anne, 30. Vervishar's wife is missing, and may have been the third victim burned, police said. Vervishar and Kuchyna and Mrs. Kuchyna suffered possible skull fractures.

Nicholas Adamopolus, 8 years old, 54 West 44th street, was injured fatally yesterday when he fell from the running board of his father's truck and was crushed under a rear wheel. He died in the Southtown hospital. The accident occurred at 57th street and 75th avenue, Summit.

One Killed, 2 Injured.

One woman was killed and two persons were injured seriously when two cars overturned after a collision at Wolf road and Lawrence avenue, two miles west of Schiller Park. The dead woman is Mrs. Loretta Kinzelman, 26, of 911 Irving Park road, a bride of a month, who was riding in a car driven by her husband, Joseph, 27, who was slightly hurt. Their car collided with one driven by Mrs. Anna Lavick, 47, of 3106 Park avenue, Brookfield. The injured were taken to Northwestern hospital, Des Plaines.

Fred J. Bening, 67, 7640 Aberdeen street, and his wife, Clara, 58, were killed six miles north of Valparaiso, Ind., when their automobile swerved into the path of the truck driven by Robert Krajewski, 22, also of Chicago.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 508 persons had been killed by traffic accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 359 were killed in Chicago, where 13,263 were injured in the same period.

$500,000 ESTATE IS DISPOSED OF BY MRS. BLISS' WILL

The will of Mrs. Helen Marie Bliss was admitted to probate yesterday by John F. Keeley, assistant to the probate judge. It disposes of an estate estimated at $500,000, largely in personal property. The amount is divided equally among a sister, Mrs. Willa Sanborn, and three brothers, Elmer E. Weck, William A. Weck, and Warren F. Weck. Mrs. Bliss, widow of Col. Samuel Eugene Bliss, founder of Bliss and Laughlin, Inc., steel manufacturers, died July 5 in her home in Evanston.

France Curbs Exportation of Art, Historic Articles

VICHY, France, July 19 (AP).—The French government today forbade exportation of works of art or historic articles without a special permit. Furniture made before 1830 and paintings, sculpture, engravings, and like works finished before 1900 were affected. The law provided a 5 per cent tax on objects allowed to leave the country.

STATE MEDICINE FAILS IN CHILE, PROBERS ASSERT

Extra Taxes to Carry Burden Expected.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 19.—The failure of state controled medicine has been brought home to Chileans by the report of a public investigating commission. Business, big and small, is bracing itself for additional taxation to carry the load.

Socialized medicine functions thru a workers' compulsory insurance bank, with contributions by state, employer, and employé. The investigators' report, released only by instalments, reveals a cash working loss of 146 million pesos. [A peso is quoted at 4.1 cents.] There is a reserve account deficit of 69 million pesos, while the actuarial deficit is placed as high as a billion.

Bank Insures Manual Labor.

Practically all manual labor is insured thru the bank. The actuarial deficit is calculated chiefly on the lack of allowance for pensions. The insurance experiment is comparatively young in Chile, so the pension liability is not yet fully operative.

Income for the year ended June 30 was 292 million pesos. Expenditures totaled 238 millions, of which 192 millions was spent in medical services. The credit balance of 54 million pesos is not satisfactory from an actuarial viewpoint.

The financial chaos is due primarily to "politiqueria"—the Spanish term for too much politics.

Racketeering Is Charged.

There has also been medical racketeering. Within two years the number of doctors has increased by 25 per cent. The pay roll has jumped from 50 to 80 million pesos, while last year alone doctors' bonuses amounted to 9 million pesos.

The clothing department showed a loss of 11 million pesos. There is also criticism of the investment policy. Manufacturers have complained of competition from this state-provided capital.

Knudsen Gets a Cooling Off Period—with Iced Coffee

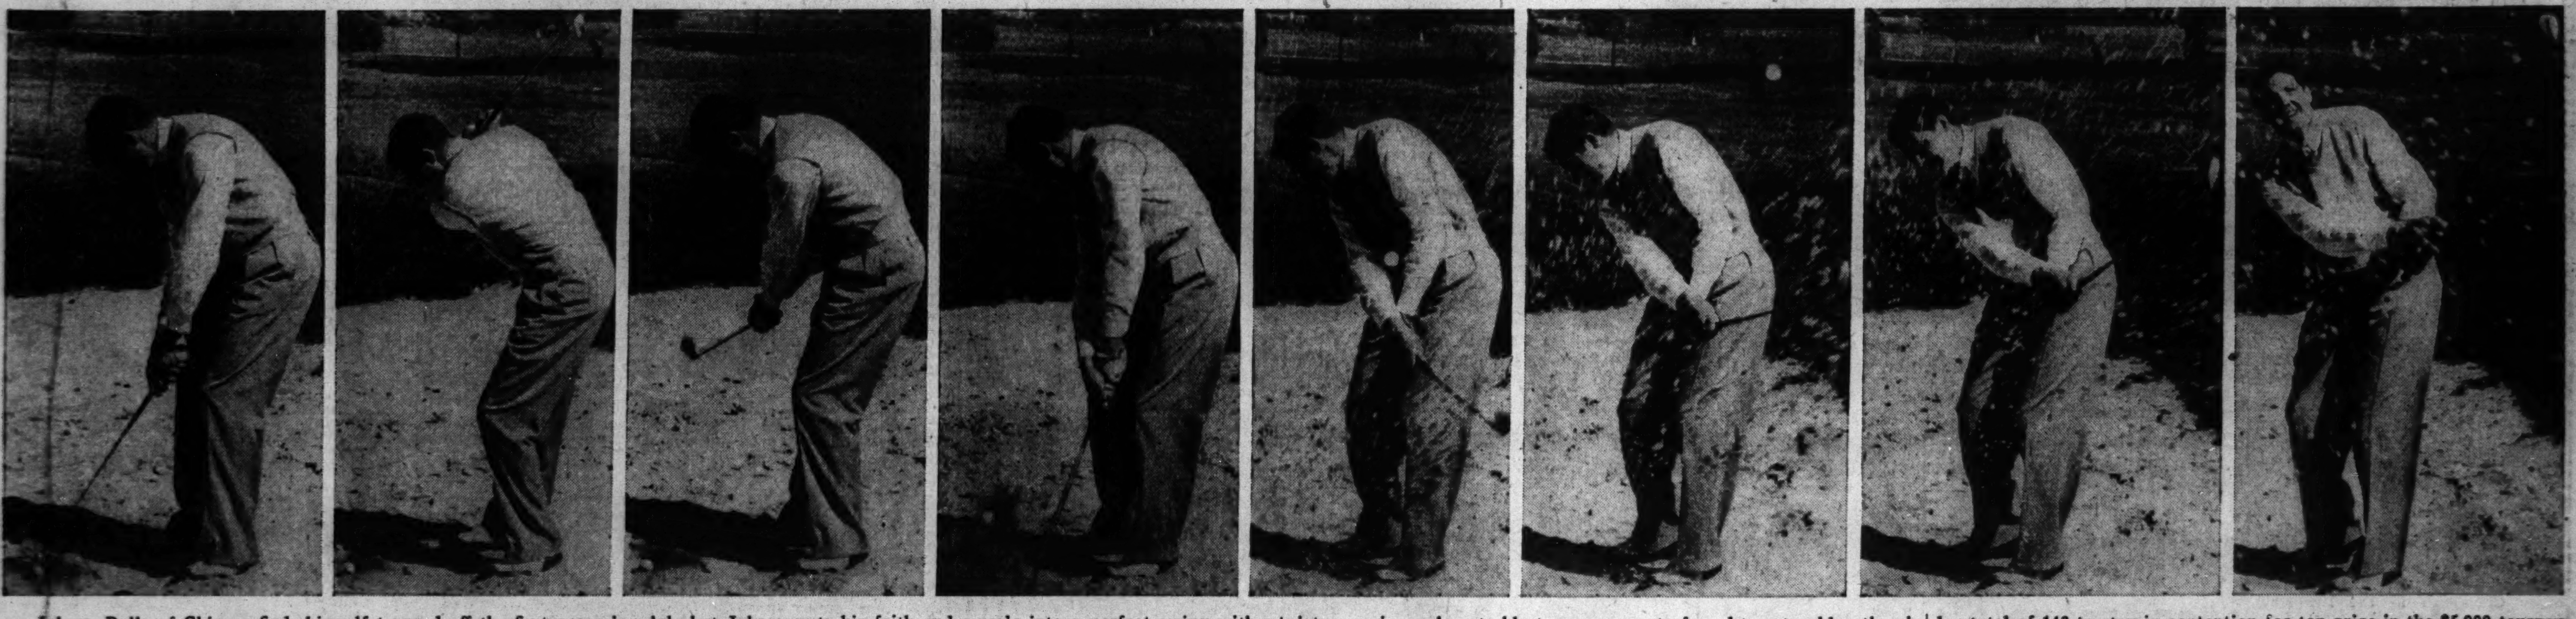
HOGAN'S 136 TOPS CHICAGO OPEN; METZ SECOND

LIO OF GEORGETOWN TAKES LEAD IN ALL-STAR FOOTBALL POLL

MR. BULLA SEES IT THRU WITH A PERFECT SWING—IT STILL IS HOGAN IN CHICAGO OPEN



Johnny Bulla of Chicago finds himself trapped off the first green in yesterday's second round play in the Chicago Open at Elmhurst Country club, but Johnny puts his faith and muscle into a perfect swing with a No. 9 and is out as pretty as you please. Follow Bulla thru this motion picture series on how to blast your way out of sand-trap trouble—there's a lesson in rhythm in every photo. Bulla shot a 73 yesterday for a two day total of 143 to stay in contention for top prize in the $5,000 tourney which closes today. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

SOX BEAT A'S, 4-2, ON FOUR HITS; FAIL ON SAME QUOTA IN 2D, 3 TO 1

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox yesterday enhanced their statistical rating as the weakest hitting team in the American league as they made four hits in each game of their double header with the Philadelphia Athletics in Comiskey park.

Happily, the Sox won the first game, 4 to 2, due to an eighth inning collapse of the A's. They could have taken it, 3 to 2, without any hits, the first three runs having been accomplished without a safety. Then the Sox lost the second match, 3 to 1, avoiding a shutout at the hands of C. Luman Harris when Myril Hoag walked and scored on Bob Kennedy's triple with two out in the seventh inning.

Edgar Smith more than earned his ninth victory in the first game, tho the same can't be said for his supporting cast. Johnny Humphries, making his first start as a Comiskey employé, did mighty well and might have won if he had been able to dispose of Al Brancato, who made a single, two doubles, and a triple, and scored two runs.

Reward Comes to Smitty.

Smith had to do a lot of work and a lot of suffering before the A's collapse in the eighth. Tho he held the A's to eight hits and two runs it appeared until the blowup in the eighth that two runs were about twice as many tallies as the A's would need to win. Prior to the eighth, Smith, with a single and a double, had accounted for two of the Sox's three hits off Phil Marchildon, who had walked only one batsman while being supported by flawless fielding.

Then came the surprising blowup. Marchildon walked George Dickey and Smith. Errors by Ben McCoy and Dick Siebert on the next two batsmen, Bill Knickerbocker and Luke Appling, got Dickey and Smith in with the tying runs. Appling got across with the winning run on Taft Wright's fly. Joe Kuhel, after stealing second, scored the run the Sox didn't need when Julius Solters dropped a double in short left.

Knickerbocker Gets a Hit.

Other standout features of the game were supplied by Bill Knickerbocker, with his first hit in 28 times at bat, and Appling, who received credit for his 23d run batted in on a grounder fumbled by Siebert.

The Sox, still in fourth place and still at the .500 mark, will battle the A's twice again this afternoon, and have promised to devastate Bill Beckman and Bump Hadley with another scourge of base hits. Ted Lyons and Buck Ross will pitch for the Sox, with their usual valor and patience, hoping that a White Sox will pick up a bat he knows how to use.

FIRST GAME

The manner in which the Sox won the first game gave evidence that the Chicagoans are all fine, clean living boys and good to their folks. They made the three runs essential to victory without the aid of a hit. The hit, by Solters, which drove in the superfluous marker, was a looper and only the fourth of the entire contest for the Sox.

The first hits of the game were singles by Smith and Knickerbocker with two out in the third inning. Tho the hits went to waste, because Appling ended the inning with a pop to McCoy, they apparently gave the A's ideas.

They're Off in Yachting Race to Mackinac

The 34th Mackinac race fleet yesterday faced its windiest and roughest trip in nearly a decade, as the 50 yachts left Belmont harbor. A strong north northeast wind gave the boats a steady head wind in which to tack.

Most of the competitors had to head for St. Joseph, Mich., on the port tack. Before reaching the Michigan shore they were expected to come about on the starboard tack late last night, pointing to the Wisconsin shore near Milwaukee. Their next leg, if the wind should hold in the northeast, would bring them up to Point Betsie, Mich.

A rough sea, whipped up by the wind, tossed the smaller craft [measuring 30 to 40 feet] about, but the whitecaps were not high enough to come over the decks.

The Chicago Yacht club race committee, Byron Willis, John Stieber, Charles Weil, and Ed Krum, left last night aboard the S. S. Seeandbee.

Here are the outstanding facts on the race:

Boats—Fifty sailing yachts, no two alike. Handicaps, based on ratings given after measurements of sail area, length, and weight, may give the race to the smallest entry. Largest entry is Royono, John B. Ford Jr.'s 72 foot yawl; the smallest is the Cartwright-Holsman syndicate's Wench, a 31½ foot cutter.

Records—First race sailed in 1898, won by W. R. Crawford's sloop Vanenna. Fastest actual time was in the 1911 race when an 80 mile gale drove the big schooner Amorita to Mackinac in 31 hours 14 minutes 30 seconds. Siren, the only boat to win the race five times, is entered again this year. Bangalore, Ed Lumbard's cutter, is out to win in the cruising division the third successive year.

Crews—Nearly 400 yachtsmen, ranging in age from about 16 to men in their 60s, and four women—Mrs. Hobart Olson, Mrs. W. B. Goltra, Mrs. S. W. D. Scott, and Mrs. Charles Van Sicklen. Each of the women will take an active part in the sailing of their husbands' yachts.

Georgetown U. Guard Totals 253,874 Votes

BY ARCH WARD.

The good old custom of lionizing football's back field men apparently is vanishing. For many years the ball toters got all the credit from the headline writers. Linemen were accepted as a necessary evil, like a dummy in bridge.

The All-Star football poll, which gives the fans of the nation their lone chance to rate their favorites, has changed all this. Whether it is due to the quality of the product or a more intelligent grading of values, it's a lineman who this morning tops the standings in the coast to coast voting conducted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and its 263 newspaper and radio associates.

Augie Lio, Georgetown guard, has received more votes than Tom Harmon of Michigan, George Franck of Minnesota, Norm Standlee of Stanford, John Kimbrough of Texas A. & M., and scores of others known to all followers of intercollegiate football.

McGannon Is Second.

Lio this morning has 253,874 votes, approximately 70,000 more than his nearest rival—William McGannon of Notre Dame, a half back who received little or no consideration for All-America honors last fall. The poll, which today enters its second week, has rolled up a total of 735,769 votes. It will continue until midnight July 29.

The eleven players, one at each position, who receive the greatest number of votes will comprise the starting lineup of the All-Americans in the eighth annual All-Star game against the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Football league, in Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 28. The coaches who will be invited to handle the All-Star squad will not be permitted to deviate from the fans' choices unless an honored player is injured in practice or unable to accept election to the squad.

Tickets Are in Demand.

Interest in this year's game has broken all records for the series. Ticket sales are 300 per cent ahead of last year. The entire $4.40 section was sold out in a week. The last of the $3.30 seats will be disposed of this week. In other years there were hundreds of $3.30 tickets available as late as the night of the game.

At least two factors are responsible for the increased interest. Last year's game was recognized by coaches and fans as one of the most thrilling and best played contests they ever had seen. The Green Bay Packers won, 45 to 28, but victory always was within grasp of the All-Stars until well after the middle of the last quarter. Then, too, the explosive force of the Bears, who concluded their 1940 season with a sensational 73 to 0 triumph over the Washington Redskins, champions of the eastern division of the National league, has every one wondering whether they can repeat that performance against the colleges' finest talent.

Six from Midwest.

While it is too early in the poll to draw conclusions as to the makeup of the collegians' starting lineup, the standings this morning give six places to representatives of midwest universities, two to the east, two to the south, and one to the Pacific coast. In addition to Lio of Georgetown, the eastern section has landed Nick Drahos of Cornell at the head of the tackles. Ernest Pannell of Texas Aggies is Drahos' running mate at tackle. Two other southerners, Tony Ruffa of Duke and Fred Hartman of Rice, trail in that order. The south also scores this morning with Tommy O'Boyle of Tulane at

EQUIFOX WINS, BREAKS GRASS COURSE RECORD

Arcaro's Out

TRAINER BEN JONES yesterday stated he would engage George Woolf to ride Warren Wright's Whirlaway in the Classic stakes Saturday at Arlington. He decided on this course after word had been received from the east that Eddie Arcaro, who had been scheduled to pilot the Calumet farm's 3 year old champion, had been suspended by the Empire City stewards. Woolf now is at Hollywood Park in California.

Arcaro got into trouble with the officials in the second race yesterday when his mount swerved over in the stretch, interfering with others. Arcaro's horse, Bright Gray, finished second but was disqualified. The length of the suspension is indefinite, the case being referred to the Jockey club, which is not scheduled to meet before the Classic.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Equifox, a colt which gave no early indication that he'd be much credit to his famous sire, set out two months ago to demonstrate that he has a rightful place in the aristocracy of the turf. Yesterday he rested his case temporarily. Running like a true son of Equipoise, he won the $7,500 Arlington handicap in record time for the grass course.

He beat Mrs. Emil Denemark's Idle Sun by a neck while a 35 to 1 shot, Cherry Trifle, was taking third place away from the 9 to 5 favorite, Sun Lover. Under Arthur Craig's skilful riding, Equifox launched a well timed move from ninth place going into the last turn. He swept past horses and drove between others to engage the leaders in mid stretch. Then in a hard driving finish he had enough left to outstay Idle Sun in the last few yards.

Cracks Grass Course Record.

Equifox's time of 1:58 4-5 was four-fifths of a second better than the former mark for the mile and three-sixteenths on Arlington's grass course. The crowd of 35,000 had established him as the 3 to 1 second choice, his mutuel payoff being $8, $5 and $4 across the board.

Equifox, which had been able to win only two cheap races in seven starts last season, began his brilliant rise during the Lincoln Fields meeting. His owner and trainer, Howard Wells, sent him into a claiming race for $4,000 horses and he won by two lengths. Then Wells put him in an allowance race and he won by a neck. Moving up into the stake division, Equifox ran fifth to Shot Put in the La Salle handicap but he came right back the following week to win the Lincoln handicap at a mile and a quarter.

Proves Mettle Under Fire.

As his Arlington Park campaign began, he showed that the victory in the Lincoln was no brief flash of ability. In a three horse head and head finish, he ran second between Steel Heels and Gallahadion in the Stars and Stripes handicap. He had his final tuneup last Tuesday for the Arlington handicap in an allowance event of a mile and a sixteenth on the turf course. On that occasion he ran fourth to Sun Lover, but was only a little more than two lengths behind the winner after encountering

Mioland Runs Third in Coast $75,000 Race

Los Angeles, Cal., July 19 (AP).—Mioland met two masters today in the $75,000 Gold cup handicap at Hollywood Park. Big Pebble, with Jackie Westrope in the saddle, won in a photo finish over Paperboy, while Mioland, the favorite, came in third in one of the biggest turf upsets of 1941.

Big Pebble ran today like he did last winter in defeating Bimelech in the Widener cup and his owner, Edward S. Moore of Sheridan, Wyo., collected $62,475, winner's end of the purse for the mile and a quarter race.

Westrope brought the big 5 year old bay up on the outside, overhauling Paperboy and Mioland in the stretch and sprinting across the finish line the winner by a neck. Mioland was more than a length behind—thoroly beaten.

Ship Biscuit Sets Pace.

Trainer Bill Finnegan sent Ship Biscuit, the Pebble's teammate, out at a fast pace. Ship Biscuit held it until the field of 13 pounded toward the head of the stretch. Paperboy, ridden by Nick Wall, raced into contention on the back stretch, taking care of Mioland's stable mate, Porter's Cap. As the crowd set up a thunderous roar, Paperboy moved into the lead halfway down the stretch.

Mioland charged up at him, but couldn't make the grade, and then Big Pebble made his move. He passed Mioland and then Paperboy—and held on tight in a hard drive.

Close to Track Record.

Big Pebble ran the distance in 2:02 3-5—three-fifths of a second slower than the track record hung up a year ago by Challedon in winning this same cup. Big Pebble paid $12.80 to win, $5.80 to place, and $2.80 to show. Paperboy paid $5.40 and $2.80, and Mioland paid $2.20 to show. Paperboy won $15,000 second money, Mioland $7,500 for third, and Wing and Wing, which had not received a call in the first stages, won $3,750 fourth money. The race in added money was worth $89,550. The betting handle for the big race was $254,963. It was the largest amount ever wagered on a single race at Hollywood Park.

Alsab Captures $15,000 Race as Suffolk Closes

Boston, Mass., July 19 (AP).—Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab, a $700 bargain as a yearling, chalked up the third stake triumph of his career today by winning the $15,000 added Mayflower stakes, 2 year old feature which closed the 60 day racing meeting at Suffolk Downs.

Alsab, a 3 to 5 betting choice of 25,000 patrons, tied the track record of 1:05 1-5 for the 5½ furlongs as he romped to a two and one-quarter length victory over Syl's Jimmy, owned by the Louisville brothers, Samuel and James Stone. Eternal Bull, coupled with Bold Question as the Allen T. Simmons entry, finished third, three-quarters of a length behind Syl's Jimmy.

With no show wagering on the race, the winner paid $3.20 and $2.80 and his victory was worth $15,900. Syl's Jimmy paid $5.20 for place in the mutuels.

CLARKE HINKLE TO RETIRE FROM PRO FOOTBALL

Neenah, Wis., July 19 [Special].—Clarke Hinkle, one of the greatest full backs in football history and a member of the Green Bay Packers for nine years, today announced his retirement from football. He is employed by the Kimberly Clark corporation. Now 30 years old, Hinkle leads all Packers in total points scored with 334 on 40 touchdowns, 28 points after touchdowns, and 22 field goals. He was selected on several all-pro league teams.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Deliberate Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., one of golf's most skilled workmen these last three years, turned out another tidy job yesterday as the field in the fourth annual $5,000 Chicago Open tournament reached the half way mark at the Elmhurst Country club. It was a 70, one under par, and while it wasn't as neatly turned as his first round 66, it still gave him a 36 hole aggregate of 136 and a three stroke margin on the field entering today's climactic 36.

Nearest man in the field to Hogan, who has been in the money in his last 50 tournament appearances, was none other than one of our best known fairway citizens — Richard Carlton Metz of the Oak Park Country club. Metz is not merely another contestant in this party. He's the defending champion, as the result of the 278 with which he beat out Hogan, among others, in last year's battle at Tam o' Shanter. Yesterday, Dick, who had come out of Friday's round with a 72, decided to assert himself and did so with a 67, four under par and the best round of a day in which the weather was ideal for scoring.

Ferrier Ties for Third.

Just to bring the situation closer to Elmhurst, two home club gents also made their moves yesterday. One was Jim Ferrier, making his pro debut this year. The other was John Barnum, the former Texan who has won the Mexican Amateur title for two years. Both came in with 70s for 36 hole totals of 141. Ferrier's was the more dramatic, since it was climaxed by the shot of the tournament. Big Jimes, who won the Chicago District Amateur tourney last year, found his second shot in the spinach at the right of the 448 yard 18th and back of the bleachers bordering the green. He was permitted to lift, and after examining the shot, boosted it over the sand trap, onto the green, and into the hole for a fancy eagle three on the green which nearly every man in the field has had difficulty in reaching in two shots.

Back of the front running foursome was another quartet, none of them to be neglected by the galleries who came out to Elmhurst today. There was Craig Wood, National Open champion, who amended an opening 73 with a 69, joining Hogan and Jimmy Thomson in shooting the second best cards of the day. He was matched at 142 by big Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C., Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, N. Y., and Mike Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y. The veteran Tommy Armour of Medinah, Thomson, and Johnny Bulla of Chicago followed with 143's. Lawson Little of San Francisco, 1940 National Open victor, was alone at 144 as a result of his second 72.

Ghezzi Eliminated.

The 153 figure proved to be the qualifying grade for the low 48 professionals and ties and the low 24 amateurs and ties who succeeded in gaining today's final two rounds. Every favorite in the field will be on deck this morning with one exception—Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J. The big boy who won the grueling National Professional tournament last Sunday in Denver was a rather weary lad as he took a plane for home last night after finishing with 155. Fifty-one pros and 26 amateurs will constitute the company for the finishing 36 holes.

The record opening day gallery was increased to 5,000 yesterday, indicating that Chicago golfers have been so attracted by the calibre of this 1941 field that the current event may be the most successful in the four year history of the production.

The cards for Hogan and Metz:

Par—Out	444	345	443—35
Hogan—Out	434	354	443—34
Metz—Out	443	245	344—33
Par—In	445	444	344—36—71
Hogan—In	445	344	345—36—70—136
Metz—In	335	444	254—34—67—139

Hogan Allays Fears.

Hogan gave the biggest gallery of the day a scare when he drove the woods off of the first tee and had to play out safely. Benny merely planted the ball six feet from the pin and holed out for a par that allayed their fears. He cheered them up further by knocking his second shot to the 400 yard second, and then added a few thrills with 20 and 10 foot birdie tries on the next two holes. He three putted the fifth but hit the flag for a birdie at the 596 yard sixth. He was just off the putting surface on the 224 yard ninth, which most players had been missing during the first two rounds, and after chipping 15 feet past the pin, dropped his putt for a par three.

He had a 3 foot chance for a birdie on the long 12th, but blew that. The only nick at par he could make coming home was at the 368

CONCLUDE TRIAL RACES TODAY IN 100 YARD SWIM

71 More to Qualify for Tribune Finals.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Forty-nine boys and girls won gold qualifying medals yesterday afternoon in the sectional 100 yard free style swimming races sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities at Cermak pool and Sherman park. The remainder of the field of 120 finalists will earn similar awards this afternoon in the 100 yard tests in Whealan pool, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, and in California park pool, 3901 North California avenue.

Seventy-one gold medals will be presented today, since the California and Whealan entries comprise more than 60 per cent of the total registration in the 12th annual meet.

Only three of the 20 qualifiers at Cermak pool are from Chicago. Davenport, Ia., Bloomington, Peoria, Ill., and Delafield, Wis., were the more distant cities represented. Chicago suburbs placing swimmers in the finals at the Cermak trials were La-Grange, Oak Park, Kenilworth, Elmhurst, Naperville, and Hinsdale.

Betty Harrison Survives.

Betty Harrison, Chicagoland 100 yard champion last year in Class D, qualified in Class E. This senior division for girls 19 years of age and over, but since Miss Harrison is a champion in Class D she had to advance a class, altho she is only 17 years of age. Lorraine Johnsen of Chicago qualified in Class D. She won the Chicagoland championship for girls 11 and 12 years of age in 1936. John Sanowski, Class E qualifier from Jackson natatorium, is the other Chicagoan in the list from Cermak.

Francoise Rose of Bloomington, Ill., Country club, who won Chicagoland titles in 1938 and 1939, qualified in Class C yesterday at Sherman park. The South Side Boys' club, with five qualifiers in Class A and B, and the 111th street YMCA, with three qualifiers, dominated the field. Long Beach, Gary, East Chicago, and Elkhart, Ind., were represented in the list of gold medal awards.

Qualifiers for the Chicagoland championships next Sunday are:

CERMAK POOL.

Boys.

Class A—Jimmy Butler, Lakeside Country club, Bloomington, Ill.; Ted Brown, St. John's camps, Delafield, Wis.

Class B—Harry Telander Jr., Edgewood Valley Country club, La Grange; George M. Sundheim, La Grange Country club.

Class C—Tad Rieger, Oak Park Country club; Jim Miller, Oak Park YMCA; John Streeter, La Grange Country club.

Class D—Walter Boyle, Kenilworth; Steve Deme, Oak Park Country club.

Class E—John Sanowski, Jackson natatorium; Charles Miller, Elmhurst.

Girls.

Class A—Virginia Barthell, Peoria; Polly Givler, Naperville.

Class B—Barbara Rieger, Oak Park Country club; Janet Allen, Hinsdale Golf club.

Class E—Betty Harrison, Chicago Towers club.

SHERMAN PARK.

Boys.

Class A—Howard Hines, Gilbert Davis, and Dale Mosby, South Side Boys' club; Steve Vrabel, Long Beach, Ind., Country club.

Class E—John E. Walsh, Gary; Jack Hall, Neptune Aquatic club; Albert V. McNellis, Jackson natatorium.

Girls.

Class A—Barbara Dodd and Patsy Rich, Hyde Park YMCA.

Class B—Joyce Johnsn, Griffith natatorium; Fern Clasen, Chicago Towers club.

Class D—Kathryn Karls, Chicago Towers club; Adrienne Robinson, Copernicus playground.

Class E—Judy Carlson, 4840 Lake Park avenue; Florence Sheils, 1809 Adams street; Bernice Martensen, Argo.

Best time for 100 yards at the Cermak pool was made by Walter Boyle in Class D. He was timed in 1 minute 21.5 seconds. Mary Ann Schulz of Bettendorf, Ia., suburb of Davenport, won her qualifying race in Class in 1:11.8 for the best mark by any girl.

Finals Next Sunday.

Today's qualifying races will complete the field for championships. These will be held next Sunday afternoon in California park. In addition to the 30 awards in the finals—10 gold medals, 10 silver, and 10 bronze—two team trophies will be presented.

All contestants should report this afternoon at 1 o'clock to the clerks at Whealan pool and California park to be placed in their preliminary races. The postcard each received will admit to the pools without charge. The first race at each qualifying center will start at 2 p. m.

Name Section Officials.

The list of officials for today's meets follows:

Whealan pool—Dr. William Rothman, Chester Coyner, Harry Berz, Harry Hahn, Capt. Roy E. Davis, Oscar Hansen, Richard McCarter, Jim Toman, George Schwartz Jr., Myles Havlicek, John Gunderson, August Pritzlaff, George Lloyd, W. W. Phils, Frowning on French Leave, Suspend Melton

Philadelphia, Pa., July 19 (AP).—The Phillies today suspended indefinitely 24 year old Frank [Rube] Melton, a rookie pitcher, who left the club without permission after Wednesday night's game with the Chicago Cubs. "Melton wrote me a letter from his home in Gastonia, N. C.," said President Gerry Nugent of the Phils. "He said he was homesick and had to see his family."

Betty Harrison, Chicago Towers club, swims to first place in yesterday's Class E preliminaries for girls in The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., 100 yard free style races in Cermak pool. Miss Harrison is out to make it a triple in the 100 yard swim events. She won the girls' Class C title in 1939 and in 1940 repeated in Class D.

to Kuhel and Suder grounded into a double play launched by Appling.

Marchildon led off with a single in the fifth, but was forced on Brancato's bunt. Moses then doubled to left center, but Brancato was thrown out at the plate.

Two Sox Are Stranded.

Solters drew Marchildon's first pass at the start of the fifth, but Webb forced him on an attempted sacrifice. After Dickey flied out, Smith doubled to right, Webb stopping at third. Knickerbocker bounced out to Suder.

The A's started production in the sixth after two were out. S. Chapman singled to center and Hayes drew Smith's fifth pass. Suder then singled to left, scoring Chapman.

Dickey and Smith walked to open the home eighth. Knickerbocker bunted to Suder, but McCoy, covering first, let the throw get away, Dickey scoring, Smith taking third and Knickerbocker second. Appling tapped to Siebert, who fumbled, Smith scoring the tying run, Knickerbocker reaching third and Appling first. Ferrick replaced Marchildon. When Kuhel grounded to Siebert, Knickerbocker was run down, Appling reaching third and Kuhel first on the maneuver. Appling scored the winning run on Wright's fly to Moses. Kuhel executed his thirteenth base theft of the season, then Solters dropped a double in front of Johnson, scoring Kuhel.

SECOND GAME

The A's started the scoring after two were out in the third inning of the second game. After Harris had fanned, Brancato doubled and went to third on Moses' infield out. McCoy singled, scoring Brancato, then Johnson was hit by a pitched ball. Siebert singled to right, scoring McCoy.

The first Chicagoan to get on base was Hoag, who singled with one down in the fifth. Kreevich beat out a bounder to Siebert, and the runners advanced on Kennedy's infield out. Turner whiffed. With two out in the sixth, Appling made the third Sox hit, a single past McCoy, but Kuhel was called out on strikes.

Hits a Triple This Time.

Brancato knocked his third successive extra base hit, a triple to center, with one down in the seventh. Moses popped to Knickerbocker, but McCoy bounced a single over Kennedy's shoulder, scoring Brancato.

The Sox broke thru for their only power run of the afternoon in the seventh inning. After Moses had made a fine running catch to dispose of Wright, Hoag walked and went to second on Kreevich's infield out. Kennedy then tripled to the score board in left center, scoring Hoag. Turner bounced to Suder.

Jack Hallett pitched for the Sox in the ninth, Humphries having been taken out for a pinch hitter in the eighth. The A's made one hit off Hallett. It was Brancato's fourth one, a high bounder to Kennedy. Kreevich's walk was Harris' only annoyance in the Chicago ninth.

PHILADELPHIA CLUB WINS U. S. ROWING CROWN

Minneapolis, Minn., July 19 (AP).—The Undine Barge club of Philadelphia today won the national amateur rowing championship with 97 points as the two day regatta came to an end. Victory in the senior lightweight eight-oared race clinched the title.

The Lincoln Park Boat club of Chicago finished fifth in the senior eight-oared shell race, which was won by the Fairmount Rowing association of Philadelphia. New York Athletic club was second in this event. Lafayette High school of Buffalo, N. Y., won the scholastic eight-oared title. Shrewsbury, Mass., was second and Ecorse, Mich., third.

Ted Dubois of the Winnipeg Boat club, won the national single sculls championship, defeating Joe Angyal of Brooklyn by a length and a half.

SPENCER COALS OPPOSE LEAGUE LEADERS TODAY

The Spencer Coals oppose the Michigan City, Ind., Cubs in a double header in Spencer field this afternoon with first place in the Central States league at stake. By taking both games, the Spencers can wrest the league lead away from the Hoosiers.

Slim De Lion, who has won seven straight games, and Bill Williams will hurl for the Spencers against Storti and Baker.

Passeau, Olsen Face Giants in 2 Games Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 19.—The Cubs today were forced to the conclusion that the weather man isn't a bad guy after all. He let loose some rain just in time to let the Chicagoans walk out of the Polo Grounds, home of the Giants, a few minutes after they had entered the premises in expectation of going to work.

It wasn't getting a 24 hour respite in their schedule with the Giants who have lathered them nine times in 12 games that made the Cubs think well of the weather man. They were somewhat on the weary side as the result of not getting to bed until after 1 o'clock this morning because of their exhibition at Wilmington, Del., and then being shaken from the sheets at 8 o'clock so they could get to this place from Philadelphia.

Hubbell May Hurl.

Today's washout gave Boss Jim Wilson opportunity to line up his best pair of pitchers for tomorrow's double header which will conclude the tour. Claude Passeau, a Giant killer of importance and today's candidate, will work one of the games. So will Vern [Lefty] Olsen. The Giants probably will offer Hal Schumacher and Carl Hubbell, with Cliff Melton a possible substitute for the latter.

The intervention of the weather man kept Johnny Hudson from a starting assignment at short. Bob Sturgeon, the regular occupant, was in the sick bay with a pronounced stomach ache. He'll probably be physically fit after 24 hours of treatment with Doc Andrew Lotshaw's magic pills.

Gilbert Makes Debut.

Another ailing member, but only in a slight way, was Charley Gilbert. The ex-Dodger joined the team yesterday after two months of doctoring and played seven innings of last night's exhibition. He withdrew when his weak foot began to bother him, but today he claimed he was feeling great. However, it may take him quite a while to overcome the effects of the injury, thus delaying Boss Wilson's plans to get the lad into the outfield, where there is a crying need for fellows who might hit.

YANKS CAPTURE TWO GAMES FROM TIGERS, 9-3, 6-2

Indians Whip Senators in Battle of Homers.

Detroit, Mich., July 19 (AP).—The league leading New York Yankees scored a double victory over the Tigers, 9 to 3 and 6 to 2, before 42,092 fans today to stretch their margin over the second place Indians to 6½ games.

Spud Chandler held the Tigers to six hits and did not allow an earned run in the first game as his mates dealt Buck Newsom his 12th defeat. The Yanks won the second game by scoring six runs in the sixth inning, which Joe Di Maggio opened with a triple.

Charley Keller banged his 21st homer of the season in the first game to take the league lead in home runs.

INDIANS, 9; SENATORS, 8.

Cleveland, O., July 19 (AP).—Today's slugging match between the Washington Senators and the Indians resulted in five home runs, used up seven pitchers and finally gave Cleveland a 9 to 8 victory.

The Indians scored five runs in the second inning when Jeff Heath hit his 14th homer of the season.

Jimmy Bloodworth homered in the fourth after three had walked. Ken Keltner's 15th homer came with the bases empty in the fifth. Jim Vernon's homer opened the sixth inning and Jake Early's tied the score in the same inning. Score:

BRAVES DEFEAT CARDS, 10 TO 6; SHOUN POUNDED

St. Louis Loses Half Game to Idle Dodgers.

Boston, Mass., July 19 (AP).—The Braves pounded Clyde Shoun off the mound in the first inning and continued their attack against Howard Krist and Sam Nahem today to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 10 to 6. The defeat dropped the Cards two and one-half games behind the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers, who were rained out against Pittsburgh. Score:

Vigh, Martin Seek Shot at 160 Lb. Title

Tony Zale, middleweight champion, is paired with Ossie Harris of Pittsburgh in a 10 round overweight bout in the Chicago Stadium outdoor arena on Wednesday, but the bout is being overshadowed by a 10 round semiwindup between Ernie Vigh and Tony [Cianciola] Martin.

The encounter between Vigh, New York 100 pound challenger, and Martin, who extended Zale in Milwaukee on New Year's day, will be the first of a series promoted by William R. Rand this season which may determine Zale's opponent in a championship event in the Stadium next fall or winter; that is, if Harris doesn't score an upset and beat the champion.

Against Martin, Vigh will be making his first appearance in this section. In 56 fights during a three year campaign the 22 year old Vigh has scored 50 victories, 37 by knockouts.

BOX AT MARIGOLD

Leonard Bennett, Detroit welterweight, will be in quest of his sixth straight decision in an eight round bout against Dick Demaray, Bismark, N. D., southpaw, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Bennett's earlier victims include Chuck Vickers, Jerry Fiorello, Kenny Blackmar, Tony Motisti, and Tito Taylor. Other eight round matches tomorrow bring together Floyd Hagen, St. Paul leightweight, and Joe Ghnouly, Hammond, and Eddie Lander, west side 135 pounder, and Andy Canal, south side. George Nyberg, Port Arthur, Ont., welterweight, who served six months in the Canadian army since his last appearance in Chicago, will return for a six round encounter against George Nelson of the south side. Dick Kist, Camp Custer, Mich., middleweight, and George Feltes, Great Lakes naval training station, are opponents in a four round match.

yard 13th, where he sank a 6 footer. He hit the flag again at the 145 yard 16th, but could gain naught but a three. His second to the 448 yard home hole wandered 40 feet to the right of the pin, and in going for it, he rolled four feet past, missing that for a bogey five.

Metz's round can be explained quite simply by the fact that he had only two bogeys on his entire round and that his putter clicked for six birdies. He had 10 footers at the 3d and 4th, 25 foot successes on the 7th and 11th, a 6 footer at the 10th, and one from 8 feet on the 16th. The champion's only errors were a missed 9th green and a three putt embarrassment at No. 17.

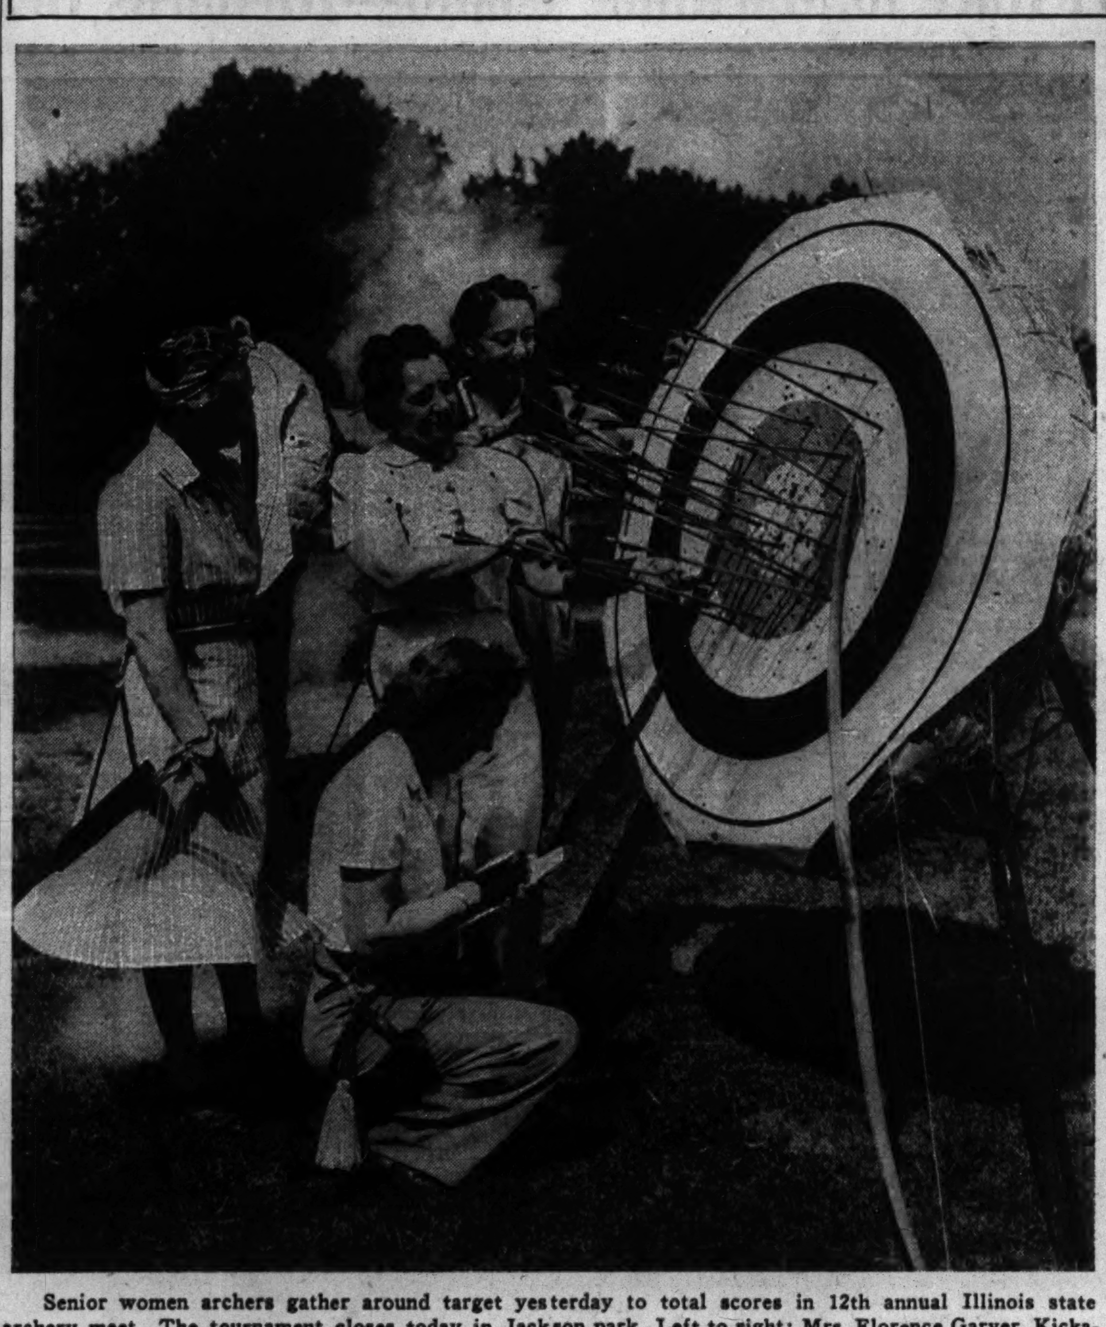
Feminine Robin Hoods Shoot for State Titles



Senior women archers gather around target yesterday to total scores in 12th annual Illinois state archery meet. The tournament closes today in Jackson park. Left to right: Mrs. Florence Garver, Kickapoo Archery club, Peoria; Myrtle McIntosh, Bowman Archery club, Geneva; Mrs. Jean Horney, Columbus Park Archery club, and Minerva Lanzer also of Columbus Park. Woman Gets an Archer's 'Hole-in-One'

A woman archer, Mrs. Jewel Gardner of Chicago, won the coveted six-gold pin of the National Archery association yesterday for placing six consecutive arrows in the gold center of the target.

The perfect "end" of six arrows—more exclusive than a golfer's hole in one—was shot at 30 yards, while Mrs. Gardner was competing with 100 other archers in the two day Illinois tournament in Jackson park.

Tournament officials said the six-gold pin is held by fewer than 300 Americans.

Schmidt in Lead.

At the half way mark in the shoot, the leader among men over 21 years old, was Marvin Schmidt of Chicago, runnerup last year. Russell Hoogerhyde, national defending champion, of Northbrook, was sixth. Their scores of 691 and 567 for a York round were lowered by a high wind. A perfect score is 1,296. Dewey Thorsen of Geneva, Ill., was third with 610.

Among women over 21, Renette Yanke of Chicago and Myrtle McIntosh of Geneva were first and second, with scores of 922 and 916, for a combined national and Columbia round. Mrs. McIntosh's 554 out of a possible 648 in the Columbia round was considered the best round in the tournament.

Other Leaders Listed.

Leaders in other first day events were:

INTERMEDIATE GIRLS [age 17-21]—Dorothy Bercher, Chicago, first; 837 out of 1,296 for a combined Columbia and national round.

Lawn Bowlers Play Today in Three Intercity Matches

Three intercity matches are scheduled for lawn bowling teams today. The Chicago club plays in Rockford, the Lakeside club in Gary, and the West Side club meets Milwaukee at 10 o'clock in doubles and singles on the Columbus park rinks.

WOMEN START PLAY TOMORROW IN DISTRICT GOLF

37th Men's City Tourney Also to Open.

Two of the outstanding tournaments of the local season dominate this week's golf schedule in the Chicago district, both opening tomorrow morning and continuing thru Saturday. One is the 37th annual city amateur tournament at Jackson park, oldest of all the town's established fairway events, and the other is the 12th annual battle for the Chicago Women's District Golf association at Olympia Fields.

Ellamae Williams of Medinah, ill since winning her third straight state championship, will not defend the district title she has held for two years. The tournament will open tomorrow with an 18 hole medal play round.

The 32 lowest handicap players will qualify for match play in the championship flight, continuing at 18 holes daily until Saturday's 36 hole title match. All other entrants will qualify in separate flights of 16 each, according to their established CWDGA handicaps.

The city amateur, which has produced some of Chicago's best players, will also get under way with an 18 hole qualifying round, the low 64 scorers gaining the match play competition. This will continue over the 18 hole route to Friday, when the semifinal matches will go 36 holes, as will Saturday's final match. President John Lawrence and Manager Jim Loftus will accept entries at the tee from 8 a. m. until 2 p. m. tomorrow. Earl Wilde, winner last year, has left the city and probably will not defend his title.

Fred Hawkins Jr. of Chain O' Lakes who captained the Antioch High school golf team until his graduation last month, won the 14th annual Midwest public links golf championship yesterday by defeating Sanford [Sandy] Rissman of Bryn Mawr, 3 and 2, in their 36 hole match for the title over the Waveland course in Lincoln park.

Hawkins, who is 17 years old, had a 1 up advantage at the first turn where he was out in 40, four over par, while Rissman, who eliminated Harry Wills Sr. of Elmhurst, the defending champion, took 42. Cards:

Round-of-the-Week
Ben Hogan's 33—33—66, five under par, for lead in Chicago Open.

Shot-of-the-Week
Bud Williamson's 6 iron second to 517 yard 12th for eagle three in first round.

TOM WALSH of Westgate Valley, national president of the Professional Golfers' association, is still talking about Denver's hospitality and coöperation during the recent PGA tournament there. . . . The visit was climaxed last Monday when Mayor Stapleton put a car at the disposal of Walsh and his party. . . . A six hour tour included trips to Mount Evans, Echo Lake, and the Red Rocks theater. . . . Walsh enjoyed all of it but the slight interlude when Pilot Dick Bradley confessed as they neared the summit of Mount Evans that it was the first time he had ever driven up that peak. . . . Ross Kidston of the Illinois Seniors' Golf association reports that members of that organization will join with members of the Illinois PGA in the annual pro-senior event at Midlothian on Aug. 25. . . . The seniors will hold their regular fall party on Sept. 24 at Exmoor. . . . Bob Curley, who has been in charge of publicity for the Chicago Open tournament, starred at quarter back under A. A. Stagg in the days when the University of Chicago played football. . . . Willie Hoare, one of the real veterans of professional golf, gratified his friends again by his appearance at the PGA in Denver. . . . Willie, who has been ill for a number of years, is looking better than ever, and now has personal visits to the Open and the PGA on his 1941 record.

Most Golfers Just Throw Their Clubs Away in Such Cases.

One warm day last week Andy Cowan, a Tam o' Shanter member, did what a good many exasperated golfers have often thought of doing. . . . After getting a six on the third hole, Andy was on his way across the bridge that spans the Chicago river between the third and fourth holes when his partner, Harry Daumit, suggested that the proper thing for him to do would be to jump in the river, which Cowan promptly did. . . . He finished the round in his wet clothes and won. . . . Joe Davis, secretary of the CDGA, is an ardent advocate of more zone tournaments in which contestants can compete with a reasonable outlay for expenses. . . . He points to the small field in the recent Western Amateur as a case in point. . . . Joe believes that the Great Lakes Amateur tournament, which will be inaugurated at Knollwood this summer, will provide an opportunity for amateurs to compete in a top ranking tournament with a minimum of expenses. . . . He claims that similar events should be arranged in other parts of the country.

This Tournament Has Developed Into a Marathon.

The three day sweepstakes held at Olympia Fields is beginning to take on the appearance of an all-summer event. Three women, Mrs. W. L. Lond, Mrs. John Brenz, and Gladys Sines, tied at 54 holes with 211. . . . In the playoff the following Sunday, Mrs. Brenze and Miss Sines again tied with respective scores of 91—13—78 and 87—9—78. . . . The second 18 holes will be played today. . . . The first rubber cored balls were used in Chicago in the national amateur at Onwentsia in 1899 by W. M. McCawley of Philadelphia who had no trouble in winning the driving contest. . . . Three Chicago players who took part in this event are still playing. . . . They are John Stuart of Indian Hill, Walter B. Smith of Onwentsia, and Walter Egan of California. . . . Wilford Wehrle received a gift via the mail the other day from Bud Ward, recent winner of the national amateur crown. . . . The gift was a worry bird. . . . Wilf says he doesn't know what Ward is driving at but if it is the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter Open, he suggests that Ward do some worrying sinse he [Wehrle] has his eye on that affair. . . . It was the women's turn to entertain the men at Edgewater Thursday when the fair sex held their annual golf outing for the males. . . . Tom Keelin and Gloria Douglas won the mixed foursome. . . . Winners of the recent class championships at Olympia Fields were: Class A—Tom Ryan; Class B—F. F. Geiss, and Class C—John Stolp.

ADD budding geniuses: the Midlothian caddy who attached a compass to his wrist to get a line on the ball when a player teed off. . . . After losing several balls on the first round the experiment was discarded as a flop. . . . In the early days of the Belmont Golf club there was no ice box in the clubhouse and the members used to keep their bottles in a well near the fourth hole. . . . The bottles were fastened to wires, each one having an identification tag at the end. . . . Charley Rachke, claimant to the title of the world champion 3 year old golfer, gave an exhibition of shot making on the first tee at the Marquette Park golf course yesterday. . . . The youngster is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rachke, 1458 W. 63d street.

Caddies will have their day at Northmoor tomorrow when the annual Caddy tournament conducted by the CDGA is held. . . . All caddies under 18, who belong to clubs affiliated with the association, are eligible. Awards will be made to the individual winner as well as the team winner. . . . Myron Smith of Glenbard joined the hole-in-one club Saturday, July 12, when he aced the 185 yard 17th hole with a No. 4 iron. . . . Chicago professionals will join with their wives tomorrow in a golf outing at Twin Orchards. . . . Eddie Gayer, chairman of the affair, has arranged for some handsome prizes for the winning couples. . . Butterfield's annual Cruise Day Invitational tournament is scheduled for Wednesday. . . . The men who boss Chicago's 20,000 caddies held a meeting this week and reëlected Jack Hanson of Medinah as president of the Chicago District Caddymasters' association. . . . Serving with him for the coming year will be Johany Chovanex of Tam o' Shanter who was elected vice president, and Wendell Hill of Westmoreland, secretary.

A new champion will be crowned in the 37th annual Chicago Golf tournament which opens at Jackson park tomorrow. . . . Earle Wilde, 1940 winner, has moved to Davenport, Ia., and will not defend his title. . . . The tournament committee anticipates a record field for the affair which is one of the oldest golf tournaments in the district.

Speaking of Unusual Golf Scores, How About This?

Alex Kouzmanoff of Bensenville posted an unusual score in the first 18 holes of the Paddock Publications Golf tournament at Mohawk last Sunday. . . . He shot a 78 and did not have a four on the card which contained 12 5's and six 3's. . . . The second 18 holes of the tournament will be played today. . . . A. C. G. Hammesfahr, who died a week ago in New York City, was a prominent member of the Western Advertising Golfers association for many years. . . . The Builders Tee club will observe president's day at Cog-Hill Tuesday in honor of Clarence Olson, head of the organization. . . . Tam o' Shanter members will take turns driving the multicolored automobile which President George May obtained to help advertise the $11,000 Tam o' Shanter Open, Sept. 4. . . . After the tournament the car will be raffled off for charity.

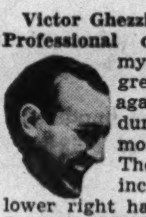
Last summer Thomas Black, a 36 handicap golfer at Westmoreland, strode into the pro shop and remarked, "I'd like to see what some of these other 36 handicappers look like." . . . The result was a foursome date with Black, Walter Remmers, Oliver Blackburn, and Ernest Eklund. . . . The quartet had such an enjoyable time that the members still play together, and Westmoreland reports an increasing interest among high handicap golfers this summer.

The Inquiring Golfer

QUESTION.

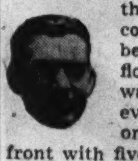
What is the most important shot you ever hit during your career? [Asked during Chicago Open at Elmhurst Country club.]

Craig Wood, Mamaroneck, N. Y., National Open champion—I believe the shot that has meant most to me in recent years was the brassie second I hit to the 72d green of the National Open tournament in Philadelphia, two years ago. I knew I had to get a four there to tie Byron Nelson, and the opening to the green was extremely narrow. The ball landed 20 feet from the pin and I got the four that earned me my playoff chance.



Victor Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., National Professional champion—I consider my spoon shot to the 36th green in the semi-finals against Lloyd Mangrum during the 1941 PGA the most vital shot I ever hit. The opening to the green included a bunker at the lower right hand corner. I thought I might hook a long iron into the sand, so I chose the spoon instead, and, while the shot didn't fade the way I wanted it to, it wound up in good position and I chipped dead for my four. It certainly was important to me, for Lloyd's great rally had cost me three holes with five to go.

Dick Metz, Oak Park, 1940 Chicago Open champion—My second shot to the last green in the 1939 St. Paul Open tourney stands out as the most decisive one I ever hit. I needed a four to score a 270, a world record for a par 72 course over the 72 hole distance at that time. I took a 4 iron and sent it about 180 yards to within 15 feet of the cup. I got down in two and not only won the tournament, but also set a world mark.



Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., Vardon Trophy winner—That happened in the North and South a couple of years ago. I had been running second in a flock of tournaments, and was wondering whether I ever was going to win one. I was two shots in front with five holes to go. The 14th at Pinehurst is a tough hole any day, sloping into a right hand trap, and the pin was on the right that round. I felt if I got a four there, I could win. I smacked a 3 iron into the wind and it landed three feet from the cup. I got my four from there, and won.

Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., 1941 PGA medalist and 1938 Chicago Open champion—The shot I remember best from the standpoint of scoring importance occurred during the 1937 National Open in Detroit. It was my first National tournament and I wanted to make a good showing. In the first round I needed an eagle three on the par five 18th to tie for the lead at 18 holes. I hit a 4 wood and holed out for the three.

Yesterday Wells had him up to perfect condition. When they came out for the parade to the post, Equifox was the fittest looking horse on the track.

Mucho Gusto and Pink Gal went out to make the pace as they charged along on their first rush past the stands. Sun Lover was well up but Equifox was trailing the field, together with Viscounty and Shot Put.

Begins Drive in Far Turn.

They swung around the club house turn and settled down for the run down the back stretch with Mucho Gusto, Pink Gal, Sun Lover, and Ranger II. in the first flight. Half way down the back stretch, Mucho Gusto began to give way. Pink Gal moved into full command, with Sun Lover in close pursuit. Idle Sun was well up but Equifox still lagged.

They went into the far turn and here Craig called on Equifox. Pink Gal and Sun Lover were still out there setting a brisk pace but now Equifox was picking up his rivals one by one as he swept around the bend. Idle Sun was coming with him.

They straightened out for the drive thru the stretch. Ranger II. and Pink Gal gave way rapidly. Sun Lover held on well and presently it was Equifox, Idle Sun and Sun Lover going head and head in the last furlong.

Then Sun Lover gave way and Equifox and Idle Sun went on. In the last few yards, Cherry Trifle charged up from well back to get into the money.

LEIBER TO LEARN DECISION THIS WEEK ON INJURY

Hank Leiber still is taking treatments to eliminate the effects of being beaned in Wrigley field on June 24 by the Giants' Cliff Melton, the big Cub outfielder said last night.

Leiber said the course of daily treatments being given by an Evanston physician will be completed Wednesday or Thursday, at which time he will learn if he will be able to play any more this year. Leiber was hit on the back of the head, the second time he has been beaned in his major league career. He was hit by Bob Feller in the spring of 1937 when he was with the Giants.

The veteran outfielder said he still is weak from the effects of last month's injury, but hoped to regain his strength in time to finish the season with the Cubs.

Mulloy Beats Sabin in New York Tennis Tourney

WARNING! UNMARRIED MEN

A guy's got to be careful these days about his personal appearance — lots of competition for the real pretty numbers. And what does a gal size up first? What you look like, of course. Head first — that means hair first. The smart boys know you put TWO STRIKES ON A GAL by using Glo Co hair groom. A few drops of Glo Co keeps hair neat and in place all day. A few seconds massage daily stimulates the hair, helps get rid of loose dandruff and helps prevent excessive falling hair. Try the Glo Co massage-way of improving your hair. Get Glo Co at your Walgreen drug store in the attractive flash bottle.

TRICK PLAY THAT SCORED ON LIONS THRILLED COACH

Bierman Recalls All-Star Maneuver in 1936.

[This the fourth of a series of articles by professional and college football coaches on spectacular scoring plays in Chicago All-Star games.]

BY BERNIE BIERMAN.
[Head Football Coach, University of Minnesota.]

Minneapolis, Minn., July 19.—Football plays that work successfully in important games always remain fresh in the minds of coaches. Time cannot erase them. When the season of 1936 is mentioned I can happily recall the Chicago All-Star game between the College All-Americans and the Detroit Lions, champions of the National Football league.

I was given an extremely high honor that year. The nation's football fans elected me as head coach of the All-Americans. I had three of the country's best coaches as my assistants—Elmer Layden of Notre Dame, Bo McMillin of Indiana, and Lynn Waldorf of Northwestern. I had the leading collegiate performers from universities and colleges in all sections of the land.

Weather Man Offside.

It was a grand setting, but we had a big job confronting us. The Chicago Bears, who this year return against the collegians in Chicago's Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 28, had tied the All-Stars, 0 to 0, in 1934 and whipped them, 5 to 0, the following year. We had everything to face the Lions—everything except the coöperation of the weather man.

There was a warm August sun beating down on Northwestern's Dyche stadium when the All-Stars reported for their first practice. Then the rains came. We had to have two drills daily for our offensive and defensive work. The weather man forced Chicagoans to transfer their sports activities from outdoor to indoor arenas. The All-Americans went indoors, too.

During our indoor and outdoor workouts we devised many plays. We labored on one particular play numerous times, but it was used only once against the Lions. It was the play that scored the All-Americans' touchdown and the one I am going to explain. It is the one that still remains in my memory book.

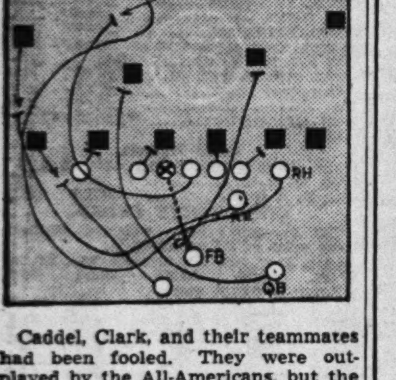
Springing the Trap.

After a one night postponement because of rain the game started, following the colorful ceremonies which precede all these grand spectacles on Chicago's lake front every summer. There were many anxious moments for the All-Stars in the first quarter. Earl [Dutch] Clark and Glen Presnell of the Lions each had opportunities to score field goals, but failed. Then came the second quarter.

The All-Americans had possession of the ball on the Lions' 39 yard line. Tuffy Leemans of George Washington tossed a 20 yard pass to Frank Loebs of Purdue. Leemans made two yards thru tackle on first down. The chance to spring our scoring play arrived. We had been running reverses and fake reverses from the full back to the left half back. We were now ready for this variation.

How the Play Worked.

Our right half back, Vernal [Babe] Levoir of Minnesota, took his place on the line as right end. Keith Topping of Stanford, regular right end, moved into the back field as a blocker. The ball was snapped to Full Back Sheldon Beise, who faked a pass to Glen Seidel, continued on a half spin into the line, then gave it to Levoir, who came from the right end spot and went wide led by Topping, the blocker on the play. Ernie Caddel, Lions' right half back, came up, but was blocked out by Topping. Levoir cut back and scored standing up. The diagram follows:



Caddel, Clark, and their teammates had been fooled. They were outplayed by the All-Americans, but the professional champions wasted no time in capitalizing on a fumble by Leemans in the fourth quarter. They successfully employed their own deceptive play, stunning the All-Stars and the game ended with the score tied, 7 to 7.

Bill Tilden played a lot of tennis on the Saddle and Cycle club courts yesterday, but he couldn't come thru with a victory. Tilden surrendered to his former Davis cup teammate, Vinnie Richards, 6-3, 6-8, 12-10, and then paired with Richards to lose another three set match to Fred Perry and Karel Kozeluh, 6-2, 1-6, 7-5.

Perry, the professional champion, squeezed past Kozeluh, the former Czecho-Slovakian champion, in the opening single match, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

The pairings will be reversed this afternoon when the two day professional series ends with Richards meeting Kozeluh and Tilden playing Perry. The Kozeluh-Richards match will open the program and Tilden and Richards will seek revenge for yesterday's beating in the windup doubles.

guard. O'Boyle, who has been named an assistant coach at his alma mater, comes from the Gary steel mill district. Rudy Mucha of Washington, unanimous All-Pacific coast center last fall, is the far west's lone representative among the first 11.

The midwest athletes who are leading vote getters include Dave Rankin of Purdue and Ed Rucinski of Indiana, who have a wide margin among the ends; Forest Evashevski of Michigan, who tops the quarter backs; Milt Piepul of Notre Dame at full back, and Harmon of Michigan and McGannon of Notre Dame at half backs.

Small Colleges Make Strong Bids.

Supporters of the smaller colleges are making a strong effort to place one or more of their headliners among the select group who will dash out under Soldiers' field huge spotlights the night of Aug. 28. Bob Morrow of Illinois Wesleyan ranks second to Piepul at full back. His backers predict he will get a million votes. Fraternal organizations in all parts of the country are working in his behalf. The Peoria area is plugging hard for Ken Olson, quarter back, and Marion Asa, guard, both from Bradley Tech. John McGee of Regis, who is the Denver region's leading candidate, is in third place among the ends, where he is outdistancing nationally known figures like Ed Frutig of Michigan, Erwin Elrod of Mississippi State, Stan Graff of Stanford, and Paul Severin of North Carolina.

Rockhurst Has Two.

The Kansas City district is solidly behind a team that includes Alva Jensen, half back, and Bill McMahon, guard, of Rockhurst college, and Nick Foran, St. Benedict tackle. The Davenport, Ia., Junior Chamber of Commerce is going to town, as they say in What Cheer, for Nick Kerasiotis, St. Ambrose guard, as well as for Jack Hayes and McGannon, Notre Dame backs; Franck, Minnesota half back, and Rankin, Purdue end.

The All-Star coaching staff, which will be announced shortly after the completion of the player poll, will include a representative from the east, south, far west, and two from the middle west.

The squad will report at Northwestern university, where Athletic Director Tug Wilson and his assistant, Ade Schumacher, are getting ready for their arrival, on Aug. 10. The players will be quartered in the Goodrich and Hinman houses on the campus. Their workouts will be held in Dyche stadium and on adjacent practice fields.

WHEN IT'S HOT, TRY FISHING AS SUN GOES DOWN

BY BOB BECKER.

During July and August, when thousands of fishermen invade the north country after bass and muskies, the weather man often hampers their ambition to tug at boat oars and cast heavy plugs by ordering 90 degree heat waves.

Often we have found that when the temperatures are consistently high the angler can prevent possible sunstroke and still catch fish by reading or listening to the baseball game during the day and going after Messrs. Bass and Pike and Muskellunge during the evening hours. This comfortable system usually pays dividends.

And the Fish Also Rest.

On a clear lake it almost is imperative to fish around evening if the day is bright and still. During the bright, quiet hours of the day the fish not only are inclined to take it easy, much as humans do under such conditions, but they also are able to see a fisherman unless there is a good riffle on the surface. Therefore hot, still days are not likely to produce as many fish as dark, overcast, or windy ones.

Any one who has fished many years knows how freshwater species get temperamental and may refuse to take any kind of a lure for several days. Naturally wind and water conditions have much to do with these moody periods in the lives of bass, trout, muskies and other members of the finny tribe. But the fisherman who goes into the musky country during July and August is apt to hear the old myth that the reason the muskies aren't hitting is because they're losing their teeth!

A False Dental Myth.

Fishermen have been pumped with all sorts of myths, yarns, and pure buncombe, but this one about the musky losing his teeth is one of the best of all the fish tales. Scientific investigation of the big pikes by men who know their fish has shown that the fish lose and grow teeth thruout the year. They do not drop their "ivory" any faster in late July or August than in any other period of the year. And their gums do not cause them any more misery on July 27 than Dec. 27.

Scientists examined hundreds of big pikes, and found that the muskie has a happy way of losing and growing new teeth whenever they are needed.

DUNCAN BIDS FOR 3D STRAIGHT IN RIVERVIEW RACE

Ted Duncan, leading in the point standing for the season's title, will try to make it three straight by winning the feature contest in the midget auto races tonight at Riverview Speedway, on Addison street near Western avenue.

SOCIETY FLOCKS TO ARLINGTON IN BRIGHT WEATHER

Gay Gowns Add Color to Clubhouse Scene.

BY HARRIETT PRIBBLE.

Gay Hour, Mucho Gusto, and Sun Lover were among the horses which ran yesterday afternoon at Arlington Park, and their names also gave a thumbnail sketch of the spirit of the crowd watching the Arlington handicap.

The day was the clear, sparkling sort that seems especially ordered for racing fans—cool enough for comfort and yet sunny enough to draw forth gay print gowns and sun glasses. Long before the opening race, crowded buses were whirling along the highways which lead to Arlington. By 2:20 o'clock myriads of cars were lined row on row in the parking spaces, and their owners were cheering Royal Teddy to victory from the grandstand.

Lawn Attracts Throng.

The cry of "They're off" found Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, Mrs. F. Dorsey Montgomery, Mrs. Henry N. Rowley, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, Mrs. Franklin D'Olier, Mrs. William B. McIlvaine Jr., and Mrs. Clauson Cooper in an excited little knot on the sun deck atop the porch of the Post and Paddock club. Below them stretched a vista of red and white awnings, clipped shrubbery, and cool green lawn. Among those who took advantage of the lawn's coolness and sat on the grass were subdebutante Maxine Cooper and her friends, Marianne Luke and Trescott Ripley, in girlish chintz gowns. Maxine's father, Richard Cooper Jr., and her grandmother, Mrs. Cooper, watched the races from the club's porch.

Baltimore Visitors Attend.

Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, Mrs. Champ Carry, Mrs. Robert Hixon, Mrs. Poultney Gorder, here from Baltimore, Md., and Mrs. Stuart J. Templeton sat beneath one of the club's garden umbrellas. Mrs. Reid's dubonnet crépe gown was printed in white feathers. The tiny gold feathers veined in brilliants which served as earrings were miniature of the clip at her neckline. Mrs. Reid's daughters, Mrs. Joan Reid and Mrs. Russell T. Foster, who arrived for a visit on Friday with her husband and baby daughter, Faith, were elsewhere in the crowd.

Mrs. Stanley Field, in powder blue and a toque bedecked with violets, brought her granddaughter, Pamela Kelley. Lunching in the Post and Paddock's dining room at a table for four were Mrs. Kirk Williams, Mrs. Norman S. Merrett, Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman, and Mrs. Harold Tearse.

Porters Arrive for Luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Prentice Porter arrived with the John P. Porters for a late luncheon. Mrs. Prentice Porter's print gown was swirled in chocolate brown and white. A striking costume nearby was that of Mrs. Britton I. Budd, with Mr. Budd, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Clark, Mrs. George Nixon, and the latter's daughter, Consuela. Mrs. Budd was in mustard yellow crépe sprinkled with tiny red, aqua, and white flowers. Her hat, gown, and bag were of the print material, whose colors were picked up by the saddle stitching on her mustard flannel jacket.

Duvals, Crawfords Together.

The Nathaniel Duvals were with her mother, Mrs. David Crawford, and Mr. Crawford's son, David Jr. and Edward, students at the Boys Latin school, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Dow Jr., and her mother, Mrs. Fred Gurley, were the luncheon guests of Robert F. Carr. Miss Merikay Howard, who will leave shortly for an eastern vacation before entering dramatic school this fall in New York, sat with her mother, Mrs. Eugene Howard, and Mrs. John L. Grant. Mrs. Howard's unique chapeau was a saucer of iridescent mother of pearl filled with four calla lilies made of mother of pearl.

Among others at the Post and Paddok club were Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Block Jr., with a party of friends; Charles H. Schweppe with a large party; Mrs. Herbert W. Young, with Mrs. Merritt Dement and Mrs. Dement's daughter and son; Mrs. John W. Holloway and Gridley Dement; Mrs. D. Wendell Fentress, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bradford Carpenter of Lima, O., with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Carpenter, Mrs. Charles L. Peet, Miss Carolyn Mellinger, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bering, with the William J. Sineks; Mrs. Adolph Weiss, and Frank Sullivan of New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Abner J. Stillwell, Mrs. John P. Kellogg, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Florsheim, Andrew Berkey, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Esser of Milwaukee, and the large parties of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hoffman and of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connor.

STOCKS POINT UPWARD, BUT MOVE TIMIDLY

Market Has Some Trouble Keeping Its Balance.

New York, July 19 (AP).—The stock market today stepped out of its fourth successive advancing week leaning slightly to the upside.

As in the preceding session the list experienced difficulty in keeping its balance. While scattered specialties tacked on gains of fractions to a point or so, the general run of leaders held to an extremely slim groove and the majority finished only a shade higher.

The list was somewhat hesitant at the opening, but timid bidding later was sufficient to steady trends without establishing any real upswing. There was an assortment of minor losses at the final gong.

World Uncertainties Reflected.

Strength of individual stocks was attributed mainly to the business outlook. Most speculative forces, however, were inclined to proceed warily as Nazi troops swept toward Moscow, the Japanese political picture remained far from clear, and Wall street was without definite information anent the tax program and possible anti-inflation legislation.

In the quiet trading new tops for 1941 were posted for Western Union, United States Industrial Alcohol, Continental Oil, Pathe, Wilson & Co., Worthington Pump, and Warner Brothers.

CHICAGO STOCKS HIGHER.

Chicago Stock exchange prices were moderately higher yesterday on transfers of 8,000 shares. Of 53 issues traded, 24 advanced, 12 declined, and 17 were unchanged. The week's share volume dropped to 90,000 shares from 168,000 in the preceding week.

Central and South West Utilities at 1,000 shares and Swift & Co., 550 shares, were among yesterday's volume leaders. The following dually listed stocks showed changes in the trading from 11 to 11:30 o'clock:

COTTON SOARS ON RAISING OF CLOTH CEILING

Futures Up $2.55 to $2.80 to 11 Year Peaks.

Cotton futures prices bounded upward $2.55 to $2.80 a bale yesterday in widespread buying on the price administration's announcement the ceiling on cotton cloth would be raised to 43 cents from the original 39 cents a pound. All cotton futures closed above the 16.12 cents a pound parity price at new 11 year high levels.

Reports of continued heavy rains in the cotton belt and extensive insect damage supplemented the upward revision of cotton cloth prices to support the sharp gains.

Flurry of Business Expected.

Traders and mill interests expected a flurry of cloth business following the modification. Nearly a month of inactivity in the gray goods market was believed to have dammed up orders for millions of yards of cotton cloth pending word of a price ceiling revision. The census bureau in Washington, D. C., reported that the cotton spinning industry operated during June at 121.5 per cent of capicity on a two shift, 80 hour week basis, compared with 121.8 per cent in May, and 87.9 per cent in June, 1940.

Silk Climbs in Week.

Silk was 13½ cents a pound higher for the week. Traders said gains resulted from the resignation of the Japanese cabinet and reports that that country had decided on its next move in the war. Fears concerning shipping in the far east also had an effect on trading.

Reports that Britain would purchase sugar in this hemisphere caused gains in sugar futures early in the week.

Cottonseed oil gained, mostly in sympathy with the rise in cotton. Hides, rubber, wool, and lead futures were higher.

INDUSTRY SLIPS FROM STEADILY CLIMBING PEAKS

Buyers Keep Retail Tills Filled.

Federal Index at Peak

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—The Federal Reserve board reported today that its industrial production index for June was 156 per cent of the 1935-'39 average, an increase of six points over May and a new high level. The board said the upswing had continued into July.

The June rise was particularly sharp in industries closely associated with the arms program, notably aircraft, shipbuilding, machinery, and railroad equipment.

Industrial activity last week showed a slightly lagging tendency caused largely by the after effects of the long July 4 holiday, and vacation interruptions. There was a letup meanwhile in the labor strife that has plagued manufacturers since the start of the year.

Retail buying thruout the nation remained at a high level. Wholesale buying, too, was reported heavy. Preparing for the fall buying season, dealers in home furnishings left the Chicago summer home furnishing markets after having placed unusually large orders with manufacturers.

Index Shows Slight Drop.

But the index of industrial activity compiled weekly by the Associated Press, which is seasonally adjusted and is based on 1929-'30 figures as 100, showed its first drop in 13 weeks. The composite index was 139.3, compared with 140.5 for the preceding week. Comparisons follow:

*New 1941 high.

The big problem for both industry and business—how to carry on operations as supplies of materials dwindle—continued.

Governmental bans and priorities on materials used in the arms plants are making it increasingly difficult for small manufacturers and business men to function.

Unless relief is obtained it is feared many small companies will have to close down entirely, putting many out of work until they can be absorbed in arms plants.

Auto Output Near Capacity.

Most of the big automobile companies have been producing cars at near capacity, keeping their tens of thousands of employés at work, but the sharp curtailment of production output ordered for Aug. 1 is expected to bring some temporary unemployment at least for assembly line workers.

An example of this has just occurred in Buffalo, N. Y., where a large automobile manufacturer is in the process of converting its assembly plants to the manufacture of aviation engines on which it will not go into production until next year. Meantime it has notified its several thousand employés that their services will not be required until next year.

The government announced plans for expanding aluminum and steel armor plate manufacturing facilities to be financed by the Defense Plant corporation, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Aluminum Plants Proposed.

The Office of Production Management has recommended five companies to operate seven plants in various parts of the country which would increase aluminum production by 600,000,000 pounds a year. The cost was not estimated. The Defense Plant corporation has signed a contract with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation covering the operation of two armor plate plants in the Pittsburgh, Pa., area which will cost about $85,000,000.

GROCERS' GROUP PUSHES FIGHT ON PRIORITY POLICY

The National Association of Retail Grocers prepared yesterday to protest what was termed "the disregard for the position of small business by Washington officials in the current armament crisis."

Referring to recent statements by members of the Office of Production Management and the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply, Mrs. Rose Marie Kiefer, secretary-manager of the association in Chicago, directed its Washington representative to call a meeting of other retailing and small independent business groups.

She referred to the assertion of an OPM official that in many cases the employer who cannot obtain materials or turn to substitutes will have to shut down. She attacked this attitude as "incredibly short sighted."

AGAIN AND AGAIN

President Roosevelt, on Oct. 30, 1940, speaking to fathers and mothers on the selective service act, said:

"And while I am talking to you mothers and fathers, I give you one more assurance.

"I have said this before, but I shall say it again and again, your boys are not going to be sent into any foreign wars.

"They are going into training to form a force so strong that, by its very existence, it will keep the threat of war far away from our shores.

"The purpose of our defense is defense."

Peoples Gas Earnings Rise in 2d Quarter

Net income of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company for the second quarter of 1941 was $1,265,523, equal to $1.93 a share, compared with $871,329, or $1.33 a share in the three months ended June 30, 1940, George A. Ranney, chairman, reported yesterday to stockholders. The recent period's profit was the largest for a second quarter since 1932.

George A. Ranney.

Ranney said that gas sales in terms during the three months were 3.74 per cent larger than in the 1940 period, with gas revenues up 2.75 per cent.

Ranney said that gas sales in therms that net income for the quarter was subject to any additional federal income or excess profits taxes that may become effective.

Tax Boost Would Cut Net.

If the federal corporation income tax should be increased from the present rate of 24 per cent to 30 per cent, the second quarter profit would be reduced to $99,825, or 15 cents a share, he said.

[Congress has not yet completed an expected revison of corporation tax schedules.]

The company's net income for the first six months of 1941 was $2,918,753, equal to $4.45 a share, compared with $2,248,845, or $3.43 a share, a year earlier. On a basis of a 30 per cent federal tax the profit would be cut to $225,790, or 34 cents a share.

12 Month Profit Larger.

For the 12 months ended with June net income was $3,705,514, equal to $5.65 a share, against $3,288,514 and $5.01 a share in the preceding 12 months. Profit on a basis of a 30 per cent tax would be $225,790, or 34 cents a share, the same as for the first six months of 1941.

Total operating revenues of the company for the second quarter were $10,690,653, compared with $10,403,238 a year ago.

American Electric Fusion Corp. Gets Federal Loan

The Reconstruction Finance corporation yesterday authorized a loan of $100,000 to the American Electric Fusion corporation, 2610 Diversey avenue, which holds government orders. E. J. Henke, company president, said the money will be used to expand floor space from 51,000 to 70,000 square feet.

BRITAIN'S TRADE AGENTS MOVE IN WAKE OF TROOPS

Busy Restoring Hold in Near East.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 19.—War developments in Syria and Russia are expected to enlarge the scope and importance of the activities of the government sponsored United Kingdom Commercial corporation and the English-Scottish Commercial corporation—twin pillars of the British overseas trade in wartime. Indication of this already has been provided by the recent decision to double the normal capital of the United Kingdom corporation, raising it from about $6,000,000 to $12,000,000.

During the last two years, country after country has been squeezed out of the orbit of British trade and finance by Germany. Now, in the near east at least, the trend has been reversed and, subject to shipping limitations, trade can be resumed with Syria, Iraq, Ethiopia, the Italian East African colonies, and British Somaliland.

Trade Experts Follow Troops.

British government's financial and economic experts followed hard on the heels of the British forces occupying Syria to tackle the problem of maintaining and restoring commercial life there.

One of their immediate tasks was the settlement of the currency situation, now that the country has been drawn into the sterling bloc. The franc remains the national currency in Syria, but a fixed rate of exchange presumably will be established at 176 francs to the pound, which would give the franc a value of about 2.27 cents, the same rate applying to the various colonial territories under "Free French" control.

Big Russian Deals Hinted.

The hand of the United Kingdom Commercial corporation also was seen by some financial writers in the big deals for raw materials and armaments said to be pending between Britain and Russia. Hitherto there has been no clearing or payment agreement between the two countries, since their mutual trade dried up at the outbreak of the war.

Altho the recent exchange of a planeload of industrial diamonds for a planeload of platinum between Russia and Britain indicates that the prewar barter trade is being resumed, Oscar Hobson, News-Chronicle market analyst, suggests that a financial settlement deal probably will be made.

Czarist Balances Grow.

Russia, he says, has more than enough gold with which to settle the balances for the trade now expected to develop and even suggests that "many millions of old czarist balances, which have been accumulating in London at compound interest since 1917, may come in handy for this purpose."

The Financial News cautions about estimating the extent of the soviet government's gold and foreign exchange holdings, declaring little is known about their size.

"This country and the United States, however," it adds, "should do their utmost to prevent a shortage of such resources from handicapping the flow of war materials to Russia. If necessary, we might go as far as to guarantee part of the credits that will be raised by Russia in the United States."

Arms Needs Bringing Many Changes in Kitchen Utensils

Rearmament and priorities are bringing changes in the kitchen gadgets produced in Chicago manufacturing plants, a survey revealed yesterday. Some items, such as aluminum pots and pans, can't be made any more because of the Office of Production Management's ban on aluminum for commercial production. But in most cases engineers are working out substitutes to permit continued operations.

With aluminum already eliminated almost entirely, the manufacturers are taking zinc, nickel, and copper out of their products whenever possible.

The A. F. Dormeyer Manufacturing company, 4316 North Kilpatrick avenue, for example, has redesigned its electric food mixer. Glass juicer spouts replace those of aluminum.

Steel Replaces Zinc.

Deep drawn steel has been substituted for zinc in the castings which house working parts. The motor has been reconstructed on a new theory of supporting steel rods.

W. L. Viergever, assistant treasurer of the company, said the new mixer seems to be less expensive to manufacture and a better product than the old one. All company officials have to worry about now is that the supply of electric cord has been cut off, with enough for only about 30 days' production on hand. Jobs of 135 men are at stake.

The Vischer Products company, 412 North Orleans street, formerly made both stainless steel and aluminum cookers. Production of the aluminum product virtually has halted. Those formerly made of a nickel chrome steel are built of a straight chrome stainles ssteel.

Use Porcelain in Cooker.

The Hotpoint company has changed the outer shell of its cooker to a double shell wall, with the inner wall finished in porcelain enamel and the outer shell of tinned steel. The pail and lid, formerly entirely of aluminum, have been changed to porcelain enamel. The aluminum pudding pan has been eliminated.

Chrome alloy has replaced aluminum in reflector pans of the Hotpoint ranges, and the oven's former zinc vent has been replaced by a steel vent.

Another company reported steel has been substituted for aluminum in the grids of its waffle irons and the motor housings of its electric food mixers. The aluminum shortage hasn't affected the company's toasters and coffee makers significantly.

Kitchen Sink Affected.

Even the kitchen sink isn't going to get by unaffected. Two manufacturers of stainless steel sinks reported they are trying to find a substitute for their type of steel, which includes 18 per cent chrome and 8 per cent nickel.

Another manufacturer reported that in the fields of tea kettles, pots, pans, and skillets the purchaser will find fewer items wholly or partially made of aluminum and copper and more of porcelain finish.

U. S. NO LONGER ASKS ZINC IN PAILS, AS AID TO REARMING EFFORT

Washington, July 19 (AP).—The treasury has revised specifications for nonmilitary government purchases designed to conserve strategic metals and other materials, needed for armaments. When buying laundry pails, for instance, the treasury now will accept bids for types that contain little or no zinc in place of the usual zinc-galvanized kinds. Covering purchases of such things as fencing, containers and laundry appliances, the new specifications are intended to save zinc, chromium, bronze, cork, nickel, brass, aluminum and steel alloys.

'TRUST BUSTERS' WILL LEARN THE FINE POINTS OF BUSTING AT SCHOOL

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—A school for newly appointed "trust busters"—somewhat along the lines of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's training school for special agents—is being established in Thurman Arnold's anti-trust division of the justice department, officials said today.

The school is scheduled to open about Aug. 1 for approximately 100 lawyers recently chosen for the division. Classes will run eight hours a day for three weeks, an examination will be held at the close, and those who cannot meet the requirements will be dropped.

Lectures will be given by experts on the anti-trust staff. The school already has a regular textbook—a compilation of articles by Arnold and 11 of his top ranking aids.

OWENS-ILLINOIS GLASS EARNINGS LOWER FOR YEAR

Owens-Illinois Glass company, Toledo, O., yesterday reported that its net profits declined to $7,640,538 for the year ended June 30, from $8,589,202 in the 12 preceding months. The earnings were equal to $2.87 a share, compared with $3.23 in the previous period.

Taxes were more than doubled, totaling $4,375,170, compared with $2,107,270.

Hercules Powder company reported net profit of $2,831,189 for the six months ended June 30, against $3,293,065 for the first half of 1940. The earnings equaled $1.95 and $2.30 a share on common stock in the respective periods.

SEALED POWER SIGNS CONTRACT AND STRIKE ENDS

Muskegon, Mich., July 19 (AP).—A 10-day strike at the Sealed Power corporation, supplier of piston rings and allied products for 27 industries, many engaged in defense work, ended today with signing of a contract between the company and the United Automobile Workers [AFL].

E. T. Donahue, UAW-AFL international representative, said the contract called for a minimum wage of 65 cents an hour for men and 47½ cents for women, closed shop, and vacation bonus. The union had asked 70 cents an hour for men and 50 cents for women.

Vote Strike at Colgate Plant.

Jersey City, N. J., July 19 [Special].—Eleven hundred independently organized workers voted today to strike Monday at the Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company plant here in an effort to enforce demands for wage raises, a closed shop and holiday and pension adjustments.

2 PULLMAN BUILT TRAINS TO MAKE FIRST RUNS SOON

Two new streamlined trains, constructed in the Chicago shops of the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, will go into service soon, it was announced yesterday.

The City of San Francisco, which will be operated by the Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, and North Western railroads, is tentatively scheduled to go into service on the Chicago-west coast run next Saturday.

The City of Los Angeles, to be operated by the Union Pacific and the North Western, is to go into service eight days later.

Lake Ore Ship Sets Third '41 Cargo Record

Cleveland, O., July 19 [Special].—With new records being set almost weekly in total Great Lakes ore traffic, individual performances of freighters were overlooked until the Harry Coulby, flagship of the Pickands, Mather & Co. fleet, loaded 16,113 tons of ore for the largest cargo ever carried.

It was the third time this season and the seventh time in two years that the Coulby had shattered the ore loading mark.

Fleet Rivalry Is Keen.

Rivalry has been keen between lake fleets in the matter of transporting huge cargoes since the days of wooden ships. The first ore cargo to pass thru the Sault Sainte Marie canals was the brigantine Columbia on Aug. 14, 1885. Construction of the first 2,800 ton capacity steel steamers Pontiac and Frontenac by the Cleveland Cliffs company in 1888 confined rivalry for a time to these vessels.

The ore record was boosted annually after that, but it was not until 1904 that the Augustus B. Wolvin of the Pickands, Mather fleet brought down the first 10,000 ton cargo. In 1905 the Elbert H. Gary of the Pittsburgh Steamship company made history by loading 12,003 tons.

Coulby Reigns Supreme.

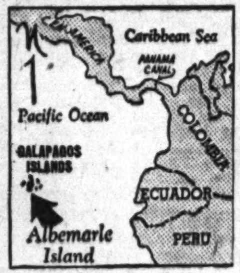
Eleven years later the Col. James Schoonmaker of the Shenango Furnace company fleet sailed with the first 13,000 ton cargo and in 1920 the same freighter, aided by high water, reached the lower lakes with slightly more than 14,000 tons.

The Coulby entered the contest with a new record in 1928, one year after she was built, by carrying 14,240 tons. Then the Coulby and L. E. Block of the Inland Steel company battled for honors. With the Coulby out of commission in 1938 and 1939, the Block took the record with first 15,726 tons and later with 15,778 tons.

Since July of last season, however, the Coulby has reigned as queen of the lakes.

ISLAND PROJECT GIVEN ½ MILLION LOAN BY JONES

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—The Federal Loan agency announced today that it was making a loan of $500,000 to the Pacific Development company, Inc., of Delaware, to be used in commercial development of Albemarle Island, one of the Gallapagos group.



Arrow shows location of Albemarle Island.

Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, said the company has planned to develop the cattle, mining, and fishing industries on the island and to establish regular transportation service between it and the mainland. The island is owned by Ecuador.

INCREASE SUGAR QUOTAS TO KEEP PRICES IN CHECK

Washington, D. C., July 19 (AP).—The department of agriculture announced a 502,002 ton increase today in 1941 sugar marketing quotas in a move designed, officials said, to assure consumers ample supplies at fair prices. The quotas were increased from 7,125,561 to 7,627,563 short tons, raw value.

Established under sugar control legislation, the quotas are supposed to represent the amount needed to supply the country during the year. The 1940 consumption was about 6,890,000 tons.

Grumman to Deliver First of 10 Coast Guard Planes

Bethpage, N. Y., July 19 [Special].—The first of 10 Grumman twin motor amphibian planes will be delivered to the United States coast guard next week for harbor patrol and general observation, it was announced today. Built at a cost of $80,000 each, the ships are of a new type known as the J-4-F with 200 horse power Ranger engines, a top speed of more than 150 miles an hour and a cruising speed of 100 to 115.

87 PAGE DRAFT OF TAX BILL GOES TO HOUSE GROUP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 19.—The house ways and means committee got its first glimpse today of an 87 page draft of the tax act of 1941 which is intended to draw an additional $3,500,000,000 from the pockets of the American citizen. With passage of the new bill, federal taxes alone will reach the imposing total of 12 billions 700 million dollars annually.

But passage appeared to be several months distant. The taxpayer will not gain by the delay, however, because income and other taxes, with the exception of excise taxes, will be retroactive. The citizen will pay the new income taxes, including burdensome surtaxes beginning at 5 per cent on the $2,000 salary, on his entire 1941 income even if the tax measure does not become law until next December.

Members of the committee took no action today beyond discussing the first of five sections in the bill, which deal with individual and corporation surtax.

General Electric Workers Will Split 2 1-3 Millions

Schenectady, N. Y., July 19 (AP).—General Electrc company next month will split $2,373,000 among 68,000 employés as their share of the company's profits during the first half of 1941, Charles E. Wilson, president, announced today.

NOT MUCH GRAVY.

As the result of the shortage of merchant vessels, American shipping lines are now getting capacity loads for their vessels. As a result the companies are earning more money. Cargo rates since the start of the war have risen from 25 to more than 200 per cent in some instances, and time charter rates have advanced from $1 a ton a month to as much as $11 a ton.

This might give rise to the impression that the shipping lines are "in the gravy." However, the increased cost of fuel, war risk insurance, wages, and the necessity of having to pay war risk bonuses have worked to trim the gains from higher rates and more economical operation. A further brake on profits may be applied by the Maritime commission, which has indicated its intention to regulate rates.

The commission already has acted to withdraw virtually its entire subsidy to domestic shipping companies in foreign trade on the ground that the war has eliminated almost all competition from foreign flag vessels. The subsidy was intended to aid American ship operators to compete with foreign lines.

The subsidy payments to eight domestic steamship companies were cut to a nominal rate of 1 per cent of the difference between the wages and subsistence costs of the officers and crew on American vessels and of those on foreign ships. Four other operators have not yet agreed to similar proposed reductions.

Formerly, the subsidy was the full differential between American and foreign ship operating costs, including allowances for maintenance, repairs, and insurance, which have now been eliminated. The subsidies cost the commission about 12½ million dollars a year.

Complicating the operating problems of the steamship lines has been the government's purchase or requisition of vessels from domestic companies for the army, navy, and Britain. Fifty oil tankers already have been transferred to British service. In addition, the Maritime commission is gathering a shipping pool of 2 million tons to be used to carry supplies to Great Britain and other axis enemies.

Tighter control by the Maritime commission over shipping in foreign, coastal, and intercoastal trade is expected in shipping circles as the government takes drastic measures to insure the priority of shipments to England and the flow of vital raw materials to this country.

Thus, altho profit margins of shipping lines may benefit from higher rates and capacity operations, aggregate earnings will be limited by the number of ships left to private operation, and by the Maritime commission's increasing regulatory powers.

[A list of shipping lines with publicly held securities may be obtained by sending a stamped, addressed envelope to the Investors' Guide.]

U.S. Parts Help Dutch Concern in Radio Field

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The Philips company of Eindhoven, Holland, said to have been the largest radio exporting company in the world, has been able to maintain a considerable part of its world operations despite the Nazi occupation of the Netherlands, Chicago radio manufacturers said yesterday.

Before the Nazi invasion of the Low Countries, the Philips organization did an export business equal to 75 per cent of the export volume of all American radio manufacturers. It dominated the European markets, with the exception of Great Britain, Germany, and Italy, and, according to radio men, was able to eliminate American competition in Europe thru aggressive use of patent controls.

Form Export Corporation.

When the Germans seized the Netherlands, Philips officials fled to England and later came to the United States. They formed the Philips Export corporation, with headquarters in New York City, and obtained the release of capital transferred to this country which had been frozen with other Dutch assets to prevent them from falling into Nazi hands.

The new corporation entered into agreements with several American companies for the manufacture of parts and equipment to be shipped to the Philips company's branch in Buenos Aires, Argentina. The parts made in America, together with some made in Argentina, are being assembled in two factories in Buenos Aires owned by Philips for sale thruout Argentina and the other South American countries.

American radio manufacturing companies are said to have long dominated the Latin American markets. Now, according to Chicago manufacturers, the Philips company is able to compete with American companies largely as a result of its being able to obtain parts and equipment in this country.

Gets Essential Materials.

The American companies are faced with sharp curtailment in their own production as a result of the ban on aluminum and other materials essential to the making of radio receiving sets. The Philips company thru its arrangements with its supply companies in this country has been able to obtain essential materials on the same basis as American concerns.

Officials of Chicago companies assert that radio tubes made in this country are being marked in the Philips Buenos Aires factories as made in Argentina. They state that the Dutch company is asking concessions from the Argentine government which would further strengthen its position in Latin America.

The Chicago manufacturers state that the Philips company has been instrumental in the elimination of all American competition from the Dutch possessions, including the Dutch East and West Indies.

Chicago Bank Clearings Top 416 Million in Week

Chicago banks cleared a larger volume of checks last week than during the preceding week and the corresponding 1940 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. Clearings were, respectively, $416,400,000, $384,200,000, and $320,400,000. The association's report follows:

HUGE FURNACE READY TO EASE 'PAIN' OF STEEL

Tank Maker Bakes Strained Plates.

A gas fired furnace, described as the largest of its type in the Chicago area, which soothes the aches and pains in steel plate after it has been bent and shaped in fabrication processes, has been placed in operation by the Graver Tank and Manufacturing company, Inc., of East Chicago, Ind., officials announced yesterday.

Graver is one of the largest and oldest custom builders of tanks and other steel plate products for the petroleum, sugar, paper, textile, chemical, food, and other industries. It built the 200 foot steel tube for the new subway tunnel under the Chicago river at State street.

The new furnace was constructed in anticipation of the government's flood of armament orders, Edward N. Gosselin, president, said. Graver now is devoting more than 75 per cent of its facilities to government work.

Relieves Stress in Steel.

Known as a stress-relieving furnace, the equipment is employed to produce a uniform arrangement of the molecules in steel plate which have been disturbed by intense pressure of bending and shaping as well as by the terrific heat of welding.

As explained by the company's engineers, fabricated tanks are made by bending and shaping steel plate into specified forms, sealed by welding. In this process the steel is subjected to strains.

By baking the completed tank gradually over a period of hours to 1,150 degrees Fahrenheit, maintaining that heat for an hour for each inch of thickness of the plate, the steel soaks in the heat uniformly and the molecules settle into orderly arrangement. The temperature is then allowed to drop slowly until the tank can be removed.

Likened to Hot Bath.

"The baking process is like a hot bath taken by an athlete after a strenuous workout," Gosselin explained. "The uniform heat takes the cramps out of the steel."

The value of the baking treatment, according to engineers, is that it eliminates strain from the steel plate and makes the fabricated tank able to withstand intense pressure required in certain industrial operations.

The furnace is 15 feet high, 15 feet wide, and 52 feet long. It is constructed of heat resisting fire bricks which cost $1.10 each. The tanks are rolled into the furnace on trucks, similar to those of a railroad freight car, and are sealed tight inside the furnace by heavy sliding doors. Heat is provided by 48 gas burners and the temperature at various points is recorded on a centralized graph.

Check Seams by X-Ray.

The precision work required in building tanks and other equipment to exact specification is tested by the company's engineers thru the use of portable X-ray equipment. Welding seams are checked thoroly for weak spots caused by gas bubbles or other imperfections.

Graver makes steel containers which hold as little as 275 gallons or as much as 182,000 barrels. Containers which are more than 12 feet in diameter are usually shipped in sections and assembled on location. Graver products include storage tanks for all types of materials, processing equipment, water conditioning apparatus, and other equipment.

Besides subcontract work on containers and other apparatus needed by government powder plants, the company has received an initial order for 500 all-purpose pontoons.

OUTLAW STATE'S SALES OF GOODS TO ITS WORKERS

It became unlawful yesterday in Illinois for the state or any of its political subdivisions to sell to employés any merchandise other than meals, public services or an item required for safety or health of the employé.

Similar legislation covering sale by a business establishment to its employés of merchandise other than that regularly produced or handled by the company had become law July 1.

The law applying to the state passed the house by a vote of 92 to 24 and the senate by a unanimous vote.

The two laws were passed to halt the "buying at wholesale" plan of business establishments and political subdivisions which had developed over the state, according to the Illinois Federation of Retail Associations.

GRAINS RESPOND ONLY FEEBLY TO COTTON UPSWING

But Lard and Soy Beans Score Price Gains.

Feeling the effects of renewed liquidation by holders of July grain contracts and weakness in the spot market, grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday made only a feeble response to a bulge of $2.50 or more a bale in cotton.

Wheat prices held above the close of the preceding day, but the buying was not aggressive and was confined largely to short covering. Final sales were at gains of ⅝ to ⅞ cents. July wheat closed at 2⅜ cents under September, the widest discounts since 1932. Corn closed unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. Oats futures finished ¼ cent lower to ¼ cent higher.

Lard Closes Higher.

Short covering in the July delivery of soy beans uncovered stop loss orders and closing trades were about the top with gains of 2⅝ to 3 cents a bushel. Lard was affected by the strength in cotton and closed 17½ to 22½ cents per hundred pounds higher.

The shortage in storage room for grain in Chicago continues to react to the detriment of farmers who have cash grain to sell. No. 2 hard winter wheat sold in the spot market at equal to ½ cent a bushel under July or ½ cent below a full delivery basis relative to the future.

Wheat Flows to Terminals.

Farmers continue to pour wheat into terminal markets in an effort to get government loans at $1.15 a bushel, about 14 cents above the current open market price. During the last week local arrivals of wheat, corn, and oats were 6,314,000 bushels while shipments were 2,511,000 bushels, indicating an increase in local stocks of grain of about 3,800,000 bushels.

In the last two weeks primary markets have reported the arrival of 54,000,000 bushels of wheat, of which 20,000,000 bushels represents 1940 crop grain received at Minneapolis and Duluth.

NEAR NORTH SIDE

On the near north side just off Michigan-av. we have buildings in which are layouts where you can have 3 good sized rooms for business, and just a few steps down the hall, a 3 or 4 room apt. You can reach the apt. without entering your business offices. In one building every tenant has his business and home. A little homelike touch, a fireplace in your office takes away that hard boiled business feeling and gives a feeling of confidence that should help any business deal. 2 blocks from subway station.

Sale by Order of Court

Public notice is hereby given that in pursuance of a Decree of partition made and entered by the Superior Court of Cook County, Illinois, on July 23, 1940, in the cause entitled IDA YEDOR, plaintiff, v. CHICAGO CITY BANK AND TRUST COMPANY, a corporation, individually and as Trustee under Trust Agreement No. 1090, Arthur G. Rathje, George O. Carlson, Howard C. Kingsbery, Victor E. Ytterberg, Robert Anderson, W. W. Beymer, Charles Palmer, Frank J. Burke and A. Henry Goldstein, and "Unknown Owners of the premises," defendants, case No. 39S-14118, which decree was subsequently affirmed by the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois on April 8, 1941, in case No. 25968, and in further pursuance of a Decree of Sale under Partition, made and entered by the Superior Court of Cook County, Illinois, in the aforementioned cause on July 16, 1941, I, JOHN F. O'TOOLE, Master in Chancery of the Superior Court of Cook County, Illinois, will on MONDAY, AUGUST 4, 1941, at the hour of one o'clock in the afternoon Daylight Saving Time [twelve o'clock noon Central Standard Time], at the Office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Cook County, Room 437 County Building, in the City of Chicago, County of Cook and State of Illinois, sell at public auction to the highest and best bidder, for cash, all and singular the following described premises and real estate in said Decrees mentioned, situated in the County of Cook and State of Illinois, to-wit:

Lots seven [7], eight [8], nine [9] and ten [10] in Block two [2] in Richardson's Subdivision of the Northeast quarter of the Northeast quarter of Section thirty-six [36], Township thirty-eight [38] North, Range fourteen [14], East of the Third Principal Meridian.

Said premises consist of a three [3] story brick building located at the southeast corner of 79th Street and Crandon Avenue. The building is approximately fourteen [14] years old and in excellent physical condition both in its interior and exterior. The premises contain five [5] stores and thirty-three [33] apartments [6 4s, 23 3½s and 4 2½s], on a lot 108.38x125 feet. The present income is $19,344.00 per year. 1940 taxes, $2,838.12.

Commissioners appointed by the Superior Court of Cook County have conservatively appraised this property at $90,617.00, and have so reported to the Court. Said premises will be sold, as aforesaid, provided there is a bid of at least two-thirds [⅔] of the valuation put upon the same, as shown by the said Report of the Commissioners heretofore appointed by the Court to make partition thereof. At least ten per cent [10%] of the sale price shall be paid in cash, certified or cashier's check at the sale, and the balance within thirty [30] days from the date of the approval of the sale.

Dated at Chicago, Illinois

You're Wasting Money

If you're paying $75 a month rent and are not living in Inverness . . . you fail to see what that money will buy here today.

What will you have to show for your payments . . . just rent receipts? . . . or a home of your own, a valuable property?

Will you needlessly sacrifice a whole room by delay in the face of rising costs . . . or will you save $1,000 by choosing a complete home with more than an acre of colorful countryside . today?

Get the most for your money; inspect the variety of Inverness residences ready for Fall occupancy . . . go over the plans for still others already contracted for [to avoid high costs].

See the advantages of living in this highly restricted community south of Barrington. Here are 1,484 acres of rich, rolling country with woods, hills, and meadows, plus Inverness' own 18 hole golf course. And here every home is designed in true country tradition and surrounded by acreage not "lots." Children play in safety and parents can freely indulge a variety of sports. Inverness offers suburban convenience with real country freedom.

Drive out Northwest highway [Rt. 14] to four silo Inverness office, between Palatine and Barrington.

DAY by DAY on the FARM

Summer Signposts.

July 19, 1941.

NATURE'S summer parade has many participants this week, including ripe mulberries, wild black raspberries, apples starting to turn red on the trees, and wild prairie rose bushes in full bloom. But any one who drives thru the country at this time of the year can't avoid placing the giant natural checkerboards, formed by square fields of green corn adjoining plots of standing or shocked grain, at the top of the list of summer signposts.

On the Du Page county and Fox river farms and other rural areas all over the middle west this colorful evidence of summer is prominent. By looking across the countryside from any high point these huge checkered crazy quilts of dark green corn and light golden oats and wheat give support to summer's status as a colorful season.

Fields of Green and Gold.

For brilliant hues it doesn't equal the spring display of varicolored tree blossoms or autumn's masterly paint job on the oak and hickory and maple trees, but nevertheless its fields of green and gold give it high rank in nature's seasonal panorama.

When we were on the Du Page county farm this week the men still were cutting and baling hay, but before long the combines will go into action in the grain fields to harvest the wheat and slightly change the prevailing color scheme. The farm has purchased a new combine which the men are anxious to see in operation.

The residents of the Du Page county farm are trying to decide how they can transfer the beauty of the wild prairie rose from a field to their gardens. There are hundreds of the common wild roses or swamp roses on the farm, but as far as we know there is only one wild prairie rose bush on the property. It is just east of the sawmill near the center of the farm.

Huge Spray of Flowers.

The wild prairie rose is providing a huge spray of delicate pink flowers to the landscape just now. Unlike the common wild rose, which is a small plant bearing only a few flowers, the prairie rose is a large bush-like plant. The one on the farm has at least 200 individual flowers.

It is in a place where it is enjoyed only by the hiker or rider, and the farm residents are wondering if it wouldn't provide more enjoyment if transferred near one of the farm homes.

The gardener is afraid of injuring the bush if he attempts to transplant it, so is considering a plan of propagating it by cuttings. This procedure will give the farm residents a chance to bring the beautiful blossoms to their back door but still would maintain the parent plant in its natural location.

WHEN YOU SEE
THIS GOOD, OLD SPACIOUS BRICK COUNTRY HOME.
Setting back from the paved road on the east slope of the 10 acres, with walnut, mulberry, pear and plum trees; lilacs, roses, hollyhocks and trumpet vines adding a minuet grace to the place, you can hardly wait to get inside to see the solid, beautiful walnut and oak wood finish. Then the fun begins.
Just outside a nice town here, this red brick house has 7 foot basement with brick floor, plastered ceiling and furnace. Good roof, electricity. It will keep faith in comfort and values with the one who has the spark and love to infuse new life and beauty into things built to endure. Large enough for home, guest, servant quarters and garage, all in one. Good land for divers use. Price $3,000.

VACATION
LOANS

Really enjoy your vacation this year. Take along plenty of cash for those "side" trips and other extra expenses that always go with a truly complete vacation trip. You can get the cash from us and repay it the very day you return if you wish. $50 for instance costs only $1.25 for 30 days and you pay interest only for the time you actually keep the money.

Certainly that is cheap insurance against running short of money in some out-of-the-way place. Just stop in or phone and let us explain how simple it is to get a vacation loan at Commonwealth.

On which day does advertising produce best?

Is your advertising timed to suit the buying habits of your prospects? Does it fit into the selling operation of your dealers?

You can schedule your advertising to take maximum advantage of sales opportunities in Chicago when you advertise in the Chicago Tribune. It enables you to capitalize every favorable factor of day and date.

EVERY DAY OF THE WEEK, net paid total circulation of the Tribune is in excess of 1,000,000. On weekdays, this is from 600,000 to 640,000 more than delivered by other Chicago daily newspapers. And on Sundays it is from 290,000 to 725,000 more than delivered by other Chicago Sunday newspapers.

Right in Chicago and suburbs, Tribune net paid circulation on weekdays is 455,000 more than delivered by other Chicago daily newspapers. On Sundays, it is from 380,000 to 430,000 more than delivered by other Chicago Sunday newspapers.

The Tribune is the only newspaper with circulation volume equivalent to majority coverage of all families in the city and suburbs.

At one low cost it delivers more circulation in metropolitan Chicago than any two other Chicago daily newspapers combined and more than the two other Sunday newspapers combined. And in addition, of course, it reaches hundreds of thousands of other prospects in the rich adjacent territory.

EVERY DAY OF THE WEEK, this assured constant audience for advertised goods and services of every kind reassembles in voluntary session with the Tribune.

This friendly contact, day in and day out, creates and perpetuates the special relationship between readers and the Tribune which produces the greater returns for Tribune advertisers.

Because the Tribune is the medium on which the men and women of this great market are accustomed to base their buying, retailers, whether they sell to men or to women, place more of their budgets for advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper.

NO MATTER ON WHAT DAY you prefer to advertise, you can sell more in Chicago by building your advertising program around the Tribune whose seven-days-a-week customers are your best prospects. Rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in America.

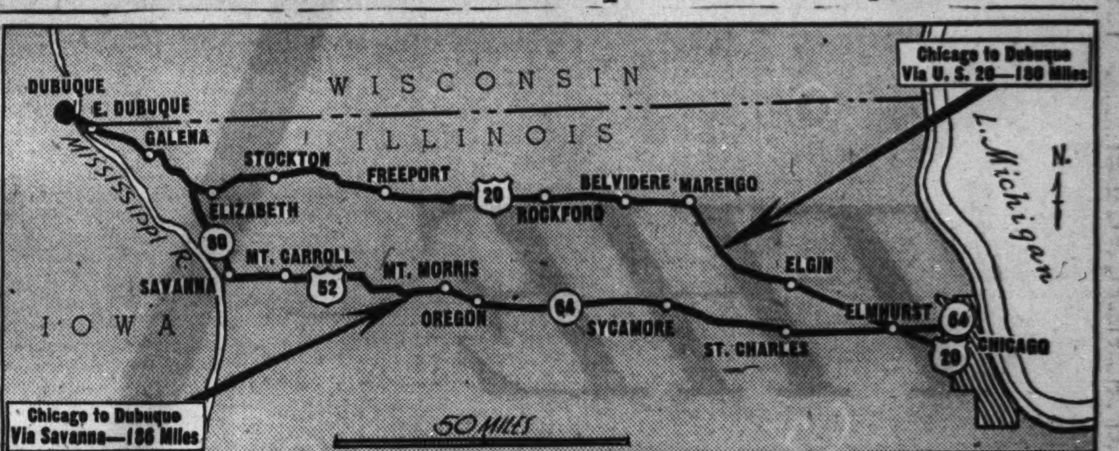
MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

Southern Route to Dubuque Proves Popular



This map shows the two main highways from Chicago to Dubuque, Ia. The northern route, over U. S. 20 (180) miles, has lost its rank as the No. 1 path. The southern route now has become more desirable for motorists. It is 186 miles, via Ill. 64, U. S. 52, and Ill. 80.

Tourists Sound a Squawk to Unfair Rates on Toll Bridges

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dubuque, Ia., July 18 [by mail].—"This is your return trip ticket," said the toll collector at the bridge over the Mississippi river here.

"But we aren't coming back this way," he was told.

"The charge," he replied, "is 25 cents for a round trip on this bridge, whether or not you use the return ticket."

To the traveler, this is a "sock the tourist" policy. He is paying twice as much as a resident for his use of the bridge. On the other hand, residents see equity in the tariffs. They are getting a reduced rate as regular users, just as railroad patrons can buy commutation tickets.

The motor traveler at other toll bridges about the country encounters even more flagrant violations of his sense of equity. Ten ride bridge tickets will be sold at a rate that is only a small fraction of the single fare rate.

Chambers of commerce in some cities encourage these commutation bridge tickets, believing they are benefiting trade from the other side of the span. Seemingly they discount the ill will created thru the tourists' resentment.

Other toll gates in America, notably in the New York area, charge a uniform flat rate. You pay 25 cents to cross the Triborough bridge between Manhattan and Long Island whether you are a visitor from Peoria, Ill., or a Wall street broker regularly being driven between your ticker tape and your island estate.

Consider a Chicago Rate.

Tolls to be charged on a superhighway system in Chicago and Cook county are not fixed by statute under the enabling legislation passed by the recent session of the general assembly. A board of five—three to be named by the governor and one by the mayor and one by the county board—is directed to fix the toll rates, in addition to selling bonds to build and to operate motor safety ways.

In preliminary engineering, by the Cook county highway department, financial estimates were made on a basis of a 10 cent flat rate toll. In legislative debates, this 10 cent flat rate was quoted in support of the argument that the users are to pay for the superhighways, that there will be no tax against automobile owners who would object to paying a premium to escape the delays, annoyances and hazards of driving the present streets and boulevards.

However, engineers engaged in the preliminary studies also have been considering a monthly ticket, probably a windshield sticker, that would be a pass thru all toll gates. This is seen as a convenience for the motorists and for the collectors, expediting traffic thru the gates.

Suggest Storage Plan, Too.

Parking lots or storage garages also might be operated by the new road building agency as part of the superhighway system. The engineers see a market for a monthly ticket for both the parking and the travel. In a single payment, a downtown worker who commutes by automobile could cover all charges for a month of storage near his office and for express driving between his home and his job.

The bankers or the Reconstruction Finance corporation who are expected to buy the bonds to construct the superhighways also will have something to say about the tolls. They must be satisfied that the expected revenue will be adequate to cover amortization, maintenance, operation and finance charges. In the east, they have employed their own engineers to review construction plans, tariff schedules, and traffic estimates before investing their money.

The bankers as well as the five man board will have something to say as to whether the Chicago superhighways would be more successful on a flat rate tariff, probably 10 cents, or with commutation tickets. A factor for their consideration is the resentment of tourists and of occasional visitors against paying appreciably more than the residents for using the facilities.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

TICKETED AS TOOTER.

Chicago, June 15.—The latest ordinance passed by the city council which makes the unnecessary tooting of a horn a misdemeanor is excellent; but, how is it going to be enforced?

At 5 p. m. on June 14, on Randolph street, in front of the new bus depot, I was given a ticket for tooting my horn. How Officer James Gavin, star No. 610, heard my horn above the din of honking cabs, buses, and private cars, screeching "L" trains, and clanging street cars, is beyond me.

Also this same officer has observed me pull up to the same spot every weekday for the past two years in order to pick up my wife. I have used the same method of signaling in order not to block traffic, which is terrific at that time of the day. Nothing was said by him until that fatal day, and then he gives me a ticket.

Common sense must be used in enforcing any law. Promiscuousness in handing out tickets defeats the purpose of the law; incurs the citizens' wrath, which soon turns to ridicule.

I personally want this law to be a good law, and have it weed out your stop light maniacs, your doorbell substitooters, your "I got a fare" taxicab tooters, and the rest of their ilk.

FRANK MCLAUGHLIN.

LIBERTYVILLE ARREST.

Chicago, June 23.—Beware, motorists! Police at Libertyville must be short of money when a person who has been driving for 18 years and has never been stopped by a police officer is given a ticket and fined $10 for failing to see the stop sign at Ill. 21 and Buckley road, and consequently failing to make a full stop. DISGUSTED.

MOTORISTS CHEATED.

Gibson City, Ill., July 1.—I want to warn other transients driving thru this central Illinois town. I stopped at a good looking service station on Ill. 48 here this afternoon and ordered 10 gallons of gasoline and a quart of S. A. E. 40 oil of a well advertised brand. On returning to the car after a cold soft drink inside, I found an empty can of S. A. E. 10 [thin oil for winter use] beside the car.

"Certainly, that's what I put in your car," the attendant replied to a question. "All of my oil is S. A. E."

It was apparent that he didn't understand the Society of Automotive Engineers standard for numbering different weights of oil, different viscosities. His stock of full cans were all of the number recommended for winter use. He's thinning the crank case lubricant of his customer victims.

At my insistence, he looked at his chart and found that the S. A. E. 10 he had put in my car was recommended for temperatures between 10 below and 10 above zero. The thermometer was over 100. Altho he had thinned the oil in my crankcase, he insisted upon getting 35 cents for his mistake. He signed a receipt, Carl Jones, owner of the station.

H. S. F.

SLOW DRIVERS.

Chicago, June 23.—Please ask the state police to arrest pokey drivers who blockade the highways on Saturdays and Sundays when city motorists are trying to reach a holiday destination or trying to get home from a week-end outing. These idlers on the highway are a worse menace than the recklessly fast driver.

ABANDON U. S. 20 AS NO. 1 ROUTE ON TRIP TO DUBUQUE

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dubuque, Ia., July 18 [By Mail].—U. S. 20, known in Chicagoland as the Lake street highway and in other parts of northern Illinois as Grant highway, has been abandoned as the preferred route between here and Chicago. Headed toward Yellowstone National Park, The Tribune road car, following Chicago Motor club recommendations, was driven here by way of Savanna, Ill. Having recently made the trip over U. S. 20, we can join in these recommendations.

The mileage over the two routes is approximately the same. It's 180 on U. S. 20 and 186 by way of Savanna. Neither is as direct as would be a superhighway. Via Savanna is faster.

From Chicago to Savanna is a fairly direct road, lightly traveled, and passing thru few cities. We left the loop at a few minutes before 5 o'clock and were on the east bank of the Mississippi river, 43 miles southeast of here, in time to view the palisades and the ponderous father of waters in the last light of dusk. The 186 miles were covered without recklessness, just steady driving, most of the time at 60 miles an hour.

Here's the Way to Go.

On the newly preferred route, you leave Cook county on North avenue. Ill. 64, and follow these markers thru St. Charles, Sycamore, and Oregon, and thereafter you pick up U. S. 52 markers and continue to Savanna.

North from Savanna, Ill. 80 is at the foot of precipitous bluffs, topped with a mixed woods. Thereon is a state park with picnic areas and trails overlooking the Mississippi river.

Illinois 80 leads to U. S. 20 in the big hills of the northwestern corner of Illinois. Among these hills the route passes thru Galena, a small town retaining relics of its past glory as a lead mining center and as the home of Ulysses S. Grant.

U. S. 20 Slabs Broken.

The U. S. 20 highway here from Chicago leaves Cook county on the Lake street highway and, after passing thru Elgin, meanders in approximately the same course as the stage coach route between the Galena mining district and the young community in the swamps at the foot of Lake Michigan. Its slab is badly broken in places, its curves and grades were designed when 35 miles an hour was a reasonable cross-country pace, and its traffic volume is in excess of the maximum for convenience and safety on its two lane slab.

Illinois 64 and its continuation to Savanna, built progressively in more recent years, is not an acceptable substitute for modernization of U. S. 20. For the cross-state travel the mileage between Dubuque and Chicago is excessive. More significant, the route avoiding centers of population on U. S. 20, including Rockford and Freeport, fails to take care of shorter distance trips to and from those centers. The cross-state travel is only a small fraction of the total traffic on U. S. 20.

Indiana is modernizing U. S. 20 east from Chicago, multilane pavement recently has been extended as far as South Bend, Ind. Until Illinois improves its share of this transcontinental route cross-state travel is advised to avoid the congestion and hazards of U. S. 20, which can't be avoided by the vast majority of its users.

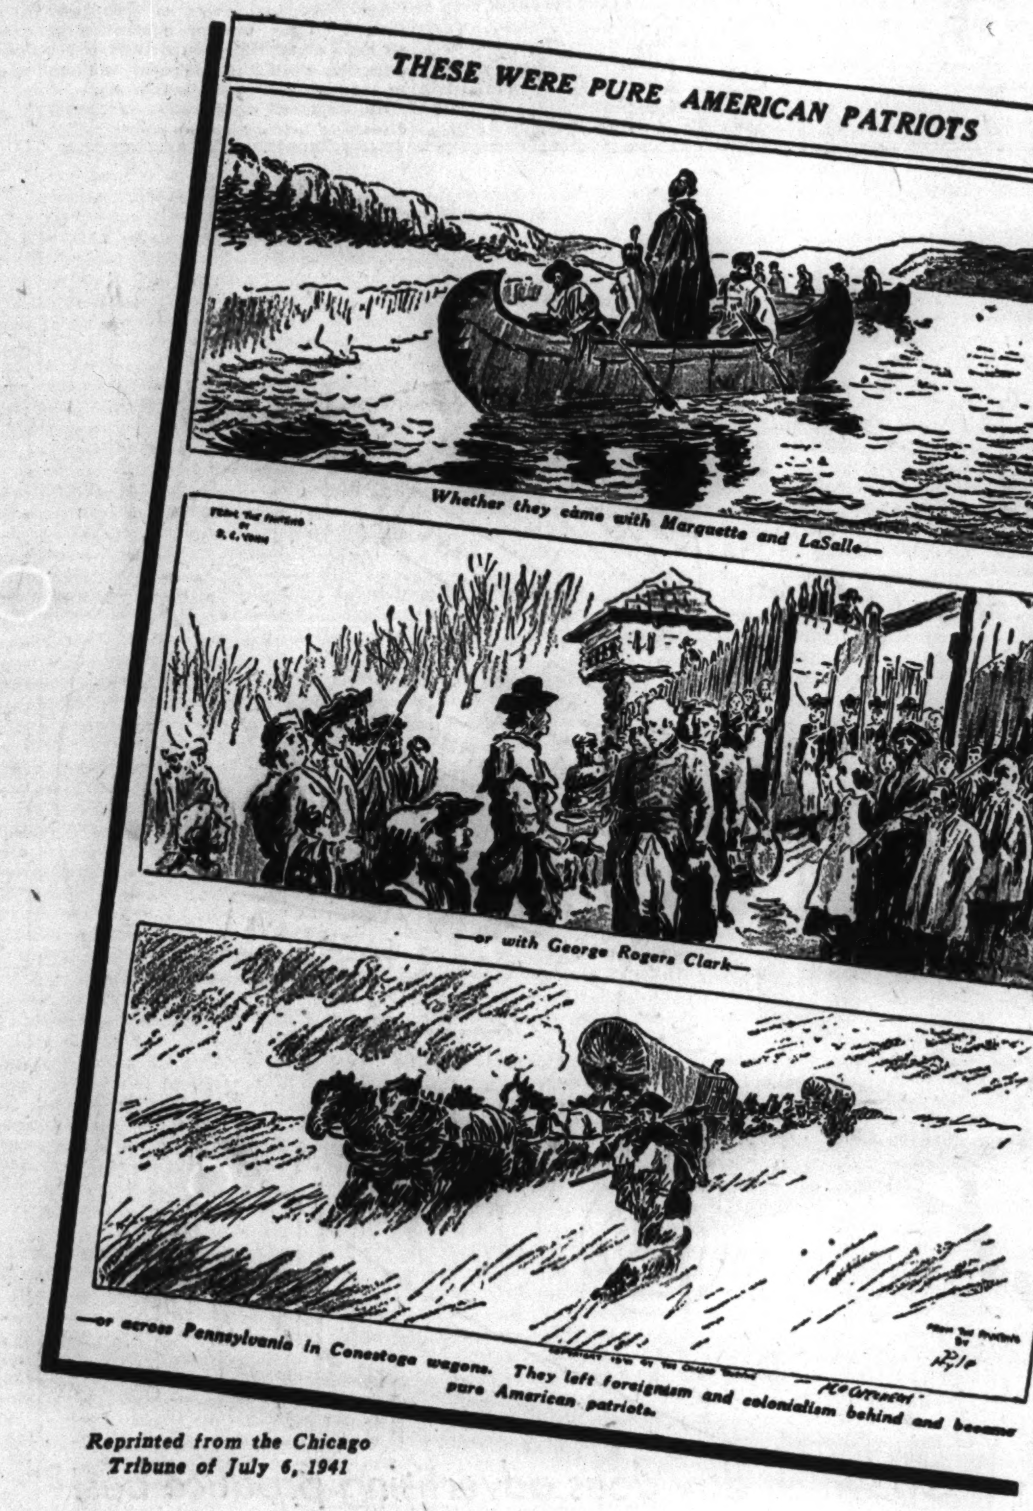
THE Voice of the MIDDLE WEST



THESE WERE PURE AMERICAN PATRIOTS

Whether they came with Marquette and LaSalle—

—or with George Rogers Clark—

Reprinted from the Chicago Tribune of July 6, 1941

THE first white settlers of the eastern states were Europeans who crossed the sea.

The first white settlers of the middle west were Americans who came inland, braving the dangers of the wilderness in a search for greater freedom and opportunity.

Whereas the old colonies had been chartered by foreign rulers, the states of the Northwest territory were founded by the American nation.

Created by Americans, they have no colonial history and no colonial ties. Their mother country is America.

When the veterans of the Continental army went west to take up their land grants, they took with them the fierce patriotism of the soldier and left colonialism and foreignism behind.

They entered a territory which never had been a settled colony of any European nation.

They were consciously American.

They forced their way west as Americans, pushing the Indians, the French, the English, the Spanish, and the Mexicans out of the promised land.

The Chicago Tribune springs from this stock.

Inspired with the intense Americanism native to the soil of its origin, the Tribune instinctively represents the middle western point of view.

Thru four wars, eight major depressions and twenty-four presidential elections, the Tribune has continued steadfast in its devotion to advancing the best interests of the middle west.

As evidence of public response to the Tribune's service as a news publication and of its recognition as the voice of the middle west, Tribune circulation has grown from 400 copies on the day of first publication in 1847 until it is now more than 1,000,000 every day of the week—with more daily circulation than any two other Chicago daily newspapers combined.

Three Times Since 1774 Europe Has Failed

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

SINCE 1774 the continent of North America has been invaded three times by European armies. Altho in each case the invaders were able to establish themselves in this land, not one of the three invasions was successful. In the end the armies from abroad were beaten and driven away.

The first two invasions, those of the War of Independence and the War of 1812, were made by the British. The third invasion, that of Mexico in the 1860s, involved not only a sizable French army but troops from Spain and a contingent of British marines. The unsuccessful attempt to reëstablish European control over Mexico was made at the time that the United States was involved in a desperate war with the Confederacy and thus was in no position immediately to enforce the Monroe doctrine.

A number of factors were responsible for the failure in each of these three invasions from abroad, but the main reason, as often is the case, lay in the fact that the invading armies were too far from home to be consistently successful. The rising tide of hostility against them, the unswerving spirit of new lands and new peoples, were not to be denied by imperial legions that had little enthusiasm for trying to restore the old order in a new world. In both British invasions the European troops had the aid of Indian tribes.

How Europe, with its well trained regiments, rated the best in the world; its powerful fleets, and the vast wealth of its royal courts and marts of trade, failed against America can be told here in a simple review of events without going into a discussion of causes and effects.

The War of Independence began on the village green of Lexington, Mass., April 19, 1775. General Gage at this time was in Boston with a garrison of about 3,500 British troops. The affair at Lexington and the skirmish at Concord on the same day aroused all New England. Within a few days nearly 20,000 minute men, the nucleus of what later became the Continental army, had occupied the hills overlooking Boston.

The predicament of Gage caused the British government to act. It sent to Boston three major generals, Howe, Clinton, and the play-writing Burgoyne, with sufficient reinforcements to bring the Boston garrison up to about 10,000. The battle of Bunker Hill, fought near Boston on June 17, was a military victory for the British but a moral victory for the Americans.

Red Joe—Ruler of the Russias

Foreword Last Sunday the author described the mad course of events in Russia following German victories in the World war . . . the fall of the czar, the rise of the bolsheviks, and the eventual appearance in high circles of Josef Stalin.

JOSEF STALIN

Story of Stalin's Bloody Path to Political Power

By LLOYD WENDT

A MAN once asked Josef Stalin what he thought the finest thing in life. Without hesitation, Stalin replied:

"To choose one's victim, to prepare one's plan minutely, to slake an implacable vengeance, and then to go to bed—there is nothing sweeter in the world."

A simple credo, and one that raised Stalin from the slums of Tiflis to absolute ruler of 170,000,000 Russians. His victims are numbered in the millions. A revolution in which he first feared to participate gave him opportunity. Patient, slow moving, cunning, Stalin has been enabled to dedicate his whole life to the vengeance he prizes.

The western world has sought to make a mystery man of Josef Stalin, yet he is no more mysterious than other brigands of his native Georgia, in Asiatic Russia. For centuries they robbed the ruling Russians and split their booty with the poor, who honored them as local lords. The dagger was part of the national costume, the vendetta the common law, and trickery was preferred above open assault. Stalin operates on a vaster scale, and possesses a government and a propaganda bureau to justify his means.

Born Josef Vissarionovitch Djugashvilli, in Tiflis, Georgia, the son of a cobbler, Stalin learned early to hate the persons better favored in life than he. One of his arms was withered at birth and one foot was misshapen. Smallpox scarred him when he was young, and thru his youth and early manhood he was very poor. He grew up among a crafty, somewhat tribal people that had long suffered oppression, and, with them, he learned to despise the ruling classes.

Stalin found direction for his hatreds when his mother obtained for him a scholarship to a religious seminary. There he met young student revolutionaries and learned of underground organizations plotting the overthrow of the czar. He fervently subscribed to revolutionary principles, for they gave a moral and social expression to his craving for vengeance on a life that had misused him.

At 17 Stalin was expelled from the school. He became a professional revolutionist, agitating among the workers in Georgia for the Social Democratic party. In 1902 he was arrested and imprisoned at Batum, and a year later he was exiled to Siberia.

The intellectuals of the bolshevik revolution spent their time in exile writing fiery tracts, spreading propaganda thru underground channels, or learning languages or military tactics in preparation for "the day" to come. Not so Stalin. He added nothing to revolutionary philosophy during his frequent banishments, and he even scorned to improve his inadequate command of the Russian language. He fished and hunted with his guards, and, after a year, escaped.

He went back to his job of being a revolutionary. His record of arrests and escapes made him something of a figure among his colleagues during the next 10 years, and in 1912 he went to Petrograd (then St. Petersburg), where he joined the bolsheviks. By the end of the year his fervor had further distinguished him, and he was made an editor of the party organs Sviezda (Star) and Pravda (Truth). That same year he was again arrested and exiled.

Little further was heard of Stalin until March, 1917, when the czarist régime fell and Alexander Kerensky set up a provisional government. Then exiled revolutionaries flocked into Petrograd, and among them were Nicolai Lenin, Leon Trotsky, and Josef Stalin. Lenin began plotting the bolshevik revolution which was to be the spearhead of a world revolt that would set up a dictatorship of workers in various countries.

Stalin became one of the seven members of the central committee, or bureau, that ruled the bolshevik party, and resumed his duties with Pravda. He was rewarded, it was said, for his ability in planning bank robberies, by which the bolsheviks raised some of their money to finance the revolutionary movement.

The bolshevik party in Russia was small at the time, and Stalin had no stomach for the ambitious plans of Lenin and Trotsky to take the government away from Kerensky by force. At the same time, he feared to openly oppose Lenin and Trotsky.

Shortly before the famous October (November by our calendar) revolution, by which Trotsky, with a few thousand armed workers and sailors, took Petrograd and launched the communist revolution proper, Stalin was writing editorials commending the party members who opposed such a step. He thought the time was not ripe, that the danger was too great. Furthermore, he always preferred indirection to forthright action. When the bolshevik central committee met to make final plans for the coup, Stalin wasn't there.

Nevertheless Stalin was valuable to the revolution, for he was a genius at organization and an expert at intrigue. When the Lenin-Trotsky insurrection had succeeded, Stalin continued a member of the central committee and was made commissar for nationalities in Lenin's cabinet. He had to work with men who had proved him wrong by their successful revolt, and he had to do the hack work while they took the glory. He was a member of a brilliant company, but he appeared unable to keep up with them, or to absorb their revolutionary idealism. While the rest fought out the counter-revolts, civil wars, and foreign interventions that threatened to wreck bolshevism, Stalin was busy organizing the party behind the lines, hand picking officials for local party posts.

In this work Stalin had great ability, and Lenin frequently called upon him for advice concerning internal politics. At times Stalin was sent to the front, as a civilian "trouble shooter." He began to demonstrate that he was especially able at clearing up troublesome situations by use of firing squads. Lenin and Trotsky agreed that bloody supression of dissenters was necessary for the safety of the state, but they did not care for the work themselves. Stalin became increasingly useful. He did the dirty work, nursed his vengeance, and bided his time.

In 1922 Stalin was made general secretary of the communist party, and two months later Lenin was stricken by a paralytic stroke. Stalin took immediate advantage of the situation to expand his personal power.

Lenin recovered to find Stalin dangerously near to control of the party. Alarmed, he sent to Trotsky a copy of a proposed speech denouncing Stalin, and prepared to demand his removal at the next party congress. Shortly before the congress, on Jan. 21, 1924, Lenin died.

Stalin, for once, acted swiftly. He had a twofold job. First, he must create the impression that it was Lenin's desire that Stalin should succeed him. Second, he must discredit Trotsky, the most popular man of the revolution next to Lenin, and the natural successor of the leader.

Trotsky possessed the Lenin article denouncing Stalin, but Stalin, as party secretary, had not only the bulk of Lenin's writings, but the party organization to give his wishes expression. He began a campaign to undermine Trotsky.

He was joined by Kamenev, the least revolutionary and best educated of the members of the central committee, and Zinoviev, both of whom had opposed the Trotsky putsch in Petrograd.

Stalin proceeded to deify Lenin. Any utterances of the dead leader became holy writ. Since he possessed the original documents, including even scraps of paper on which Lenin had written notes, he was enabled to convince the people that his actions represented the will of Lenin. By the time Trotsky produced Lenin's so-called "testament," which attacked Stalin, Trotsky was thoroly discredited and Stalin was safely installed.

Stalin as a czarist prisoner.

Soon Kamenev and Zinoviev began to think that Stalin was more interested in advancing the fortunes of Stalin than of communism. They joined Trotsky, and a strong communist organization, led by the original bolsheviks, began denouncing Stalin for selling out the revolution. In reply, the party men installed by Stalin in local posts began sniping at Trotsky, the Stalin controled newspapers constantly attacked him, and finally Trotskyism was made to mean anything opposed to Leninism, which latter cult, of course, Stalin represented.

In 1925 Trotsky was forced to resign his position as commissar for war. In 1927 he was exiled to the province of Kazakstan, Kamenev and Zinoviev were ousted from the party, 75 other Trotsky leaders were sent to Siberia, and thousands of minor communists supporting this group were exiled or imprisoned.

Before he had finished, Stalin killed off or imprisoned every one of the five remaining bolshevik leaders who had staged the original revolution. Zinoviev, Kamenev, and Bubnov were shot by Stalin's orders. Sokolnikov was last heard of in a Stalin prison. Trotsky, who escaped to Mexico, was murdered there last August, after living for years in terror of Stalin's agents.

Thus, over the years, Stalin finished off the bolshevik revolution which had opened his path to power. He slaked his vengeance on the men who gave him the dirty work to do, and

It disclosed that the colonials were capable fighters. Washington took command of the American army at Cambridge on July 3, and the siege of Boston began.

While this siege was in progress Colonel Arnold, who later turned traitor, invaded Canada thru Maine with a force of about 1,000 men. He had little more than half this number, however, when he finally reached Quebec on Nov. 13 and demanded the surrender of the city. Early in December he was reinforced by a handful of troops under General Montgomery, who had invaded Canada by the Lake Champlain route and taken Montreal without a fight. On Dec. 31 Arnold and Montgomery assaulted Quebec. Had they been successful they could have blocked the landing of Burgoyne's army. But the assault failed. Montgomery was killed, Arnold was wounded.

Three months later more Americans arrived and a siege of Quebec was undertaken. When Burgoyne arrived at Quebec by water with British and Hessian reinforcements on May 1, 1776, the siege was lifted and the Americans began their slow retreat home. In all about 8,000 Americans served at one time or another in these Canadian expeditions, of whom only 3,000 came back home fit for duty.

In the meantime, early in March, 1776, Howe, who had succeeded Gage in command at Boston, evacuated that city, sailing away for Halifax, Nova Scotia. Howe's retreat from Boston can be likened to the Dunkirk episode of the present war in Europe. He embarked his troops and about 1,000 loyalists under heavy fire from American artillery, and so hasty was his retirement that he was forced to abandon much of his equipment, including 159 cannon. Most of his powder he threw into the bay. Washington then occupied Boston. The American army at this time numbered 24,500, of whom 6,838 were Massachusetts militiamen. The militia were ordered home and the rest of the army, except five regiments, started for New York.

By June of that year Howe was ready to undertake a new campaign. On the 10th he sailed from Halifax, arriving off New York early in July, where he soon was joined by Clinton and Cornwallis, who returned from an unsuccessful expedition against Charleston, S. C., and by Vice Admiral Howe, the British naval commander in chief. The expedition, the largest that Great Britain up to that time ever had sent abroad, included 10 men of war, 20 frigates, 400 transports, 10,000 sailors, and 32,000 troops. Unopposed landings were made on Staten Island just inside the Narrows. Washington and his army were in New York at the time.

By well directed movements General Howe drove the Americans out of New York, occupied Manhattan, and later captured Fort Washington, above New York on the Hudson, taking nearly 3,000 American prisoners. The British then invaded New Jersey, with the Americans retreating before them. American successes at Trenton and Princeton, however, brought hope to the cause of the patriots before Washington's army went into winter camp at Morristown, N. J.

After a series of raids from their base in New York—the most important into Connecticut—the British suddenly on June 30, 1777, embarked on transports and sailed for Chesapeake bay. They landed at Elk Head, Md., Aug. 25, and marched to Philadelphia, defeating the Americans at Brandywine and entering the Pennsylvania city Sept. 26. An American attack on Oct. 4 on the British camp at Germantown, on the edge of Philadelphia, failed.

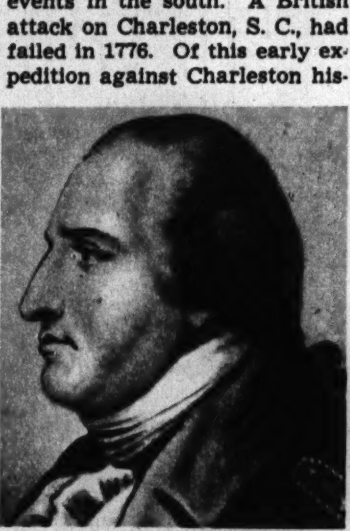
In June, 1777, Burgoyne, returning from a leave of absence in London, took command of the troops at Montreal and started south with a force of 7,200 with the object of uniting with Howe at Albany. Howe either had no instructions to proceed northward to accomplish this union, or if he had he preferred to ignore them. Burgoyne's expedition, moving southward along the Lake Champlain route, was an ill-advised one. The wilderness route was a hard one to travel. Colonel St. Leger, coöperating with Burgoyne, invaded the upper Mohawk valley with a band of Tories and Indians, invested Fort Stanwix, fought a draw battle with General Herkimer's militia at Oriskany on Aug. 16, and was compelled to retreat. An American army under General Gates whipped Burgoyne at the battles of Freeman's Farm and Bemis Heights, and on Oct. 17 at Saratoga the British general surrendered what was left of his army.

Washington's army remained in camp at Valley Forge, Pa., from Dec. 19, 1777, to June 18, 1778, when Clinton, who had succeeded Howe, marched his troops out of Philadelphia. The Americans, in pursuit of the British, overtook them at Monmouth, N. J., where an indecisive battle was fought. Washington's army then moved northward to the Hudson river heights north of New York.

It was in this area, on July 16, 1778, that General Wayne stormed and took Stony Point. An American expedition against Castine, Me., at the mouth of the Penobscot river, was a failure, but an American army under General Sullivan won a brilliant success at Newton (Elmira) on Aug. 29 when it defeated a force of Tories and Indians that had been raiding New York state from Fort Niagara.

The alliance with France bore valuable fruit in July, 1780, when Rochambeau arrived at Newport, R. I., with 6,000 men. The French expedition had sailed from Brest.

So much for operations in the north. Let us now consider events in the south. A British attack on Charleston, S. C., had failed in 1776. Of this early expedition against Charleston histories tell us very little except that it was conceived in the form of a diversion, that it was led by Clinton and Cornwallis, and that because of its small force it was unsuccessful. After it had failed Clinton and Cornwallis had joined Howe at New York.



Benedict Arnold

In November, 1778, Colonel Campbell sailed from New York with 3,500 men, convoyed by a squadron under Commodore Parker. This expedition captured Savannah, Ga., on Dec. 29 after having defeated a colonial force under Gen. Robert Howe. The next month the British penetrated the interior of the state and occupied Augusta. Gen. Augustine Prevost, moving up from Florida, established his headquarters in Savannah, where in September, 1779, he successfully withstood a siege by a combined force of Americans and French. The besiegers were compelled to fall back to Charleston. The American generals Francis Marion (the "Swamp Fox") and Thomas Sumter meanwhile kept up a continuous guerrilla warfare against the British in the area.

Late in October the British evacuated Newport, R. I., under pressure and in the following December Clinton sailed from New York with 8,500 soldiers to join Prevost in Georgia. Cornwallis went with Clinton as second in command. The expedition was long at sea, encountered terrific storms, and suffered heavily. One of its vessels was lost, another, containing Hessian troops, was driven across the ocean and beached on the Cornwall coast of England. Most of the horses aboard the ships perished. These misfortunes showed clearly the difficulties of transporting an army along a hostile coast hundreds of miles from home bases.

The expedition, after making urgent repairs at sea and in remote coves and bays, finally landed 30 miles south of Charleston on Feb. 11, 1780. On the following May 12, troops of this expedition took Charleston, the American general, Lincoln, surrendering 5,000 troops at the time. This was a severe blow to the American cause, since it left the southern field of action almost stripped of colonial troops. Shortly after the fall of Charleston Clinton returned to New York, leaving Cornwallis in command, with orders to conquer North Carolina.

A new American army was organized and rushed southward under the leadership of Gen. Gates. It was defeated at Camden, S. C., on Aug. 16, and Gates was supplanted by Gen. Greene. Cornwallis leisurely marched into North Carolina, altho two detachments from his army met with disaster at the hands of Americans at King's mountain and Cowpens. Greene and Cornwallis met at Guilford Courthouse (near the present Greensboro, N. C.) on March 15, 1781. The British held their ground but were badly cut up and Cornwallis was forced to march to Wilmington, N. C., to refit and recruit.

Believing that the conquest of Virginia was essential to his security in the south, Cornwallis decided to invade that state. In the meantime Greene started toward Camden and Charleston with the object of recovering South Carolina. On April 25, 1781, he was surprised and beaten near Camden by a force under Lord Rawdon. He fought at Ninety-Six and Eutaw Springs. The latter action, fought on Sept. 8, 1781, was the final battle of the Revolutionary war.

Returning to Cornwallis, we find him engaged in his Virginia project. Marching out of Wilmington, April 25, 1781, he made a union a month later with 2,000 troops under Gen. Phillips and the traitor Arnold. The British overran Virginia, repulsed the French Gen. Lafayette at Green Spring, near Jamestown Island, on July 6, and early in August withdrew to Yorktown. Here Cornwallis fortified his position, and waited—waited until he was surrounded by a superior force of Americans and French. He surrendered without a fight Oct. 19, 1781, altho he still had 8,077 troops. With his capitulation the operations of the war ceased. The British evacuated Charleston and Savannah while the peace terms were being discussed, but they did not leave New York until the peace had been signed a year later.

The War of 1812 officially began June 18, 1812, with a declaration of hostilities by congress. Altho started by the United States as the result of British action against our commerce, Great Britain tried to convert it into a war of reconquest. Some American military leaders welcomed the conflict, nevertheless, and planned campaigns to drive the British from Canada. These campaigns were to be undertaken in the main by militia, striking from Detroit, Niagara, and Sackett's Harbor. The general plan called for the capture of Malden, at the west end of Lake Erie, of Niagara at the east end, of Kingston, and finally of Montreal.

Gen. Hull had taken command of an American army at Dayton, O., in the preceding May and when war was declared already was on the way to Detroit with a force of nearly 2,000 men. Hull reached Detroit in July and crossed over into Canada. But instead of seizing Malden at once, as he could have, he settled down to a siege of the fort there. When he learned that the British had taken Michilimackinac, at the upper end of Lake Huron, he became panicky and retired to Detroit.

The British commander Brock thereupon quit Malden and marched his army to Detroit, demanding the surrender of that place on Aug. 15. To the amazement of the Americans at Detroit and even of the British themselves, Hull the next day surrendered. By his capitulation the whole of Michigan territory and 2,500 soldiers were yielded to an enemy force of 336 regulars, 400 militia, and 600 Indians.

The day before the surrender of Detroit there occurred on the present site of Chicago the Fort Dearborn massacre. The fort had surrendered to hostile Indians, inflamed by the prospect of aid from the British, and when its garrison, civilians, women, and children moved out they were set upon by the savages and a number of them slain.

Hull, who had behaved so cravenly at Detroit and also had ordered the evacuation of Fort Dearborn, was tried a year and a half later and sentenced to be Hollywood.

ALL HOLLYWOOD wants is a hero or a heroine—or somebody it can build into a hero or a heroine. With rare exceptions, stars are never anything else, and all of the studios' vast machinery for talent scouting is directed toward just two things—the Girl and the Boy.

Most heroes and heroines have to be built up after Hollywood gets 'em. They are sometimes stage actors; often they are mechanics and secretaries and beauty contest winners who miraculously happen to have personality and to photograph well—and they have to have months or even years of the old buildup before they amount to anything at the box office. Only rarely does Hollywood get a ready-made hero, and when it does it is usually a figure from the world of sport.

Thus several ready-made heroes will be working in films this summer. They include Billy Conn, who made Joe Louis look even more dazed than he normally does; Tom Harmon, the Michigan footballer, and Sammy Baugh, Texas Christian forward passer, St. Louis Cardinal third baseman, and pro of the Washington Redskins.

Every year brings a new set of ready-made heroes to Hollywood. Most of them make the one picture they were hired for and then disappear, but every so often one of them sticks and becomes a real star.

Sonja Henie, dazzling skater of the Olympics, has done right well and is still at it. Johnny Weissmuller, torpedo of the 1924 Olympics, is even now climbing trees and howling wahoos in another Tarzan epic.

Tom Harmon, who is good looking in a slightly battered way, has no notion of throwing Clark Gable for a loss and becoming the great man of the screen. He has come out here to make one picture for Columbia, cleverly titled "Harmon of Michigan," and after that he plans to go back to Detroit and resume radio work. I think he'd rather be an announcer than a marquee idol.

While he's here he is having a fine time, for he belongs to an astute pair of agents, Everett and Bing Crosby, and these boys are putting him in the right spots. His spot in the movie gives him Anita Louise for a sweetheart, for instance—and I guess there are millions who would rather have Anita than an all-American award.

Working in the picture, incidentally, is a sports hero who came here quite a while ago and managed to stick—Nick Lukats. Nick, one-time Notre Dame star, is a pretty good and consistently employed character actor.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh, another football hero, apparently can have as much of a movie career as he wants. Republic is starring him in a western serial, "King of the Texas Rangers." Sammy would rather be a rancher than anything else. Next he likes football. Third comes movie acting.

Bill Nobles, cameraman who has been shooting western stars for years, says Baugh is the best horseman ever to hit the screen. His bosses think he's a good mixture of Tom Mix and Art Acord, and are looking for more screen material for him.

Baugh was born in Temple, Tex., St. Patrick's day of 1914. His father was a railroad clerk. After his notable forward passing career at Texas Christian, Sammy took a coaching job there, later joined the Redskins, and in 1938 played at third and short with the Cards.

When "King of the Rangers" was being cast Baugh was hired thru the efforts of a Republic executive, Bill Saal, who is himself a fanatical Texan. Sammy is married to Edmonia Gary Smith, his co-ed sweetheart. He spends his vacations as an expert hand on the Texas cattle ranch of his brother Bob.

Another hero of the moment who will have his fling in films is Billy Conn, for whom Republic has bought Octavus Roy Cohen's yarn "Kid Tinsel." Billy will be rushed right into this one before Joe Louis fights Lou Nova and before Conn gets a second date with a champ, for studios have to shoot with heroes while they are still heroes.

There aren't as many feminine sports figures in movies as there are men—because there aren't as many of them, principally. Miss Henie is the outstanding example of a lady athlete who came to Hollywood and took it over. She has made millions for Twentieth-Fox and a fine hunk for herself; she has made hundreds of thousands in ice rink tours, and she has married Dan Topping, a rich society guy. Pretty good for a girl whose original equipment for facing the world were good muscles and a sense of balance. She either developed or had latent within her a business shrewdness that is almost unmatched in Hollywood.

Also decorating the films, but in less important degree, are a few lovelies whose original fame was in sport. Grace Bradley (Mrs. Bill Boyd), for one. She was on an Olympic fencing team. Now she plays polo. Also Kay Rohrer of M-G-M and Carol Adams of Republic, who were softball stars. Also Jinx Falkenberg of Columbia, who was the swimming champ of Chile and who was bent on becoming a tennis star when she inadvertently became a photographers' model and was embraced by the picture magazines, the gossip columns, and fame.

Alice Marble, the handsome tennis star, was offered the lead in a jungle girl serial, but turned it down in order to go on the road as a racket pro. The movies are still after her and no doubt will get her one day.

Most great sports figures are one-shots in the movies. Red Grange made, I think, a single appearance in "The Galloping Ghost." The late Lou Gehrig made a western at Fox in 1938. Babe Didrickson, the one-girl track meet, had a one-shot in "Search for Beauty." Eleanor Holm was here for a while, but only for a while. Benny Leonard had a one-shot in a serial.

But a few stick, and a few more who weren't exactly great as athletes nave made fine places for themselves in the films. For one, Gregory La Cava, the director, about whom I wrote a few weeks ago. Greg was bent on being a pro boxer and might never have got into the movies if he hadn't broken his hand early in his ring career. For another, John Payne, Twentieth-Fox's leading man. John also was a boxer until he broke his hand; he was also a professional wrestler.

A phenomenon is Maxie Rosenblum, one-time ring star who has made a career out of being professionally slap-happy. Maxie has worked in many a movie and is the front for a successful night club on the side.

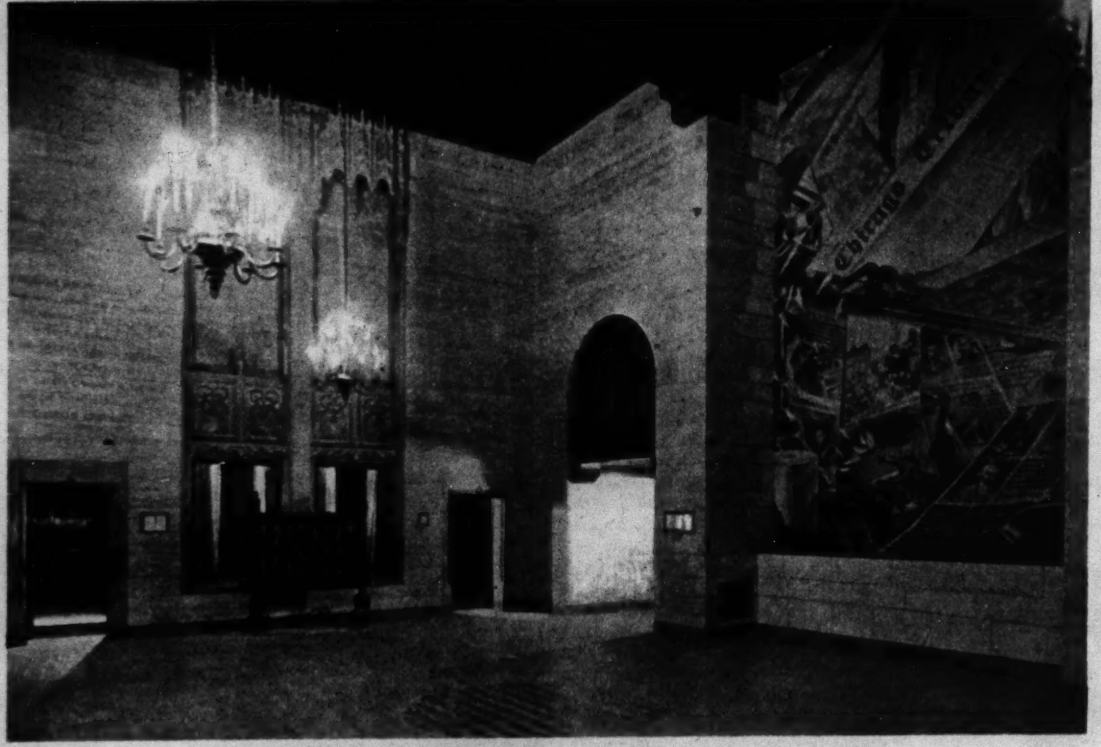
Gordon Jones, successful in character leads, was a noted U. C. L. A. lineman. John Wayne, in "Reap the Wild Wind," was a U. S. C. grid star under his real name, Marion Michael (Duke) Morrison. Errol Flynn was a boxer on an Irish Olympic team.

Working at Columbia in Richard Carroll's "Three Girls About Town" is one Bruce Bennett. Under his right name, Herman Brix, Bruce was an Olympic track star and shot-put champ. Andy Devine had at least local fame on the Santa Clara gridiron. Ward Bond, another U. S. C. football hero, began making movies between college semesters and to date has figured importantly in more than 60 pictures.

Universal's western star, Johnny Mack Brown, made all-American at Alabama. Jean Gabin, Twentieth-Fox's new French import, was famed in France not alone as an actor but also as a bicycle rider, and, pending his first appearance before Hollywood cameras, is undergoing violent bicycle training along the highway to Malibu. One of the most daring—and most expensive—of the stunt men, Yakima Canutt, was for many years a champion in what many of us regard as the only simon-pure amateur sport in America—rodeo riding.

THE HALL OF INSCRIPTIONS IN TRIBUNE TOWER



THIS IS THE LAST OF A SERIES OF 20 REPRODUCTIONS FROM THE HALL OF INSCRIPTIONS, TRIBUNE TOWER.

DOMINATING the Hall of Inscriptions in Tribune Tower is a 16x23½-foot mural entitled "The Freedom of the Press." The work of Mrs. Clara Fargo Thomas, distinguished mural painter of New York, it graphically summarizes the age-long struggle of great leaders to preserve liberty of expression and a free press for the people. It is hung on the east wall of the Hall of Inscriptions between two archways leading to the Tribune Tower elevators and faces the entrance of Tribune Tower itself.

Mrs. Thomas received her inspiration for the mural while on a trip thru the Tribune pressrooms, where she observed the stream of newsprint flowing thru the pressess. She conceived the idea of showing the story of a free press in pictures and type, the story being printed on newspapers as they came, unfolded, in broad ribbons of paper from the gleaming presses.

The mural story begins with Socrates and Cicero, who spoke out against the tyrants and fetishes of their time and who died for their truthfulness. There is a picture of Daniel Defoe in the pillory, to which he was sentenced for publishing writings unapproved by the government in his London Review in the 18th century.

Sketches of the scaffold and the rack and torture chambers of the Inquisition show the penalty of free speech in the earlier days of medieval terrors. Gutenberg, who invented printing from movable type; Caxton, who brought the printing press to England in 1476, and John Milton, who wrote his famous "Areopagitica" in defense of a free press, are pictured.

The scene shifts to America as the presses roll out their story of the fight for freedom, depicting Thomas Paine, famous journalist of the American revolution; Peter Zenger, New York printer who dared expose the tyranny of the British governor of the province, and the Presidents, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, who spoke out ringingly for a free press.

In the lower right-hand corner of the mural is the only unnamed figure in the whole sweep of historic incidents—a modern printer tending a press.

How's Your Pronunciation?

● Many of us take pride in the belief that we pronounce correctly the words that we employ in everyday speech. Yet often we may be wrong without knowing it, for our friends and acquaintances are reluctant to put us right. Here are ten words (with definitions) frequently mispronounced. Try them yourself and then turn to page seven and ascertain how many of them you have spoken correctly.

RED JOE OF RUSSIA

By 1929 Stalin was ready to reveal himself as the fuehrer of the Russian people. He had, by bloody purges, consolidated his control of the 1,200,000 members of the communist party and he undertook to make his power undisputed among all the 170,000,000 Russians.

He had ridiculed Trotsky's proposed five year plan for Russia, but instituted a more grandiose one himself. He had been accused by the old line communists of playing politics with the bourgeoisie, but now he decided to crush an obstreperous segment of the peasant population by liquidating the kulaks, or wealthier peasants. He determined to seize all wealth for the state, and to make certain that the army would be loyal to him.

There followed tragic years for Russia. The collectivization of the peasants brought the "Red terror" into thousands of villages, and millions of peasants were killed or starved or exiled before it was over. Other millions were uprooted from their land, and put to work on roads, canals, and vast industrial plants. Thousands died under torture as the GPU, Stalin's secret police, attempted to gather up the nation's wealth.

Having made himself absolute, having tasted the full sweets of vengeance on a world that once abused him, having created his own upper class to support him, Stalin began finishing off any cumbersome vestiges of bolshevik philosophy that remained.

He became a nationalist rather than an internationalist, altho he saw that the communist internationale was a valuable weapon against nations which might menace Russia or impede Russian aspirations. Thus he was in the unique position of possessing a voluntary world spy and sabotage system which worked for revolt of the workers, but actually was merely an instrument of Stalin's nationalistic foreign policy.

Stalin tossed out the bolshevik notion of equality of all workers, paid some better than others, instituted speed-up systems, restored titles to army officers, and generally scuttled bolshevik conceptions of modernity which had made it popular among some of the intellectuals of the western world. The burocrats, police, and skilled workers became the new ruling class of Russia, and such bourgeoisie values as family, stability, and class privilege came back into good repute. Communists might proclaim the glory of Stalin and shout for revolt in other countries, but in Russia radicals who sought to upset the status quo were ruthlessly exterminated.

Among them were many old bolos, who had gone down the line for Marxism, and who objected to the Stalin changes as strenuously as the czarists opposed the bolsheviks. Their opposition brought on the cruelest of Stalin blood purges, which began in 1934 and lasted four years.

Thousands of persons were executed by the GPU, including an estimated 30,000 army officers, many of the latter being accused of friendship for Germany. Tortured prisoners "confessed" all sorts of strange crimes against the state. When the purge ended, after years of bloodletting, there were no leaders left in Russia capable of disputing Stalin's power. The GPU, run by men whose only hope of advancement lay in pleasing Stalin, ruthlessly stamped out all opposition with calculated cruelty. It was not sufficient to destroy an enemy, but the manner of destruction must frighten all potential foes into submission.

The purges bled the land of everything but Stalinism. Yet a grotesque and distorted Lenin was still held up as the communist deity, and the party line played Stalin politics thruout the world. If Germany seemed disposed to march on Russia, it was good strategy to wreck France internally and make that uphappy country more inviting bait. If fear of Russia kept Hitler from the march against western Europe, then a nonaggression pact with Germany would loose the Nazi war machine in that direction and save Stalin.

Stalin did not scruple to make a pact with the sworn enemy of communism when it was needed to save himself and his régime. In so doing, the crafty Georgian fashioned his own noose. Whatever the outcome of the war with Germany, it would appear that Stalin is thru. He is without friends at home or abroad, save those who are friendly because they fear him, and the deluded Reds who play his game in the international scene. The czar of all the Russias, say observers, is now himself the pawn in world politics. He will last only so long as one side or the other can use him.

after all. Joan, attemptscape, runs into a mine tunof Steve and a landslide.

6 Seated inside with her "kidnaper," and fearing the end is near, Joan makes a confession: "You've risked your life trying to find a way out, Steve. I love you for it. Kiss me, darling." . . . "Why, you . . .! MUSTARD! You've BEEN outside—eating, while I'm starved!" To the tune of a slap, Steve admits it.

7 Leading Joan out of the mine, Steve encounters an outraged Brice. Brice's fists encounter an outclassed Steve. Embarrassing as this defeat is to Steve, it nevertheless plants a subconscious seed of sympathy in Joan's mind.

8 "O.K., you win," sighs the battered Steve, and thereupon arranges a wedding. His gallant gesture, however, is strictly a phony, because so is the justice of the peace. Now all Steve has to do is to keep Joan and Brice apart until Papa Winfield arrives.

9 Papa, happy that Joan isn't married, does a prompt turnabout and approves her marriage to Steve. Alone, Steve and Joan look at each other adoringly—for a moment. Then Steve dashes to the phone. "Hey, Pop! Don't forget . . . you got her unmarried, as agreed. And you owe me ten bucks a pound, C.O.D.!"

"It's like getting 6 PAIRS of Stockings a year...FREE!"
Remarkable New Suds Discovery
KINDER TO SILK STOCKINGS than any soap you ever used!

HOW TO GET AS MUCH AS 6 EXTRA PAIRS OF STOCKINGS A YEAR!

Our scientific laboratory tests prove that you can increase your stocking life as much as 20% by doing your hose after each wearing in Dreft! Over a year's time, this is the same as getting about 6 pairs of stockings free! So don't neglect soiled stockings. Do them the modern Dreft way—and you may have extra money for a new hat or shoes or gloves!

WASHING your stockings nightly with incredibly mild Dreft suds can increase their wear so much, that you may save as much as 6 pairs of stockings a year!

THIS IS THE LITERAL TRUTH ABOUT DREFT: It's kinder to your stockings than the soap you're now using! Or—for that matter—kinder to your stockings than any soap you can buy, regardless of price or quality!

And that's not all! There are other advantages, too. Advantages that make Dreft completely different from the soap you're now using! Yes—Dreft is so different from any soap, it's been granted 7 patents by the Government! Here's what this difference means to you:

1. KINDER TO YOUR STOCKINGS! Dreft suds—unlike any soapsuds—are non-alkaline, as shown by the most common alkalinity test! No wonder you can't buy a soap that makes suds as kind to your silk stockings!

2. LEAVES YOUR STOCKINGS FRESHER LOOKING! Dreft was the first suds never to form any hard-water scum to hide hosiery colors! In hard water, Dreft leaves stockings brighter than the finest soap flakes!

3. EASIER, QUICKER COOL-WATER WASHING! Dreft makes cool-water suds faster than any soap! And, in hardest water, these snowy-white granules of Dreft make 5 times more suds than any soap you can buy!

4. PACKAGE LASTS TWICE AS LONG! Package for package, in hard water, Dreft goes twice as far—washes twice as many stockings as fine-fabric soap flakes!

In short, miraculous new Dreft promises better, easier hosiery washing than the finest soap flakes! And, by nightly washing in wonderfully gentle Dreft suds, you may save yourself the price of about six pairs of stockings a year! It pays to do your stockings the modern Dreft way!

Look for the smart green Dreft package at your dealer's.

Probably the largest single group of smartly dressed, perfectly groomed girls in the country are the 205 stewardesses now on active duty for American Airlines! Almost to a girl, they give new Dreft credit for helping to keep their uniform blouses and stockings looking as they should!

1. WASHES TWICE AS MANY STOCKINGS! There isn't a fine-fabric soap flakes that can even come close to Dreft's economy in your hard water! Package for package, Dreft can wash twice as many pairs of stockings!

2. EASIER ON STOCKINGS! Dreft suds are so incredibly mild, they won't sting the way soapsuds do when accidentally splashed in your eye! Being non-alkaline, Dreft suds are kinder to stockings than any soapsuds!

3. THEY STAY FRESHER LOOKING! Dreft—unlike any soap—never forms the slightest speck of cloudy hard-water scum to cover up stocking colors and dull the bright, fresh appearance of your stockings!

SO DIFFERENT, It offers Advantages no soap in the world can Duplicate!

How War's New Bombs Are Built

By STANLEY JOHNSTONE

THE WAR has brought about a most amazing development in the art of bombing and in the bomb itself. Today there are as many different kinds of bombs as there are shells for artillery. Entirely aside from the mere matter of size, a great many bombs have been developed for special purposes. There are fire starters, structure destroyers, man-killers, armor piercers, land and sea mines, and torpedoes.

There are three kinds of fire starting bombs. The most commonly used is the incendiary stick. This is a 2.2-pound magnesium metal cylinder 15 inches long and 2 inches in diameter. It is really a hollow pipe. The hollow portion is filled with thermite — iron filings mixed with chemicals that generate 2,600 degrees of heat Fahrenheit. One end of the pipe is closed by a light metal fin for guiding the bomb in the air, the other by a screw cap, also of soft magnesium.

In this cap is a simple form of striker—a brass tack. The shock of the bomb hitting the ground, roof, or sidewalk causes the point of the tack to set off a little firing cap. This in turn ignites the thermite filling. The bomb is bored with air holes in the cap and in the pipe section so that the flame inside can have air. Once the thermite is well ignited, the magnesium casing itself burns, sputters, and throws pieces of the molten metal for a yard or more around the bomb proper.

Unless smothered immediately these bombs will burn thru tile, metal sheets, floors, ceilings, heavy wooden or metal beams, or any combustible material. Fire bombs dropped on the roofs of tall buildings have burned their way right thru ceilings and floors to the basement, leaving roaring flames behind on each floor. Used against cities, they cause more destruction than high explosive bombs. Both the British and Germans use them extensively.

Thru practice the air raid prevention squads in London got expert in handling them, and boasted of the fact in the newspapers. The Germans thereupon developed an explosive fire grenade. They put in one explosive to every 24 to 36 of the older type. Explosions of these grenades have killed many ARP workers. It has added another danger to this already dangerous service.

Extensive use of fire bombs has led to the introduction of compulsory fire bomb watching for virtually every one in England. After your regular job is done you also do four hours each week patroling streets and watching roofs to see where fire bombs fall. This patroling has helped to prevent the destruction of London and other cities by fire. Despite even these efforts, the greatest damage by air raiders has been done by fire, according to authorities.

The second type of fire starter is the oil bomb. This consists of five gallons of crude oil and tar plus gasoline, liquid rubber, and phosphorus. A flash fuse ignites it when it strikes and the bomb casing bursts. Instantly the liquid, that has sprayed over an area of 30 to 40 square feet, flames up hotly. The stuff runs into cracks, down stairs, over walls, and soon any building on which it falls is a blazing furnace.

The bomb itself consists of two light aluminum tanks. The large tank is filled with the crude oil and tar. In the nose of this is the smaller can—about a gallon all told—of the gasoline, liquid rubber, and phosphorus, all three of which are highly inflammable. The whole thing is a crudely streamlined shape with a pointed nose and a guiding fin on the tail.

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

These oil bombs are generally dropped with the thermite bombs. The latter are always dropped in hinged aluminum containers that hold either 24 or 36 of the single sticks. In falling these containers whirl around and fall apart, spreading the individual sticks in a compact pattern. They generally are dropped by the Germans so that they fall in a trail of 50 to 100 foot intervals and thus cause a long train of fires.

Besides the destruction that fire bombs cause themselves, they are important as flares for high explosive bombers. Once fires are started during a night raid, these light up a town or a factory so that pilots of following planes are guided by these beacons in a blacked-out landscape. The high explosive bombs are then dropped around the fires.

A third type of fire starting bomb is designed specifically to start blazes in crops or in forests. The purpose is to burn off enemy food as it lies in the fields, lose him his forests, cause as much trouble as possible. These bombs are minute, weighing only a few ounces each. Thousands and thousands may be carried by a single light bomber, and it is easy to scatter them far and wide. Their small size makes it almost impossible to detect them until their heat generating properties have caused a blaze.

One of these crop burning bombs is a tiny bit of cotton lint in a paper envelope. Another that is frequently used by the British is a two-ounce cloth sack. In both instances the chemical used to start the fire is phosphorus. In the case of the envelopes these are carried in sealed containers and are dropped wet. As soon as some of the moisture has dried out the phosphorus ignites, the paper bursts into flame, and a fire is started. In the containers these envelopes are kept wet enough to prevent the phosphorus mixture in which the lint is soaked from burning.

The little sacks are handled dry. They contain a mixture of phosphorus, iron filings, and other chemicals that have the property of generating great heat as soon as they become damp. Dropped into fields or forests, the evening dew, rain, snow, or other moisture sets them to working and a fire of enormous heat—more than 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit—results.

Structure destroying bombs are called demolition bombs. These are intended to knock down buildings of all kinds. This is done by the pressure of their blast. The blast is a terrific air pressure generated by the expansion that comes with their explosion. It acts against any resisting body and tends literally to blow a building down.

In addition to the blast there is a destructive countersuction that comes immediately after the explosion when the surrounding air rushes back into the partial vacuum.

A big demolition bomb — a 2,200-pounder—would flatten an entire block of dwellings. It would also take off the roofs of surrounding buildings, blowing in all windows and doors for hundreds of feet around. As many as 300 small homes have been made uninhabitable by one 2,200-pound bomb dropped in London's suburbs.

Demolition bombs come in sizes from 225 pounds up to the 2,200-pounders. The smallest are four feet long and about 18 inches in diameter. The largest are 12 feet long and 26 inches in diameter. The cases always are of light, thin metal, comprising about 30 per cent of the total weight. These also have streamlined shapes, with fins to guide their flight and a detonator to explode them. This is usually an instant contact explosion to spread the blast effect horizontally as well as vertically.

When it is desired to penetrate buildings, earthworks, roads, or to destroy buried power, gas, or water mains, by "earth shock," another kind of demolition bomb is used. This has a stronger, heavier casing weighing up to 45 per cent of the total poundage. This type would have a fuse timed to explode a split second after striking, giving the missile time to penetrate.

A third type of demolition bomb, and a most destructive missile, is the parachute mine. This was originated by the Germans and extensively used by them. This sort of bomb now is being widely used also by the Royal Air force, and it is this bomb that is now called the RAF's superbomb.

The parachute bomb generally weighs 1,800 pounds, of which 1,500 pounds is explosive. The case is the thinnest possible aluminum, 12 feet long, of a semi-streamlined shape. The parachute itself is of artificial silk, knitted as openly as a woman's slipover sweater. Always the canopy is green. It is approximately 30 feet in diameter and fits into a rounded cap that forms one end of the mine. When dropped the cap is released. Air pressure blows it open and the parachute swings out to fill and slow down the fall so the missile will not be shattered by the bump and not penetrate.

These mines hiss as they fall, probably from the air passing thru the coarsely knitted canopy mesh and because it whistles around the opened lid. When they strike they give a tremendous surface blast. This may come instantly or after a delay of minutes or hours. The blasts from these bombs have killed humans as far as 400 yards away. Death usually is caused by the rupture of the heart sack, collapse of the lungs, or rupture of small blood vessels in the head causing brain hemorrhage.

At left: Armor piercing bomb. Notice thick casing and reinforced point and shoulder to withstand shock of penetrating armor.

All armor piercing bombs are heavy. This is necessary so that they will have a sufficient striking force to penetrate protective covering and to prevent them from being broken up and their charge scattered when they hit. They are used against fortifications and ships and almost always are in the heaviest class—600 to 3,000 pounds. Because of the weight of the casing—as much as 60 to 65 per cent of the total—these bombs are not of large size. The smallest are four and a half feet long and the largest about ten and a half feet long, with a 26-inch diameter.

The metal case is specially hardened, but many have a soft iron cap. This helps the bomb to stick to the surface it hits and assists penetration by preventing it from glancing off. These bombs are always fused to explode two-fifths or three-fifths of a second after striking. This is to allow time for penetration.

Bombs planned for use against troop concentrations are another specialty. These are made of a special steel alloy cast so that the cell structure of the metal never is allowed to set normally. This is done so that the casing will break up into razor-edged particles four to six ounces each. These serve the same purpose as shrapnel. They are given instantaneous fuses to scatter the particles over the widest possible area. They weigh 110 pounds up to 775 pounds, of which 40 per cent would be explosive weight.

The British have learned that the so-called magnetic and acoustical mine as used by the Germans is identical with the land mine. Dropped over land, these mines are given contact fuses or short time fuses. Dropped into water, they are provided with the magnetic fuses that are fired by the magnetic field that surrounds metal ships. A later type of water fuse is fired by the sound waves —vibrations—set up by a ship's propellers.

These mines, in fact, have been found with all three types

MASTIFF—NOBLE BREED

ONE OF THE most distinctive of all dogs is the old English mastiff. This giant breed has a history which takes it back to battle service against the Roman legions, but to the few present-day owners its size, beauty, guarding instincts, and noble character are many times more important than its early use as a dog of combat.

There are few of these dogs in the United States. One estimate is that there are only about 50. There is no reason why more mastiffs should not be kept, particularly by persons who have large yards or estates. Mastiffs have an uncanny instinct for guard work, and, according to P. Hobart Titus, Weston, Mass., president of the Mastiff Club of America, the mastiff is one of the few breeds which have the knack of guarding a home without attacking an intruder.

There is no question but that the mastiff, along with dogs of the greyhound type, are among the oldest known to man. Egyptian monuments dating about 3000 B. C. contain drawings of fairly typical mastiffs. These dogs also are mentioned in Chinese literature of 1121 B. C. Caesar describes mastiffs in his account of the invasion of Britain in 55 B. C. They fought with great valor against the Romans.

One of the most intriguing of all dog stories is based on the faithfulness of a mastiff. It is the tale of Sir Peers Legh, knight of Lyme Hall, at the battle of Agincourt in 1415. When he was injured in battle his favorite mastiff, which had accompanied him, guarded his body for many hours until English soldiers rescued him. Altho the master later died of his wounds, his dog was returned to England, and from her has descended the famous Lyme Hall strain of mastiffs which Sir Peers' family has kept to this day—a period of over five centuries. The present-day mastiff is based upon the strains of Lyme Hall and that of the duke of Devonshire's kennels at Chatsworth, England.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

Here in America the mastiff has a long history, since a dog of this breed arrived on the Mayflower. The records state that there were two dogs on the Mayflower—one a spaniel and the other a mastiff. Later the settlers of New Haven, Conn., recognized the mastiff's value as a watchdog by importing dogs from England to guard their settlement.

The English mastiff should not be confused with the bull mastiff, which was developed from crossing the English mastiff with the bulldog. The bull mastiff weighs from 100 to 115 pounds, whereas the English mastiff often weighs up to 200 pounds or even more.

Practically all mastiffs are fawn colored, the shade ranging from red to silver and apricot. Some are a dark fawn brindle. All have black masks and ears.

A few weeks ago we had the opportunity to get acquainted with both a young English mastiff and a fairly mature bull mastiff. The young mastiff has the gentleness of expression and the affectionate nature that should be found in a typical specimen of the breed. The standard says that a good English mastiff should be a combination of good nature, grandeur, courage, and docility. We couldn't imagine this dog losing its head, its desire for human company, or its courage.

Colonel Titus, one of the leading authorities on the breed, has this to say about its characteristics: Mastiffs are level-headed, intelligent, and use sober judgment. They are devoted to their master, his family, his property, and above all to his children. Other outstanding traits are their ready obedience, their faithful performance of whatever task or duty to which they have been assigned, their calm courage, their dignity, and their chivalry—as manifested in their extreme solicitude for the aged, the feeble, for children, and even in their attitude toward smaller dogs.

Early in 1813 the British invaded northern Ohio. They penetrated as far as the Sandusky river when, on Sept. 10, their fleet on Lake Erie was beaten by Commodore Perry and they were compelled for safety sake to beat a hasty retreat not only from Ohio but from Michigan as well. They withdrew up the Thames river toward Lake Ontario. An American army under Gen. Harrison, hero of Tippecanoe, was taken aboard Perry's ships on Lake Erie and landed near Malden in Canada, from where it pursued the British and defeated them at the battle of the Thames on Oct. 5. Tecumseh, colorful Indian ally of the British, was killed in this action. The British forces in the area, consisting mostly of Indians, were completely dispersed. The victories of Perry and Harrison gave to the Americans virtually all the territory west of the Niagara peninsula.

Meanwhile an American army under Gen. Dearborn had been mobilizing near Lake Champlain with the object of striking at Montreal. The operations of this force, however, were apathetic. In November Dearborn marched a sizable army from Plattsburg to the Canadian border. There his militia refused to leave their country, and they were sent back to Plattsburg. Late in the year the British wrested control of Lake Ontario from Commodore Chauncey after a series of minor fights.

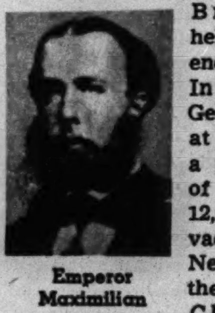
The aforementioned victories of Harrison and Perry served to counteract the failure of Gen. Wilkinson's expedition from Sackett's Harbor down the St. Lawrence river toward Montreal in October and November of 1813. They also counteracted the defeat of 2,000 Americans by 800 Canadians at Chrysler's Field. Wilkinson had aimed to take Montreal.

The defeat of Napoleon in the spring of 1814 liberated veteran British troops for service in America, altho at the beginning of the year the Americans still retained the initiative on the Canadian frontier thru superiority of numbers. Moreover, the American troops now were disciplined. Thruout the war, it should be borne in mind, the British had control of the sea, and were able to blockade the American coast with more than a fair degree of success, despite the amazing victories of American frigates over those of the British.

In June, Gen. Brown with 3,500 men was ready to penetrate the Niagara peninsula. Opposing him there were about 3,000 British. On July 5 Winfield Scott, one of Brown's brigadiers, won a victory at Chippewa. Three weeks later occurred the bloody battle of Lundy's Lane, in which Brown was victorious. Yet at the end of this campaign the United States held no important post on the Canadian side. The constant arrival of British troops from oversea now permitted the enemy to take the offensive.



Emperor Maximilian

The coastal region of northern Maine was seized by the British and held until the end of the war. In August, Sir George Prevost, at the head of a picked army of close to 12,000 men, invaded upper New York by the way of Lake Champlain, and the same month a British squadron ascended the Patuxent river and landed 4,000 regulars under Gen. Ross, who proceeded with little opposition to march to Washington and burn the city. Ross ordered one detachment of soldiers to burn the capitol and another the White House. Ross himself accompanied the latter detachment, and a messenger from the French minister, sent to ask protection for French property, found Gen. Ross himself piling up furniture in the White House drawing room preparatory to setting it on fire. This expedition was later repulsed at Baltimore and it finally sailed for the Gulf of Mexico, where in December it attempted without success to take New Orleans.

Prevost's army in the meantime had made its way to Plattsburg, but on Sept. 11 the brilliant naval victory of Lieut. Macdonough on Lake Champlain caused it to abandon its assault on Plattsburg and begin a retreat to Canada. The troops embarked without pressure and were not pursued.

While these events were transpiring in the north there was action in the extreme south. Gen. Jackson, who had been placed in command of an army in the south in May, 1814, spent the following summer months in subduing the Creek Indians in Alabama. Whereupon he invaded Spanish Florida territory with an unauthorized expedition and seized Fort Barrancas at Pensacola. The British had been using Pensacola as a naval base.

The War of 1812 was very unpopular in many parts of New England, and in 1814 the states of that area sent delegates to a convention at Hartford, Conn. In a series of resolutions the convention denounced conscription for the federal army as unconstitutional and proposed seven amendments to the constitution which would govern the collection of taxes and raising of troops, prohibit the federal government from ordering embargoes for more than 60 days, and prevent a declaration of war without approval of two-thirds of both houses of congress. In case these constitutional amendments were not voted, the convention resolved that the legislatures of the various states should appoint delegates to another convention to meet in June.

Historians think there is little doubt that it was the intention of the New England states to secede if their proposals were not accepted. While the representatives of the convention were in Washington, however, the failure of the Prevost expedition against Plattsburg, unfavorable conditions in Europe, and the terrible cost of maintaining ing a blockade against the United States prompted the British to seek a peace.

The news of this arriving in Washington caused the delegates from the Hartford convention to sneak away with their demands for constitutional amendments.

The peace negotiations between the American and British commissions were in progress for months before the treaty was finally signed at Ghent on Dec. 24, 1814. In the beginning the British were contemptuous of the Americans, demanding rights to the Great Lakes, the Mississippi river and proposing to examine the American title to the entire Louisiana purchase area. The Americans were roundly scored for interfering with Spanish rights in Florida. It was clear that if the Americans had not won some impressive victories, especially on the Great Lakes, we would have had union then. But the American commissioners held out. In the final peace neither England nor America got new territory, but the new United States was freed of constant European threats. The question of British rights to navigate the Mississippi river was completely dismissed, altho the British held everything in that area north of the Illinois river until the end of the war.

On Jan. 8, 1815, 15 days after the treaty of peace had been signed, the British were overwhelmingly defeated at New Orleans by Gen. Jackson. The British Gens. Pakenham and Gibbs were killed and 2,000 of their force of 10,000 veteran troops were lost, but the Americans in this engagement lost only about 70.

After this disaster the British reëmbarked in their ships. Sailing away, they stopped to reduce some minor American forts on Mobile bay in February before they learned that peace had been signed in the previous December. Gen. Lambert, who directed the reëmbarkation at New Orleans after the deaths of Pakenham and Gibbs, was promoted and decorated for getting his force away.

Debts owed by the government of Mexico provided an excuse for the third invasion of North America by Europeans at the time of the Civil war. When the Mexican congress on July 17, 1861, suspended the payment of interest on these debts for two years France and Great Britain severed relations with the American republic. This fitted in with the designs of Napoleon III. of France, who sought not only control of Mexico but outright annexation of the state of Sonora, from which he hoped to obtain rich mineral resources for his empire. Urged on by his Spanish wife, Eugénie, and the monarchists of Mexico, many of whom were in exile, the French emperor plotted to establish French hegemony in the Latin Americas.

An agreement was signed in London Oct. 30, providing for joint intervention in Mexico by Great Britain, France, and Spain.

In mid-December Vera Cruz was occupied by a detachment of Spanish troops. Soon afterward the French army began arriving, the first expedition sailing from Toulon with 2,400 soldiers and 250 horses and landing in Vera Cruz between Jan. 7 and Feb. 16, 1862. Thereafter additional troops from France arrived from time to time, the total number thus transported across the sea to operate on American soil being 38,493. The Atlantic base for the invaders was Havana, in the West Indies, where troop ships were supplied en route to Mexico, and where the French, Spanish, and British commanders met to plan their campaign. Spanish troops landed in Mexico during the course of the invasion numbered 7,000. The British landed only 700 marines.

Not a great while after the initial landings early in 1862 the invaders prevailed upon the Mexican government to allow them to proceed inland pending a claim conference to be held in April. The reason given for this move inland was the prevalence of disease at Vera Cruz. Incidentally, at this time the European nations involved in the invasion recognized the government of President Juárez.

The determination of the French to press their claims strongly and their inclination to mix in Mexican politics finally caused Great Britain and Spain to withdraw from the enterprise in April, 1862. In the meantime French troops had continued to pour into Mexico, and a decision was reached on the part of the French to engage actively in military operations. Advancing from near the coast, the French were checked on May 5 by the Mexican Gens. Zaragoza and Diaz at the battle of Cinco de Mayo at Puebla. The French army, by this time more than 30,000 strong, spent the early part of the winter at Orizaba, and on Feb. 17, 1863, under Forey, renewed its advance. It reduced Puebla and on June 7 entered Mexico City, which had been abandoned by the Juárez government.

A provisional government of Mexican conservatives thereupon was set up. It adopted monarchy and offered the crown to the man whom Napoleon had chosen—Maximilian of Austria, brother of Emperor Francis Joseph. Maximilian renounced his Hapsburg rights of succession and accepted the Mexican throne. He did not arrive in Mexico City, however, until June 12, 1864. By this time Gen. Bazaine was in supreme command of the French forces in Mexico. Maximilian found the greater part of the country occupied by French and Mexican reactionary troops. The Juárez government had set up its capital at Paso del Norte on the Rio Grande.

Maximilian has been described by historians as an honest, upright man, possessed of a strong desire to improve conditions in Mexico. At least, he was not stupid. He had not been the ruler of Mexico long when he saw that he was only a pawn of a political faction, backed up by foreign troops.

His army met with some success. In February, 1865, it drove Diaz out of Oaxaca. When Juárez and his followers were whipped in open battle they resorted to guerrilla warfare.

Maximilian made his gravest blunder on Oct. 3, 1865, when he issued a decree authorizing court martial and summary execution of any person apprehended in open rebellion against his government. This was known as the Black Decree. It was the basis of a murder charge against him when he himself was tried.

The triumph of the United States over the Confederacy in 1865 spelled the doom of Napoleon's Mexican dream and the puppet rule of Maximilian. The United States government sent an ultimatum to Napoleon, which obtained from him a promise to withdraw his forces from Mexico. Napoleon felt then that he needed the troops back in Europe, being alarmed by the German aggressions against Austria.

In vain Maximilian tried to retain his hold. His wife, Charlotte, went back to France to appeal to Napoleon to help her husband. She also appealed to the pope. Meeting with failure, she went insane.

The last of the French troops were withdrawn from Mexico in 1867. Between Feb. 18 and March 11 of that year nearly 29,000 went aboard ships bound for France. No effort was made to molest them. Maximilian was left "holding the bag."

Diaz advanced north to Mexico City, while Juárez besieged Maximilian in Queretaro. Attempting to flee, Maximilian was captured on May 15. On June 19, 1867, he died before a firing squad—a brave man when the end came.

EVERY AMATEUR should be familiar with the many practical uses to which duplicate negatives can be put. He should also know about the new direct copy film which enables one to make duplicate negatives in a single step without the need of first making a positive and then copying it to arrive at a duplicate negative.

You may not have thought of it, but there are many instances in which a duplicate negative would be extremely handy. Most frequent of these is when a negative is so valuable to you that you are afraid it could become damaged when prints are made from it. The answer is to prepare a duplicate for working purposes and file the original in a safe spot.

Duplicate negatives are the thing to use when a friend wants to borrow a negative for making prints, when you must enter the negative along with the print in a contest, or when the sale of a picture depends on furnishing the purchaser with a negative.

The principal purpose of making duplicate negatives is, however, to improve the picture Whenever you want to try intensification or reduction, but don't want to risk spoiling your only negative, make a duplicate and do all the work on this. The same is true about retouching. If you use a miniature camera your negative is so small that it will permit only very little retouching. But you can easily prepare an enlarged duplicate negative. Finally, when you make the duplicate negative you can improve a flat original negative by controlling the amount of exposure and development you give the duplicate. Duplicate negatives are very often considerably better than the originals from which they were made.

If you are not satisfied with the contrast in your original negative you can change it considerably by making a duplicate negative.

The making of duplicate negatives has been greatly simplified by a new so-called direct copy film which was recently introduced. The traditional method of making duplicate negatives calls for two steps. First you make from the original negative a positive print on film, either by contact or by enlargement. Then you make another print from this positive in order to arrive at a duplicate negative.

The new direct copy film eliminates the need of making an intermediate positive. You print your negative on this film and get a negative the first time. But how is it possible that you get a negative instead of a positive when you make a print on this film?

The answer is that the direct copy film has been "solarized." It has been exposed to a very strong light at the factory, and this has caused a reversal of tone values. If you develop a sheet of this film as it comes from the box it will be completely black. If you first make a print on it you will get an exact duplicate of your original. A print from a negative will give you a negative, and if you make a print from a positive transparency you will get a positive.

Duplicate negatives can be made on direct copy film either by the contact method or by enlargement. The film is relatively slow; therefore if you make enlargements on it you must either give long exposures or use a strong flood bulb in the enlarger. If your duplicate negative turns out too dark, the exposure you gave was insufficient. If it is too light, you have overexposed. As you see, the effect is just the opposite of what you get when using ordinary film or paper.

The direct copy film can be developed under a safelight. You can check development by inspection, but you should not try to adjust the density of the copy negative by giving it a shorter or longer development. The density should be controled by giving the proper exposure, and if you want to avoid a waste of film it is best to cut up one sheet in test strips, using it in the same manner as you use test strips of paper.

New Equipment

For names of manufacturers who produce these items send stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Know Your Camera," Equipment Review Department, care Graphic Section, The Chicago Tribune. Be sure to mention serial number of item.

271 Washing prints promises to be less of a nuisance with a new washing device which permits the water to flow in a straight line across both sides of your prints. It incorporates a new washing principle and is supposed to give quick hypo elimination. The 11x14-inch size costs $5.95, the 8x10 size $2.95.

272 If you have difficulties in selecting the proper film for any given subject you can learn much from an 80-page booklet on this subject published by a film manufacturer, even tho it discusses only this manufacturer's brands. The price is 25 cents.

273 A clever new loose leaf album contains individual envelopes made of transparent plastic. In each envelope there is a sheet of black album paper and a strip of white paper for titles. The envelopes are perforated and fit in an album. The albums are available in sizes up to 11x14 inches.

BOMBS

of fuses in one case. In this war fuses are always countersunk in the sides of bombs, not in the noses. This is to prevent damage on striking. The Germans make their mines with all three fuses so that they may be used on any desired mission merely by connecting the desired kind of fuse and dropping the missile. British practices follow the Germans closely.

These mines are used in all shallow waters. They are not anchored like the old moored mine. They are dropped into harbors, canals, dock pools, and similar places where a ship might be expected.

The main explosives used in all bombs and mines is a relatively inert substance—yellow and resinlike, brittle and crystalline. It is evidently poured in when in a molten state, probably warm, and afterward sets to the consistency found. When outside the case it can be burned without danger, and it can only be exploded by the shock of another explosion alongside of it.

To accomplish this a fulminate of mercury cap plus three half-pound wet and two half-pound dry guncotton exploders are used. These are placed thru the center of the bomb from the side in a two-inch diameter hole. These units form the exploder, the shock of which sets off the main explosive.

Fuses used to strike off the fulminate of mercury are of several types. One can be set to explode instantly or up to seven seconds after striking merely by screwing the cap in the same way a gunner sets the time fuse of a shell. The delayed action fuse has a clockwork mechanism which actuates the detonator. This can be set to any time—up to eight days in the largest bombs. These long-time clocks are beautifully made, full of jewels and of superb workmanship, according to the bomb experts who have found them in unexploded bombs.

Some of the larger bombs have a ring fuse. This is a projecting metal skirt on the nose. When the bomb hits this skirt is driven back and instantly explodes it. This is to assure full surface blast while the bomb is standing up.

A second article by Mr. Johnstone will discuss bomb sights. German methods of bomb aiming, etc.

THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS

By THOMAS HOOD

"Drowned! Drowned!"—Hamlet.

One more unfortunate,
Weary of breath,
Rashly importunate,
Gone to her death!

Take her up tenderly,
Lift her with care!
Fashioned so slenderly—
Young, and so fair!

Look at her garments
Clinging like cerements,
Whilst the wave constantly
Drips from her clothing;
Take her up instantly,
Loving, not loathing!

Touch her not scornfully!
Think of her mournfully,
Gently and humanly—
Not of the stains of her;
All that remains of her
Now is pure womanly.

Make no deep scrutiny
Into her mutiny,
Rash and undutiful;
Past all dishonor,
Death has left on her
Only the beautiful.

Still, for all slips of hers—
One of Eve's family—
Wipe those poor lips of hers,
Oozing so clammily.

Loop up her tresses
Escaped from the comb—
Her fair auburn tresses—
Whilst wonderment guesses
Where was her home?

Who was her father?
Who was her mother?
Had she a sister?
Had she a brother?
Or was there a dearer one
Still, and a nearer one
Yet, than all other?

Alas! for the rarity
Of Christian charity
Under the sun!
O! it was pitiful!
Near a whole city full,
Home she had none.

Sisterly, brotherly,
Fatherly, motherly
Feelings had changed;
Love, by harsh evidence,
Thrown from its eminence;
Even God's providence
Seeming estranged.

Where the lamps quiver
So far in the river,
With many a light
From window and casement,
From garret to basement,
She stood, with amazement,
Houseless by night.

The bleak wind of March
Made her tremble and shiver;
But not the dark arch,
Or the black flowing river;
Mad from life's history,
Glad to death's mystery
Swift to be hurled—
Anywhere, anywhere
Out of the world!

In she plunged boldy—
No matter how coldly
The rough river ran—
Over the brink of it!
Picture it, think of it!
Dissolute man!
Lave in it, drink of it,
Then, if you can!

Take her up tenderly,
Lift her with care!
Fashioned so slenderly—
Young, and so fair!

Ere her limbs, frigidly,
Stiffen too rigidly,
Decently, kindly,
Smooth and compose them;
And her eyes, close them,
Staring so blindly!
Dreadfully staring
Thru muddy impurity,
As when with the daring
Last look of despairing
Fixed on futurity.

Perishing gloomily,
Spurred by contumely,
Cold inhumanity,
Burning insanity,
Into her rest!
Cross her hands humbly,
As if praying dumbly,
Over her breast!

Owning her weakness,
Her evil behavior,
And leaving, with meekness,
Her sins to her Savior!

FUN IN THE SUN

"You'd better be sensible about this sunglass wearing business."

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY
(Copyright: 1941: News Syndicate, Inc.)

"THE GIRL who wears glasses" is legion today, and no longer is her worry whether the boys will see her home or let her find her own way. It's of sunglasses, however, we'd like to speak today. You'd better be sensible about this sunglass wearing, girls and women, because eye fatality reports are pouring in.

Hollywood stars are credited with starting the sunglass vogue, not so much because they wished to disguise themselves from curious fans, but because they realize fully the value of clear, sparkling eyes, unfurrowed brows, and no crows' feet at the corners of the eyes to impede box office progress.

An executive of an optical company says that sunglasses must be as finely ground and polished as regular lenses. True, they cost more than the kind one picks up at random for a dime or a quarter. The price range for good sunglasses is from $1.95 to $7, depending upon the type of lens and frame. But the initial expenditure will more than pay for itself, we are assured by our authority.

The cheap type of sunglass may have so many defects that vision may be seriously impaired. Well made sunglasses are subjected to many inspections, so that they will be optically as well as mechanically perfect. They are designed to protect the eyes from glare. Here are a few points to bear in mind about sunglasses, offered by our guest expert:

"Don't take chances on hurting your eyes by subjecting them to glare. Good sunglasses give you clearer vision and relax and rest the eyes.

"For wear in the summer at the beach or in the mountains, green sunglasses are best. For sharp vision wear amber lenses, which cut thru haze. Specifications for the army and navy air corps call for a type of greenish tinted lenses, because they not only eliminate ultraviolet and infrared rays but do not distort colors.

"Don't wear your sunglasses indoors, for they impair your sight because of the additional strain that is put upon your eyes.

"Sunglasses are not for use in night driving. They are actually dangerous in such an instance, because of the amount of light that is cut out."

CAMP GRANT

By LLOYD WENDT

ONE OF THE army's most important induction and training centers is at Camp Grant, Illinois, proclaimed by its officers the most beautiful army camp in the country. Situated on the banks of the Rock river four and one-half miles south of Rockford, Camp Grant occupies the site of the famous World war training center. All of the buildings are new, however, having been constructed within the last 18 months at a cost of $8,000,000.

The camp has an average population of 11,000 officers and men, but the personnel is constantly changing, for draftees inducted there are sent to other camps thruout the country after five days of preliminary training. The medical units are assembled there and are assigned to regiments about the country after a stiff 13-week training course.

When it is operating at full capacity the Camp Grant reception center will handle 22,000 men a month, or 264,000 a year. In addition it will train 28,000 men a year for service with the medical corps. The third unit of the camp is a station hospital of 500 beds. The 366 barracks and buildings now completed occupy 191 acres, and the entire camp, including the huge drill grounds and space for maneuvers, consists of 3,209 acres.

Men entering the medical replacement center come under a twofold program. They are to be trained as soldiers, and they are to be developed as specialists for work in the medical corps. During the first two weeks recruits are watched closely, interviewed, and classified for assignment to jobs for which they seem particularly qualified.

At the end of two weeks special instruction is added to soldiering duties. Bed making, cleaning, ward management, and elementary nursing are taught to those assigned to the hospital class. Field men are taught the proper ways to handle stretchers, how to give first aid, treatment of gas cases, and communication in combat. Sanitary workers, cooks, clerks, ambulance drivers, and others get special instruction.

Camp Grant is commanded by Gen. John M. Willis, medical officer formerly attached to the medical field service school at Carlisle barracks, Pennsylvania. Most of the officers at camp are doctors who received their military training at Carlisle barracks. Camp Grant is one of the two medical replacement centers in the country, the other being located at Camp Lee, Virginia.

Recreational facilities at Camp Grant are said to be better than average. There is a baseball diamond, and a football field is being prepared for fall. Each unit has its own facilities for volleyball and pingpong. There are three service clubs for enlisted men on the grounds, and girls are brought out from Rockford for weekly post dances.

In Rockford a school building with a swimming pool has been turned over to army men, and a downtown service club provides reading, writing, and game rooms.

In addition to the army men at Camp Grant there are 61 nurses on duty at the station hospital. One of them, Miss Elizabeth Fitch of Winnetka, is a first lieutenant in the army, and the others are second lieutenants.

Camp Grant, named for Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, Civil war commander of Union troops and later President of the United States, was established as a World war training camp Sept. 5, 1917. Before it was closed April 4, 1924, more than 250,000 troops had been trained there, and 250,000 were mustered out from that point. During the World war the camp included 1,800 buildings built at a cost of nearly $15,000,000, and in July, 1918, it had a peak population of 50,300 soldiers.

Wake Beauty—bring new Loveliness to your Skin—

Go on the Camay "Mild-Soap" Diet!

Try this exciting idea in beauty care—praised by so many lovely brides—based on the advice of skin specialists.

"I was simply thrilled to notice the difference in my skin after I'd been on the 'Mild-Soap' Diet only a little while," says this beautiful bride, Mrs. H. J. Wagen, Milwaukee, Wis. "I've told all my friends, and those who have tried it are simply delighted! Every woman who wants a lovelier skin should try the Camay 'Mild-Soap' Diet."

YOU can be lovelier! You can hear compliments about your smooth, radiant skin! That's the thrilling promise a change to a "Mild-Soap" Diet can bring you.

How many women who might be lovely have a "sleeping beauty skin"—a skin shadowed over by improper cleansing. And how many others use a beauty soap not as mild as a beauty soap should be.

"I'm devoted to Camay—and the 'Mild-Soap' Diet," says Mrs. Wagen, whose peach-bloom skin certainly qualifies her to speak as an expert.

Put your skin, too—on a "Mild-Soap" Diet

Mrs. Wagen is right—because Camay is a milder beauty soap, milder by actual test than ten other popular beauty soaps tested. Skin specialists advise a fine mild soap. That's why we say—"Go on the 'Mild-Soap' Diet."

Change today to the regular routine of a "Mild-Soap" Diet. Twice a day—for 30 days—give your skin Camay's gentle care. Don't miss a day. For it's the constant care—the day to day routine that reveals the full benefit of Camay's greater mildness.

Follow the advice of this charming bride. Get Camay today, start with the "Mild-Soap" Diet tonight! How stimulated—how much fresher your skin feels even after one treatment. And in a few short weeks you can expect to see a cleaner, more appealing skin—a lovelier you.

THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN

Go on the Camay "MILD-SOAP" DIET

✓ Camay is milder by actual recorded test—in tests against ten other popular beauty soaps Camay was milder than any of them!

Work Camay's milder lather over your skin, paying special attention to the nose, base of the nostrils and chin. Rinse and follow with 30 seconds of cold splashings. Notice how fresh your skin feels—how clean and stimulated!

Then, while you sleep, the tiny pore openings are free to function for natural beauty. In the morning—one more quick session with Camay and your face is ready for your make-up. Follow this simple routine faithfully night and morning!

SALAD DAYS

Believe it or not, there's ham and eggs in this orange salad bowl. It's a cool luncheon.

Two refreshing winey drinks for warm weather are white wine and soda and red wine lemonade.

By MARY MEADE

WHEN summer heat is oppressive no cook likes to think of really cooking, and since nothing peps up a warm-weather appetite more than a cooling salad, she's fortunate in not being obliged to cook. Salads are simple whether they're the crisp vegetable kind or consist of chilly fruits.

One of the most soothing of warm-day luncheon salads is an orange salad bowl made like this:

CHEF'S ORANGE SALAD BOWL

(Serves six)

2 cups sliced oranges
2 cups mixed salad greens
½ cup cooked ham slivers
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
½ cup diced celery
½ cup lemon French dressing

Toss chilled ingredients together lightly. For greens choose from lettuce, romaine, watercress, chicory, spinach.

LEMON FRENCH DRESSING

3 tablespoons lemon juice
6 tablespoons salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika

Beat or shake thoroly before using. For variation add 1 teaspoon of Worcestershire sauce, 1 tablespoon ketchup, or 1 teaspoon horseradish.

• • •

On a hot evening when friends drop in, cool them off with a wine lemonade or wine and soda, a very easily prepared drink. The red wine lemonade is beautiful to look at as well as refreshing to sip.

RED WINE LEMONADE

(Serves four)

Juice of 2 lemons
Sugar to taste
Cold water
Shaved ice
1½ cups claret, Burgundy, or any dry red wine

Prepare lemonade in your usual way. Fill tall glasses a fourth full of shaved ice. Add lemonade to fill glasses two-thirds full. Pour about six tablespoons of the red wine on top of the lemonade. This can be done without mixing the wine thru the lemonade if the wine is poured slowly over the back of the bowl of a spoon.

WHITE WINE AND SODA

(One serving)

6 tablespoons hock, sauterne, Riesling or any dry white wine
Shaved ice
Chilled sparkling water
Mint leaves or lemon peel

Fill glasses a third full of ice. Pour wine over ice. Add sparkling water to fill glass and garnish with a sprig of mint or a twist of lemon peel.

If you'd like a recipe for a delicious Burgundy and blackberry punch to serve 30, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Tribune and it will be mailed immediately.

IT'S YOUR VACATION, SKEEZIX. MAKE THE MOST OF IT.
IT'S SWELL JUST TO BE HOME, UNCLE WALT, WHERE YOU AND I CAN TALK LIKE WE USED TO.
–AND WE USED TO PITCH HORSE SHOES.
ALL RIGHT, I'LL TAKE YOU ON.
AND ANOTHER THING I'D LIKE TO DO IS DROP A HOOK INTO THE CREEK WHERE YOU AND I USED TO FISH.
I HAVEN'T BEEN THERE SINCE YOU LEFT HOME. LET'S DO IT.
I CAN SEE YOU HAVEN'T. THERE ARE MORE FISHWORMS HERE THAN EVER.
THEY'VE BEEN JUST WAITING AROUND FOR YOUR VACATION, SKEEZIX.
TWO MEN CAN GET CLOSER TOGETHER WITH FISH POLES IN THEIR HANDS THAN IN ANY OTHER WAY. WE SHOULD DO IT EVERY YEAR.
ALL RIGHT, UNCLE WALT. IT'S A DATE.
IT SURELY IS A REST AFTER THE TOUGH SIX MONTHS I'VE HAD AT THE OFFICE.
DOING THIS YOU CAN COMPLETELY RELAX. WE TAKE OUR RECREATIONS TOO STRENUOUSLY, SKEEZIX.
IT CERTAINLY IS MORE RESTFUL THAN GOLF OR TENNIS.
YES. THE SECRET OF THIS IS TO BE CALM AND GET YOURSELF INTO A RECEPTIVE MOOD. FROM THEN ON, IT'S UP TO THE FISH.
I DON'T SUPPOSE ANYONE HAS CAUGHT ANY FISH HERE SINCE THE GOOD OLD DAYS.
THAT'S NEITHER HERE NOR THERE. IT'S THE FISHING THAT'S IMPORTANT– NOT THE FISH.

3 SMART GIRLS SIMPLIFY WASHDAY
I'VE STOPPED PRE-SOAKING BEFORE WASHING
I'VE STOPPED TIRESOME RUBBING
I'VE STOPPED BLEACHING MY CLOTHES
OXYDOL
RICH SAFE SPEEDY SOAP

and Clothes Come Snowy White

NO reason now for all the extra trouble of soaking clothes before you wash them. Not with today's Oxydol in your washer.

Next washday, just put the clothes through the washer—and rinse!

You see, Oxydol's famous soaking action draws out dirt while the machine is running. Yes, it dissolves dirt gently, bit by bit! You can count on a wash as white as snow! As bright as tulips!

Today's Oxydol is different. It has an extra ingredient most soaps just don't have. So efficient Oxydol washes up to twice as many clothes as the same amount of many well-known laundry soaps. Cup for cup, makes up to 3 times the suds, washes shades whiter than a whole group of package soaps.

So next washday, don't pre-soak at all, except for the occasional piece which may need special treatment. Pre-soaking just isn't necessary—not with today's Oxydol.

Even "Dirty" Spots Come Clean

HAVE you had to do a lot of tiresome rubbing to get clothes clean? Especially collars, cuffs and worn-in dirt? Well save yourself all that hard rubbing—the Oxydol way.

Today's Oxydol, with its extra ingredient, is an amazingly rich soap. So rich it gets dirty clothes shades whiter than a whole group of well-known soaps—as much as 9 to 11 shades by scientific Tintometer measure!

So even with "tough spots" just wet them—work in a little extra Oxydol—and throw them right into the machine. That way, see how things come out sparkling clean, without need for further rubbing—

That way you save yourself so much unnecessary hard work! Washday's so much quicker and easier—and so much easier on your hands.

Clothes Keep White Amazingly

HERE'S another reason you should change to Oxydol—the way it helps keep that snowy, new-white look. Gently and safely—without bleaching. If your clothes get grayer and older looking, one big reason is your soap allows a gray deposit to accumulate in fabrics.

But Oxydol has an extra ingredient that cuts down that gray deposit without bleaching. Yes, it "pulverizes" that gray deposit—disperses it—floats it out amazingly in the rinse.

So, if you want clothes to come white and stay white, use Oxydol with the rich, extra ingredient. And while you may want to use bleach for stains or unusual pieces, you will be delighted to see how white the rest of your wash comes without it.

If You Don't Own a Washer
Try This Easy Method

Just do this: Soak 10 minutes in Oxydol suds—a few good douses—a few quick rubs—rinse, and you're through! Does it sound too easy? Try it and see how beautifully clean and white the clothes come.

A whole group of leading washing machine makers now recommend Oxydol.

MUCH SAFER—GENTLER WASHES
Clothes Last Longer—Colors Stay Bright

HERE'S safety that means money in your pocket: for clothes actually last longer washed in Oxydol—the gentle way without soaking, needless rubbing or strong bleaches. The safety of Oxydol itself is strikingly proved on washable colors. In our laundry, gay cotton prints given the equal of a whole year's washing were still fresh and bright as new pennies. Procter & Gamble.

Amazingly "SNEEZE-PROOF"
No soap of its type is more "sneeze-free" than today's Oxydol.

GOLLY! I DON'T KNOW— IT'S W-WEIRD! SAY, BULL MOOSE— HAVE YOU NOTICED HOW TERRIBLY HOT IT IS IN HERE?
YES! GROUND VERY WARM— LIKE STEAMING!
THERE'S A STREAM! THANK GOODNESS! THIS HEAT IS MAKING ME VERY THIRSTY!
YES! NOW BULL MOOSE UNDERSTAND! THIS OLD VOLCANO IS FULL OF HOT SPRINGS— MAKES GROUND HOT, AIR FULL OF STEAM— MAKES THE JUNGLE CLIMATE!
OW! THIS WATER'S ALMOST HOT!!

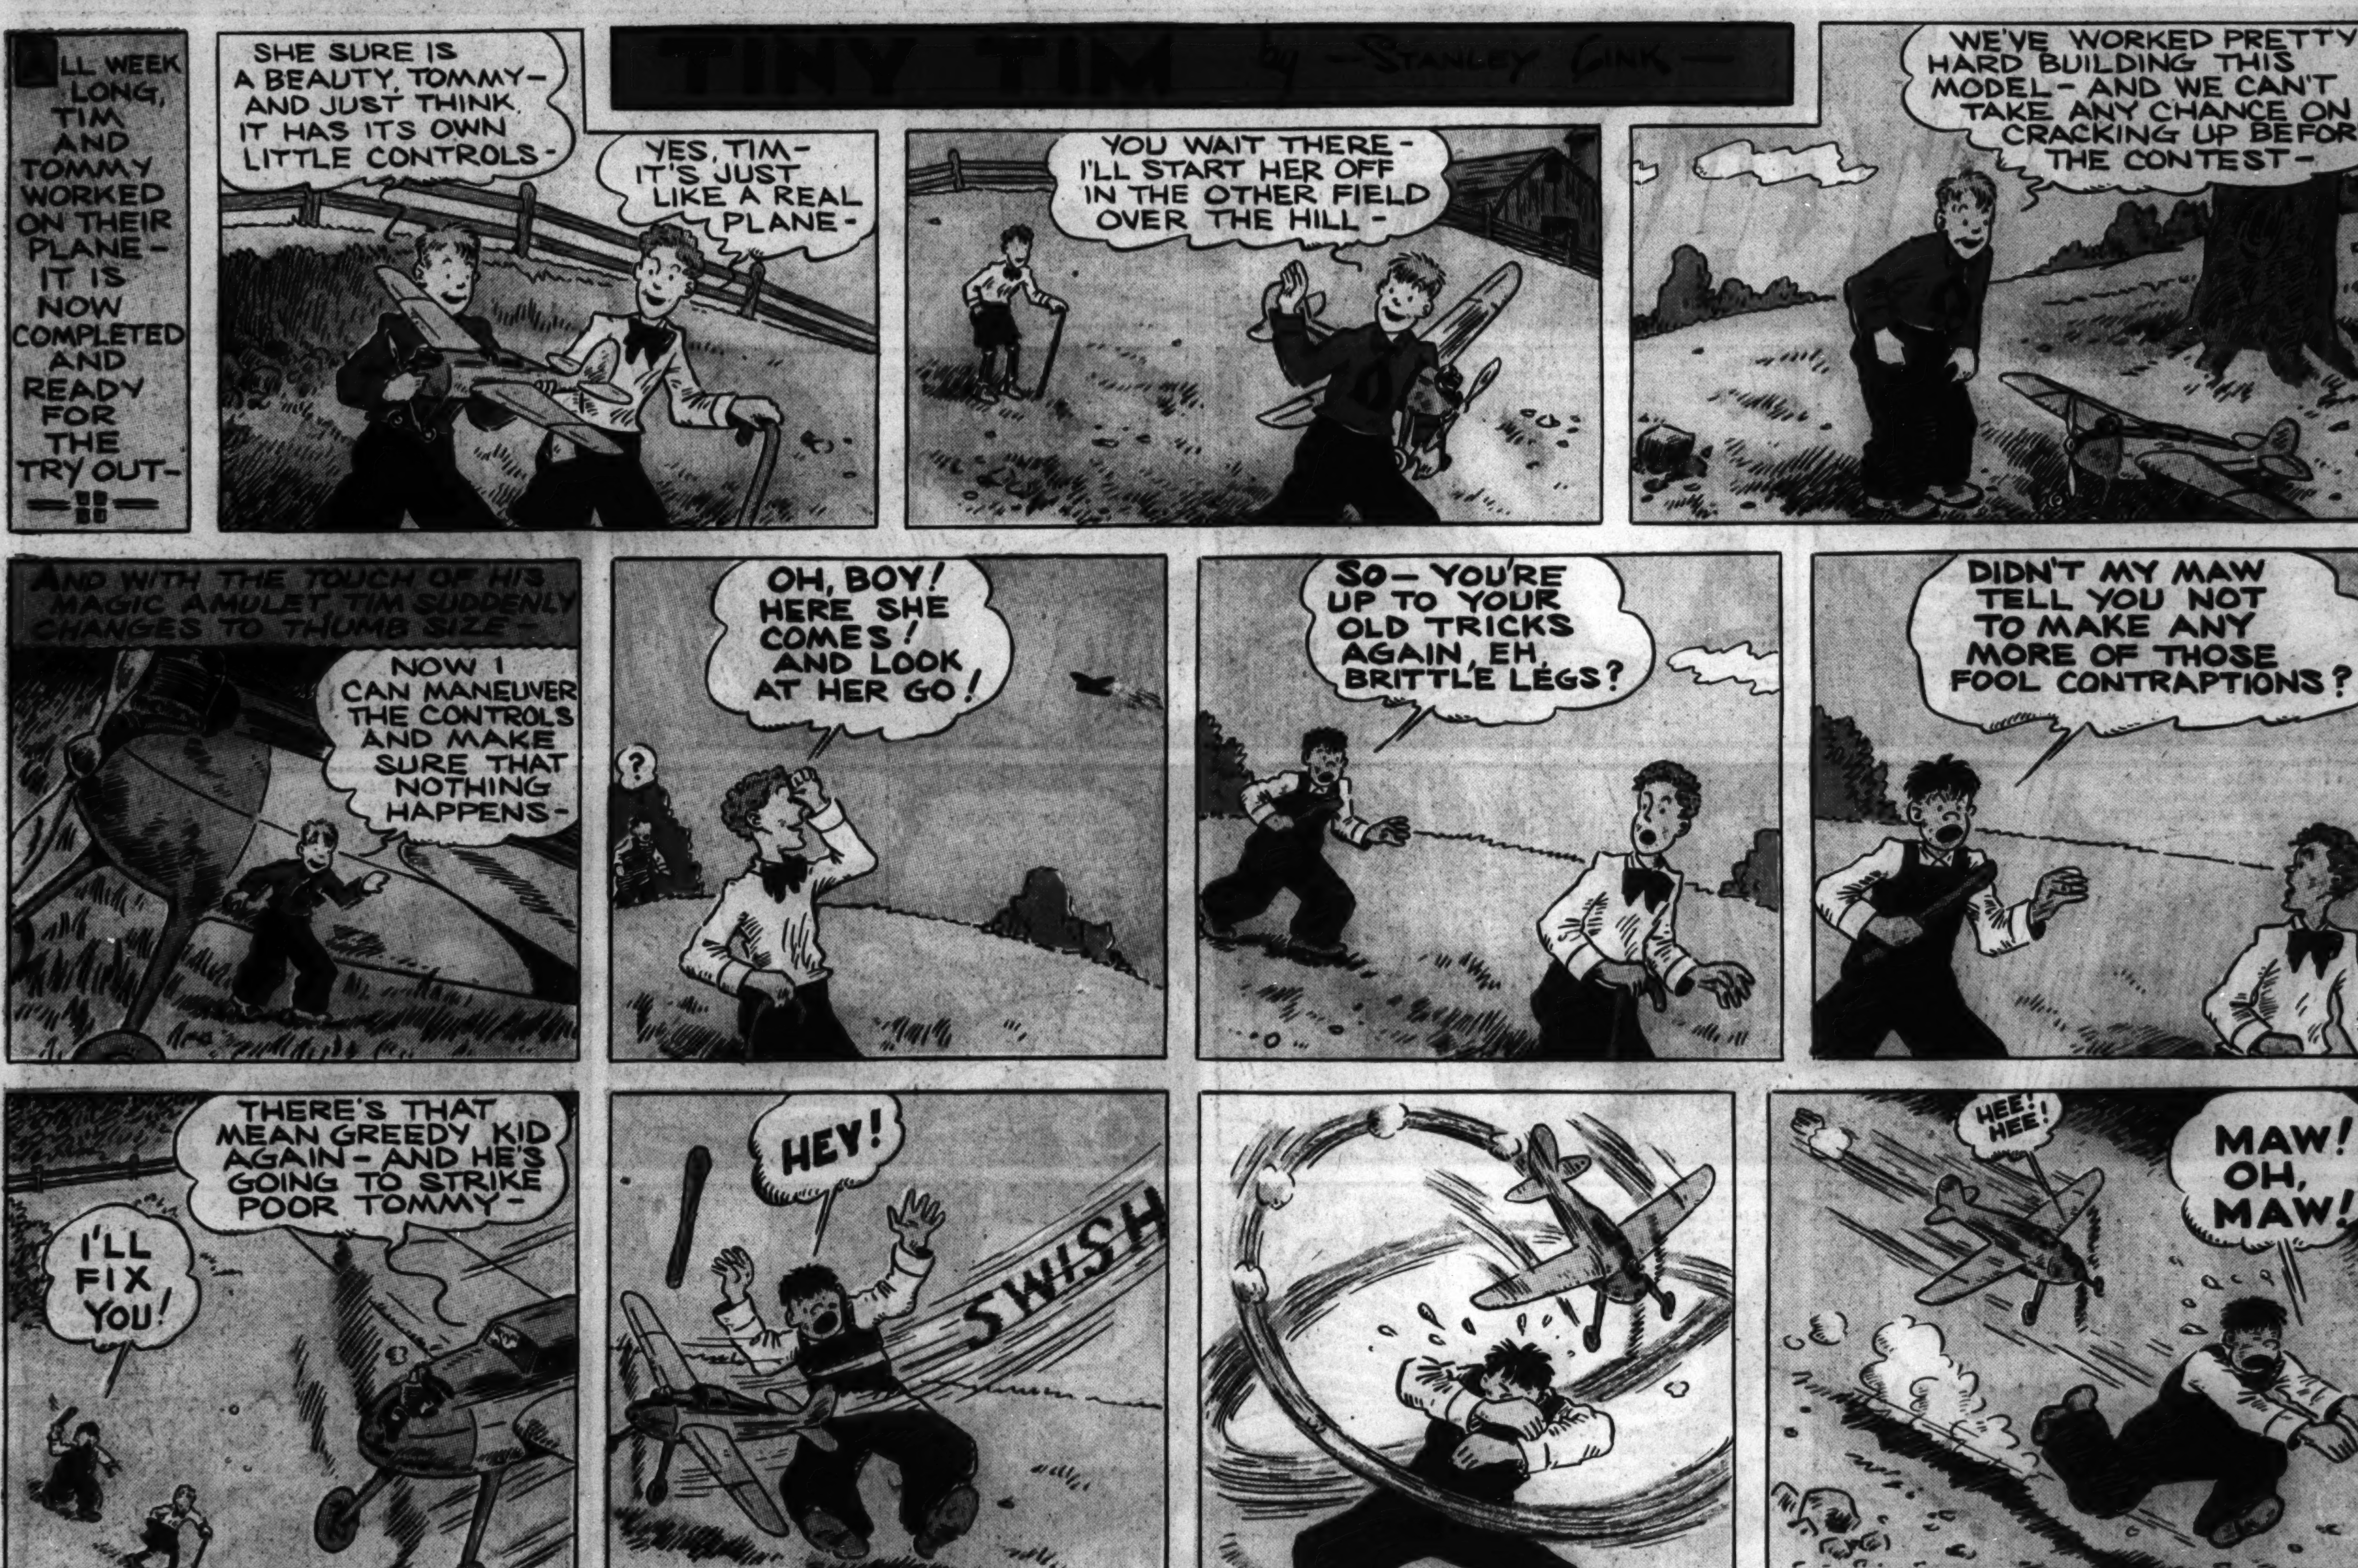
TERRY AND THE PIRATES
MILTON CANIFF
GEE, DUDE, I DIDN'T EXPECT TO FIND MISS SHERMAN OUT HERE! ...BOY! SHE'S REALLY EFFICIENT WHEN SHE'S BUSY WITH RELIEF WORK!
YAZZUH, TERRY... YOU DON'T REALLY KNOW RAVEN SHERMAN UNTIL YOU SEE HER TAKING CARE OF THESE REFUGEES!
...BUT HOW DID YOU GET INTO THIS... AND WHAT DO YOU THINK HAPPENED TO PAT RYAN AND THE DRAGON LADY WHEN WE GOT SEPARATED?
WHEN THE LITTLE CHINESE GAL TOOK YOU AWAY WE HAD A WHALE OF A SCRAP...PATRICK GOT SMACKED IN THE HEAD — AND THAT DRAGON GAL WOULDN'T LET RAVEN AND ME GET NEAR HIM! SHE TOOK HIM ALONG WHEN HER SOLDIERS RETREATED...LEAVING RAVEN AND OL' DUDE STANDING THERE WITH OUR TEETH HANGING OUT...
WE GOT BACK TO HONGKONG IN ONE OF CHOPSTICK JOE'S CARS...I'D BEEN SORTA COURTIN' RAVEN...BUT SHE SUDDENLY GOT ALL COOL AND BUSINESS-LIKE...SHE SAID SHE HAD COME TO CHINA TO HELP WAR VICTIMS AND HAD NO RIGHT TO GO AROUND ROMANCING LIKE A DEBUTANTE WITH DATE-FEVER...
...I TRIED TO TELL HER WE COULD DO A RIGHT SMART JOB OF SUGAR-FOOTIN' AFTER OFFICE HOURS... BUT SHE JUST BRUSHED ME OFF!... SHE TOLD ME IF I WANTED TO HANG AROUND I'D HAVE TO MAKE MYSELF USEFUL PILOTING HER RELIEF PLANE!... SO NOW I'M A GROCERY BOY! BLESS BESS!
GEE...DO YOU SUPPOSE SHE MINDS BURMA AND ME BUSTIN' IN HERE THIS WAY?
...SHE'S IN TALKING TO THE BLONDE JOB NOW... MAYBE WE'D BETTER GO HAVE A DISH OF TEA... IT ALWAYS MAKES ME NERVOUS WHEN TWO CHICKS GAB!... I HAVE A FEELING SOMETHING WILL END UP BEING OL' DUDE'S FAULT!
...YES, I AM QUITE COMFORTABLE, MISS SHERMAN! IT WAS NICE OF YOU TO TAKE ME IN... WITH ALL YOUR OTHER PROBLEMS!
DON'T MENTION IT, MISS... MISS-- I DIDN'T GET YOUR LAST NAME!...AND I'LL NEED IT FOR THE RECORDS!
JUST CALL ME 'BURMA'... IF YOU DON'T MIND!
OH... YES! OF COURSE, AS YOU WISH!
HAD YOU...AH... KNOWN DUDE HENNICK BEFORE HE PICKED YOU UP IN THE PLANE?
NO!..THE KID...I MEAN TERRY... KNEW HIM THROUGH A MAN NAMED PAT RYAN! I BELIEVE DUDE AND PAT WENT TO SCHOOL TOGETHER!
IS DUDE HENNICK ...AH... A PARTICULAR FRIEND OF YOURS?
MR. HENNICK PILOTS A RELIEF PLANE OUT OF THIS TOWN...THAT IS ALL!
7-20
GOOD! THEN BURMA CAN THANK HIM PERSONALLY FOR BEING SO VERY KIND!



TINY TIM by —STANLEY LINK—
ALL WEEK LONG, TIM AND TOMMY WORKED ON THEIR PLANE — IT IS NOW COMPLETED AND READY FOR THE TRY OUT—
SHE SURE IS A BEAUTY, TOMMY— AND JUST THINK, IT HAS ITS OWN LITTLE CONTROLS—
YES, TIM— IT'S JUST LIKE A REAL PLANE—
YOU WAIT THERE— I'LL START HER OFF IN THE OTHER FIELD OVER THE HILL—
WE'VE WORKED PRETTY HARD BUILDING THIS MODEL— AND WE CAN'T TAKE ANY CHANCE ON CRACKING UP BEFORE THE CONTEST—
AND WITH THE TOUCH OF HIS MAGIC AMULET TIM SUDDENLY CHANGES TO THUMB SIZE—
NOW I CAN MANEUVER THE CONTROLS AND MAKE SURE THAT NOTHING HAPPENS—
OH, BOY! HERE SHE COMES! AND LOOK AT HER GO!
SO— YOU'RE UP TO YOUR OLD TRICKS AGAIN, EH, BRITTLE LEGS?
DIDN'T MY MAW TELL YOU NOT TO MAKE ANY MORE OF THOSE FOOL CONTRAPTIONS?
THERE'S THAT MEAN GREEDY KID AGAIN— AND HE'S GOING TO STRIKE POOR TOMMY—I'LL FIX YOU!
HEY!
SWISH
HEE! HEE!

IN THE LOCAL OFFICES OF THE U.S. SECRET BUREAU WE FIND LEW LOYAL, HIS UNCLE MACK AND BETSY TRUE. INSPECTOR MACK HAS JUST RECEIVED A CALL FROM HEADQUARTERS IN WASHINGTON—
YES— OH, HELLO, CHIEF— WHAT? O.K., CHIEF, LEAVE IT TO ME
WOW! NOW WHAT'S POPPIN' UNCLE MACK?
WE JUST GOT A TIP THAT SOME FOREIGN AGENTS ARE ABOARD THE WESTERN EXPRESS AND ARE TO PULL A BIG JOB OUT WEST SOME WHERE
THE TRAIN GOES THROUGH TOWN IN ABOUT AN HOUR — WE MUST GET SOME DUDS PACKED — COME ON, KIDS — STEP ON IT
AN HOUR LATER IN A COMPARTMENT ABOARD THE WESTERN EXPRESS
WHAT DO THESE SPIES LOOK LIKE, UNCLE MACK?
THE CHIEF ONLY HAD A DESCRIPTION OF ONE OF THEM — WELL, YOU KIDS RUN ALONG AND LOOK OVER THE TRAIN IF YOU WANT TO O.K., WAIT FOR ME, LEW!
HURRY UP, BETSY—THE LAST ONE BACK TO THE OBSERVATION CAR IS A MONKEY'S AUNT!
YOU CLUMSY BRAT!! WHY DON'T YOU WATCH WHERE YOU'RE GOING?
I'M SORRY, SIR—I DIDN'T MEAN TO BUMP INTO YOU

CITY REZONING PLAN NEARLY READY

SKOKIE IN LEAD IN NORTH AREA HOME BUILDING

Suburbs in Big Jump Over 1940 Period.

Thirteen north shore suburbs accounted for more than 17 per cent of the $36,699,714 worth of construction recorded in 87 suburban towns reporting more than $100,000 in new building for the first half of 1941.

Skokie, Evanston's neighbor on the west, topped the north side list both in number and total valuation of buildings, having 161 of the area's 678 new structures with a value of $1,379,450. With few exceptions, the buildings are new homes.

Skokie not only ranked first in its own district but was second among the 87 suburbs. Gary with 364 new homes valued at $1,581,015, came first, and the adjoining community of Hammond, with 280 new homes valued at $1,317,450, was third.

North Suburbs Surveyed.

Figures are from a survey compiled by the Bell Savings and Loan association and include reports from Lincolnwood, Wilmette, Highland Park, Glenview, Evanston, Winnetka, Glencoe, Northbrook, Waukegan, Kenilworth, Deerfield, and Lake Forest.

The record show Lincolnwood as the north side's second most active building center. There were 106 new homes valued at $914,800 under construction from January to June. Wilmette and Highland Park, with 63 new homes each, may both claim 9.29 per cent of the total number of new suburban structures. Highland Park's valuation is $761,521 while Wilmette's is $727,150.

Glenview, with 71 units being built in the six month period, went over both Highland Park and Wilmette in number of new homes, but the valuation, $648,105, was under the other two suburbs.

Evanston's 58 new homes are valued at $509,450. The remaining communities, with the number of buildings and valuations, are Winnetka, 22 buildings at $391,320; Glencoe, 22 structures at $308,900; Northbrook, 28, at $232,390; Waukegan, 47, at $232,100; Kenilworth, 11, at $178,476; Deerfield, 15, at $116,427, and Lake Forest, 11, at $114,476.

Increase in City, Also.

The valuation total of $36,699,714 for the 87 suburbs in the survey is 55 per cent above the 1940 six months figure of $23,647,829. Figures within the city show a building increase, also. The 1940 half year total was $17,714,843 as compared to the 1941 six months' figure of $25,300,992, an increase of 43 per cent. The survey shows that building in suburban areas accounts for 59 per cent of all building, including Chicago, in this area.

The total number of new homes started in Chicago and suburbs from January to June, inclusive, was 5,725. There were 3,922 homes put up in the same period last year. This year's records show a 46 per cent increase in the number of homes, and a 51 per cent upturn in the value.

The suburbs issued 3,675 permits to build homes at a total estimated cost of $24,742,448. Last year, there were 2,540 homes costing $16,371,531 put up in the adjoining areas.

America First Notes

A Princeton university senior, George Baldwin, will be the speaker tomorrow evening at the meeting of Loyola chapter of the America First committee at 6519 Sheridan road. Baldwin is currently employed in the national headquarters of the America First committee.

Norman Saunders, staff speaker of the Chicago chapter, will address the Evanston chapter tomorrow night at its meeting in the Ridgeville community house, 908 Seward street. The chapter recently asked Congressman George A. Paddock to conduct a poll in the 10th congressional district to determine the sentiment of that area on America's participation in the war.

Miss Gertrude Coogan, author, will speak at a meeting of the Rogers Park chapter Wednesday night at 1618 Devon avenue.

Lincoln Park chapter will hold a massmeeting Friday in the Northside auditorium, 3730 North Clark street. Dr. John Mourant, professor of economics and philosophy at St. Xavier's college, Chicago, will be the principal speaker.

Members of the Winnetka chapter have been urged by their chairman, William S. Warfield III., to write, wire, and talk to their elected representatives and newspapers in an effort to block American participation in the war. The suggestion was made in a form letter addressed "to any thoughtful person."

Frank Pavlik, real estate broker, has turned over his office at 614 Green Bay road, Kenilworth, for the use of the America First organization in that area. Mrs. E. B. Creiger, 504 5th st., Wilmette, chairman of the present Wilmette chapter, will be in charge of the new unit, which probably will be called the Wilmette-Kenilworth chapter.

Bowen Country Club Gives Youngsters a Setting of Beauty for Their Camp Outings

Young guests at Bowen Country club, the 72 acre Hull House recreation and outing area on Sheridan road north of Waukegan, greet their hostess, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, at the entrance of Lilac cottage, the house she is occupying on the grounds this summer. Altho Mrs. Bowen purchased and endowed the club as a memorial to her husband in 1912, this is the first summer she has visited there. Camille Dorsano, Josephine Terracciano, Mike Parelli, Dorothy Lorenz, and John Terracciano, left to right standing, are an attentive audience as Mrs. Bowen describes club landmarks. Louis Menalascino, Shirley Fein, and Ralph Fontana sit down for the stories. Except for the lawns beside the buildings, Bowen's broad acres are mowed. Usually, the hay is removed, but last year the camp director, Robert Hicks, suggested that city children should know what fun it is to slide down a haystack. Accordingly, the hay was stacked, and Chicago's west side youngsters have lost no time in adopting the time honored rural sport of sliding and jumping in it.

Bowen dinner call brings 160 youngsters of all sizes and ages scurrying to the commons where Chief Oscar Washington prepares so much food that there may be, and often are, fourth and fifth helpings. Bowen meals are carefully served on small tables which are decorated with flowers. Mrs. Bowen, in presenting the club to Hull House, said that she wanted the city children to have two weeks of beauty as well as two weeks of activity out of doors. The Bowen currant patch is a popular spot each season. City girls and boys make a novelty of what country children consider a chore and pick currants by the hour. These pickers are Joe Tuminello, Leonard Falcone, Louis Gonzalez, and Camille Vacco.

Swedish Home Outing Will Draw 25,000

Twenty-five thousand persons are expected to attend the annual outing of the Swedish Societies' Old People's Home association today on the grounds of the home at Pioneer road and Grant street, Evanston. Carl R. Chindblom, former congressman and now chairman of the association board, will speak at 2:30 o'clock, and Senator C. Wayland Brooks will speak at 7 o'clock this evening. John O. Lindholm is chairman of the outing. Proceeds will be given to the old people's home.

John O. Lindholm.
[C. P. Hansen's studio.]

Mayor Ingraham of Evanston and Gunnar Morton, president of the home, will be the other speakers on the afternoon program, following an invocation by the Rev. Frederic Pamp.

Home 46 Years Old.

Taking part in the entertainment program will be the Manheim Junior Drum and Bugle corps, the Svithiod Male chorus, and the Vasa Lodge Varblommans Junior.

The home, founded 46 years ago, has been at its present location since 1909. The outing, which raises from $10,000 to $15,000 annually, is the principal source of funds for the institution, which at present has 100 residents.

The picnic committee consists of Gunnar Morton, Hjalmar Andrews, G. Arthur Holmberg, Oscar Gustafson, Gordon Berg, Julia Drezen-Frazee, Herman Olson, F. G. Anderson, Art Roberg, and John P. Friedlund.

Other Committee Members.

Others are Elmer A. Swanson, Carl B. Anderson, Nils J. Lindskoog, Mrs. Selma Johnson, Mrs. Judith Lindgren, Mrs. Jenny Anderson, Mrs. Anna M. Anderson, Hjalmar A. B. EVANSTON DRAMA CLUB OUTLINES SEASON PROGRAM

Playwright Clare Boothe and Producer Max Rheinhardt are among the speakers who will address the Drama Club of Evanston during its 1941-'42 season, Mrs. Norman S. Parker, chairman of the club's program committee, announced last week.

The season will open on Oct. 16 with Ilka Chase, stage and radio actress, speaking on "Let Us Be Gay." Harriet Allyn, a graduate of the Northwestern university school of speech, will present a series of impersonations for the December program.

Rheinhardt and Miss Boothe will appear on the January and February programs, respectively. Two monologists, Soo Young and Dorothy Crawford, will close the season with appearances before the club in March and April.

Annual Wilmette Fete to Feature Baby Parade

A baby parade again will be included this year on the Wilmette Days celebration, to be held on Wednesday and Thursday. Babies entered in the contest will compete for four prizes at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Sometimes Bowen Country club campers put down more food than tiny tummies can hold. Then they go to the little hospital, where Mrs. Jean Jacobus Austin, senior at Northwestern university medical school, nurses them back to health again. Small Joe Toledeo spent several days in the hospital eating sugar suckers in place of the man sized variety and quantity of food he'd tried to consume.

Marine Legion Post Will Install Officers Tomorrow

New officers of Marine post of the American Legion will be installed at the Hotel La Salle tomorrow night. They are Henry J. William, commander; Fred H. Wiberg, and Glenn H. Warren, vice commanders; Dr. August Pecaro, finance officer; Fred L. Cooper, sergeant at arms, and Chester A. Caleb, chaplain.

Guild to Meet.

Junior guild of the First Methodist church in Evanston will meet at the home of Mrs. Gilbert R. Knott, Wilmette, at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning for the weekly sewing session. The Service guild will meet at 9:30 o'clock the same morning at the church and again on Wednesday.

Nominate RogersPk.Legion Post Officers Tomorrow

Post officers will be nominated and delegates to the state convention will be elected at a meeting of the Rogers Park post of the American Legion Friday evening. Plans for the post carnival, to be held at Ashland and Schreiber avenues between July 22 and July 27, will also be discussed.

North Western Legion Post Elects Officers

All Outdoors Is Adventure at Bowen Club

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

When a little white haired lady strolls over the wide lawns and thru the gardens of Bowen Country club along Sheridan road north of Waukegan, dozens of sun tanned youngsters stop their play a moment to greet her. And altho she's 82 and they're decades younger, there's no constraint. For she's Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, the woman who endowed the club in 1912 and thus provided the beautiful vacation spot which thousands of west side boys and girls have enjoyed and loved in the years since. Always known to the young campers as their hostess, this is the first summer Mrs. Bowen has resided at the club.

Refugees Buy Home.

"I've gone to Bar Harbor every season for 60 years," Mrs. Bowen says, "but some refugees gave me an offer for my house, so I sold it last year. I'd been here in the spring and fall, so I thought I'd visit all summer this year."

When one is 82, a vacation within sight and sound of 160 children is an experience. Mrs. Bowen began by watching them from the windows of Lilac cottage, the green shuttered house she occupies at the club. But when she had spent a morning worrying that some 3 year olds would swallow the whistles they'd gotten from their leader or that they'd fall out of their coaster wagons or that the boys throwing green apples might get hurt—"well, then, I concluded I'd stop looking out of the windows," says she.

Visits Hull House Daily.

Mrs. Bowen, whose Astor street home is a Chicago landmark, is president of the Hull House association and goes to the famous west side settlement house each day when in Chicago. Her interest in the welfare of the children there led her to purchase the 72 acres of ravine cut woods and meadow for them. She endowed the club and set it up as a memorial to her husband who died in 1911.

One of the first things she did was to ask her own gardener to lay out

Oscar Washington, Bowen chef, is confidant as well as cook for the hundreds of youngsters who visit the club each season. He's also the most regular and most interested spectator at the games and activities. Club leaders take turns helping in Oscar's spotless kitchen. Anita Strassman, left, and Lucille Mascione are two enthusiastic assistants. Oscar serves plenty of cooking advice along with the food, and the girls think his tips may be helpful some day.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

TWELVE year old Gloria Rompf, 3232 Racine avenue, can thank Policeman Peter Krejcki of the Cragin station and his Red Cross life saving training for the fact that she is still vacationing at Fox Lake, Ill. Krejci, who lives at 5134 Wabansia avenue, rescued Gloria and Ethel Schramm of Fox Lake from drowning in that lake on July 7.

Dr. and Mrs. P. J. Cigrand, 5248 Glenwood avenue, observed their golden wedding anniversary early this month. They have resided here ever since their marriage. They have two daughters and one son, Mrs. Stella Sweeney, Mrs. Eleanor Greene, and Dr. Arthur Cigrand. There are four grandsons.

TWO north side girls, Esther Lindgren and Marjorie Roth, are among the five who were successful in a field of 45 girls competing for one year full tuition scholarships to North Park college. Miss Lindgren, a graduate of Sullivan High school, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lindgren, 2626 Lunt avenue. She plans to prepare to teach mathematics or French. Miss Roth is a graduate of Lake View High school and the daughter of Mrs. Mae Roth, 1031 Irving Park road. She intends to study medicine.

NEW ORDINANCE EXPANDS AREAS FOR RESIDENCES

Space for Business Sharply Reduced.

Mountainous tho it is, the task of rezoning Chicago is within a few weeks of completion, it was indicated last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the council subcommittee in charge of the work.

Lindell, as spokesman, said his committee hoped to submit the proposed ordinance in time for council action by Oct. 1. The other members are Aldermen John J. Duffy [19th], P. J. Cullerton [38th], Harry L. Sain [27th], and Frank Keenan [49th].

Public hearings begun a month ago, at which property owners can protest provisions of the tentative ordinance draft, are nearing their end. With these completed, a revised draft will be prepared, an official public hearing on it will be held, and it will then be sent to the council committee on building and zoning, which will report it out to the council.

These public hearings are being held by wards, and each alderman is invited to attend. Thus every alderman is presumed to be so familiar with the new ordinance that a vote on its adoption can be held with a minimum of debate.

Tentative Changes Few.

How thoroly the zoning subcommittee has done its preliminary work is seen from the fact that changes in the tentative draft which grow out of the ward hearings are averaging less than one-tenth of 1 per cent thus far, according to Lindell.

Practically all of these changes affect business areas, he said. Most of the objections voiced at the public hearings are by owners who want their property zoned to allow the erection of gasoline filling stations.

The proposed ordinance provides for eight use districts—single family, two family, group or row houses, apartments, business, commercial, manufacturing, and industrial. The present ordinance, adopted in 1923, designates only four zones, residential, apartment, commercial, and manufacturing.

One of the principal endeavors of the subcommittee is to expand the one and two family residential zones, and to cut down the volume of the commercial areas. The latter constitutes the major problem of the committee, Lindell said. When the 1923 ordinance was drawn, land owners were in a speculative mood, and many obtained commercial zoning because of the hope of bigger land values, but these hopes have long since faded.

Percentage Too High.

The result was that Chicago found itself with 17 per cent of its municipal area set aside for business and commercial uses, whereas 1.5 per cent is regarded as the ideal. If used to the limit, the present commercial zones would permit one store for each two persons in the city.

"If the streets which the 1923 ordinance zoned commercial were laid end to end, they would reach from Chicago to Los Angeles," Lindell said.

In reducing the commercial and business zones the subcommittee utilized results of land use studies made by such agencies as the Chicago Plan commission, of which Lindell is a member, and the suggestions of numerous business and improvement associations.

The ideal toward which the ordinance makers worked was to confine business sites to section line intersections as far as possible, with additional store sites on half section line crossings in the more congested areas. Under the 1923 ordinance most of the principal streets in the city are lined continuously on both sides with commercial zones.

Hit Residential Values.

These zones permitted the erection of gasoline stations, theaters, garages, and light manufacturing plants, which had a deleterious effect on residential values. A business zone, under the new ordinance, would permit only small stores and professions, while the more intensive commercial uses would be limited to districts insulated as far as is practicable from residence areas. Such intelligent planning goes far toward halting the spread of run-down areas, which has long been a problem in Chicago, Lindell said.

The new ordinance is powerless to discontinue the land uses which it would prevent in the future, he said, inasmuch as a zoning ordinance must take property as it finds it. However, a later ordinance might prohibit the replacement of these nonconforming uses once they are discontinued, the alderman said.

In framing the new ordinance the subcommittee is guided by the interpretation of the state's zoning laws by the Illinois courts. These courts, in general, have recognized that the character of a given zone in a built-up area shall be set by the use to which half or more of the area has been put.

Itinerants to Sing.

The Almanac Singers, an itinerant musical organization, will be guests of the Chicago Repertory Group Saturday night at the eighth in a series of studio parties in the group's theater at 1016 North Dearborn street.

DODDRIDGE FARM OPENS NEW LIFE TO LITTLE GIRLS

First CYO Group Takes Over Camp Quarters.

Doddridge farm, a garden spot of woods and grass and flowers curving along the east bank of the Des Plaines river north of Libertyville, has become a village of little girls as 100 of them took possession of the newly painted cottages, the swimming pool, and the playgrounds.

This is the first season of the CYO camp for needy girls 6 to 14 years old in the Chicago archdiocese. Similar camps for needy boys or for needy mothers and children have been operated in the Chicago area for many years.

First Trip to Country.

Going to Doddridge was the first trip to the country for many of the youngsters. Before the season ends about Sept. 1 many more little misses will discover acres of woods and lawns and fields for the first time. The Rev. Peter D. Meegan is the resident director and the camp is sponsored by the Ladies of the Grail, Catholic order of women.

A budget of $10,000 has been set aside for the season. This does not include salaries, for all of the camp personnel is under the heading of volunteer service. The college girls who are leaders, the recreation directors, the resident registered nurse, and even the camp superintendent, Miss Mary Louise Tully, are volunteers. Dr. Lydwine Van Kersbergen, superior of the Ladies of the Grail, is in residence at the camp.

While the camp is under Catholic leadership, its little guests may be all creeds. This summer's residents have been chosen by Chicago welfare agencies as well as priests, according to Miss Regina O'Connell, director of the CYO social service department.

How List Was Compiled.

"We began by asking each priest in the archdiocese to send the name of a little girl who would not otherwise have a vacation," she explained. "After we'd made this list we asked for lists from the United Charities, the Chicago Relief organization, the Juvenile court, and from various Chicago hospital clinics."

There will be colored and Chinese girls at Doddridge. The Chicago Heart association is sending a group of little patients. There are 20 little girls and five leaders in each of the five cottages. Each camping group will stay two weeks.

When a child is placed on the list she must pass a medical and dental examination. If she is found able to participate in camp life she receives a list of the clothing she must bring. "But some of them simply don't have bathing suits or an extra pair of shoes or proper night clothing," Miss O'Connell says, "so then we must furnish the missing articles. Part of our budget will be use' to buy clothing as well as pantry provisions."

Former Episcopal Farm.

The children are to assist with some of the camp chores. In time there may be gardens that will help to supply the kitchen. There might even be a cow or two, if the plans work out.

Doddridge farm, formerly operated by the Episcopal church, was transferred to the CYO a year ago. Besides the five dormatories, the dining hall, and the green and orange recreation room there is a little chapel. The center aisle is flanked by the straight pews and their kneeling boards. Two little old-fashioned reed organs are at either side of the entrance, and volunteer musicians play them for the daily services. Near the chapel, built up upon a shrinelike stone structure, is the Angelus bell. Its silvery tones divide the day with its call for the morning, noon, and evening prayer.

Park Tennis Area Playoffs Are Scheduled for Today

Area playoffs in the city-wide public parks tennis tournament will be held in Lincoln and five other parks today. Winners in the area playoffs will compete for the city championships next Saturday and Sunday at the Waveland avenue courts in Lincoln park. The city singles champions will be sent to the national public parks tuornament in Minneapolis next month.

Miss Dolores Ehrlich, 3522 Irving Park road, a member of a Skokie riding club composed of north and northwest siders, returned home recently after a week's vacation at the Bar XT ranch near Babb, Mont. She won the trip by placing first in the lightweight livery class in the 1940 100 mile trail ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association. She is shown with Chief Lone Running Wolf, Blackfoot Indian, who welcomed her to the Glacier National park.

gardens at the club. "The children we bring here may not keep the gain in weight," she explained," but they can keep memories. They've a right to beauty." The children who arrive in new groups every two weeks agree. Many of them are men and women now—and they still remember Bowen club as the most beautiful spot they know.

The very name, Bowen Country club, suggests Mrs. Bowen's idea. It is a spot where children from crowded city flats glimpse something else, a different way of life. The children eat at tables for 10 rather than at long boards traversing the length of the dining hall. They are seated in mixed groups, and boys and girls take turns as hosts and hostesses. There are always flowers for decoration, but best of all, there is always plenty of food.

A Forgetful Physician.

There are 11 buildings at Bowen, including a little hospital where Mrs. Jean Austin, a senior medical student at Northwestern, is on duty this season. Dr. L. J. Osgood of Waukegan is the camp physician, "but he always forgets to send his bill," the camp leaders report. The swimming pool and asphalt tennis courts are favorite spots.

Mothers come to camp along with the tiny babies, and they live in the one year round building for campers, the home given by the first Mrs. Julius Rosenwald.

Robert D. Hicks, football and wrestling coach at Tilden High school, and Mrs. Hicks are superintendent and assistant at the club. Both have been associated with Bowen and with Hull House since 1920.

Oscar's Up Early.

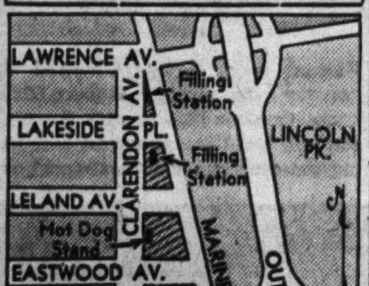
Philosopher and friend to every youngster in camp is Oscar Washington, the chef. He says, "I get up an hour early every morning to keep in front with my work so I'll have time for the kids. If I do that, I never get cross, either. It's only when people get to hurrying and worrying about their work that they get cross, I think." Oscar wishes he had a winter job with youngsters, too.

The six men councilors in camp receive salaries. The 14 girl councilors are all volunteers. They receive no salaries. All college students or teachers, they apply early each year and pay their own transportation from great distances in order to help with the Bowen program.

They All Get Along.

"We have a league of nations here," Hicks says, "and we do get along. The majority of mothers and children are of Italian extraction, but we have Greeks, Mexicans, Negroes, Poles, Irish, Norwegians, Jews—everybody. There is nothing so helpful as a little living close to nature to help people overcome prejudices and get along with each other."

Zoning Change



Here is an example of how the proposed new land use ordinance would reclassify territory. Under the present ordinance, the area to the east of Clarendon avenue is zoned for commercial projects, which include gasoline stations, theaters, and light manufacturing plants. The new ordinance would make these areas apartment zones.

Aspirants for School Jobs Face Puzzlers.

Want to enter Chicago Teachers college? Then try your luck on these questions:

Are elements which form more than one type of crystal allotropic, amphoteric, amorphous, or deliquescent?

Did the English remain in the northwest after the Treaty of 1783?

Are Haversian canals characteristic of adipose, epilepthial, nerve, connective, or bone tissues?

Are adjacent angles supplementary if their exterior sides lie in a straight line?

These are a few of the brain puzzlers that confronted 941 Chicago high school graduates and 137 college graduates last month when they took written examinations for admission to Chicago Teachers college. Those who passed the written examinations—in English, general science, United States history, civics, arithmetic, algebra, and geometry—were then given oral examinations by committees of five college professors.

300 Now Candidates.

As a result of the examinations 300 of the high school graduates and 53 of the college graduates are now candidates for admission to the teachers college next fall.

This year, for the first time, all applicants' written examinations were graded by an electric scoring machine. Besides reducing the scoring time from several weeks to a matter of a few hours, the machine completely eliminated the possibility of error on the part of persons scoring the tests, according to Paul Edwards, vice chairman of the college's board of examiners.

From North Side.

The names of north side high school students who survived both examinations and are candidates for admission to the college follow:

The north side college graduates who passed the examinations are: Edward Britt, 1626 North Shore avenue; Eileen Burke, 824 North avenue; Carol Ege, 5349 Sheridan road; Renata Fine, 748 Buena avenue; Ruth Johnson, 4708 North Washtenaw avenue; Marjorie Latimer, 500 Fullerton park way; Marjorie McLeod, 4525 North Campbell avenue, and Sylvia Pinsky, 2157 Grace street.

Deltas to Meet.

Members of North Shore Upsilon Alliance of Delta Delta Delta will meet at the home of Mrs. Gordon Anderson in Winnetka Friday afternoon. Mrs. Frank Torgerson, social chairman, and Mrs. Hiram Bender, program chairman, will outline their plans for the new season.

BOOK CAMPAIGN FOR SOLDIERS TO OPEN TOMORROW

Public's Gifts Will Go to Camp Libraries.

Libraries in the 6th corps area army camps will receive reënforcements within the next few weeks—books supplied by Chicagoans coöperating in the Chicago public library's book collection drive opening tomorrow. Approximately 10,000 books are needed, according to Carl B. Boden, Chicago librarian. Opening of the drive marks Chicago as the first large city in the country to make an effort to supply reading for the enlargea army ranks.

Books will be accepted every day this week at all branch libraries and at the main building, in the Randolph street corridor. Donors are asked not to clean out their attics by way of contributing to the cause. What isn't read in private homes won't be read in army camps, either.

Books may be left from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening each weekday at the following north side branches: Broadway, 3319 Broadway; Hamlin Park, 3035 Hoyne avenue; Hild, 4536 Lincoln avenue; Northtown, 2502 Devon avenue; Rogers Park, 1733 Greenleaf avenue; Sheridan, 4869 Broadway. The Seward Park library at 361 Elm street opens at 1 o'clock each afternoon in the week and will accept books for soldiers.

All of the books will be sent from the branches to the main library for such repairs as are necessary. Then the army will distribute the copies to Fort Sheridan, Camp Custer, Camp Grant, Chanute, Scott, and Selfridge airfields and to the Savannah, Ill., ordnance depot.

300 ARE ENTERED IN NORTH SIDE MUSIC FESTIVAL

Annual Contest Is Set for Wednesday.

Housewives, business men, and Sunday school boys and girls will be among the 300 contestants at the second annual north side music and charity festival at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Lincoln-Belmont YMCA, 3333 North Marshfield avenue.

Sponsored by Council.

Sponsored by the Lake View Community council, the program is one of the three sectional city events preceding the 12th annual Chicagoland Music festival to be presented by THE TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field Aug. 16. Philip Maxwell is director of the festival which brings together all Chicagoland sectional contest winners.

A pageant of all nations, with an exhibition of the flags of 23 countries, will feature the Wednesday evening show. Among the entries will be the all north side PTA chorus of 75 voices, St. Luke's Lutheran church children's chorus, a Hawaiian guitar band, and the drum and bugle corps from the Lake View American Legion post.

Accordion Band to Play.

Werk's Accordion band will play, and there will be students from the Chicago Academy of Theater Arts and the Eleanor Jenny school. Joan Carol, 14 years old, junior opera singer, will be one of the soloists.

Harold Giroux, is president of the Lake View council and is serving on the festival committee. Harry A Starr is chairman of the festival committee, and Miss Ruth V. Peterson is co-chairman. Committee members are Mrs. Ann Bergh, Miss Villa Boaz, Frederick Weaver, Mrs. Margaret Semler, Frank Werk, Elmer Roetter, C. Donald Clark, and Paul Wukasch.

In Festival Wednesday

Sue Miller will dance with the Jenny troupe at the north side music festival at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Lincoln-Belmont YMCA. The event will be the north side preliminary to the Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field on Aug. 16.

SET NORTH SIDE MUSIC FESTIVAL CONTEST DATES

Hundreds of Area Singers to Compete.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

The deadline for entry in the Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contests for Cook county contestants will be tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. All signed entries on official blanks must be in the festival office on the fourth floor of Tribune tower at that time. Several hundred north side singers are expected to take part in this feature of the Tribune festival of song. The deadline for those residing outside of Cook county will be Monday, August 4, at 6 p. m.

Official entry blanks may be obtained at the festival headquarters office or at THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service office located at 1 South Dearborn street.

The first north side contest will be held Thursday night, July 31, at 7 o'clock in the grand ballroom of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard. On the following night sopranos, mezzos, and basses will be adjudged. Voice teachers and coaches, radio, opera, and concert stars, and orchestral conductors will be the judges.

North Side Entrants.

Two entrants in the north side vocal preliminary contest are Miss Naomi La Bree, 18 year old lyric soprano, 2704 Arthur avenue, and Katherine Sivitzky, 19, also a lyric soprano, of 1110 North State street.

Winners of the Cook county sectional contests will go on to the Cook county finals which will be held in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel on Wednesday night, August 13, at 7 o'clock. Six voices will be chosen that night to go to the Chicagoland finals which will be held the day of the big festival on Saturday, August 16. There four winners will be chosen, the two best men and the two best women singers. That night in Soldiers' field the finals will be held before 100,000 spectators. It will be the first time that the finals have been held in Soldiers' field.

Pageant Rehearsal.

The second north side dance-pageant rehearsal for "Injun Summer," which will be given at the Festival concert in Soldiers' field, will be held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue. Miss Mayblossom Macdonald will be in charge. There is still time for new entrants. No boy or girl under 7 years of age will be admitted.

Fretted orchestra rehearsals for mandolin, tenor banjo, Spanish and Hawaiian guitars will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 o'clock in the Lyon and Healy recital hall, seventh floor, 64 East Jackson boulevard. Capt. Howard Stube will have charge of the rehearsal.

North Siders for 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Enzweiler of 5345 Magnolia avenue celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently. They have resided on the north side thruout their married life and have been at their present address for 27 years. They have two sons and one daughter, William P. Enzweiler, George P. Enzweiler, and Clara M. Hopkins. There are three granddaughters.

'THREE SISTERS' WILL BE GIVEN AT N. U. THEATER

Anton Chekhov's "The Three Sisters" will be presented at 8:45 o'clock each evening, Wednesday thru Saturday, at the Northwestern university summer theater in the school of speech building on the campus. Miss Alvina Krause, who directed the group's production of Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard" two years ago, will direct this play also.

Patricia Lewis, Sybil Bower, and Evelyn Bowman will be the three sisters, Masha, Irina, and Olga, respectively. Muriel Wolfson will play the rôle of Natasha, the unpleasant sister-in-law. David Hyatt, John Thorsen, and Harold Stevens are in principal male rôles.

Miss Bernice Prisk is the designer of the 1890 costumes of provincial Russia to be used by the cast.

BAINUM'S BAND TO PLAY TONIGHT IN LINCOLN PARK

Olive Arthur, soprano, will appear as soloist with the Glenn Bainum band at its concert tonight in the Lincoln park band shell. The concert, second in the summer series, will begin at 8 o'clock.

The program follows: Fanfare and ballet from "Louise," by Charpentier; overture, "King Neptune," by Ansell; "Il est doux, il est bon" from "Herodiade," by Massenet; "L'Arlesienne," suite No. 2, by Bizet; "Two American Sketches," by Griselle; "An American Rhapsody," by Wood; "Symphonic March," by Mancini; "The Wind's in the South," by Scott; "In Holiday Mood" suite, by Ketelbey; "Rumba Land," arranged by Gray, and selections from "The Student Prince," by Romberg.

Miss Arthur will sing the aria from "Herodiade," "The Wind's in the South," and selections from "The Student Prince." The Lincoln park concerts, now in their fifth year, will continue each Sunday evening thru Sept. 7.

NATIONAL MEET OF SVITHIOD TO OPEN ON FRIDAY

Several thousand members of the Independent Order of Svithiod will attend the order's national convention next Friday and Saturday at the Stevens hotel. The convention will see a presentation of "Hellz Belz," a musical comedy, and a model initiation of new Chicagoland members. Bernard Johnson, 3039 George street, national grand master of the order, is chairman of the arrangements committee. The order, one of the oldest Swedish-American fraternal organizations, was founded in Chicago in 1880.

Cisca Alumni Will Hear the Rev. Thomas J. Reed

Cisco alumni will hear the Rev. Thomas J. Reed, master of ceremonies to the Most Rev. William D. O'Brien, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, in an address at 7:45 o'clock Wednesday evening at De Paul university, 64 East Lake street. Father Reed's subject will be "Catholic Action in the City Missions of Chicago."

WRITERS PLAN GARDEN TOURS AT CONFERENCE

Highland Park Meet Will Open Wednesday.

Hazel Crow Ewell.

Pen Pilgrimages, garden tours planned for their literary significance, will be features of the second annual Writers' conference opening Wednesday with headquarters in the Moraine hotel, Highland Park. Sessions will continue thru Saturday, and different Chicago and Illinois writing or literary organizations will coöperate for each day's meetings.

Among them will be the Chicago Fiction guild, Matrix club, Theta Sigma Phi, Chicago chapter of American Penwomen, Chicago Drama league, Chicago Woman's club groups, Illinois Women's Press association, Friends of American Writers, and Society of Midland Authors.

Designation of Days.

The days will be designated as follows: Wednesday—Writing for Children; Thursday—Drama and Radio; Friday—Poetry day; Saturday—Fiction and Features. Prizes will be offered each day for manuscripts entered in special fields.

Mrs. Hazel Crow Ewell, Ravinia, artist-lecturer on famous gardens in this country and abroad, will conduct a tour to the Eugene Field Memory garden in Kenilworth as a climax to the Children's day sessions.

Lew Sarett.

Destination of the pilgrimage on Thursday, drama and radio day, will be the Shakespeare garden, Northwestern university campus. Designed by Jens Jensen, landscape architect, the garden includes 64 plants and flowers mentioned in Shakespeare's plays.

Walter Dill Scott, president emeritus of Northwestern, and Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Budd Cordus and Mrs. Horton Fall, representing the Evanston Garden club, will receive the writers in the garden.

Lew Sarett to Read.

Lew Sarett of Ravinia, Woodsman poet, will read selections from his new book, scheduled for fall publication, on Friday, poetry day. Afterward he will invite conference members to visit his gardens. Fort Sheridan, possible source of many feature stories, will be the pilgrimage point on Saturday.

Mrs. Everett Fontaine of Ravinia is in charge of registrations and program. Chicago and suburban libraries have details of each day's program and the rules for submitting manuscripts.

CRUSADERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING THIS AFTERNOON

Laymen of Lutheran congregations of the Missouri Synod in Waukegan and Northfield will participate in the second annual celebration of Lutheran mission crusaders at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon on the Concordia Teachers' college campus in River Forest.

Twenty-seven congregations are affiliated with the Mission Crusaders, which was organized two years ago. Mission stations have been opened at Round Lake and Northbrook in the north side area.

Four north suburbanites are on the membership committee. They are William Kruckenberg, Mundelein; Emil Gosch, Northbrook; Edward Chapman, and Edward Hansen, both of Waukegan.

Welcomes Sorority

Mrs. Joseph Kleiner, 6424 Newgard avenue, president of the local chapter of Kappa Gamma Pi, will welcome delegates to the national convention opening Thursday at the Drake hotel. Meetings will continue thru Sunday. Mrs. Kleiner, an alumna of De Paul university, is assistant chairman of the convention.

PULLMAN CHORUS TO GIVE VESPER CONCERT TODAY

Will Sing at Caldwell Woods Preserve.

William F. Bergmann.

The Pullman Choral society, composed of general office employés of the Pullman company, will present the sixth and semi-final concert in the Sunday vesper series at the Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The chorus, directed by William Francis Bergmann, will present a concert devoted largely to religious and patriotic music. The series is sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the forest preserve district. The program follows:

"God of Our Fathers"	Warren
"Swing Low, Sweet Chariot"	Spiritual
"Sanctus"	Gounod
"Finlandia"	Sibelius
"Villia"	Lehar
"Metropolitan Symphony"	Bergmann
"The Song of the Vikings"	Faning
[Community singing.]
"Rain and the River"	Fox
"Tales from the Vienna Woods"	Strauss
"America, I Love You"	Gottler
"The Star Spangled Banner"	Key

"The Metropolis Symphony," written by Mr. Bergmann, will be performed for the first time at today's concert.

The final concerts in the vesper series, sponsored jointly by this newspaper and the county forest preserve district, will be heard next Sunday. Other concerts today will be presented at Thatcher woods in River Forest, by the St. Cecilia choir and the Columbus Park Opera company, and at the Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue, by the Young People's choir of the Hartzell Methodist church.

RULES VILLAGE CAN'T HAVE CITY POSTAL BRANCH

The village of Lincolnwood last week had lost, temporarily, at least, its plea for a branch office of the Chicago post office. Village Attorney Walter P. Murphy was informed from Washington that postal regulations prohibit the establishment of branch offices of another post office in cities of less than 1,500 population. The village board had previously investigated and discarded the possibility of obtaining a separate Lincolnwood postoffice.

Bride in August

Miss Roselle Lipman's engagement to Herbert Sommer has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar P. Lipman of 7607 Sheridan road. Sommer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Sommer of 1546 North Homan avenue. The young couple met while attending Northwestern university. The marriage will take place on Aug. 10 at the Webster hotel.

OPEN FLOWER SHOW ON LAKE FOREST ESTATE

A flower show opened yesterday at the Mill Road Gardens, the former Lake Forest estate of Albert D. Lasker. The 416 acre estate, which now is the property of the University of Chicago, has already attracted many visitors. The flower show will close next Sunday, the last time this summer the estate will be open to the public.

The regal lillies, petunias, marigolds, geraniums, larkspur, and salvias are features of the show. Flanking the flower display are rows of fruit laden pear, apple, and cherry trees. Greenhouses will feature the cultivation of peaches, figs, and grapes. Also to be seen is the topiary garden with dwarfed Chinese elms clipped in the shape of animals, humans and geometric designs.

Admission charge to the estate is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. A similar additional charge is made for inspection of the French provincial manor house, center of the 92 acres of landscaped grounds and gardens, with its 50 rooms containing a collection of antique furniture. The estate is on Old Mill road, west of Lake Forest and one mile west of Waukegan road.

PARK BUILDING IS FILLED WITH BUGS—IN GLASS

Lincoln Science Museum Naturalists' Mecca.

For 84 years the Chicago Academy of Sciences has been in the nonprofit business of stuffing, pickling, and displaying the natural life of the midwest. Every type of bird, bee, animal, plant, insect, and mineral in Chicagoland has a place under glass in the four story academy building at Clark street and Ogden avenue.

It was founded in 1857 in a tiny room at Clark and Lake streets by a few scientific men "for the promotion and diffusion of scientific knowledge." Altho it has been burnt out twice—once in 1866 and again in the great fire of 1871—it has grown far beyond the expectations of its founders.

The academy's main business is with the birds and animals of Chicagoland. However, it does venture into other scientific fields. This month's lobby exhibit is a series of X-ray photos showing vitamin A in the human body. In August, the hay fever month, the academy will have a display dealing with hay fever causing pollen in this area.

Mammals on Display.

Now on exhibit in the cool, marble museum are 76 specimens of mammals, each stuffed in the academy's basement workshop and displayed in cases with background scenery, illustrating native habitats. There are 454 specimens of birds, 42 specimens of plant life, and 3,441 insects.

Last year more than 320,000 visitors came to the museum. An additional 7,000 persons heard Sunday afternoon lectures on scientific topics that ranged from mushrooms and sleep to an anthropological survey of the patterns of Negro music leading up to the present Boogie Woogie.

The academy, say its officials, is probably the most inexpensive large sized institution in the city. It operates on a budget of $21,000 a year, which, as Dr. Eliot C. Williams, assistant to the director, puts it, "is just the electric light bill for some institutions."

Eight on Working Staff.

The working staff is made up of only eight persons, including one librarian, two clerks, a museum guard, and four scientists. Dr. Howard K. Gloyd is director; Dr. Williams, his assistant; Dr. Donald M. Hatfield, curator of mammals, and Thurston I. Wright, preparator of exhibits.

Dr. Gloyd, herpetologist and zoölogist, is a leading authority on rattlesnakes. The academy last year published a 266 page monograph on the subject, which bears the subtitle "Genera Sistrurus and Crotalus."

Among the academy's snake exhibits are specimens of the timber rattlesnake which Dr. Gloyd has captured no farther away than the Indiana dunes, Wheeling, West Northfield, and Beverly Shores.

Shows Chicago Sky.

Suspended from the museum's third floor balcony is the Atwood celestial sphere, a 14 foot ball, that, to a visitor strolling on the ground floor, appears to be a stratosphere balloon caught in the rafters. The ceiling of the shell inside the sphere is a miniature panoramic reproduction of the Chicago sky at night.

Keeps Workroom Open

Mrs. David S. Bosley, 431 West Oakdale avenue, general chairman of the Red Cross unit of the Temple Sholom sisterhood, has announced that the Red Cross activities will continue thru the summer. The workroom at the temple is open for knitting from 10 to 1 o'clock on Mondays and for sewing from 10 until 3:30 o'clock on Tuesdays. There are 180 active workers in the unit.

Mr. D.F. McMahon
Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon,

"To become permanent, it is necessary to move."

That is the slogan, as you might remember, that we adopted when we opened our first subsidiary shops as extensions of Blums-Vogue. And that is the slogan we are using today in connection with our new, greatly enlarged Blums-Evanston shop which is to open in the near future in a new location opposite the Evanston Woman's Club.

Blums-Evanston, during its eight years in its present location at 709 Church Street, has become one of the North Shore's most popular women's apparel shops. Its business has grown steadily, until now it is necessary for us to house it in quarters more than twice its present size. And we believe that when we have finished remodeling the new building, it will be so exquisitely and attractively done it will be a showplace in its own right.

In merchandising, we have keyed this shop to those who live in and around Evanston, and in the North Shore suburbs. For here we will offer an enlarged collection of distinctive Blum fashions, furs, hats, and accessories for city and suburban life ... plus a new feature: shoes of our own design and the nationally famous Delman line exclusive with us in this territory.

In advertising, we have found that the North Metropolitan section of The Chicago Tribune reaches our largest audience with a minimum of "waste circulation". We expect to continue our use of this medium, since it not only brings us new customers, but helps us maintain contact with our old friends and customers.

Sincerely yours,

Pres.

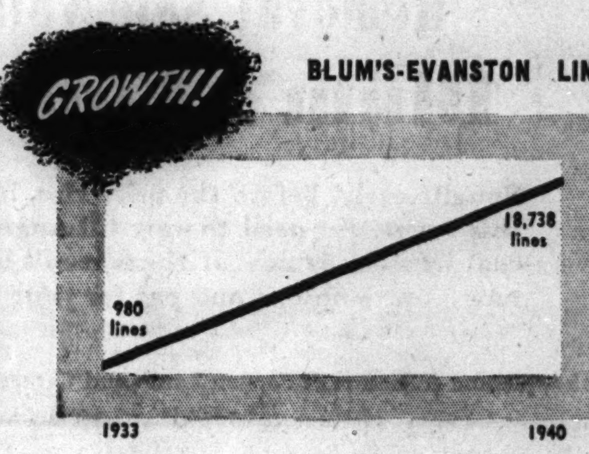
Progress of Evanston shop linked to advertising concentrated in Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section

IN the accompanying letter, another merchant tells how Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising has helped build sales and aided his store's progress.

Are you taking maximum advantage of this low-cost method of reaching your best customers and prospects? Last year 796 neighborhood enterprises, large and small, located thruout Chicago and the suburbs, used Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising to increase their patronage and profits.

One or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest and South—is edited for and read exclusively by the people best able to trade with you. You cannot find a more effective, economical way to reach and produce response from the people right on your side of town.

To build store traffic, speed turnover and step up your profits, ask a Tribune representative to give you complete information about this low-cost business-building plan. Call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising.



BLUM'S-EVANSTON LINAGE IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE METROPOLITAN SECTIONS 1933-1940

Blum's-Evanston opened for business in 1933. Each year since, the store's newspaper advertising schedule has been concentrated in Chicago Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections. Space used to date exceeds 100,000 lines.

NEW LOW IS SET IN RELIEF CASES IN 3 TOWNSHIPS

Drop to 454 Families Laid to Defense.

Residents of three north shore townships got a look at the brighter side of the preparedness program last week when Evanston, Niles, and New Trier township relief administrators announced that the number of cases on their rolls reached a record low on July 1.

The three offices reported a total of only 454 cases [family units] remaining on direct relief. This is the smallest total since the township offices opened on July 1, 1936, the date the state turned the burden over to township governments. Each case represents approximately three persons, and in many instances the offices supply only supplementary funds.

Burden Lightened.

The gradual lightening of the relief burden is shown in the following comparison of cases handled by the three townships during the month of June for the last 5 years:

Year.	Evanston.	Niles.	New Trier.
1937	515	68	61
1938	542	70	73
1939	535	70	79
1940	484	40	76
1941	386	21	47

Relief costs reported by the three townships for the last month were for Evanston, $13,360; for Niles, $710; and for New Trier, $1,712. With these funds Evanston supported or partially supported 993 persons; Niles, 92 persons; and New Trier, 142 persons.

The indirect effect of the defense boom, which has caused shortages in many unskilled as well as skilled employment fields, was advanced as the principal reason for the diminished relief load. Supervisors of the three townships pointed out that while there is virtually no defense industry on the north shore, many relief clients have recently obtained domestic and other unskilled employment.

Majority Unemployable.

The great majority of those remaining on the relief rolls are unemployable, the relief offices reported.

The Evanston office has shown the greatest proportional decline in the number of relief cases since the townships began administering relief in 1936. The Evanston office reached its peak load one month after its opening, in August, 1936, when it carried 702 cases.

Because of the high percentage of unemployables now on the rolls, relief administrators for the townships—Mrs. Beatrice Lyon of Evanston, Miss Bernice Yehl of Niles, and Seymour H. Olmsted of New Trier—expressed belief that the relief figures will not go much below their present level.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Charles F. Southward, 306 Oxford road, Kenilworth, has been appointed assistant public relations officer of the 9th naval district, with the rank of ensign. A former secretary of the Chicago Federated Advertising club, Ensign Southward was Pacific coast manager of a national advertising agency before his recall to active duty.

Six more north side selectees have received their battery and unit assignments in the 3d armored [bayou blitz] division of the army at Camp Polk, Louisiana. They are Millard F. Springer, 2123 Kenmore avenue; John B. O'Neill, Wilmette; Eugene Lewis, 660 Wrightwood avenue; B. R. Daniels, 3745 Magnolia avenue; Bernard Aronson, 659 Roscoe street, and Melvin G. Wimberly, 2256 Cleveland avenue. All are in the 67th field artillery.

Sergt. Albert R. McLean, son of John T. McLean, 2722 Farragut avenue, has been graduated from the electrical course at Chanute Field, Illinois, and assigned to the army air corps' 39th pursuit squadron at Selfridge Field, Michigan.

Edward Spasek, 848 Waveland avenue, a private in the marine corps reserve, was recently graduated from the Radio Operators' school at the marine base in San Diego, Cal. He completed the course as the honor student of the class, and received a gold medal for his scholastic record.

Will Be Bride in August

Mrs. Anthony W. Stanmeyer, 6330 North Paulina street, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Geraldine, to Walter F. Pauly Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Pauly, 1617 West Gregory street. The young couple will be married on Aug. 2 in St. Gertrude's church.

CRIPPLED, BLIND NEGRO FINDS HE CAN EARN LIVING

He's One of the North Shore Craftsmen.

Since 1939 more than 30 Evanston cripples have found a profitable release for their energies thru the craft work sponsored by the North Shore Association for the Crippled. Known as the North Shore Craftsmen, the cripples sell their work thru three gift shops, competing with professional craftsmen without the advantage of having their articles especially marked.

The star pupil of the group, since he had to overcome the greatest handicaps, is Ernest Bell, a 32 year old Negro, who is blind and paralyzed except for his arms. He can turn his head a little. Until six years ago, he was healthy and ambitious. Then disaster struck. He lost the sight in one eye and simultaneously arthritis began to affect his spine.

Proves Mental Stimulus.

But his physical handicaps have proved a stimulus to his mental abilities. And he never lost his courage nor the cheerfulness characteristic of his race. He learned to read and write braille. He took courses thru the Hadley School for the Blind in Winnetka and now is studying psychology with material from the school.

But he never thought of doing handicraft until Julie Walcott Gallagher, the worker employed to train the craftsmen, started to help him.

This exchange of abilities set them on a basis, which appealed to Bell.

"At first," he explained, matter of factly, "I wanted something to occupy my time and then, when I found I could make money from the work, I was doubly grateful. I made children's chairs at the beginning and then branched out into repairing antiques. Yes, it was hard work," he continued, "for I had to adapt the work to my particular handicaps, but once a problem was solved, it didn't occur again.

Does Fine Work.

"He does fine work," interposed Mrs. Gallagher, "and he has some ideas which we are trying to work out and turn into practical, salable articles. That is the difficult part of the whole problem with all our craftsmen, for sometimes they try several times before they finish a salable article."

Mr. Bell receives physical care from the Visiting Nurse association. His wife works and he draws the state pension for the blind, so they manage to support themselves and their 4 year old daughter. As for other activities, Bell said he studies, writes a lot and reads. He just finished a short story by George Bernard Shaw in a braille translation, which he enjoyed very much.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Ohlendorf, 2737 Sunnyside avenue, celebrated their golden wedding with a reception at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Ohlendorf have one daughter, Mrs. C. B. Ullrich, six grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

100 EQUESTRIANS DUE TO TAKE 2D BREAKFAST RIDE

More than 100 members of the Town and Country Equestrian association are expected to attend the second 1941 breakfast ride of the organization to be held in the Palos Hills forest preserve, next Sunday, it was announced by Gerald Gorman, district chairman.

The ride will start from the foot of the ski slide on Route 83 just west of Route 45. It will wind thru 15 miles or more of hilly, wooded and open country, and end at the starting point, where breakfast will be served at 1 o'clock.

The first of the series of three breakfast rides was held from the Oakbrook polo field near Hinsdale on July 8. The third will be held over north side trails, probably some time in October, according to John FitzGerald, secretary of the association.

Union League Legion Post Elects New Official Staff

Newly elected officers of Union League post of the American Legion are Rollin M. Hickey, commander; Andrew E. Wigeland, and Walter A. Horner, vice commanders; Ray R. Wible, adjutant; Kenneth M. Shepard, finance officer; James A. Peterson, sergeant at arms; Grover C. Ramsey, historian, and Howard I. Potter, service officer.

GIRL ENTERS RACE FOR TITLE OF QUEEN AT SWEDISH PICNIC

Inez Swanson.
[Hansen Photo.]

Miss Inez Swanson, 1110 Newport avenue, representing the north side of the city, will be one of the candidates for summer queen at the Swedish National society's annual outing next Sunday in Linne woods, Morton Grove. The society is an association of Swedish fraternal groups, temperance lodges, and provincial clubs. The picnic will be a program of games, races, speeches, folk dances, and orchestral music. Proceeds will go to charity. Ellis F. Hillner, Winnetka, is chairman. Committee members include Herman Hokanson, Emil Wicklander, Allen Johnson, and Mrs. Dorothy Carlson.

To Address Kiwanis.

Michael J. Howlett, Chicago director of the National Youth administration, will address a Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday in the Division Street YMCA.

W-G-N TO GIVE MANY GLIMPSES OF 'YOUR ARMY'

Interview Series Starts Next Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Glimpses behind the scenes of the United States army will be given by W-G-N in a new series of broadcasts, titled "Your Army," starting at 2 p. m. next Wednesday. Succeeding broadcasts, under the direction of W-G-N's special events department, will be aired each Wednesday at the same hour, the series also will be aired over the coast to coast Mutual network.

Many phases of army life and activity—from soup kitchens to flying cadet schools—will be described on these broadcasts. Following an introduction to the series next Wednesday Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will be interviewed.

Hostesses to Be Heard.

On following weeks there will be broadcasts showing the inner workings of other army departments. High ranking officers will be interviewed about the departments they command. They will describe life in the ROTC, the quartermaster corps, the medical corps, the air cadet corps, nursing service, army camp hostesses force, and the food kitchens. Each program promises to be informative and entertaining.

Schedule of Broadcasts.

A tentative schedule of the first eight programs follows:

July 23—Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will describe life at the flying station at Chicago airport.

July 30—Interviews with officers and ROTC trainees at Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 6—Interviews with two women, lieutenants in the army nursing service.

Aug. 13—Interview with Col. Henry B. Barry, commanding officer, Chicago quartermaster depot.

Aug. 20—Interviews with officers of the Medical corps who will describe how the army physicians and surgeons protect the health of the soldiers.

Aug. 27—Interviews with two hostesses from Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 27—Interviews with officers who will tell the requirements for entrance into the army aviation cadet corps.

Sept. 10—Maj. William R. MacKinnon, commandant of the bakers and cooks school at Fort Sheridan, will tell how and with what menus the army is fed. June Baker, W-G-N's home economics expert, will also appear on this program.

Each week thereafter another aspect of army life will be described. The entire series will present a rounded picture of the machinery which runs the United States army. The programs will originate in the studios of W-G-N.

Roy Shield Will Leave Podium for Piano Bench

Roy Shield, director of music for NBC and conductor of the Roy Shield orchestra, will step off the podium for the first time in 10 years to assume his former rôle as a concert pianist on his orchestral broadcast at 4:30 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

W-G-N Songstress

Mary Small, former child entertainer, is now 19 and has a radio show of her own on W-G-N-Mutual. She is featured at 9:15 p. m. every Monday.

"Aurora," popular song hit with a South American flavor, will be Mary Small's solo on W-G-N-Mutual's Imperial Time broadcast at 9:15 p. m. tomorrow. Other selections will be "5 o'clock Whistle," "Tale of Two Cities," and "Begin the Beguine."

SONG BY DEBUSSY WILL BE CLIMAX OF MELODY HOUR

Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will play the piano accompaniment for Kathryn Witwer, soprano, when she sings Debussy's "Mandoline" as the highlight of the Pageant of Melody over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday. The program will present a varied musical half hour featuring melodies from Victor Herbert to Beethoven. The orchestra will open the broadcast with the "Abu Hassan Overture" by Carl Weber. A medley of Debussy works is the second offering. Miss Witwer will sing "Beau Soir" and the second number is the selection that will feature Weber and Miss Witwer.

Michael Wilkomirski will be heard in a violin solo with the background of the chorus and orchestra presenting Arensky's "Serenade." Miss Witwer will be heard singing "Twilight In Barakeesk" from Victor Herbert's "Rose of Algeria" and the orchestra will play Moskowsky's "Malaguena" from "Boabdil" and the last movement of Beethoven's "Symphony No. 5."

Frances Brunt Takes Title Role in 'Government Girl'

Frances Brunt, young but experienced actress, is now playing the title rôle in "Government Girl," dramatic serial broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network Monday thru Saturday at 12:15 p. m. Nancy Ordway originated the part. Altho Miss Brunt plays the part of a Washington, D. C., office worker, she has never been inside a federal government building. She was born in South Dakota and has acted in the Washington Civic theater, the Cleveland Playhouse and summer stock at Chautauqua, N. Y.

AIR KENT COOPER SONG SATURDAY ON W-G-N SHOW

A. P. Manager's Ballad to Be Sung by Baggiore.

"My Dixie Girl," a ballad by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, will be sung by Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as the feature of the Chicagoland hour over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will speak.

Cooper will attend the broadcast and hear his tune played for the first time over the Mutual network. The rôle of a composer is a new one for Cooper, who has been identified with newspaper work since 1893 when he started as a reporter in Indianapolis.

Medley of Memory Songs.

Another highlight will be a medley of memory songs, including the Egbert Van Alstyne favorite "Melodies." Marion Claire, soprano soloist, will sing "Smiles" and "School Days." Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, will sing "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree."

Miss Claire, Baggiore, and the chorus will be featured in a medley of Franz Lehar songs.

Miss Claire will also sing Lehar's "Melody of Love."

The complete program follows:

UTLEY IS GUEST COMMENTATOR ON W-G-N SERIES

Clifton Utley, news interpreter and commentator on foreign affairs, has begun a series of programs as guest commentator on the W-G-N newscast which featured the late Capt. E. D. C. Herne. Utley will be heard Monday thru Saturday from 6:30 to 6:45 p.m. Herne died last month after an operation.

Utley has long been in contact with the news fronts of the world. He traveled thruout Europe and Africa for many years, studying political and economic problems. Utley comments on foreign affairs over W-G-N at 8 p. m. each Tuesday. He has frequently appeared on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, W-G-N-Mutual's weekly forum on current affairs, broadcast at 10 a. m. Sunday. Altho busy in radio, he still finds time to maintain his position as the director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. For his new guest series Utley intends to devote his time to pithy, up to the minute dispatches, with only occasional interpretation.

Discuss Draftee Extension on W-G-N Forum of Air

"Should congress extend the service of our entire new army for the duration of the national emergency?" will be discussed on the American Forum of the Air broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7 to 7:45 p. m. tonight. Four United States senators will take part in the debate. Senator Claude Pepper of Florida and Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia will take the affirmative stand; Senator Raymond E. Willis of Indiana and Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin will argue that the draftees should be sent home after their year of army service has been finished.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, July 21.

This is the watering season in gardens. When it is once begun it should be thoroly finished and not undertaken again until the ground needs water. Water need not be given nearly as often when the ground is soaked. Incessant watering both night and morning does the plants little good, altho it may saturate the ground.

Morning watering is best and especially in the shade; considerable water is necessary to maintain grass or flowers near trees, for the tree roots sap the soil of moisture and plant food. The best way to water the lawn when dry is to lay the hose on the ground and allow the water to flow over a single place for a long enough time to penetrate five inches at least; then remove to another spot. Sandy soil requires much more water than a soil that is filled with humus, but the addition of humus to a sandy soil will make it more retentive of moisture.

Tuesday, July 22.

Sow seed of crops that make good ground covers for spading or plowing under in autumn. Vacant lots may be sown and excellent soil be obtained for many purposes. Rye, clover, cow peas, vetch, etc., are all good. Simply prepare the land, sow the seed and plow late in fall, permitting the ground to remain in the rough until spring.

Wednesday, July 23.

Give window box plants another application of plant food. A good, high grade complete fertilizer will work wonders on boxed plants, but be sure to examine the soil and water whenever needed. Tie up or trim all plants that have made rampant growths. Dead wood can easily be seen and it should be removed. Cut it out entirely and cut back long, straggling growths for shape. Remove weeds near garden to prevent insects from hiding and breeding in them.

Thursday, July 24.

Sweet peas, nasturtium, and other plants are likely to be attacked by aphids and spraying should be continued. It is a good time to propagate bleeding heart, oriental poppy, and alkanet by separating the roots or making root cuttings. Some growers find that laying the stems of many plants soon produces a new plant and at little cost. Among these plants are climbing roses, spurge, ivy, verbenas and others of equal value. Divide iris if necessary.

Friday, July 25.

Keep faded roses removed from baby rambler roses and the plants will flower over a long period. By sowing columbine seed now a new supply of plants may be enjoyed. Sow about an eighth of an inch deep, press into the soil, water well with a fine spray, and give a bit of shade during the heat of the day. Soak dahlias at least once a week.

Saturday, July 26.

Sow seeds of quick growing annuals for autumn bloom. Among these are the white baby breath, Shirley poppy, lupin, etc. Keep the roses well watered. Buy pansy seed for August sowing.

Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.

KITCHENS MADE LIKE DAY WITH NEWER LIGHTING

Fluorescent Lamps Are on Forward March.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Fluorescent lighting is on the march and there's a most interesting model kitchen now open in Chicago that strikes a new high for intensities of artificial daylight illumination.

It is, moreover, very attractive, beautifully planned, equipped and decorated. The floor, cabinet work tops, and wall paper in the breakfast corner are carried out in harmonizing shades of blue. This wall paper has diminutive flower bouquets in regency shades of yellow and rose-red and the blinds at the windows are taped with red.

There's a satin finished honey colored mahogany breakfast set with the breakfast bar which has many uses as a partition between eating nook and meal making area finished in a material which simulates the the color and grain of the mahogany. The counter of this partition is finished in a deep shade of blue and offers room for toaster and coffee maker, grill and waffle iron, pepper and salt.

Like Natural Daylight.

Natural daylight appears to be streaming in thru the casement windows, shadowless, cool, abundant light, but instead of coming from the great out of doors it comes from daylight fluorescent lamps concealed behind window valances and from the flush panel unit located in a soffit over the sink.

There also are fluorescent fixtures placed beneath each cabinet for work counter lighting, as well as localized fluorescent installations above the range and the service bar.

Nor is incandescent lighting forgotten. This is furnished by two center fixtures. The one in the kitchen gives a well diffused light from a prismalite louvered glass fixture and in the dining portion of the room there is a colonial designed lantern which sheds adequate light on the dinette table.

Latest in Equipment.

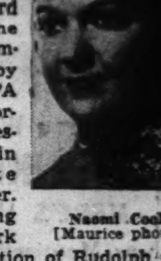
Then, too, there's the very latest in planning and equipment. You have your water heater and electric dishwasher, your ventilating fan, and range and refrigerator plus a host of smaller appliances which are up to the minute, and up to the task that is theirs to do.

Fluorescent lighting is much with us these days as a utility light in kitchens and bathrooms and laundries.

Our eating customs continue to undergo changes and as our dining rooms grow smaller, the breakfast portion of the kitchen comes to the fore. And on this breakfast corner is spent a great deal of thought and attention.

Counters and breakfast bars are appearing in many forms and they are a convenience. As in this kitchen, they can divide the meal getting space from the eating corner, and much ingenuity is going into their planning. Sometimes this corner is designed with triple deck shelves above its counter top and cupboards below, with lots of room for appliances of all kinds, if wisely used and not overcrowded.

NAOMI COOK TO SING WITH ORCHESTRA ON WILMETTE PROGRAM



Naomi Cook.
[Maurice photo.]

Miss Naomi Cook, who made her opera debut as Leonora in a Chicago Opera company presentation of "Il Trovatore" last November, will be the soloist at the third concert in the starlight symphony series by the Illinois WPA Symphony orchestra Wednesday evening in the Wilmette amphitheater. Miss Cook sang in Grant park under the direction of Rudolph Ganz last summer, and has been with the Apollo club.

She will sing arias from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Aidi" Wednesday evening. José Schaniz will be guest conductor.

Offer Wilde Play.

Oscar Wilde's comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest," will be enacted this evening by the Douglas Smith Players at 844 Rush street. Leading rôles will be played by Harry Hunt, Dorothea Kane, Gwendolyn Power, Charles Hunt and Loretta Grimm.

SCHOOLS TRAIN ARMY OF 3,000 TO AID DEFENSE

Fit Workers to Man Industry's Shops.

Nearly 3,000 men are being trained for jobs in the national defense program at south side and suburban high schools this summer. The program now boasts larger classes and additional schools in order to prepare more battalions of workers to man industrial machines for defense. The classes are open both to unemployed men and to workers who need more training for advancement.

The largest of the programs are taking place in the Hammond Technical High school, Thornton Township High school in Harvey, East Chicago public high schools, and Tilden, Lindblom, Englewood, and Phillips High schools in the Chicago public school system. The students range from youths to veterans past middle age and the instructors are teachers who have had experience in industry or highly skilled men who are taking temporary leave from factories.

Classes are running on a three shift, 24 hour plan at Hammond Tech. Three hundred fifty students are enrolled in a schedule which goes around the clock six days a week, according to Frederick Benson, principal and coördinator of the training program. The third shift was added for regular vocational students at the end of the school year.

In Two Sections.

The class schedule is divided into two sections — preëmployment and supplementary. The preëmployment division is for those who seek work in one of the skilled trades in Calumet region plants and consists of instructions on new practices for those whose practice has been dulled by work in other fields.

The supplementary courses are designed for those now employed who want additional training to qualify for better positions in allied crafts. Currently the preëmployment division includes nine classes in machine shop practice and two in welding. The supplementary group includes four welding courses, four machine shop courses and two classes in blueprint reading.

Class hours are from 6 o'clock in the morning to 12:30 o'clock, from 12:30 to 9 o'clock in the evening and from 9 until 6 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Benson said classes are so arranged as to provide instruction periods in each of the three shifts for those who may work staggered shifts in private industry.

May Add Classes.

If the number of enrollees drops greatly in the preëmployment division, as it appears to be doing, the principal explained, the school will make up the deficiency by adding more supplementary classes, for which there are a large number of applications.

Beginning at 8 o'clock in the morning, classes in defense training run for 22 hours at the Washington and Roosevelt High schools in East Chicago. About 175 students are enrolled in the courses, which were started recently.

East Chicago public school officials were told last week that $33,208 worth of equipment would be sent to them soon. According to Bruce B. Bell, vocational director of the schools, the equipment will include milling machines, surface grinders, engine lathes, turret lathes, grinders, drills, and arc welders.

Large Enrollment at Tilden.

A total of 1,200 students are enrolled in preëmployment and supplementary classes at Tilden Technical High school. Lindblom has 350, Phillips, 210, and Englewood, 375. The latter three schools have preëmployment classes Monday thru Friday from 8 until 2:30 o'clock and supplementary classes from 6:30 until 9:30 o'clock in the evening.

In addition to the 8-2:30 schedule, Tilden has classes from 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 in the evening for men who need "brushing up" in order to get jobs in industry and a class from 9 until 11 o'clock every weekday evening for employed workers who want to advance. All the students have had some experience, according to the principals, Robert Lakemacher and Albert Goodrich, even tho they may have been only carpenter or machinist helpers. The aim is to improve their skill as much as possible.

Scope of Instruction.

The classes include instruction in welding, aviation mechanics, auto body and engine, auto laboratory work, forge shop, machine shop, press, lathe, woodworking, ship building, airplane building, electric shop, sheet metal shop and drafting room.

Approximately 60 students are enrolled in preëmployment classes at Thornton Township High school five days a week. The classes are in advanced machine shop, basic machine shop, auto mechanics, electricity, and mechanical drawing. Three hour supplementary classes for employed men are conducted three nights a week and there are special two hour classes two nights a week in blue print reading and shop mathematics.

One hundred sixty men are in the evening classes. Civilian pilot training classes also are begin held at Thornton Junior college. Lawrence Britton is head of the national defense classes.

The Milkman Has a Stellar Role in CYO Summer School at Davis Square

Thousands of boys and girls attending the summer vacation schools of the Catholic Youth organization are having a daily drink of milk on Archbishop Stritch. Thru a gift of $7,500 from the archbishop, a milk distribution program was begun last week which will continue thruout the summer session. A crowd was out to greet Milkman William J. Spatz when he brought the first truckload to Davis square at 45th street and Marshfield avenue. On hand to see that every one received his share was Father Joseph Kelly, assistant director of the Davis square CYO school. At the right are Ann Marie Callaghan of Mercy High school, one of the volunteer workers at the square; Sister Mary de Lellis of St. Rose of Lima parish, and Mrs. Anna Host, the chief cook.

Co-ordinated with the milk program at Davis square is the year round free lunch project for school children of the community which is sponsored by the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council, with the Chicago park district and the Federal Surplus Commodities co-operating. On an average 1,000 children are given a substantial noonday meal every day in the park refectory. Serving the table at the left are Mary Jo Carroll and May Catherine Stewart, from the Academy of Our Lady, two of scores of students enrolled as volunteer workers in the CYO vacation schools. At the right, Adeline and her small sister, Rita, enjoy a meal of lamb stew, homemade bread, applesauce, and milk.

One of the long tables in the Davis square refectory—before the lunch bell rings. In the year that the child feeding project has been in operation some of the boys and girls have gained as much as 20 pounds.

Surplus Milk TurnsParkInto a New Canaan

To some 8,000 children attending CYO summer schools in their neighborhoods, the southwest side has become a modified land of Canaan, flowing with milk, if not honey. The milk trucks began rolling last Monday. It was Archbishop Stritch who started them off with a gift of $7,500.

The milk program is directed primarily to the areas which are indicated by black spots on the sociological maps—the sections where malnutrition among the young is a serious health problem. All of the vacation schools, however, receive their quota of milk. Each youngster at a center of distribution at noonday receives an 8 ounce glass.

Buy 5,000 Quarts Daily.

With the inclusion of a milk program in its vacation school plan this season the CYO, working in coöperation with the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council, moved to purchase a daily milk supply thru the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation. Negotiations have been in progress for nine months.

When two weeks of the summer term had passed the CYO administrators decided against further postponement of the program and contracted with a private distributor for 5,000 quarts a day, until the way should be cleared for purchase thru the government. The archbishop's daily milk bill has run to $500.

But last Wednesday word came from O. M. Reed of the dairy division of the department of agriculture that government coöperation was assured. Beginning tomorrow Federal Surplus Commodities will supply milk to the vacation schools at 1 cent for a half pint bottle. The government source will be open to the parochial schools, as it previously has been to the public schools, thruout the year.

BEVERLY YMCA NAMES 1ST WOMAN MEMBER TO DIRECTORS BOARD

Mrs. Walter M. Rennie, 1716 West 100th street, an active member in many southwest side neighborhood clubs, has been appointed to the board of directors of the Beverly YMCA. She is the first woman ever named to that office, Chairman George B. Miller said.

Mrs. Walter M. Rennie.

Mrs. Rennie is president of the 3d district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, and has been president of the Morgan Park High school PTA and of the Beverly Woman's club. She also is chairman of the girls' work committee at the Beverly YMCA.

Two other members who have just been appointed to the board are Frederick W. Snider, 10930 Hoyne avenue, and Ross W. Beatty, 9001 Hoyne avenue. Mr. Beatty is an officer of the Kiwanis club of southwest Chicago and a member of the boys' work committee.

SCHOOL DISTRICT VOTERS SAY 'NO' ON TAX INCREASE

By a vote of almost four to one, residents of Idylside school district No. 85, near Joliet, at a recent meeting of the district board, vetoed a request by the board to raise the tax rate from the present $1 limit to $1.50 per $100 valuation. George Abbott Jr., acting clerk of the board, said the increase was needed as the present taxation is not sufficient to maintain the school building, pay the teachers, and provide necessary supplies. The vote was 37 to 10.

New Zoning to Spread City Home Districts

Mountainous tho it is, the task of rezoning Chicago is within a few weeks of completion, it was indicated last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the council subcommittee in charge of the work.

Lindell, as spokesman, said his committee hoped to submit the proposed ordinance in time for council action by Oct. 1. The other members are Aldermen John J. Duffy [19th], P. J. Cullerton [38th], Harry L. Sain [27th], and Frank Keenan [49th].

Public hearings begun a month ago, at which property owners can protest provisions of the tentative ordinance draft, are nearing their end. With these completed, a revised draft will be prepared, an official public hearing on it will be held, and it will then be sent to the council committee on building and zoning, which will report it out to the council.

These public hearings are being held by wards, and each alderman is invited to attend. Thus every alderman is presumed to be so familiar with the new ordinance that a vote on its adoption can be held with a minimum of debate.

Tentative Changes Few.

How thoroly the zoning subcommittee has done its preliminary work is seen from the fact that changes in the tentative draft which grow out of the ward hearings are averaging less than one-tenth of 1 per cent thus far, according to Lindell.

Practically all of these changes affect business areas, he said. Most of the objections voiced at the public hearings are by owners who want their property zoned to allow the erection of gasoline filling stations.

The proposed ordinance provides for eight use districts—single family, two family, group or row houses, apartments, business, commercial, manufacturing, and industrial. The present ordinance, adopted in 1923, designates only four zones, residen-

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

THE time when the 15 mile an hour speed limit in Garfield boulevard was exceeded only by occasional runaway horses that had been frightened by a slow-moving, chugging automobile, was recalled by Park District Policeman Thomas J. Delaney when he retired recently from the force. He joined the force in 1910 and was assigned to Garfield boulevard between Halsted street and Western avenue. More cars use the boulevard now in 10 minutes than would pass there in 10 weeks and the noise of their motors would herald their approach blocks away, Policeman Delaney said. He plans to spend his time working on his lawn and bungalow at 5653 South Wolcott street, where he lives with his wife, Mary, and their two children, William and Irene.

Loran D. Gayton, 6926 Euclid avenue, has been selected vice president of the Chicago chapter of the American Public Works association. Mr. Gayton is the assistant city engineer.

SEVEN Chicago cadets at The Citadel, Charleston, S. C. military college, have been promoted in rank, it was announced by Lieut. Col. W. L. Roberts, professor of military science and tactics. The cadets and their new rank are: First Lieut. W. J. DeWitt, 9835 Avenue L; Second Lieut. C. M. Merbitz, 7437 South Shore drive; Sergt. J. P. Roth, 6052 South Richmond street; and Corporals T. W. Smallwood, 7133 Harvard avenue, Louis Weile, 4659 Drexel boulevard, E. M. Wojdak, 1751 North Whipple street, and V. R. Ewald, 729 West 71st street.

J. Richard Carroll, son of R. H. Carroll, 7020 Jeffery avenue, is business manager at the Theater of the Dunes, Beverly Shores, Ind., this summer. The University of Illinois graduate will return to Cleveland, O., at the close of the season, where, for the last four years, he has been on the staff of the Cleveland Play House.

Calumet Area Waits Annual Song Festival

Americanization—the idea that the Calumet region, like the United States, is made up of many nationalities united as one—will be the theme of the Calumet District Music Festival Saturday afternoon and evening in Turner field, Hammond. The theme will be illustrated by nine dance, vocal, and orchestral groups representing different nationalities.

About 2,000 persons will participate in the show, which will send its contest winners to the Chicagoland Music Festival sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in Soldiers' field on Aug. 16. The performers will come from Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting, Gary, Crown Point, Munster, Calumet City, South Holland, Harvey, Lansing, Roseland, and Chicago Heights. Philip Maxwell, director of the Chicagoland Festival, will be master of ceremonies.

Sponsored by Park Board.

The festival is sponsored by the Hammond park board, of which Richard McClaughry is president. The opening of the evening program will be preceded by a parade of 15 units marching thru downtown Hammond to Turner field.

Finals of the festival's contests will take place at the Civic center Saturday afternoon. This will include vocal [tenor, soprano, baritone, bass, mezzo, and contralto]; instrumental [trombone, piano accordion, Hawaiian guitar, Spanish guitar, tenor banjo, and mandolin]; baton twirling, and flag swinging, as well as group contestants in band, choral, accordion band, and fretted orchestra. Admission will be free, it has been announced by George Calder, director

Plainfield Lions Club Will Hold Golf Match Thursday

A golf tournament for members of the Plainfield Lions club will be held Thursday at the Crystal Lawns course. Arrangements are in charge of G. L. Howieson and W. W. Overman.

Kiwanis Day.

An All-Kiwanis day celebration today will include a lake boat excursion to Milwaukee. The boat leaves Navy pier this morning at 9 o'clock and will return this evening.

595 SUBURBAN PERMITS ISSUED IN SIX MONTHS

Expenditures Show 68% Increase.

Chicago, and neighboring towns have 5,724 new homes under construction, it is shown in a survey covering the first six months of the year. The cost is estimated at $35,768,182. These figures represent an increase of 46 per cent in the number and a 51 per cent value increase in new homes built in the same area in the corresponding period last year.

All new building in the region—the city and 87 suburban towns—during the six months has amounted to $62,000,706, exceeding by $20,638,034 new construction in the first six months of 1940.

Of the homes being built, 3,675 are in the suburbs and 2,050 in the city. Total values are set correspondingly at $24,742,448 and $11,025,734.

Suburban Building Up 73 Per Cent.

Building commissioners granted permits for 595 new homes in 12 towns in the southwest area, where 434 were built in the first half year period in 1940. The increase in these suburbs is 73 per cent. The total expenditure is estimated at $3,536,966, an increase of more than 68 per cent over last year's home building outlay of $2,411,131.

Evergreen Park, while leading with 127 new homes under construction, falls short by six of the number that were built during the same period last year. The value of new building this year is $718,000, compared to $759,000 for the half year period in 1940.

In Joliet permits were issued for 49 homes having a value of $287,080. In the half year period last year Joliet built 26 dwelling places costing $173,020. Forty-nine are under construction both in Crete and Homewood. Crete's new homes have a total value of $452,269 and Homewood's $287,080. In the corresponding period last year Crete built 22 homes valued at $176,125 and Homewood 17 costing $104,925.

Oak Lawn, where 28 houses were built in the half year period last year, now has 54 new homes under construction. The cost of 1941 construction is $208,800, as compared to last year's $113,500. Riverdale is putting up 53 new homes costing $269,581. The town granted a permit also for the building of a $16,000 church. From January to July last year 28 homes were built in Riverdale at a cost of $142,910.

Other Suburbs Increase.

In Palos Heights 51 homes are going up at a cost of $325,762. Forty-two were built at a cost of $263,300 in the corresponding period last year. Harvey is building 35 homes costing $127,824, as compared to 28 costing $102,130 built in six months last year.

Blue Island also has 35 homes going up. In the same period in 1940 29 permits were issued. This year's construction costs are $198,335, compared to $153,546 in 1940.

Twenty new homes are going up in Flossmoor, six more than were built in the town in the first six months of 1940. Construction costs stand at $240,760, as compared to $162,800 for the same period last year.

In Chicago Heights, where 11 dwellings valued at $56,495 were built from January to July in 1940, 22 are being constructed at a cost of $198,335.

Markham Rate Slackens.

Markham's building rate has diminished from 56 new homes in the half year period in 1940 to 26 in 1941. New construction amounts to $103,850, approximately $100,000 less than was expended in the half year in 1940.

Home repairs, alterations, and additions in the Chicago area amounted to $2,481,449 in six months, exceeding by more than $500,000 the amount spent for like service in the half year period in 1940.

The new building survey was compiled by the Bell Savings and Loan association.

ENTRIES IN VOICE TEST MUST BE IN HAND TOMORROW

Hundreds Wish to Sing in Music Festival.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Jacqueline Krump.
[John Schiffer photo.]

The deadline for entry in the Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contests for Cook county participants will be tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. All signed entries on official blanks must be in the festival office on the fourth floor of Tribune tower at that time. Several hundred south and southwest side singers are expected to take part in this feature of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE festival of song. The deadline for those residing outside of Cook county will be Monday evening, Aug. 4, at 6 o'clock.

Official entry blanks may be obtained at the festival headquarters office or at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street.

First Contest Aug. 7.

The first south and southwest side contest will be held at 7 o'clock Thursday evening, Aug. 7, in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard. On the following night sopranos, mezzos, and basses will be adjudged. Among them will be Jacqueline Marie Krump of 8217 Hermitage avenue, dramatic soprano. Voice teachers and coaches, radio, opera, and concert stars, and orchestral conductors will be the judges.

Winners of the Cook county sectional contests will go on to the county finals, which will be held in the grand ballroom of the Drake Hotel on Wednesday night, Aug. 13, at 7 o'clock. Six voices will be chosen that night to go to the Chicagoland finals which will be held the day of the big festival, Saturday, Aug. 16. There, four winners will be chosen, two men and two women. That night, in Soldiers' field the finals will be held before a crowd of 100,000, the first time that the finals have been held in the field.

Rehearse "Injun Summer."

The second south and southwest side dance-pageant rehearsal for "Injun Summer," which will be given at the Soldiers' field concert, will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Schultz Dancing studios, 6601 South Halsted street. Mrs. Ermie Schultz will be in charge. There still is time for new entrants. No boy or girl under 7 years of age will be admitted.

Fretted orchestra rehearsals for mandolin, tenor, banjo, Spanish, and Hawaiian guitars will be held next Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 o'clock in Lyon and Healy recital hall, seventh floor, 64 East Jackson boulevard.

GUEST PASTORS TO FILL PULPIT IN MORGAN PARK

The pulpit of Morgan Park Methodist church, 110th street and Longwood drive, will be filled on succeeding Sundays this month and August by guest ministers, taking the place of Dr. Charles R. Ross, the pastor, during his convalescence from illness.

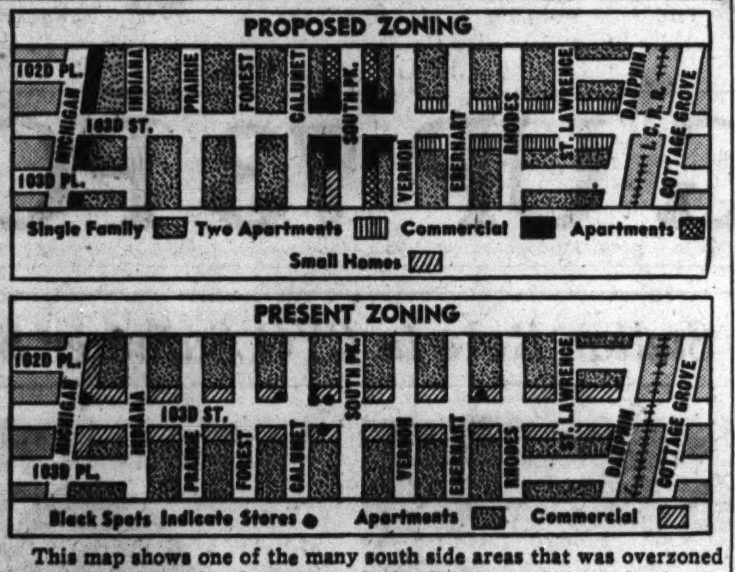
Today and next Sunday the Rev. R. W. Miller, counsellor on Christian education for the Rock River conference, will be the preacher. Dr. C. Claud Travis of Evanston, former minister at the First Methodist Church of Englewood, will preach on Aug. 3. On the following Sunday, Dr. M. S. Magor, former minister at Trinity church, will be the speaker.

Sunday, Aug. 17, will bring a former Morgan Park Methodist pastor, Dr. Arthur D. Klontz, who now is minister at Boulevard church in Detroit, Mich. On the following Sunday Dr. Edmund D. Soper of Garrett Biblical institute, who formerly was president of Ohio Wesleyan university, will be heard.

Isabella La Rabida Circle Will Play Cards Tomorrow

Members and friends of La Rabida circle No. 36, Daughters of Isabella, will meet tomorrow at the Orange temple, Green and 68th streets, for cards and games. Mrs. Margaret Thieme is chairman of the arrangements committee and Mrs. Emma Toomey is co-chairman. The circle is headed by Mrs. Mae McNamara.

Proposed South Side Zoning Changes



This map shows one of the many south side areas that was overzoned for commercial use by the 1923 zoning ordinance, and the reduction in business area that would be effected under the proposed new zoning code for the city.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, July 21.

This is the watering season in gardens. When it is once begun it should be thoroly finished and not undertaken again until the ground needs water. Water need not be given nearly as often when the ground is soaked. Incessant watering both night and morning does the plants little good, altho it may saturate the ground.

Tuesday, July 22.

Keep weeds removed. Do hand weeding and get rid of the weeds once and for all. The small city yard is not so large that hand weeding cannot be the chief method of eradication; such yards should be as free of weeds as the parlor of the house.

Wednesday, July 23.

Give window box plants another application of plant food. A good, high grade complete fertilizer will work wonders on boxed plants, but be sure to examine the soil and water whenever needed.

Thursday, July 24.

Sweet peas, nasturtium, and other plants are likely to be attacked by aphids and spraying should be continued. It is a good time to propagate bleeding heart, oriental poppy, and, alkanet by separating the roots or making root cuttings. Some growers find that laying the stems of many plants soon produces a new plant and at little cost. Among these plants are climbing roses, spurge, ivy, verbenas and others of equal value. Divide iris if necessary.

Give the Japanese plenty of water as they come into bud or flower. Plan to lift and divide all peonies that need it next fall.

Friday, July 25.

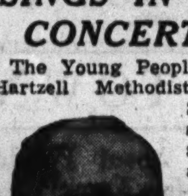
Keep faded roses removed from baby rambler roses and the plants will flower over a long period. By sowing columbine seed now a new supply of plants may be enjoyed. Sow about an eighth of an inch deep, press into the soil, water well with a fine spray, and give a bit of shade during the heat of the day. Soak dahlias at least once a week.

Saturday, July 26.

Sow seeds of quick growing annuals for autumn bloom. Among these are the white baby breath, Shirley poppy, lupin, etc. Keep the roses well watered. Buy pansy seed for August sowing.

Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.

HARTZELL CHOIR SINGS IN VESPER CONCERT TODAY



James Campbell.

The Young People's choir of the Hartzell Methodist church, 3011 South Prairie avenue, will present the sixth and semi-final concert in Sunday vesper series this afternoon at the Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue. The concert, under the direction of James Campbell, will begin at 5 o'clock. The series is sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the forest preserve district. The program follows:

"America" .... Ward
"O, Southland" .... Johnson
Community singing.
"Pilgrims' Chorus" .... Wagner
"Out in the Fields" .... Dawson
"Listen to the Lambs" .... Duett
"Ride the Chariot" .... Smith
"Thanks Be to God" .... Mendelssohn
"What of the Night" .... Robinson
"Rock My Soul" .... Spiritual
"Joshua" .... Spiritual
"On the Sea," "Swing Along" ......
.... [Sung by Boys' Glee club].
"Ships of Arcady" .... Head
"Soon Ah Will Be Done" .... Dawson
"God of the Open Air" .... Cain

Other concerts in the series will be presented today at the Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, by the Pullman Choral society, and at the Thatcher woods in River Forest, by the St. Cecilia choir of Our Lady of Sorrows church.

Final concerts in the series, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the county forest preserve district, will be presented in the same woods next Sunday.

of the festival and Whiting public schools supervisor. The winners will be presented to the audience as a highlight of the evening program.

Include Community Singing.

Other items on the evening program will be community singing under the direction of Carl Craven: an exhibition of bâton twirlers and flag swingers; singing of the "Hallelujah Chorus" by the massed choruses directed by Richard Cooper; singing by the massed junior choirs from the community directed by Ethylene Brown, and the match-lighting ceremony made famous at the Chicagoland Festival.

Making up the senior massed choruses will be groups from the First Methodist, First Christian, and First Presbyterian churches of Hammond, the Hammond Orpheus choir, the Public Service chorus, and the First Reformed Church Choir of South Holland. Mr. Calder extends an invitation to other choruses familiar with the "Hallelujah Chorus" to come to the rehearsal at 8 o'clock Friday evening in Turner field.

Pageant of America.

Numbers in the Americanization pageant will be contributed by the Saengerbund Fidelia [German] mixed chorus from Hammond; folk dancers from the Hungarian Reformed church of Indiana Harbor; a Tamburitza orchestra from the Croatian groups of Whiting; a Negro mixed chorus from St. Mark's AME church in Indiana Harbor; Czecho-Slovakian folk dancers from the Immaculate Conception church in Whiting; a Polish choir from St. Stanislaus church in East Chicago; English, Scottish, and Irish folk dancers from the McNeil School of Dancing in Whiting; a Slovak girls' marching team, the "Harbor Cadets," from the Assumption church in Indiana Harbor, and a Nurses' choir from St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago.

A feature of the show will be the singing of "God Bless America" by both audience and performers.

Assisting Mr. Calder in presenting the festival are A. V. Scott, recreational director of Hammond and R. C. Dixey, Harold Haines, and Charles Lehman, representing local American Legion posts.

Legion Posts in Parade.

The parade committee has invited 48 ex-service organizations from Indiana's First Legion district and Illinois' Eighth district to take part in the pre-festival spectacle. In the line of march will be color guards from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled Veterans, Canadian Legion, and the Polish Legion.

Bands in the parade will be composed of members of the federation of musicians in Hammond, the 72 piece Carillo band of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, the Blue Island Legion Clown band, the Emerson High school band of Gary, and the American Maize Products company band. At the end of the parade all the units will mass for "Semper Fidelis."

Marchers will proceed north in Hohman avenue from Harrison park at 8 o'clock, thence east in State street and north in Michigan street to the west entrance of Turner field.

The parade will be led by Marshall Dean Mitchell. Division marshals will be Earl Snyder, Louis Colleys, McKinley Wallace, Jack Tucker, and George Hochbaum.

Heads Committee.

Mrs. Hugh B. Haines, 4624 Ellis avenue, has been appointed chairman of the reception committee of the Arché club.

Aspirants for School Jobs Face Puzzlers.

Want to enter Chicago Teachers college? Then try your luck on these questions:

Are elements which form more than one type of crystal allotropic, amphoteric, amorphous, or deliquescent?

Did the English remain in the northwest after the Treaty of 1783?

Are Haversian canals characteristic of adipose, epileptial, nerve, connective, or bone tissues?

Are adjacent angles supplementary if their exterior sides lie in a straight line?

These are a few of the brain puzzlers that confronted 941 Chicago high school graduates and 137 college graduates last month when they took written examinations for admission to Chicago Teachers college. Those who passed the written examinations—in English, general science, United States history, civics, arithmetic, algebra, and geometry—were then given oral examinations by committees of five college professors.

300 Now Candidates.

As a result of the examinations, 300 of the high school graduates and 53 of the college graduates are now candidates for admission to the teachers college next fall.

This year, for the first time, all applicants' written examinations were graded by an electric scoring machine. Besides reducing the scoring time from several weeks to a matter of a few hours, the machine completely eliminated the possibility of error on the part of persons scoring the tests, according to Paul Edwards, vice chairman of the college's board of examiners.

From Southwest Side.

The names of southwest side students who survived both examinations and are candidates for admission to the college follow:

NEW ZONE PLAN EXPANDS AREAS FOR RESIDENCES

Ordinance to Be Ready in Few Weeks.

tial, apartment, commercial, and manufacturing.

One of the principal endeavors of the subcommittee is to expand the one and two family residential zones, and to cut down the volume of the commercial areas. The latter constitutes the major problem of the committee, Lindell said. When the 1923 ordinance was drawn, land owners were in a speculative mood, and many obtained commercial zoning because of the hope of bigger land values, but these hopes have long since faded.

Percentage Too High.

The result was that Chicago found itself with 17 per cent of its municipal area set aside for business and commercial uses, whereas 1.5 per cent is regarded as the ideal. If used to the limit, the present commercial zones would permit one store for each two persons in the city.

"If the streets which the 1923 ordinance zoned commercial were laid end to end, they would reach from Chicago to Los Angeles," Lindell said.

In reducing the commercial and business zones the subcommittee utilized results of land use studies made by such agencies as the Chicago Plan commission, of which Lindell is a member, and the suggestions of numerous business and improvement associations.

The ideal toward which the ordinance makers worked was to confine business sites to section line intersections as far as possible, with additional store sites on half section line crossings in the more congested areas. Under the 1923 ordinance most of the principal streets in the city are lined continuously on both sides with commercial zones.

Hit Residential Values.

These zones permitted the erection of gasoline stations, theaters, garages, and light manufacturing plants, which had a deleterious effect on residential values. A business zone, under the new ordinance, would permit only small stores and professions, while the more intensive commercial uses would be limited to districts insulated as far as is practicable from residence areas. Such intelligent planning goes far toward halting the spread of run-down areas, which has long been a problem in Chicago, Lindell said.

The new ordinance is powerless to discontinue the land uses which it would prevent in the future, he said, inasmuch as a zoning ordinance must take property as it finds it. However, a later ordinance might prohibit the replacement of these nonconforming uses once they are discontinued, the alderman said.

In framing the new ordinance the subcommittee is guided by the interpretation of the state's zoning laws by the Illinois courts. These courts, in general, have recognized that the character of a given zone in a built-up area shall be set by the use to which half or more of the area has been put.

KITCHENS MADE LIKE DAY WITH NEWER LIGHTING

Fluorescent Lamps Are on Forward March.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Fluorescent lighting is on the march and there's a most interesting model kitchen now open in Chicago that strikes a new high for intensities of artificial daylight illumination.

It is, moreover, very attractive, beautifully planned, equipped and decorated. The floor, cabinet work tops, and wall paper in the breakfast corner are carried out in harmonizing shades of blue. This wall paper has diminutive flower bouquets in regency shades of yellow and rose-red and the blinds at the windows are taped with red.

There's a satin finished honey colored mahogany breakfast set with the breakfast bar which has many uses as a partition between eating nook and meal making area finished in a material which simulates the the color and grain of the mahogany. The counter of this partition is finished in a deep shade of blue and offers room for toaster and coffee maker, grill and waffle iron, pepper and salt.

Like Natural Daylight.

Natural daylight appears to be streaming in thru the casement windows, shadowless, cool, abundant light, but instead of coming from the great out of doors it comes from daylight fluorescent lamps concealed behind window valances and from the flush panel unit located in a soffit over the sink.

There also are fluorescent fixtures placed beneath each cabinet for work counter lighting, as well as localized fluorescent installations above the range and the service bar.

Nor is incandescent lighting forgotten. This is furnished by two center fixtures. The one in the kitchen gives a well diffused light from a prismalite louvered glass fixture and in the dining portion of the room there is a colonial designed lantern which sheds adequate light on the dinette table.

Latest in Equipment.

Then, too, there's the very latest in planning and equipment. You have your water heater and electric dishwasher, your ventilating fan, and range and refrigerator plus a host of smaller appliances which are up to the minute, and up to the task that is theirs to do.

Fluorescent lighting is much with us these days as a utility light in kitchens and bathrooms and laundries. It also is used with great effect as a supplementary light in many types of decoration.

Our eating customs continue to undergo changes and as our dining rooms grow smaller, the breakfast portion of the kitchen comes to the fore. And on this breakfast corner is spent a great deal of thought and attention.

Breakfast Bars Handy.

Counters and breakfast bars are appearing in many forms and they are a convenience. As in this kitchen, they can divide the meal getting space from the eating corner, and much ingenuity is going into their planning. Sometimes this corner is designed with triple deck shelves above its counter top and cupboards below, with lots of room for appliances of all kinds, if wisely used and not overcrowded.

In no room in the house is it more important to have good lighting than in the kitchen. It makes for easier work and the thought and skill that has gone into our modern kitchen lamps and fixtures offers a variety of uits suited to every kitchen and every purse.

Light conditioning is a science we'll hear more about, for it means greater comfort, efficiency, and health for all the family. And every effort is being made to place sound knowledge on this subject in the hands of home owners and apartment dwellers all over the country.

FAMILIES PLAN OUTINGS TODAY IN S. WEST AREA

Firemen and Irish Club Have Programs.

Hundreds of families will be off this morning for a day in the open, attracted by two picnics in the southwest area.

In Orland Park the volunteer fire department, reviving the annual outing which was discontinued for several years, is meeting at Orland lake for an all-community celebration. The second large picnic is that of the Irish club, an organization of 800 families, gathering for a day of athletic events, dancing and feasting in Franks grove, Homan avenue and 117th street.

The Orland Park picnic gives the home firemen an opportunity to display their recently acquired 95-horse power engine. A parade will form at 1 o'clock at 143d street and Highland avenue.

Will Take Part.

Participating will be the volunteer fire departments of Tinley Park, Mokena, Lockport, Lemont, Willow Springs, Oak Lawn, Columbus Manor, Palos Heights and Hazelcrest. From these neighbor towns also will come fraternal, civic and patriotic groups. Lemont and New Lenox will send their 50-piece community bands, and also representing Lemont will be a company of uniformed baton twirlers.

Led by fire chief Jack Helenhouse of Orland Park the parade will proceed to the picnic grounds.

An attendance of 2,000 persons is expected at the Irish club picnic. Free bus service is to be provided from the surface lines terminus at 111th street and Sacramento avenue. The starred event of the program of entertainment will be a tug of war between the Shannon Clare Huskies and Reynold Dublin Dudes, an annual contest. Martin Shannon is president of the Irish club. The picnic committee is headed by Neil Buckley. The club's headquarters is at 441 East 88th street.

Another Picnic Listed.

Also on the picnic schedule for the week is the annual outing of the Gage Park community branch of the Woman's City club, to be held Wednesday in Dan Ryan woods, Western avenue and 87th street. The day is planned especially for the children, with games and contests. The picnickers will assemble at 10 o'clock at the wading pond in the woods. Mrs. Edgar Mawhinnie, 9737 Peoria street, president of the branch, is supervising arrangements.

Next Sunday the John S. Boyle Women's organization of the 16th Ward will hold its third annual picnic in Ryan woods.

19 NAMED FROM SO. SHORE CLUB TO 2D DISTRICT

Mrs. Fred Acker, 7641 Saginaw avenue, president of the South Shore Woman's club, has appointed 19 members as departmental chairmen to represent the club at the Second District of Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.

They include Mrs. J. P. McGillicuddy, American citizenship; Mrs. W. K. Spearing, American home; Mrs. Robert Asche, art; Mrs. Frank H. Slee, civil service; Mrs. Louis Martens, conservation; Mrs. Charles H. Plitt, education; Mrs. D. E. Olson, gardens; Mrs. G. S. Allison, Indian welfare, and Mrs. Charles Schaeffer, international relations.

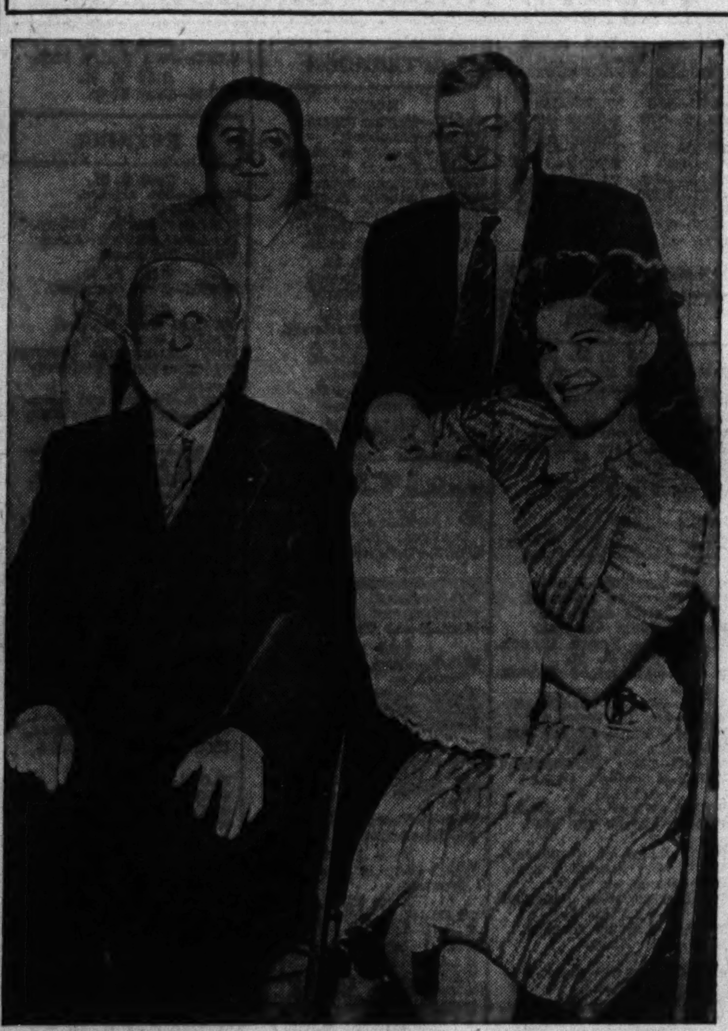
Others are Mrs. William Brady, legislation; Mrs. Otto Zeman, literature and library service; Miss Elizabeth Miller, motion pictures; Mrs. R. B. Harris, music; Mrs. E. E. Eichenbaum, press and publicity; Mrs. A. W. Gorden, public health and child hygiene; Mrs. James I. Barry, public welfare; Mrs. Warren Smith, radio; Mrs. Raymond Frakes, Illinois Federation News, and Mrs. J. I. Barry, Park Ridge School for Girls.

BEVERLY HILLS WOMEN TO HOLD PLANT MARKET

Attention of the gardeners of the community is directed by the Beverly Hills Woman's club to the annual flower show and plant market to be held Sept. 10 in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Mrs. A. O. Schnura, who heads the flower show committe, has been reminding the neighbors that now is the time to plan for specimen flower, plant, and vegetable exhibits.

The show will be open to all gardeners in the district. Those who have surplus plants may assist the club in its work of community beautification by donating to the market. Their contributions will be sold at a low price to persons interested in improving gardens and grounds.

Four Generations Welcome Newcomer



A new baby has made Valentine Breier, 93 years old, a great-great-grandfather. Mrs. Fred Geinosky, his great-granddaughter, is holding her 5 week old son, Frederick Jr., the great-great-grandchild. Mrs. William Preussner, 5238 South Laflin street, is the child's grandmother, and George Breier Sr., 2929 Bonfield street, is the great-grandfather.

U. OF C. CENTER BLENDS GAMES, CRAFTS, OUTINGS

'Sky Island' Camp Set Up on Roof.

Summer activities, a happy blend of games, crafts, athletics and outings, now in progress at the House of Happiness, 3052 Gratten avenue, and the University of Chicago settlement, 4620 South McDowell street, are attracting increasing numbers of participants of all ages from the two southwest side communities which the centers serve.

Since there are accommodations for only 168 boys and girls for the season at the center's farm camp at Chesterton, Ind., for the second year a "sky island" camp has been set up on the roof of the University of Chicago settlement for the youngsters who must stay at home. There, on fine nights the boys cook their supper over a campfire, sing and swap stories and then curl up in their blankets to sleep under the stars. The girls have the roof camp in the early evening for story telling, marshmallow roasts and song fests.

Last week a party of country lads from Huntley were invited to try out the city camp.

Hold Summer School.

A summer school is held at the settlement every day from 9 o'clock to noon. Sewing, clay modeling, basketry, toy making, horncraft, boat building, model airplane making, painting and drawing are carried on in the craft shop.

There are outings every week. Staff workers conduct trips to the beaches, Brookfield zoo, the forest preserves, museums, the airport and other places of interest.

Tuesday night is family night at the settlement. This week there will be a concert by the Jubilee Singers, James A. Mundy's Negro chorus. There are movies on Friday night on the settlement roof. On Friday evenings the police close off McDowell street to trafic, and young and old gather for relay races, folk dancing and circle games.

The settlement staff is augmented in the summer months by visiting students from colleges in other sections of the country. This season a young visitor from China, Mei-Yu-Kuo, who has been attending Carleton college, is a member of the settlement's staff.

Picks Summer Slogan.

The summer school has chosen "To Make America a Good Neighborhood" for its slogan, and is adopting its weekly programs to such themes as, "Who are we?" "Our neighborhood, a little America," and "How wars start."

The center, drawing upon government aid thru Federal Surplus Commodities, is serving lunch daily to 100 children.

Other activities of the day's program are informal singing, trained chorus singing, hobby club, woodcraft, table games, dramatics, cooking, sports and a "magic carpet" story hour.

A kindergarten, newly renovated, opens at 8 o'clock in the morning and is in session all day long. The center conducts a one day camp each week on a beach or in the forest preserves.

5TH GENERATION ARRIVES; AT 93 HE'S ALL SMILES

Perhaps the most familiar figure along Bonfield street is Valentine Breier, 93 years old, who took up residence on that street 69 years ago on his arrival from Germany. Each fine morning since his retirement as a soap maker 30 years ago, Mr. Breier has left his home at 2969 Bonfield street and taken his daily walk, smiling and chatting with neighbors.

Recently when called upon to explain the extra large smile he wore, he announced he had become a great-great-grandfather. He explained that his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Fred Geinosky, 6121 South Marshfield avenue, had given birth to a son, Frederick Jr. Mr. Breier then revised his count of living descendants which now stands at five children, 34 grandchildren, 44 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

His wife, Margaret, died 17 years ago and he lives with a daughter, Mrs. Emma Grant. His other children are George and Joseph of 2929 Bonfield street; John, 2967 Bonfield street, and William, Gary, Ind. Mr. Breier was a captain in the German army during the Franco-Prussian war.

WOMEN'S PART IN DEFENSE TO BE CAMP THEME

A summer conference on "Women and the Defense Program" will bring together in Sawyer, Mich., tomorrow 100 young women representing the clubs for industrial girls at YWCA centers in Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, and Wisconsin. The meeting, to be held at Tower hill on Lake Michigan, will continue thru Wednesday of next week. The Chicago delegation will be headed by Miss Elsabelle Goss, industrial secretary of the Stockyards YWCA center.

In the party will be five representatives from southwest side communities. The Robettes club of the Stockyards center at 4801 South Ashland avenue will send Emily Andrassi and Rosaria Flores. From groups which meet at the Central "Y" will go Agnes Imholt of the Beacon club; Louise Dudek, In Shop and Out club, and Vernette Grever, Woden club.

There will be 24 club representatives in the Chicago delegation.

FLOWING MILK MAKES AREA A MODERN CANAAN

project that was started there just a year ago. Thruout the year children from both the public and parochial schools of the neighborhood have come to the square for a substantial, hot noonday meal. One thousand lunches is the daily average.

The area is one in which the malnutrition figure and tuberculosis infection rate have run high. Health surveys showed that 93 per cent of the children had defective teeth, the result of vitamin deficiencies. It is a district of homes where mothers must work to make ends meet. Before the free lunch program was begun, hundreds of children necessarily were left to shift for themselves at lunchtime.

The Back of the Yards Neighborhood council tackled the job of community feeding. The second floor of the Davis square administration building was converted into kitchens and refectory. The Town of Lake chamber of commerce, holding membership in the council, gave a large gas range. Loop hotels flurnished stacks of dishes, silverware, pots and pans. The Works Progress administration supplied a dietitian. The park employés all pitched in. Scores of volunteer workers—sociology students attracted by the experiment, women of the neighborhood, Boy and Girl Scouts—lent a hand. The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation supplied the food.

7 States Study Program.

So successful has the council's community feeding project been, that seven states have sent dietitians to study it. Even Washington took note of what was going on in Chicago. When a nutrition study for the army and navy and the country at large was being made this spring, two of the council leaders in the movement, the Rev. Edward McGovern, from Our Lady of Good Counsel church, and Joseph Meegan, Davis square supervisor and executive secretary of the council, were called to Washington to tell government agencies how the community feeding program was being run back of the yards.

List Free Milk Areas.

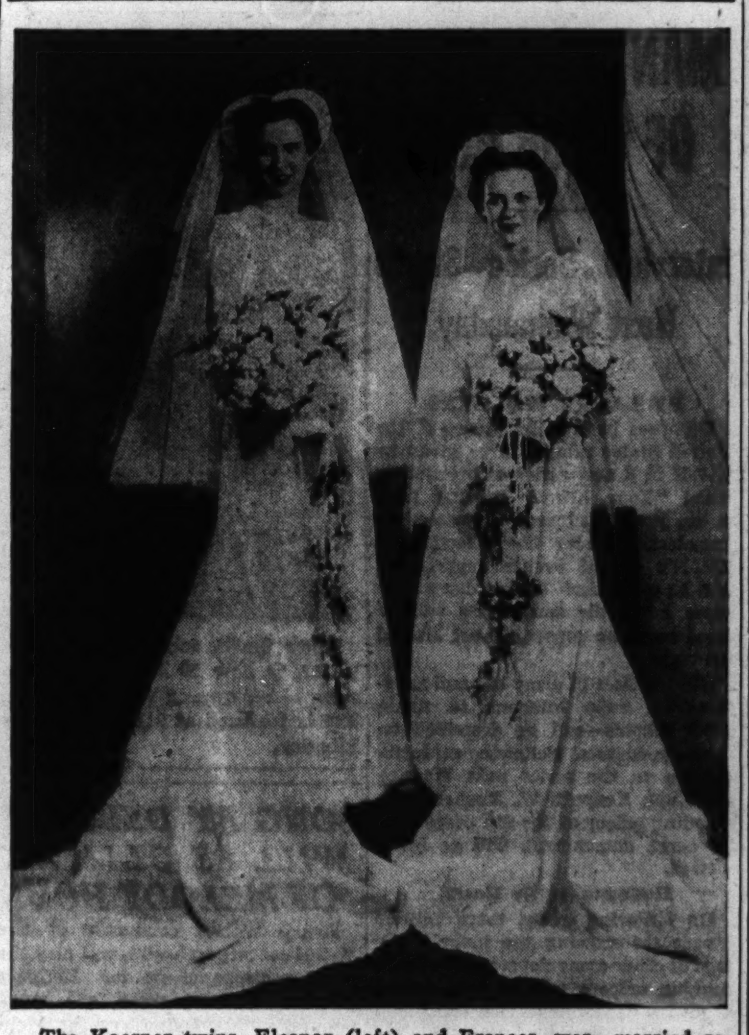
Sherman park, 52d street and Racine avenue, with 981 children; Davis square, 45th street and Marshfield avenue, 911; McKinley Park, 39th street and Western avenue, 639; Gage park, 55th street and Western avenue, 600; Armour square, 33d street and Shields avenue, 546; Fuller park, 45th street and Princeton avenue, 460; Marquette park, 67th street and Kedzie avenue, 460.

St. Brendan's school, 67th street and Racine avenue, 421 children; Cornell square, 51st and Wood streets, 406; Sacred Heart school, 910 West 18th street, 355; St. Joseph's school, 1413 West 13th street, 285; Hardin square, 26th street and Wentworth avenue, 325; St. Turibius school, 4115 West 56th street, 262; Mark White square, 29th and Halsted streets, 365; St. John's school, 100 West 18th street, 175; St. Symphorosa's school, 6149 South Mason avenue, 165, and All Saints' school, 26th and Wallace streets, 122 children.

ANNUAL OUTING OF FORESTERS TO DRAW 5,000

Five thousand members of the South Side Associated Courts, Catholic Order of Foresters, are expected to attend the organization's annual picnic next Sunday in Red Gate grove, 97th street and Archer avenue. Dancing, games, and races will be among the attractions at the outing. In charge of arrangements are Joseph B. Rosner, 1445 East 72d street, president, and Joseph Shroth, 5241 South Bishop street, chairman, who will be assisted by Peter Hoogland Jr., 30 West 114th street; James McNamara, 1505 East 63d street; John Zarobsky, 5329 South Hermitage avenue, and Edward Moran, 612 West 47th place.

Twin Sisters Have Double Wedding



The Koerner twins, Eleanor (left) and Frances, were married recently in a double wedding ceremony. Eleanor was married to John J. Roche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Roche, 6804 South Calumet avenue, and Frances became the bride of Charles A. Cupp, son of John A. Cupp of Youngstown, O. Mr. Roche is now with the army at Camp Wolters, Mineral Wells, Tex., and the Cupps live at 6027 Drexel avenue. The brides are the daughters of Mrs. Gregory A. Koerner, 6040 Drexel avenue.

W-G-N TO GIVE MANY GLIMPSES OF 'YOUR ARMY'

Interview Series Starts Next Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Glimpses behind the scenes of the United States army will be given by W-G-N in a new series of broadcasts, titled "Your Army," starting at 2 p. m. next Wednesday. Succeeding broadcasts, under the direction of W-G-N's special events department, will be aired each Wednesday at the same hour, the series also will be aired over the coast to coast Mutual network.

Many phases of army life and activity—from soup kitchens to flying cadet schools—will be described on these broadcasts. Following an introduction to the series next Wednesday Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will be interviewed.

Hostesses to Be Heard.

On following weeks there will be broadcasts showing the inner workings of other army departments. High ranking officers will be interviewed about the departments they command. They will describe life in the ROTC, the quartermaster corps, the medical corps, the air cadet corps, nursing service, army camp hostesses force, and the food kitchens. Each program promises to be informative and entertaining.

Schedule of Broadcasts.

A tentative schedule of the first eight programs follows:

July 23—Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will describe life at the flying station at Chicago airport.

July 30—Interviews with officers and ROTC trainees at Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 6—Interviews with two women, lieutenants in the army nursing service.

Aug. 13—Interview with Col. Henry B. Barry, commanding officer, Chicago quartermaster depot.

Aug. 20—Interviews with officers of the Medical corps who will describe how the army physicians and surgeons protect the health of the soldiers.

Aug. 27—Interviews with two hostesses from Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 27—Interviews with officers who will tell the requirements for entrance into the army aviation cadet corps.

Sept. 10—Maj. William R. MacKinnon, commandant of the bakers and cooks school at Fort Sheridan, will tell how and with what menus the army is fed. June Baker, W-G-N's home economics expert, will also appear on this program.

Each week thereafter another aspect of army life will be described. The entire series will present a rounded picture of the machinery which runs the United States army. The programs will originate in the studios of W-G-N.

In 'Midstream'

Nina Klowden, a former Northwestern university actress, plays a leading role, that of Jinny Storey in the serial "Midstream," aired over WENR at 4:45 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays.

[Seymour Photo.]

W-G-N Songstress

Mary Small, former child entertainer, is now 19 and has a radio show of her own on W-G-N-Mutual. She is featured at 9:15 p. m. every Monday.

SONG BY DEBUSSY WILL BE CLIMAX OF MELODY HOUR

Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will play the piano accompaniment for Kathryn Witwer, soprano, when she sings Debussy's "Mandoline" as the highlight of the Pageant of Melody over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday. The program will present a varied musical half hour featuring melodies from Victor Herbert to Beethoven. The orchestra will open the broadcast with the "Abu Hassan Overture" by Carl Weber. A medley of Debussy works is the second offering. Miss Witwer will sing "Beau Soir" and the second number is the selection that will feature Weber and Miss Witwer.

Michael Wilkomirski will be heard in a violin solo with the background of the chorus and orchestra presenting Arensky's "Serenade." Miss Witwer will be heard singing "Twilight In Barakeesk" from Victor Herbert's "Rose of Algeria" and the orchestra will play Moskowsky's "Malaguena" from "Boabdil" and the last movement of Beethoven's "Symphony No. 5."

KATHRYN WITWER TO BE GUEST ON YOUR MUSIC I. Q.

Kathryn Witwer, soprano soloist on W-G-N and Mutual's Pageant of Melody program each Wednesday, will have a chance to display her musical knowledge when she appears on "Your Music I. Q." broadcast over W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow. She will face a barrage of questions sent in by listeners who hope to stump the board of experts on this popular musical quiz program.

Miss Witwer will not have to face the fire alone, however, for with her will be three other experts: Cecil Smith, music and drama critic of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; Dr. Adrian Verbrughen, son of Henry Verbrughen, the former conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra; Peggy Lee, singer in the Butlery of the Ambassador Hotel.

Pierre Andre is the announcer on "Your Music I. Q." Mary Afflick produces the program.

LONE RANGER IS WINNER 2D TIME OF SAFETY HONOR

For the second time in five years, "The Lone Ranger" program, aired over W-G-N and a coast to coast Mutual network hookup, has been presented with the annual award of the C. I. T. Safety Foundation. The honor was bestowed to the radio program contributing the most to traffic safety during the year.

"The Lone Ranger" first won the award in 1937, for its traffic safety talks made by the Lone Ranger the year before.

John Darr, representing the Commercial Investment Trust of New York City, made the presentation of a specially engraved plaque on the broadcast of the Lone Ranger last week in the studios of WXYZ, Detroit, where the broadcast originates.

AIR KENT COOPER SONG SATURDAY ON W-G-N SHOW

A. P. Manager's Ballad to Be Sung by Baggiore.

"My Dixie Girl," a ballad by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, will be sung by Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as the feature of the Chicagoland hour over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will speak.

Cooper will attend the broadcast and hear his tune played for the first time over the Mutual network. The rôle of a composer is a new one for Cooper, who has been identified with newspaper work since 1893 when he started as a reporter in Indianapolis.

Medley of Memory Songs.

Another highlight will be a medley of memory songs, including the Egbert Van Alstyne favorite "Melodies." Marion Claire, soprano soloist, will sing "Smiles" and "School Days." Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, will sing "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree."

Miss Claire, Baggiore, and the chorus will be featured in a medley of Franz Lehar songs.

Miss Claire will also sing Lehar's "Melody of Love."

The complete program follows:

"Gold and Silver Waltz"..............Lehar
Orchestra.
"Melody of Love"......................Lehar
Marion Claire.
"My Dixie Girl"......................Cooper
Attilio Baggiore and chorus.
Franz Lehar selections:
"In Marsovia"—Chorus.
"Vilia"—Marion Claire and Baggiore.
"My Little Nest of Heavenly Blue"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Gypsy Love—Miss Claire, Baggiore and chorus.
Address by Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Medley of memory songs:
"Memories"—Ensemble.
"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" Baggiore and chorus.
"Smiles"—Miss Claire.
"O, You Beautiful Doll"—Baggiore.
"Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland"—chorus.
"Schooldays"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Honeymoon"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, and chorus.
"Russian Sailor Dance"...............Gliere
Orchestra.
"Love's Own Sweet Song"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, Kalman, and chorus.

The entire program will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

UTLEY IS GUEST COMMENTATOR ON W-G-N SERIES

Clifton Utley, news interpreter and commentator on foreign affairs, has begun a series of programs as guest commentator on the W-G-N newscast which featured the late Capt. E. D. C. Herne. Utley will be heard Monday thru Saturday from 6:30 to 6:45 p.m. Herne died last month after an operation.

Utley has long been in contact with the news fronts of the world. He traveled thruout Europe and Africa for many years, studying political and economic problems. Utley comments on foreign affairs over W-G-N at 8 p. m. each Tuesday. He has frequently appeared on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, W-G-N-Mutual's weekly forum on current affairs, broadcast at 10 a. m. Sunday. Altho busy in radio, he still finds time to maintain his position as the director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. For his new guest series Utley intends to devote his time to pithy, up to the minute dispatches, with only occasional interpretation.

PEERCE TO BE GUEST TODAY ON AMERICA SHOW

Jan Peerce, noted concert tenor, and Martha Ostenso, novelist, will be the guest stars on the "America Preferred" broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 11 to 11:30 a. m. today. For this program, the second in the series, presented each week with the coöperation of the United States treasury department, Pierre Van Paassen, journalist and author, will again be the narrator.

Other famous public figures, among them Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, Ania Dorfman, pianist, and Mischa Elman, violinist, will appear on future "America Preferred" programs.

HILDEGARDE TO BE GUEST AGAIN OF TOM, DICK, HARRY

Hildegarde.

More adventures of army boys who yoo-hoo at scantily clad girl golfers will be chronicled in the broadcast of the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow.

Hildegarde, favorite songstress of the air lanes and of supper clubs, will make a return appearance on this hilarious show. Besides appearing with the three W-G-N comedians she will sing the song about a pair of little refugees, "My Sister and I."

Tom, Dick and Harry will tell the story [in song] of "The Bearded Lady" and "Pindu, the Hindu Fakir." Ed Allen is the narrator and Robert Trendler directs the orchestra and gets involved in the Tom, Dick, and Harry comedy sequences. William A. Bacher produces the show.

Two Substitute Programs While Lindlahr Vacations

Two programs, the "Food Quiz" and the "Hymn Singer" are presented over W-G-N during Victor H. Lindlahr's vacation. The quiz program is heard Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8:30 to 8:45 a. m. and brings together three famous radio personalities: Beverly Bayne, star of stage, screen and radio; Dale Kennedy, well known announcer on the Lindlahr broadcasts, and Norman Brokenshire, noted commentator whose voice is one of the most noted of the pioneer days of radio. The gospel program is heard on the same days at 8:45 to 9 a. m. featuring James Elwood who takes the second half of the Lindlahr time.

W-G-N Sales Up 25 Pct. During First Half of '41

Local time sales for W-G-N were up 25.8 per cent for the first six months of 1941 according to an announcement by William A. McGuineas, sales manager. The increase represented a gain over the industry's general average and was attributed, in part, to W-G-N's sales record of 18 straight weeks of increased sales from Feb. 21 to the last week of June.

S. WEST KIWANIS CLUB WILL HAVE STAG GOLF DAY

The Kiwanis club of Southwest Chicago will hold its annual stag golf tournament for members and friends tomorrow at 2 o'clock at the Navajo Fields country club, Blue Island. The tournament, in which the Kiwanis club of Blue Island will participate, will be followed in the evening by a dinner and awarding of prizes. Herbert W. Thompson is in charge of the event.

William S. Kiskadden, of the speakers committee of the southwest club, has announced the following speakers will appear at the regular Monday meetings:

July 28, Dr. Hugh S. MacKenzie, "Australia and the United States;" Aug. 4, Dr. E. V. Tubbs, "The American Scene;" Aug. 11, Dr. Ernst Schwarz, "Our American Neighbors;" Aug. 18, George Hunt, "Antarctic Adventures;" Aug. 25, Mrs. Richard M. McClure, "Whimsey by the Mile."

Madonna K. of C. to Hold 15th Golf Tourney Today

The 15th annual golf tournament of Madonna council, Knights of Columbus, will be held today at the Glen Eagles golf course, McCarthy and Bell roads. A steak dinner and entertainment will follow the contest. Martin Morrison, deputy grand knight, is chairman of the tournament and is assisted by James Cassidy, Harold Storie, Vince Donegan, Joseph Halloran, James Ryan, John Pollick, and Thomas Carmody.

ALUMINUM TO BE TOPIC ON REVIEW STAND PROGRAM

Problems which confront the United States in its efforts to increase the production of aluminum for national defense will receive attention on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand discussion on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 10 to 10:25 a. m. today.

Parker Wheatley, director of Northwestern university's radio department, will be the moderator. The three participants in the discussion will be: Charles H. Behre Jr., Northwestern university professor of economic geology; Edward F. Obert, professor of mechanical engineering in Northwestern's technological institute, and Mary B. Gilson, author of "Unemployment Insurance in Great Britain, 1931" and economics professor on leave from the University of Chicago.

CITY REZONING PLAN NEARLY READY

BUSSES FOR 93 YEARS FOLLOW AMERICAN WAY

Elk Grove Family Is an Institution.

It was 93 years ago this month that a German farmer with his wife and six children jolted out of Chicago in a covered wagon along the old Indian trail which is now Algonquin road. The way was rough and the midsummer sun drew perspiration from his brow, but Friedrich Busse did not care. For after a two day journey he was to reach the northwest tip of Cook county, where he was to found what might be called the Busse empire.

William Busse Sr.

William Busse Jr.

Today there are more than 1,000 of his descendants in Mount Prospect, Elk Grove, Arlington Heights, and surrounding territory. Many still farm the original lands that have been handed down from father to son. Some are statesmen, some bankers, ministers, florists, merchants, insurance salesmen, real estate agents. But no matter what vocation they have pursued, few of them have strayed far from the frame tavern and the fertile 160 acre tract of prairie land which the first Busse bought on July 5, 1848, for $2,700.

Seven Generations.

The history of Elk Grove township is practically the history of the Busse family. Seven generations of the hardy, industrious stock have played an increasingly large part in the development of the area from a wilderness to a thriving agricultural and industrial center.

It was County Commissioner William Busse, grandson of Friedrich, and his son, William Jr., who pioneered the first bank in the northwest part of the county. Since it was founded 30 years ago this July, the Mount Prospect State bank has been a family institution. Its founders conduct it as chairman of the board and president.

William J. Busse and Albert Froemling, grandson of the commissioner, are assistant cashiers. All nine of the bank's directors are direct descendants of Friedrich or related to the family by marriage.

Born in Original Home.

Because of his long period of service in state and county politics, William Busse Sr. is perhaps the most widely known of the clan. He was born in the original homestead in 1864, and lived there until 1891, when he became deputy sheriff of the county, a position he held until 1900.

In that year he was elected to the county board, and in 1907, when Edward J. Brundage resigned from the presidency he was elected to the office. He was reëlected the next year, presiding over the board until 1912, when he and all the Republican candidates were defeated by members of the Bull Moose party.

Two years later, however, Mr. Busse was returned to the board and has served on it ever since. He has been on all the important committees and has been especially active in the promotion of good roads and the development of the county's system of forest preserves. This year marks his 50th anniversary in public life.

Sold Farm in 1894.

His term as deputy sheriff convinced him that he could not be a farmer and a public servant at the same time. In 1894 he sold his farm and moved to Mount Prospect—at that time only a flag stop on the Chicago and North Western railroad with a population of 35.

There he became a driving force in the hamlet, organizing a public school district and serving as its first secretary from 1898 to 1905. In 1911 he helped to found the Mount Prospect Improvement association. The first improvement, according to the records, was the purchase and installation of 25 kerosene street lamps. When the village was incorporated, William Busse was the logical man for board president, an office he filled from 1917 to 1929.

Altho he can be found in his office in the county building six days a week, Mr. Busse has found time to become interested in banking, auto sales, and real estate, to help organize the St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran church, and incidentally to rear three sons and four daughters, all of whom are married and live in Mount Prospect.

Sons Shun Politics.

If none of his sons entered politics, it is because they have heeded the advice of their father. Despite his own success, he has never recommended it as a worthwhile field for a young man to enter.

But William Busse was not the only member of the family to enter public life. As early as 1856, his uncle, Christian Busse, eldest son of Friedrich, was elected to the office of town supervisor which included

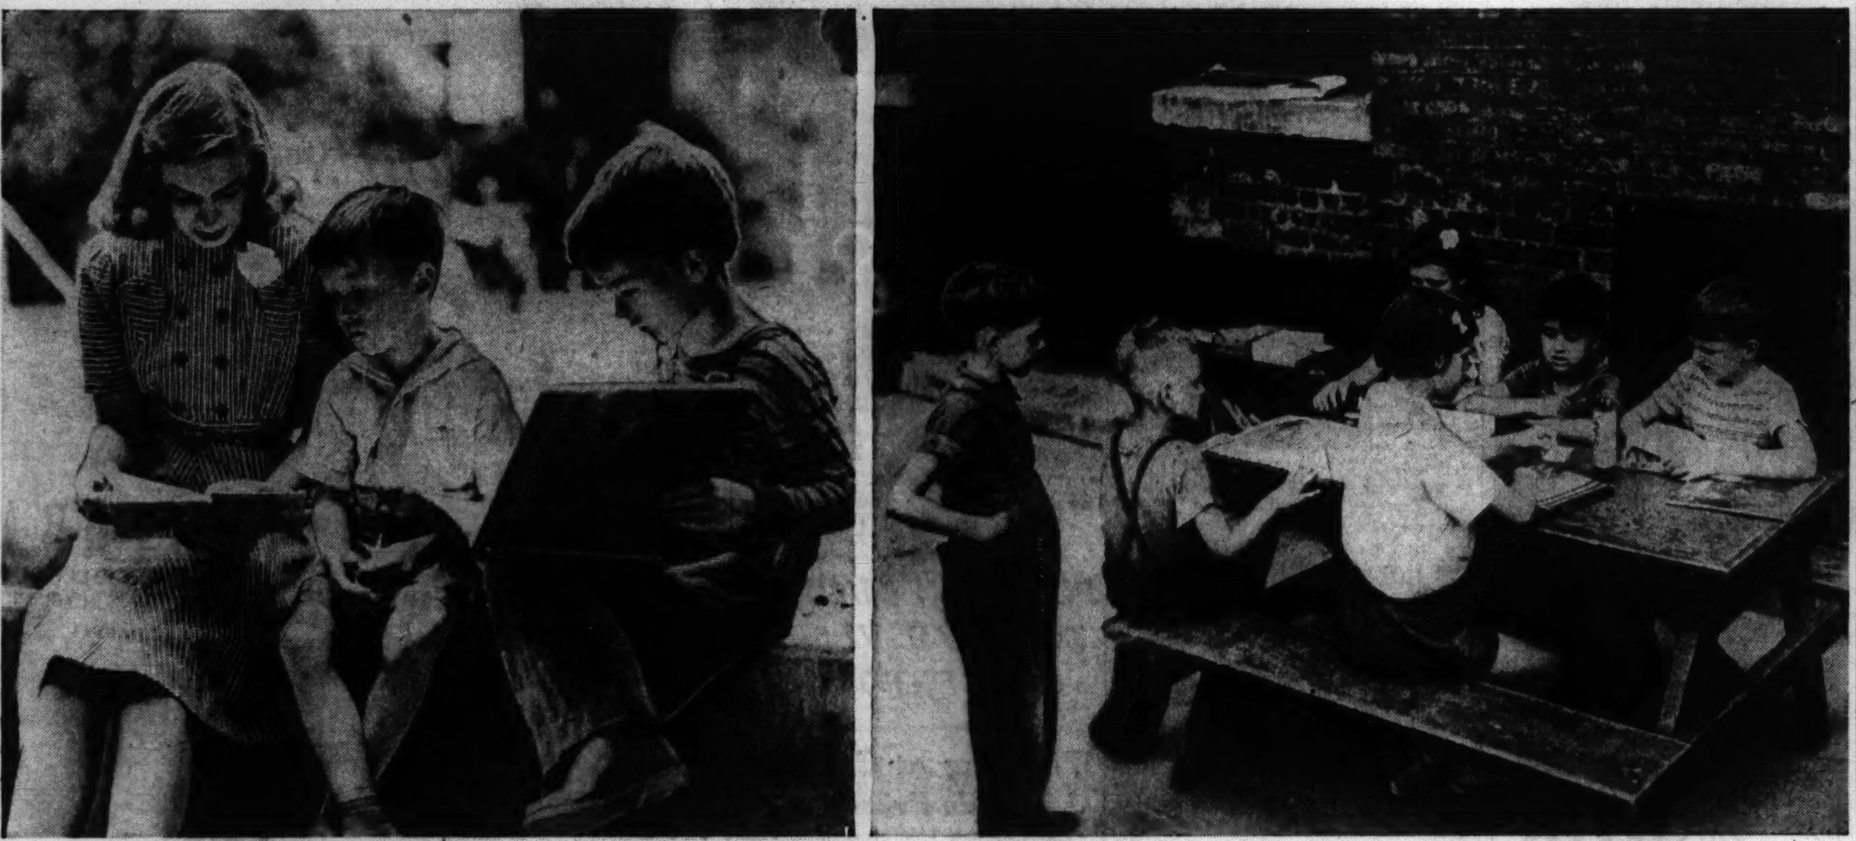
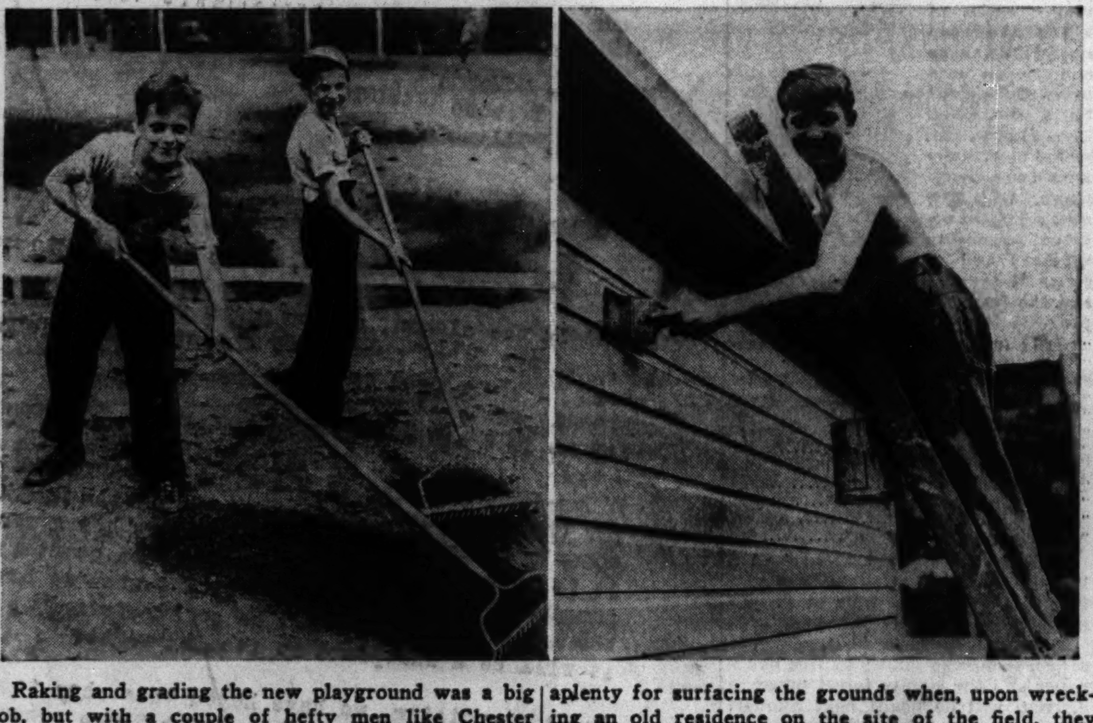
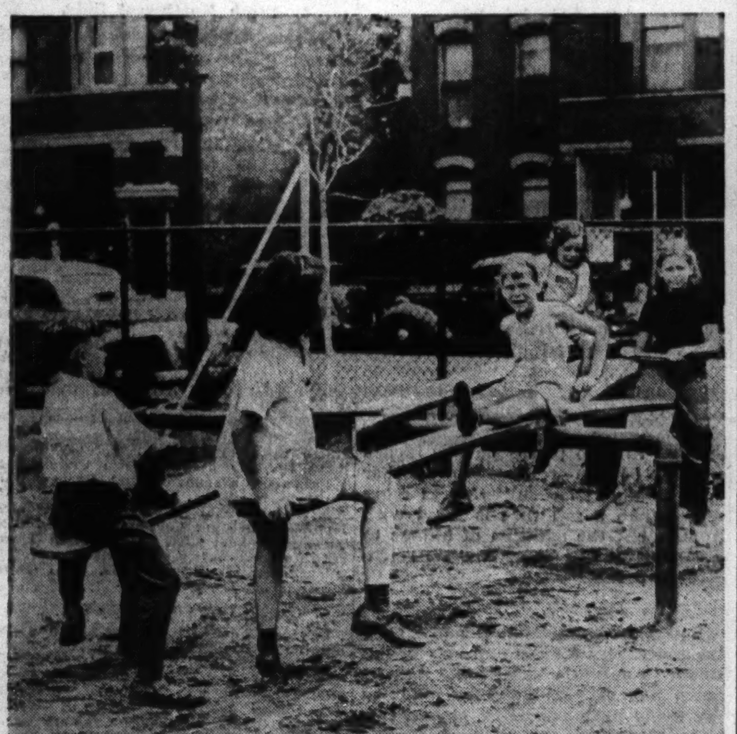
Children Build Their Own Playground at Association House



A pause in the day's occupation for a bit of serious reading. At the Association House of Chicago, 2150 North avenue, on the edge of the new playground, Miss Martha Thomson, counselor, shares the "Story of the Three Bears" with Donald Radmer, while Ferry Bedell pours over a mammoth volume of Longfellow's "Hiawatha." At the right, seated at a bench and table set constructed in the settlement's wood working shops, these youngsters are busy with summer pastimes. The group includes Eugene Hall, Talma Skinder, Gloria Manseau, Norman Abrams, and Ronald Adalbert. The playground was built by those who use the settlement. Every day is play day at the Association House.



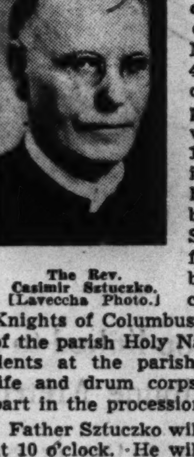
Raking and grading the new playground was a big job, but with a couple of hefty men like Chester Wujcikowski, 2220 North avenue, and Harry Brandt, 1642 Bell avenue, on the business end of the rakes it didn't take any time at all. The boys had gravel aplenty for surfacing the grounds when, upon wrecking an old residence on the site of the field, they discovered it was built on top of a glacial stone deposit. Paul Boylan, 1507 North Leavitt, did a lot of painting on the equipment shed.



These happy youngsters are enjoying the teeter-totters which the high school boys have fashioned in the manual training shops. The teeters are part of the home grown equipment which has taken form on the new playground at Association House.

Priest for 50 Years to Be Feted Today

Fifty years in the priesthood will be celebrated today by the Rev. Casimir Sztuczko, who has been pastor of Holy Trinity church, 1118 Noble street, for 48 years. A procession on the parish grounds will precede the 10 o'clock services. A guard of honor for Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch will be formed by members of Lafayette council of the Knights of Columbus. Several groups of the parish Holy Name society, students at the parish school, and a fife and drum corps also will take part in the procession.



The Rev. Casimir Sztuczko. [Lavecchia Photo.]

Father Sztuczko will celebrate mass at 10 o'clock. He will be assisted by the Rev. Edward Przybylski, pastor of St. James Polish church, as deacon and the Rev. Frank Nowakowski as sub-deacon. The Rev. Dr. Stanislaus Lisewski, president of St. Edward's university in Austin, Tex., will preach the sermon and the Rev. William Connor, chaplain for the Sisters of the Holy Cross at St. Mary's, Ind., will be master of ceremonies. The Holy Trinity choir under the direction of Vincent Baluta will present special music.

Mayor Kelly to Be Guest.

Among the guests at the services will be the Rev. Albert Cousineau, superior general of the Holy Cross order; the Rev. Thomas Bona and the Rev. Theodore Czastka, diocesan consultors, and Mayor Kelly.

A reception will be held in Holy Trinity High school dining room at 12:30 o'clock. The Rev. John Zielezinski will be toastmaster. Walter H. Sajewski will present greetings to Father Sztuczko on behalf of the men of the parish; Mrs. Cunejunda Kanka, on behalf of the women of the parish; Miss Victoria Kolman, for the young ladies; and Stanislaus Arendarczyk, for the young men. The grammar school orchestra and the Holy Trinity choir will provide the music.

A banquet will be given at 6 o'clock in the high school dining room with I. K. Rozmarek, president of the Polish National alliance, as toastmaster. Mrs. Valeria Glowacki, a member of the Chicago City Opera company, will sing and Miss Aldona Zebrowska will play a violin solo.

Studied at Notre Dame.

The Rev. B. J. Sztuczko, nephew and assistant to the pastor, is president of the 50th anniversary committee; W. H. Sajewski, vice president; Miss Irene Janusz, recording secretary; Miss Victoria Kolman, financial secretary; and Vaclav Duzewski, treasurer. Committee members include J. S. Swierczynski, Peter Grzesiak, Dr. M. V. Kaminski, Henry Brandt, the Rev. Brother Stanislaus, the Rev. Brother Theophilus, the Rev. Brother George, and Mrs. Maria Straube.

At the age of 16 Father Sztuczko set out from Poland to answer a call from the Holy Cross order in America for a Polish boy to study for the priesthood. He studied at Notre Dame university and after being ordained in 1891 he served as an assistant at St. Hedwig's parish in South Bend, Ind. for two years. Since that time he has been at the Holy Trinity church.

WATSON PARK CHURCH MAKING PLANS FOR A COMMUNITY SOCIAL

The annual community lawn social of the Watson Park church, 6337 Cornelia avenue, will be held at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening. An informal entertainment will be presented and movies will be shown. Games in which both young and old may take part have been planned. Ladies of the church have set up sales booths and will serve refreshments. Proceeds of the social will go to the building fund of the church. Ray Haas has charge of arrangements and R. E. Angerhofer is publicity chairman.

Railroad to Aid Village in Keeping Down Track Dust

The public relations committee of the Des Plaines council last week obtained the coöperation of the Chicago and North Western railroad in oiling down its road bed in the suburb after complaints had been registered concerning the clouds of dust thrown up by trains.

Boy Sure Hits a Mean Drum; Started at 7

Stanley Logan's got rhythm. He's been beating the skins for more than nine years now and twice in a row he's won first place in the National high school snare drum contests.

At 17 Stanley's more reserved than most boys his age. He's an honor student at Taft High school, a star Boy Scout in his Boy Scout troop, and good at chemistry.

But when you put a pair of sticks into his hands he's straight out of this world. He points with pride to Gene Krupa as originally a snare drummer. "Krupa's hep, all right," he says.

Knows the Drummers.

He knows all the concert drummers, too, but it's with real awe that he mentions the name of "Vic" Moore. Moore beat the drums for Bix Beiderbecke back in the days when swing "was really Lower Basin street."

Stanley started strutting with the Norwood Park Drum and Bugle corps at the age of 7, beating a tiny drum. He's outgrown two sets since then. Three years ago his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry H, Logan, 6107 North Newburg avenue, decided Stanley was really in earnest and arranged for him to take private lessons.

Just recently he dropped the drum lessons for the xylophone. He can play the marimba, too. "A good drummer ought to be able to play all the percussion instruments," Stanley says.

Brother, Sister Play Piano.

Both his older brother and older sister play the piano and they get together on real jam sessions—hot or sweet, as their mood demands. Stanley's never played in a dance band, but occasionally he and some of the neighborhood hep cats get together and swing it.

Des Plaines to Set Date Tomorrow on Sewer Quiz

A date for public hearings on the proposed sewage system in the Cumberland Terrace district of Des Plaines will be set up tomorrow evening at a meeting of the city council, according to City Attorney Kenneth G. Meyer. The council also will vote on a resolution expressing the community's intention to avail itself of the provisions of the state revenue law.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About People You May Know

MISS DORIS BUTLER of Park Ridge, a recent graduate of Maine Township High school, is gaining real stage experience with the Chicago Mummers summer theater at Charlevoix, Mich. Miss Butler was selected as one of a group of amateurs to play supporting rôles and train with professional company during the summer season. While in high school she was active in dramatic groups and presentations.

Doris Butler.

FOR 32 years Mr. and Mrs. Max Putterman, 1314 Claremont avenue, have been trying to find time to take a honeymoon trip. The arrival of children, a bad streak of business, illness—something or other—always popped up to spoil their plans. Yesterday amid a shower of rice, Mr. and Mrs. Putterman finally left on their honeymoon. They'll be gone three weeks. Niagara Falls will be a stopover on their itinerary.

TWELVE year old Gloria Rompf, 3232 Racine avenue, can thank Policeman Peter Krejci of the Cragin station and his Red Cross life saving training for the fact that she is still vacationing at Fox Lake, Ill. Officer Krejci, who lives at 5134 Wabansia avenue, rescued Gloria and another youngster, Ethel Schramm of Fox Lake, from drowning in that lake on July 7.

Another bit of romantic news comes from Mr. and Mrs. August H. Grundt, 5127 Carmen avenue, who recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. The Grundts have been residents of the northwest side for 40 years. They are the parents of one daughter, Mrs. William Specht, and two sons, Gustave and Fred.

Kid Tarzans Erect Own Jungle Gym

Here's a simple formula for making a playground that has paid off large dividends at the Association House of Chicago, 2150 North avenue. Take a dozen or so boys—aged 7 to 17—add a few shovels, a couple of paint brushes, a little cement, a hammer and saw, as many rakes as you can muster; mix generously with a portion of Tom Sawyer psychology. The result—a brand new playground complete with slides, teeter-totters, sand piles and a labyrinthian contraption composed of water pipes called a jungle gymnasium.

The formula was discovered by Rev. Edwin Eells, head resident. Of course, Rev. Eells admits, it wasn't quite as easy as it sounds. An old residence had to be torn down by professional wreckers and $600 had to be raised to buy equipment and materials. But for the most part the youngsters handled the job.

Tom Sawyer Methods.

Parents who find it difficult to persuade Junior to cut the grass or clean out the basement may be a little skeptical of this story, but just ask Bill Hass, group leader, who with Joe Tesky, head of the boys' department, supervised the project. "We just didn't try to push them too hard," explains Bill. "Joe and I would get out with a rake or a paint brush and before you knew it we'd have 10 or 12 asking to help."

Tom Sawyer strategy? "Well, maybe a little, but I think a lot of it was the feeling of importance it gave them. And when one or two pitched in, the others felt an obligation to do their part, too." You can't get Chester [Duke] Wujcikowski, 12, of 2220 North avenue, to admit that, tho. "There's just wasn't anything else to do at the time," says Duke.

The actual work started last fall with the wrecking of an old building adjacent to the house that had been used as a residence for several members of the staff. "We were surprised to find that it had been built on top a natural glacial deposit which provided plenty of surfacing gravel and cut down on our expenses," explains the Rev. M. Eells.

Lane, Schurz Train 2,000 for Defense

Almost 2,000 men are enrolled in national defense program training courses at Lane Technical High school, 2501 Addison street, and Schurz High school, 3601 Milwaukee avenue, this summer. Enrollments are exceeding those of last year and new courses are being added to the program.

Two class schedules are offered, preemployment and supplementary. Preemployment courses are designed for men at present unemployed or for those who wish to branch out from the jobs they now hold. Supplementary courses emphasize additional training for men now employed, either in their present field or in allied fields.

Applicants for admission into the preëmployment courses at Lane should be either WPA workers or should have a card of recommendation from the Illinois State Employment bureau.

Any one working in a concern handling government contracts is eligible to enroll in the supplementary courses at Lane. Men working in other shops or concerns are sometimes admitted, however.

Schedule of Classes.

The preëmployment divisions at both schools meet from 8 to 2:30 o'clock in the daytime and the supplementary divisions from 6:30 to 9:30 o'clock in the evening. A total of 210 is enrolled in the preëmployment division at Schurz and 130 in the supplementary division.

Both Schurz courses offer training in auto mechanics, electric shop, forge, and foundry, machine shop, machine drawing, and blueprint reading, woodwork, aircraft, and pattern making. Robert C. Keenan is principal of Schurz.

Training in 16 different fields of defense work is offered to the 981 men in the preëmployment division at Lane. The courses include auto shop, aviation, aviation sheet metal, aviation woodwork, boat and ship construction, pattern making, blueprint reading, electric shop, forge, foundry, mechanical and machine drawing, marine drawing, machine shop, tool and dye work, welding, and machine shop inspection.

Inspection Course Is New.

The machine shop inspection course was added to the curriculum this year in answer to demands for trained inspectors who could handle measuring devices. The course has proven so popular at Lane that it is now given in two sections. Leo Herdeg is principal of the preëmployment courses at Lane.

More than 600 men are enrolled in the supplementary division at Lane and their courses include aviation, auto shop, pattern making, blueprint making, electric shop, welding, machine shop, woodworking, and machine shop inspection. There are waiting lists for admission into the machine shop inspection, welding, and aviation classes.

Altho the courses started on June 30, Leo Klinge, principal of Lane supplementary division, says that because of the individual attention each man receives, more enrollments may be accepted. The courses will close the last of August.

250 SUE TO HALT REFUSE DUMPING NEAR RIIS PARK

Suit to restrain the city from continuing to dump garbage at Fullerton and Narragansett avenues has been started in the Circuit court, it was announced by Attorney Charles L. Barrett.

The suit was filed in behalf of 250 residents of the area, most of whom are members of the Riis Park Civic club. It seeks both temporary and permanent injunctions to halt the deposit of inflammable and putrefactive matter. It charges that odors and vermin from the dump are injuring health and decreasing property values.

The dump in question is on land owned by the Carey Brick company, according to the complaint. The brick company property is just across Narragansett avenue from the Riis park playground. Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said the garbage dumped there is covered with dirt as rapidly as it is deposited, and that tests indicate this method prevent objectionable odors and the spread of disease.

GIVE $100 TO BUY TOILET KITS FOR AREA DRAFTEES

A $100 check for the purchase of leather toilet kits to be sent to all young men inducted into the army from Edison Park and Norwood Park was presented to American Legion post No. 541 last week by the local Kiwanis club.

The contribution was received from Kiwanis President John E. Root Jr. by Fletcher Newell, commander of the post, which is sponsoring the project. Nineteen civic groups, all members of the Community council, are coöperating to provide kits for draftees from local draft board 62.

The donation is one of the largest thus far given and was raised by means of a card party sponsored by wives of the Kiwanians. Mrs. John E. Daniels, 6903 Osceola avenue, and M. J. Suerth, 6755 Northwest highway, were in charge of arrangements.

NEW ORDINANCE EXPANDS AREAS FOR RESIDENCES

Space for Business Sharply Reduced.

Mountainous tho it is, the task of rezoning Chicago is within a few weeks of completion, it was indicated last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the council subcommittee in charge of the work.

Lindell, as spokesman, said his committee hoped to submit the proposed ordinance in time for council action by Oct. 1. The other members are Aldermen John J. Duffy [19th], P. J. Cullerton [38th], Harry L. Sain [27th], and Frank Keenan [49th].

Public hearings begun a month ago, at which property owners can protest provisions of the tentative ordinance draft, are nearing their end. With these completed, a revised draft will be prepared, an official public hearing on it will be held, and it will then be sent to the council committee on building and zoning, which will report it out to the council.

These public hearings are being held by wards, and each alderman is invited to attend. Thus every alderman is presumed to be so familiar with the new ordinance that a vote on its adoption can be held with a minimum of debate.

Tentative Changes Few.

How thoroly the zoning subcommittee has done its preliminary work is seen from the fact that changes in the tentative draft which grow out of the ward hearings are averaging less than one-tenth of 1 per cent thus far, according to Lindell.

Practically all of these changes affect business areas, he said. Most of the objections voiced at the public hearings are by owners who want their property zoned to allow the erection of gasoline filling stations.

The proposed ordinance provides for eight use districts—single family, two family, group or row houses, apartments, business, commercial, manufacturing, and industrial. The present ordinance, adopted in 1923, designates only four zones, residential, apartment, commercial, and manufacturing.

One of the principal endeavors of the subcommittee is to expand the one and two family residential zones, and to cut down the volume of the commercial areas. The latter constitutes the major problem of the committee, Lindell said. When the 1923 ordinance was drawn, land owners were in a speculative mood, and many obtained commercial zoning because of the hope of bigger land values, but these hopes have long since faded.

Percentage Too High.

The result was that Chicago found itself with 17 per cent of its municipal area set aside for business and commercial uses, whereas 1.5 per cent is regarded as the ideal. If used to the limit, the present commercial zones would permit one store for each two persons in the city.

"If the streets which the 1923 ordinance zoned commercial were laid end to end, they would reach from Chicago to Los Angeles," Lindell said.

In reducing the commercial and business zones the subcommittee utilized results of land use studies made by such agencies as the Chicago Plan commission, of which Lindell is a member, and the suggestions of numerous business and improvement associations.

The ideal toward which the ordinance makers worked was to confine business sites to section line intersections as far as possible, with additional store sites on half section line crossings in the more congested areas. Under the 1923 ordinance most of the principal streets in the city are lined continuously on both sides with commercial zones.

Hit Residential Values.

These zones permitted the erection of gasoline stations, theaters, garages, and light manufacturing plants, which had a deleterious effect on residential values. A business zone, under the new ordinance, would permit only small stores and professions, while the more intensive commercial uses would be limited to districts insulated as far as is practicable from residence areas. Such intelligent planning goes far toward halting the spread of run-down areas, which has long been a problem in Chicago, Lindell said.

The new ordinance is powerless to discontinue the land uses which it would prevent in the future, he said, inasmuch as a zoning ordinance must take property as it finds it. However, a later ordinance might prohibit the replacement of these nonconforming uses once they are discontinued, the alderman said.

In framing the new ordinance the subcommittee is guided by the interpretation of the state's zoning laws by the Illinois courts. These courts, in general, have recognized that the character of a given zone in a built-up area shall be set by the use to which half or more of the area has been put.

Druce Lake Picnic.

The Mothers' Friendly Group will give a picnic at Druce lake on Thursday. Members will meet at Lawrence and Milwaukee avenues at 9 o'clock in the morning.

MUSIC FESTIVAL SOLO CONTEST DEADLINES SET

Hundreds of Area Singers to Compete.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Betty Clement.

The deadline for entry in the Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contests for Cook county participants will be tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. All signed entries on official blanks must be in the festival office on the fourth floor of Tribune Tower at that time. Several hundred west and northwest side singers are expected to take part in this feature of The Tribune festival of song. The deadline for those residing outside of Cook county will be Monday, August 4, at 6 p. m.

Offical entry blanks may be obtained at the festival headquarters office or at The Tribune's Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street.

Area Contest Aug. 5.

The first west and northwest side contest will be held Tuesday night, August 5, at 7 o'clock in the grand ballroom of the Graemere hotel. Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard. On the following night sopranos, mezzos, and basses will be selected. Voice teachers and coaches, radio, opera, and concert stars, and orchestral conductors will be the judges.

Two entrants in the west side vocal preliminary contest are Betty Clement, 22 years old, mezzo, of 2440 Lexington street, and Thomas John Brennan, 26, dramatic tenor, of 2204 North Lawler avenue.

Winners of Cook county sectional contests will go on to the Cook county finals which will be held in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel on Wednesday night, August 13, at 7 o'clock. Six voices will be chosen that night to go to the Chicagoland finals which will be held the day of the big festival on Saturday, August 16. There four winners will be chosen, the two best men and the two best women singers. That night in Soldiers' field the finals will be held before 100,000 spectators. It will be the first time that the finals have been held in Soldiers' field.

Pageant Rehearsal.

The second west and northwest side dance-pageant rehearsals for "Injun Summer," which will be given at the Festival concert in Soldiers' field, will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the Ideal Dancing Studios, at 3907 West Madison street. Miss Mayblossom MacDonald will be in charge. There still is time for new entrants. No boy or girl under 7 years of age will be admitted.

Fretted orchestra rehearsals for mandolin, tenor banjo, Spanish and Hawaiian guitars will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 o'clock in the Lyon & Healy recital hall, seventh floor, 64 East Jackson boulevard. Capt. Howard Stube will conduct this rehearsal.

HISS, BOO, CHEER; ANY ONE IS O. K. AT THIS PLAY

Patrons of the Lake Zurich summer theater are cordially invited to hiss, boo, or cheer at next week's production, for the play will be "The Drunkard," one of the most famous of the old time melodramas. It will be presented on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings at 8:45 o'clock.

The cast has planned a series of between acts singing and dancing items, such as once were done at theater performances. Sidney Breese is director of the play and Henry Kurth is designing the stage settings.

The last performance of "Vivacious Lady" will be presented at the Lake Zurich theater tonight at 8:45 o'clock. This is the second production of the season.

Drummer Champ

"Drummer Boy" might have been written for Stanley Logan, 6107 North Newburg avenue. Stanley's been beating a snare drum since he was 7 years old and for two years in a row he's won first place in the national high school snare drum contests. On top of that he's an honor student and a star Boy Scout.

Miss Dolores Ehrlich, 3522 Irving Park road, a member of a Skokie riding club composed of north and northwest siders, returned home recently after a week's vacation at the Bar XT ranch near Babb, Mont. She won the trip by placing first in the lightweight livery class in the 1940 100 mile trail ride of the Town and Country Equestrian association. She is shown with Chief Lone Running Wolf, Blackfoot Indian, who welcomed her to the Glacier National park.

KITCHENS MADE LIKE DAY WITH NEWER LIGHTING

Fluorescent Lamps on Forward March.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Fluorescent lighting is on the march and there's a most interesting model kitchen now open in Chicago that strikes a new high for intensities of artificial daylight illumination.

It is, moreover, very attractive, beautifully planned, equipped and decorated. The floor, cabinet work tops, and wall paper in the breakfast corner are carried out in harmonizing shades of blue. This wall paper has diminutive flower bouquets in regency shades of yellow and rose-red and the blinds at the windows are taped with red.

There's a satin finished honey colored mahogany breakfast set with the breakfast bar which has many uses as a partition between eating nook and meal making area finished in a material which simulates the the color and grain of the mahogany. The counter of this partition is finished in a deep shade of blue and offers room for toaster and coffee maker, grill and waffle iron, pepper and salt.

Like Natural Daylight.

Natural daylight appears to be streaming in thru the casement windows, shadowless, cool, abundant light, but instead of coming from the great out of doors it comes from daylight fluorescent lamps concealed behind window valances and from the flush panel unit located in a soffit over the sink.

There also are fluorescent fixtures placed beneath each cabinet for work counter lighting, as well as localized fluorescent installations above the range and the service bar.

Nor is incandescent lighting forgotten. This is furnished by two center fixtures. The one in the kitchen gives a well diffused light from a prismalite louvered glass fixture and in the dining portion of the room there is a colonial designed lantern which sheds adequate light on the dinette table.

Latest in Equipment.

Then, too, there's the very latest in planning and equipment. You have your water heater and electric dishwasher, your ventilating fan, and range and refrigerator plus a host of smaller appliances which are up to the minute, and up to the task that is theirs to do.

Fluorescent lighting is much with us these days as a utility light in kitchens and bathrooms and laundries.

Our eating customs continue to undergo changes and as our dining rooms grow smaller, the breakfast portion of the kitchen comes to the fore. And on this breakfast corner is spent a great deal of thought and attention.

Breakfast Bars Handy.

Counters and breakfast bars are appearing in many forms and they are a convenience. As in this kitchen, they can divide the meal getting space from the eating corner, and much ingenuity is going into their planning. Sometimes this corner is designed with triple deck shelves above its counter top and cupboards below, with lots of room for appliances of all kinds, if wisely used and not overcrowded.

In no room in the house is it more important to have good lighting than in the kitchen. It makes for easier work and the thought and skill that has gone into our modern kitchen lamps and fixtures offers a variety of uits suited to every kitchen and every purse.

Light conditioning is a science we'll hear more about, for it means greater comfort, efficiency, and health for all the family. And every effort is being made to place sound knowledge on this subject in the hands of home owners and apartment dwellers all over the country.

Sisterhood Picnic.

Members of the Sisterhood of the Hebrew Institute of Albany Park will hold a picnic today at Eugene Field park, 5100 Ridgeway avenue. Mrs. Louis Frank is chairman. Entertainment will include baseball, tennis, and races. The institute is located at 4858 Lawndale avenue.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, July 21.

This is the watering season in gardens. When it is once begun it should be thoroly finished and not undertaken again until the ground needs water. Water need not be given nearly as often when the ground is soaked. Incessant watering both night and morning does the plants little good, altho it may saturate the ground.

Morning watering is best and especially in the shade; considerable water is necessary to maintain grass or flowers near trees, for the tree roots sap the soil of moisture and plant food. The best way to water the lawn when dry is to lay the hose on the ground and allow the water to flow over a single place for a long enough time to penetrate five inches at least; then remove to another spot. Sandy soil requires much more water than a soil that is filled with humus, but the addition of humus to a sandy soil will make it more retentive of moisture.

Tuesday, July 22.

Sow seed of crops that make good ground covers for spading or plowing under in autumn. Vacant lots may be sown and excellent soil be obtained for many purposes. Rye, clover, cow peas, vetch, etc., are all good. Simply prepare the land, sow the seed and plow late in fall, permitting the ground to remain in the rough until spring.

Keep weeds removed. Do hand weeding and get rid of the weeds once and for all. The small city yard is not so large that hand weeding cannot be the chief method of eradication; such yards should be as free of weeds as the parlor of the house.

Wednesday, July 23.

Give window box plants another application of plant food. A good, high grade complete fertilizer will work wonders on boxed plants, but be sure to examine the soil and water whenever needed. Tie up or trim all plants that have made rampant growths. Dead wood can easily be seen and it should be removed. Cut it out entirely and cut back long, straggling growths for shape. Remove weeds near garden to prevent insects from hiding and breeding in them.

Thursday, July 24.

Sweet peas, nasturtium, and other plants are likely to be attacked by aphids and spraying should be continued. It is a good time to propagate bleeding heart, oriental poppy, and, alkanet by separating the roots or making root cuttings. Some growers find that laying the stems of many plants soon produces a new plant and at little cost. Among these plants are climbing roses, spurge, ivy, verbenas and others of equal value. Divide iris if necessary.

Give the Japanese plenty of water as they come into bud or flower. Plan to lift and divide all peonies that need it next fall.

Friday, July 25.

Keep faded roses removed from baby rambler roses and the plants will flower over a long period. By sowing columbine seed now a new supply of plants may be enjoyed. Sow about an eighth of an inch deep, press into the soil, water well with a fine spray, and give a bit of shade during the heat of the day. Soak dahlias at least once a week.

Saturday, July 26.

Sow seeds of quick growing annuals for autumn bloom. Among these are the white baby breath, Shirley poppy, lupin, etc. Keep the roses well watered. Buy pansy seed for August sowing.

Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.

Catholic Women of Irving Park Will Visit Milwaukee

The Irving Park Catholic Woman's club will take a bus trip to Milwaukee on Wednesday. They will have luncheon there and will make a tour of the city. The bus will leave Independence park fieldhouse at 9:30 o'clock. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Jacob B. Ziegler or Mrs. Fred E. Mahoney.

LIKE TO TEACH? ANSWER THESE FOR A STARTER

Aspirants for School Jobs Face Puzzlers.

Want to enter Chicago Teachers college? Then try your luck on these questions:

Are elements which form more than one type of crystal allotropic, amphoteric, amorphous, or deliquescent?

Did the English remain in the northwest after the Treaty of 1783?

Are Haversian canals characteristic of adipose, epilepthial, nerve, connective, or bone tissues?

Are adjacent angles supplementary if their exterior sides lie in a straight line?

These are a few of the brain puzzlers that confronted 941 Chicago high school graduates and 137 college graduates last month when they took written examinations for admission to Chicago Teachers college. Those who passed the written examinations —in English, general science, United States history, civics, arithmetic, algebra, and geometry—were then given oral examinations by committees of five college professors.

300 Now Candidates.

As a result of the examinations, 300 of the high school graduates and 53 of the college graduates are now candidates for admission to the teachers college next fall.

This year, for the first time, all applicants' written examinations were graded by an electric scoring machine. Besides reducing the scoring time from several weeks to a matter of a few hours, the machine completely eliminated the possibility of error on the part of persons scoring the tests, according to Paul Edwards, vice chairman of the college's board of examiners.

From Northwest Side.

The names of northwest side high school students who survived both examinations and are candidates for admission to the college follow:

Ruthjayne Aeberly, 6225 Newcastle avenue; Marion Anderson, 2326 North Harding avenue; Rita Bain, 3707 Hirsch street; Dorothy Bastiani, 7309 Addison street; Altanah Benziger, 4142 North Francisco avenue; Irving Berger, 1059 North Oakley boulevard; Stenwood Bergh, 2651 North Marmora avenue; Frank Chulay, 5730 Windsor avenue; Mary Churchill, 3632 North Springfield avenue; Sara Cibull, 2502 North California avenue; Ruth Clauss, 2517 West Central Park avenue; Sally Combs, 3513 Overhill avenue; Harry Davis, 2555 Cortez street; Albert Douglas, 1950 Iowa street; Elaine Drews, 2438 North St. Louis avenue.

Others in List.

PULLMAN CHORUS TO GIVE VESPER CONCERT TODAY

Will Sing at Caldwell Woods Preserve.

William F. Bergmann.

The Pullman Choral society, composed of general office employés of the Pullman company, will present the sixth and semi-final concert in the Sunday vesper series at the Caldwell woods, Milwaukee and Devon avenues, at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The chorus, directed by William Francis Bergmann, will present a concert devoted largely to religious and patriotic music. The series is sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the forest preserve district. The program follows:

"God of Our Fathers"	Warren
"Swing Low, Sweet Chariot"	Spiritual
"Sanctus"	Gounod
"Finlandia"	Sibelius
"Villia"	Lehar
"Metropolitan Symphony"	Bergmann
"The Song of the Vikings"	Faning
[Community singing.]
"Rain and the River"	Fox
"Tales from the Vienna Woods"	Strauss
"America, I Love You"	Gottler
"The Star Spangled Banner"	Key

"The Metropolis Symphony," written by Mr. Bergmann, will be performed for the first time at today's concert.

The final concerts in the vesper series, sponsored jointly by this newspaper and the county forest preserve district, will be heard next Sunday. Other concerts today will be presented at Thatcher woods in River Forest, by the St. Cecilia choir and the Columbus Park Opera company, and at the Dan Ryan woods, 87th street and Western avenue, by the Young People's choir of the Hartzell Methodist church.

4 BOYS' CLUBS TO HOLD JOINT PICNIC FRIDAY

More than 500 boys from the Deborah Boys' club, the Humboldt Park Boys' club, the Albany Park Boys' club, and the American Boys' commonwealth will hold their annual four club picnic Friday in Milwaukee Woods. Games and races have been planned and arrangements for use of the Whealan pool Friday morning have been made. Prizes will be given in the individual races and the club receiving the highest number of points will be given a trophy.

The boys will bring their own lunch and milk, candy, cookies, and favors will be given by the organization. Harry Dorfman is manager of the Deborah club, Allan Kramer of the Humboldt park club, Michael Visotzky of the Albany Park group, and Jack Friedman of the American Boys' commonwealth.

The clubs are sponsored by the Young Men's Jewish council of which Charles Desser is executive director. Board and committee members of the council will attend the picnic and judge the contests.

Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. McMahon,

"To become permanent, it is necessary to move."

That is the slogan, as you might remember, that we adopted when we opened our first subsidiary shops as extensions of Blums-Vogue. And that is the slogan we are using today in connection with our new, greatly enlarged Blums-Evanston shop which is to open in the near future in a new location opposite the Evanston Woman's Club.

Blums-Evanston, during its eight years in its present location at 709 Church Street, has become one of the North Shore's most popular women's apparel shops. Its business has grown steadily, until now it is necessary for us to house it in quarters more than twice its present size. And we believe that when we have finished remodeling the new building, it will be so exquisitely and attractively done it will be a showplace in its own right.

In merchandising, we have keyed this shop to those who live in and around Evanston, and in the North Shore suburbs. For here we will offer an enlarged collection of distinctive Blum fashions, furs, hats, and accessories for city and suburban life ... plus a new feature: shoes of our own design and the nationally famous Delman line exclusive with us in this territory.

In advertising, we have found that the North Metropolitan section of The Chicago Tribune reaches our largest audience with a minimum of "waste circulation". We expect to continue our use of this medium, since it not only brings us new customers, but helps us maintain contact with our old friends and customers.

Sincerely yours,

Pres

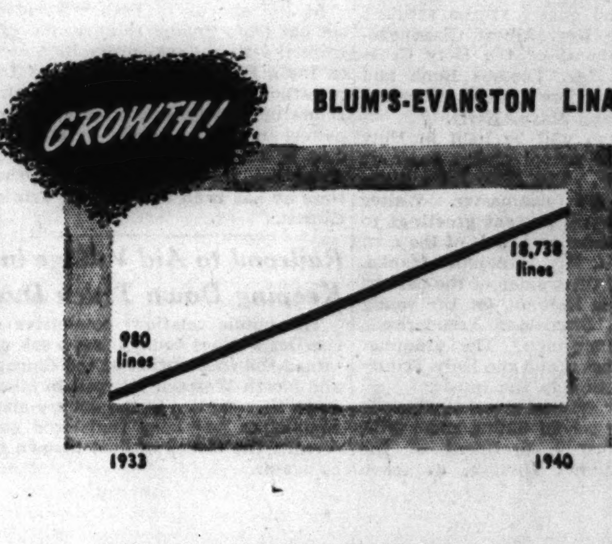
Progress of Evanston shop linked to advertising concentrated in Sunday Tribune Metropolitan Section

In the accompanying letter, another merchant tells how Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising has helped build sales and aided his store's progress.

Are you taking maximum advantage of this low-cost method of reaching your best customers and prospects? Last year 796 neighborhood enterprises, large and small, located thruout Chicago and the suburbs, used Sunday Tribune Metropolitan section advertising to increase their patronage and profits.

One or more of these five sections—North, Northwest, West, Southwest and South—is edited for and read exclusively by the people best able to trade with you. You cannot find a more effective, economical way to reach and produce response from the people right on your side of town.

To build store traffic, speed turnover and step up your profits, ask a Tribune representative to give you complete information about this low-cost business-building plan. Call SUPerior 0100—Metropolitan section advertising.



BLUM'S-EVANSTON LINAGE IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE METROPOLITAN SECTIONS 1933-1940

Blum's-Evanston opened for business in 1933. Each year since, the store's newspaper advertising schedule has been concentrated in Chicago Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections. Space used to date exceeds 100,000 lines.

Twenty-five thousand persons are expected to attend the annual outing of the Swedish Societies' Old People's Home association today on the grounds of the home at Pioneer road and Grant street, Evanston. Carl R. Chindblom, former congressman and now chairman of the association board, will speak at 2:30 o'clock, and Senator C. Wayland Brooks will speak at 7 o'clock this evening. John O. Lindholm is chairman of the outing. Proceeds will be given to the old people's home.

Mayor Ingraham of Evanston and Gunnar Morton, president of the home, will be the other speakers on the afternoon program, following an invocation by the Rev. Frederic Pamp.

Home 46 Years Old.

Taking part in the entertainment program will be the Manheim Junior Drum and Bugle corps, the Svithiod Male chorus, and the Vasa Lodge Varblommans Junior.

The home, founded 46 years ago, has been at its present location since 1909. The outing, which raises from $10,000 to $15,000 annually, is the principal source of funds for the institution, which at present has 100 residents.

The picnic committee consists of Gunnar Morton, Hjalmar Andrews, G. Arthur Holmberg, Oscar Gustafson, Gordon Berg, Julia Drezen-Frazee, Herman Olson, F. G. Anderson, Art Roberg, and John P. Friedlund.

Other Committee Members.

Others are Elmer A. Swanson, Carl B. Anderson, Nils J. Lindskoog, Mrs. Selma Johnson, Mrs. Judith Lindgren, Mrs. Jenny Anderson, Mrs. Anna M. Anderson, Hjalmar A. B. Jonsson, Mrs. Edyth Lund-Smith, Mrs. Hanna Brooms, Mrs. Jenny Hawkinson, Mrs. Fanny Anderberg, Holger J. Rosberg Jr., August Nelson, Frank Brooms, Aaron Miller, Rudy West, Charles Gustafson, Milton Boom, Holger Rosberg, Arvid Morton, and Henry Woelker.

15TH PARK RIDGE FESTIVAL WILL OPEN ON JULY 28

The 15th annual Park Ridge summer festival will open July 28 for a seven day run under the sponsorship of Mel Tierney post of the American Legion. It will be held in Playgrounds park, Park Ridge.

Commander C. O. Michaelson is general chairman. The festival will include an amusement section and musical programs featuring concerts by Tierney post drum and bugle corps will be presented each evening at 7:30 o'clock. A contest between four championship bugle corps from Chicago will climax the program Sunday evening, Aug. 3.

Division chairmen include Walter J. Welinske, grounds and equipment; Fred W. Miller, purchasing; Rufus Holbrook, refreshments and special attractions; Walter Rowe, prizes; Dr. L. A. Platts, drum and bugle contests, and Carl Vegering, entertainment.

LIBRARY BEGINS BOOK COLLECTING DRIVE FOR ARMY

A drive to collect 10,000 books for distribution to army camps in the 6th corps area will be started tomorrow by the Chicago Public library. Chicago is the first American city to conduct such a drive, library officials say.

Carl B. Roden, librarian, has asked that books contributed to the drive should be current and classic fiction or nonfiction. He said that no attic discards, old or heavy items or magazines would be included.

Books will be accepted at all branch libraries and in the Randolph street corridor of the main library. They will be repaired at the main library. Army trucks will call for the books and distribute them to Fort Sheridan, Camp Custer, Camp Grant, and Scott, Selfridge, and Chanute air fields, and the Savannah, Ill., ordnance depot.

Engagement Told on Birthday

Miss Virginia Laskowski's engagement to Francis C. Zrodlo has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Laskowski of 5142 George street. Zrodlo is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Zrodlo of 2248 North Leamington avenue. The engagement was announced on Miss Laskowski's birthday.

MORMONS' TREK OF 94 YEARS AGO WILL BE FETED

Two Events Scheduled for the Week.

Pioneer day, commemoration of the arrival of the Mormons at Salt Lake valley 94 years ago, will be celebrated with a program at the Logan Square chapel, Sawyer and Wrightwood avenues, this evening and outdoor exercises in Humboldt park Thursday. Both events are sponsored by the Cook county chapter of the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers and the Mormon church.

Mrs. Josephine Green, president of the Daughters, will speak on "In Memoriam of Brigham Young and the Pioneers of 1847" at the program at 6:30 o'clock this evening. Talks on pioneer experiences will be given by descendents of the original Mormons.

Will Present Flags.

A color guard of members of the ROTC and the Boy Scouts will present the American flag, the Illinois state flag, and the Utah state flag. A portion of a handcart train such as was pushed across the plains when the pioneers' wagons wore out, will be shown on the lawn in front of the chapel. An old spinning wheel, churn, clock, bread toasters, calfhide covered chests, candle molds, pots and pans, rifles and muskets, powder horns, bowie knives, and carpetbags will be included in the display.

Wear Pioneer Costumes.

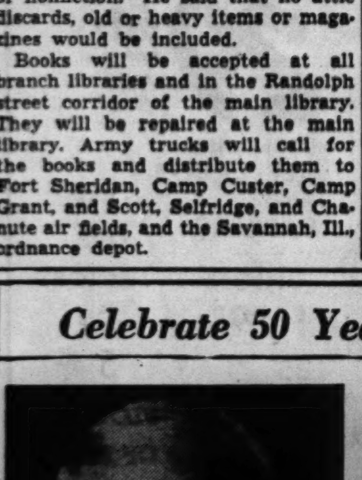
All of the participants in the display will wear costumes like those worn by the Utah pioneers. Descendants of Heber C. Kimball, Bishop Newel K. Whitney, and Apostle Parley P. Pratt will be among those taking part.

A patriotic program will begin the festivities at Humboldt park Thursday. Games will be played and all will join in old fashioned square dancing.

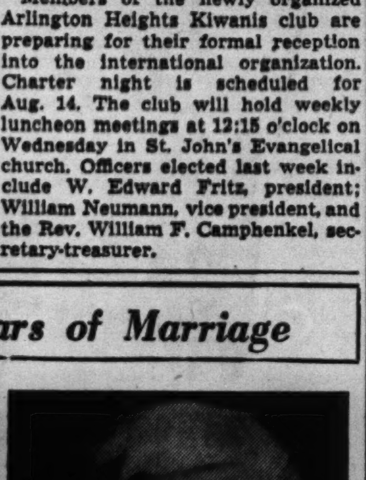
Arlington Heights Kiwanis to Get National Charter

Members of the newly organized Arlington Heights Kiwanis club are preparing for their formal reception into the international organization. Charter night is scheduled for Aug. 14. The club will hold weekly luncheon meetings at 12:15 o'clock on Wednesday in St. John's Evangelical church. Officers elected last week include W. Edward Fritz, president; William Neumann, vice president, and the Rev. William F. Camphenkel, secretary-treasurer.

Celebrate 50 Years of Marriage



MARTIN CLARK.



MRS. MARTIN CLARK.

[The Fair Photos.]

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Clark observed their golden wedding on May 14 in their home at 5048 Augusta boulevard. Mr. Clark is still active with Hart, Schaffner and Marx, where he has been employed for the last 40 years. The Clarks were married in 1891 in the Holy Family church. Their sons and daughters are Mrs. Marian Bonds, Mrs. Veronica Gaffney, Mrs. Belle James, and Miss Margaret Clark, all residents of Chicago. The children are planning a party for their parents in June.

Summer Wedding

Both Miss Helen Steinberg and her fiance, Aaron Resnick, attended the University of Illinois. Miss Steinberg is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Steinberg of 921 North Sacramento boulevard and Resnick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Resnick of Springfield, Mass. The marriage is planned for Aug. 24 at the Edgewater Beach.

RAP ALD. WALSH FOR HIS VOTE ON TRACTION LAW

36th Ward Stirred by Negative Ballot.

Residents of the 36th ward charged last week that because of his inactivity in the city council Ald. Richard M. Walsh is losing popularity in his ward. Criticism also was leveled at the alderman because he voted against the traction ordinance recently passed by the city council. The ordinance provides for motor bus extensions on West North avenue.

Mrs. Rose Stelzer, 1646 Merrimac avenue, who was formerly active in Democratic circles, said: "Everyone in this ward wants that bus extension. The poor people who cannot afford automobiles need it. We do not understand why Alderman Walsh voted against it.

"He was popular when he was elected alderman but the people here have not seen many results since his election."

Ward Called Neglected.

Gilbert H. Stemble, 1916 North Narragansett avenue, a business man, said: "It may be that Alderman Walsh is stymied in the council because he is on the wrong side of the political fence. But we do know that the ward has been sadly neglected and we feel there has been little fight put up for the people here."

"Walsh is well liked personally," Stemble continued, "but many of us feel that a change in ward administration is necessary."

See Waning Strength.

Reports are also current in the ward that since his defeat in the campaign for ward committeeman last year Walsh has lost much of the strength of his own political organization.

In 1939 Walsh rode into the city council with the support of State's Attorney Courtney and State Senator Benjamin Adamowski. In that election he defeated Ald. George W. Robinson, the regular organization candidate. Last year Robinson and Walsh opposed each other for Democratic ward committeeman and Robinson won.

To Address Kiwanis.

Michael J. Howlett, Chicago director of the National Youth administration, will address a Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday in the Division Street YMCA. His subject will be "Bringing Youth and a Job Together."

CHURCH PILGRIMS TAKE UP LIFE AT METHODIST CAMP

Trek to Des Plaines from All U. S.

Hundreds of pilgrims from all over the United States are living in tiny cottages or are camping out on the Methodist grounds in Des Plaines as the second week of its annual camp meeting opens. Clergymen from afar have come to the tree studded acres on the banks of the Des Plaines river to preach and give counsel.

Services will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning with Dr. Cassius English Street as guest speaker. Dr. Street is pastor of the Linwood Boulevard church in Kansas City, Mo. Dr. J. M. Schneider will preside at the service. Sunday school will be held at 1:50 o'clock under the direction of E. R. Daggy.

Dr. Street will speak again at 3 o'clock this afternoon when the Rev. Clarence H. Diercks and the Rev. C. C. Travis will preside. The Hemenway choir, under the direction of Wesley F. Bradburn, will provide the music.

Epworth League Meeting.

C. Kenneth Gibbs, president of the Federation of Epworth leagues of Chicago, will speak at the league service at 6:45 o'clock this evening in the parlors of the Red Gables hotel on the camp grounds. The Rev. Paul W. Grimes will preside. Dr. John W. Holland, pastor of the "The Little Brown Church of the Air," a Sunday morning national radio program, will speak at song service and worship at 7:45 o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Diercks and the Rev. Mr. Grimes will preside.

Dr. Paul Whitfield Quillian will speak at song service and worship each evening this week at 7:45 o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Diercks will preside each evening with one of the guest pastors. Tomorrow's guest will be the Rev. J. J. Burrows; Tuesday, the Rev. Truman Carl; Wednesday, the Rev. Ralph Collis; Thursday, the Rev. C. H. Draper, and Friday, the Rev. Ivan Obenshain.

The annual water carnival will be held in the camp pool at 3 o'clock Saturday to be followed by a laymen's day get acquainted hour. Dr. James W. Workman will speak at a laymen's program at 7 o'clock that evening.

Was Founded in 1860.

The Methodist camp was founded in Des Plaines in 1860 and has seen the rise of many significant organizations in the growth of Methodism. The Women's Foreign Missionary society was founded there in 1872 and the Young People's Holy Alliance, later the Epworth league, in 1883.

Raymond G. Kimbell is president of the board of trustees of the camp and George F. Witt is secretary-treasurer. J. S. McClure is vice president of the board whose members include William G. Cooper, the Rev. Mr. Diercks, Herbert W. Kirchhoff, M. E. Mickelsen, David J. Leaf, and Douglas W. Cork. The Rev. Mr. Diercks is director of the program.

Chairmen of the various activities include: Mrs. Edmund D. Soper, Women's institute; the Rev. Lester R. Minion, music; the Rev. Mr. Grimes, young people's activities; Earle H. MacLeod, publicity, and George Earl Allison, ushers.

Mrs. Mae Freeberg has charge of hotel and cottage accommodations and Mr. Witt handles reservations and general information.

100 EQUESTRIANS DUE TO TAKE 2D BREAKFAST RIDE

More than 100 members of the Town and Country Equestrian association are expected to attend the second 1941 breakfast ride of the organization to be held in the Palos Hills forest preserve, next Sunday, it was announced by Gerald Gorman, district chairman.

The ride will start from the foot of the ski slide on Route 83 just west of Route 45. It will wind thru 15 miles or more of hilly, wooded and open country, and end at the starting point, where breakfast will be served at 1 o'clock.

The first of the series of three breakfast rides was held from the Oakbrook polo field near Hinsdale on July 8. The third will be held over north side trails, probably some time in October, according to John Fitz-Gerald, secretary of the association.

AGED HOME AID GROUP TO MEET IN BENSENVILLE

The annual meeting of the Ladies' auxiliary of the Evangelical Home for Children and Aged in Bensenville will be held at the home Friday afternoon. Mrs. Edward C. Hammann, president of the auxiliary, will preside. The Rev. A. J. Munsterman, superintendent of the home, will speak.

The auxiliary is engaged in a campaign to raise funds for the installation of an elevator in the institution. Mrs. Albert H. Bromann of River Forest heads the campaign committee.

Other officers of the auxiliary include Mrs. Elizabeth Gross, Mrs. Martha Guthardt, Mrs. Margaret Frey, Mrs. Betty Benthey, Mrs. Alma Schnakenberg and Mrs. Louise Arndt. The group will celebrate its 25th anniversary next year.

2 Jewish Youth Congress Groups Will Hold Outings

Two youth groups of the American Jewish congress are holding their annual outings this week, with plans for a day of boating, games, and refreshments. The Northwest Side Youth division will meet this afternoon in Westchester. Miss Ida Rosen is chairman of arrangements. The Albany Park Youth division will leave next Sunday by train for Lake Geneva. One hundred and fifty members are expected to attend.

Radio Visits a Playyard

Ward Quaal, W-G-N radio announcer, interviews Mrs. Oliver Temme, 1824 Nagle avenue, in the attractive playyard she and her husband have built at the rear of their home. The playyard is one of many on the northwest side which will be entered in the $500 Chicago Motor club contest. Children in the picture include Mrs. Temme's two daughters, Olive and Joan, and also Louella Peterson, Marilyn Darr, Lois Ostring, Joan Weier, Shirley Sonnamon, Barbara Laughflin, and Joan Johnson.

Church Ceremony

Mrs. James Franklin Daley is the former Frieda Briede, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius K. Briede, 5238 North Leamington avenue. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Daley of Ottawa, Canada, took place in St. Benedict's church and was followed by a breakfast and reception at the Kungsholm Swedish restaurant.

America First Notes

Nine more northwest side and suburban draftees have been assigned to the 67th Field artillery of the Third Armored [Bayou blitz] division at Camp Polk, La. This is one of the four armored divisions in the army.

The new soldiers include Howard Hecker, 2046 Berteau avenue; Daniel Mielcuch, 1110 West Erie street; George E. Loose, 4031 Spaulding avenue; Arthur K. Brown, 1753 Forest avenue, Des Plaines; George Gianetti, 2827 North 74th court, Elmwood Park; Harry Anderson, 2906 Irving Park road; Frank J. Rudinsky Jr., 3452 Kilbourn avenue; John J. Para, 1407 Wicker Park avenue, and E. A. Dasson, 4332 Mobile avenue.

Sergt. Ferdinand J. Zielke, 2700 Chicago avenue, was graduated recently from the instrument course of the Chanute Field branch of the Air Corps training school. He has been stationed with the 5th Pursuit squadron at Selfridge field, Mich.

Robert L. Coath, 6128 Warwick avenue, was recently graduated from the Bayonet Instructors school of the 8th marines, 2d marine division, at San Diego, Cal. He was one of 33 members of his regiment to take the course, designed to prepare instructors in hand to hand fighting.

First Sergt. Stanley Sac, son of Mrs. Bessie Sac, 2738 Hamlin avenue, a veteran of 21 years in the marine corps, has been appointed an instructor in the marine corps platoon leaders' class at the Philadelphia Navy yard.

Second Lieut. C. A. Dufresne, 4045 Argyle avenue, has been graduated from the Quartermaster Motor Transport school. He is assigned to Fort Custer, Mich.

Donald W. Doherty, 4336 Drummond place, has been appointed to the rank of corporal in the 6th Ordnance Service detachment at Fort Custer.

Armond D. Willis, assistant director of placement at Northwestern university and chairman of the Chicago advisory committee of the National Youth administration, left last week for active service as a lieutenant in the United States naval reserve. He has been granted a leave of absence for the duration of his service, according to an announcement from President Franklyn B. Snyder of Northwestern. Willis is a graduate of the class of 1931. He received his master's degree in sociology and labor economics in 1940. He is married and the father of two children. His home is at 7157 Hood avenue.

KIDS BUILD THEIR OWN PLAYGROUND AND JUNGLE GYM

Ass'n House Donates Site.

grounds was started this spring, with Paul Boylan, 14, of 1507 Leavitt street; Bill Green, 13, of 1314 Claremont avenue, and Larry Drabant, 15, of 2140 Concord place, bearing the brunt of the work.

Piece by piece, recreational equipment has taken its place on the grounds. Perhaps the most imposing structure is the jungle gym, a network of lead pipes which provides an outlet of energy for the more Tarzan minded youngsters. It was purchased recently at a cost of $110, which mothers of the neighborhood raised at two rummage sales.

Last May more than 100 children of the settlement put on a circus before a packed audience in the gymnasium. The proceeds bought a slide. In the Association House's woodworking shops the high school boys have built sandpiles and teeter-totters. On hot July days the youngsters frolic under a shower extended from the side of the building. The cement base was laid by the boys and girls of the settlement.

Now they are busy painting equipment sheds and erecting a 100 foot wire fence to separate the playground from a baseball field. In the same spirit, basketball enthusiasts last winter staged an all-star game and dance to buy a large stop clock for the gymnasium.

Founded 42 Years Ago.

Association House is located two blocks west of the busy intersection of Milwaukee, Damen and North avenues. It was founded in 1899 by the Young Women's Christian association in response to a petition signed by more than 100 girls who asked for help in providing a decent place to spend their evenings. As the work expanded to meet neighborhood needs, it was taken over by an independent board of directors, who continued their work until 1926.

At this time, being urgently pressed, they turned to the Presbyterian Church Extension board for help. This board provided a head resident and financial assistance. At present the house is financed chiefly thru the community fund, the Presbyterian board and other foundations. Contributions from individuals account for 23 per cent of its income.

Its activities include classes in English, citizenship, cooking, sewing, manual training, music, dramatics and several others. The Infant Welfare society and board of health conduct health services regularly. It sponsors 62 clubs for children and adults.

41ST WARD G. O. P. HONORS FORMER ALDERMAN TODAY

The 41st Ward Regular Republican organization will celebrate James C. Morland day in honor of the former alderman today in Kolze's grove, Irving Park road and Narragansett avenue.

A program of dancing, games, and athletic events has been arranged under the direction of Timothy Sheehan, general chairman. Earl Derx is president of the organization.

Chairmen in charge of various committees include Louis Iden, prizes; George Fisher, athletics; Frank Hankett, tickets; Frank Linzer, lighting; Quentin Ford, publicity; Mrs. Jennie Dunn, cashiers; Arthur Shoberg, refreshments; Al Zukel, dancing; Charles Thompson, grounds, and Walter Degenhardt, games. Horace Brook is secretary of the club.

THIS LAST LAUGH IS SOMETHING TO CROW ABOUT

Louie Proves They're Not All Black!

Anybody knows a crow is black. That's why Louis Volk, who works in the box shop at the Western Electric's Hawthorne plant in Cicero, has been made miserable for nine years. He said a crow was white.

Volk is a quiet, hardworking fellow who lives at 7115 Armitage avenue. He discusses work and life at home and nobody ever questions his veracity. But when he started crowing about the white crow he had found in the forest preserve, that was too much for the workers at the Hawthorne plant. They almost laughed him out of the shop.

"You're color blind, Louie," they shouted.

"Naw," chided another, "he found a chicken and doesn't know the difference between a hen and a crow."

"Maybe it's a parrot," suggested some one else.

Sticks to His Story.

Volk stuck to his story. He said he owned a white crow. He said its name was Bobby and it slept with the chickens in his back yard.

It was nine years before Volk was beaten down by the ribbing. He quit talking about Bobby. But a few weeks ago he announced that he wanted to get rid of his white crow.

He had sold his chickens and had moved the disputed crow into his house. At 4 o'clock each dawn it began to caw. The Volk family couldn't get any sleep.

When Louie announced his decision to get rid of his pet the men renewed their kidding. "Why don't you bring that silly crow down to work?" they said. "We'll tell you what kind of a bird it is."

"All right," said Louie, "I will."

All Crows Aren't Black.

A crowd of workers gathered at the Hawthorne gate to wait for Louie next morning. To their amazement he came carrying a box. With a flourish he pulled out the squawking Bobby. There he was—an albino crow blinking solemnly at the crowd with a pair of pink eyes.

To make the triumph complete Volk offered the bird to the Brookfield zoo. Karl Plath, zoo bird curator, thanked Louie for the gift. "This is a rare specimen," said Mr. Plath. "We are more than pleased to accept your white crow."

All is quiet at the Hawthorne branch, especially in the box shop. Nobody laughs at Louie any more. And his friends are careful not to swing the conversation around to crows any more.

TEA POT STORM SWIRLS AROUND CALM PALATINE

The wave of protest which last week swept usually placid Palatine has subsided to little less than a ripple. With suddenness the surge lashed against Mayor William DePue's office when residents of Palatine Hills, a subdivision just west of Quentin road and south of Palatine road, arose at what they believed was a threat against their independence.

They thought the mayor and the village board were planning a move in the direction of Palatine Hills and other surrounding unincorporated territory. Property owners of the subdivision didn't like the idea and laid a petition on the executive's desk.

Their indignation came as the result of a recommendation from A. G. Humphrey, retiring village attorney, that the Palatine Plan commission draft a program to protect the village from being surrounded by undesirable property within 1½ miles of the corporate limits. Under the plan, future purchases of land would need the approval of the village board before they could be legally recorded. Since Palatine Hills has already been developed, the proposed program would have no effect upon it.

But the property owners didn't understand that when they wrote, "Believing in the American right of democracy and the right of all to establish homes in the pioneer spirit of wholesome growth without restrictions imposed by others as to race, religious creed or economic standing, we do hereby protest any attempt on the part of the Village of Palatine to extend her boundaries."

Mayor DePue has assured them that his community's original intent was not annexation and now everybody is satisfied.

Park Ridge Kiwanis Club Is to Have Ladies' Day

Ladies' day will be held by the Park Ridge Kiwanis club on Wednesday at Inverness, near Palatine. Golf and bridge will be played and a buffet supper will be served. Werner Von Buelow is in charge of arrangements and is being assisted by A. W. Nilles, Dr. C. A. Cameron, and George Scharringhausen. Mrs. George Scharringhausen Jr. is in charge of the ladies' program.

W-G-N TO GIVE MANY GLIMPSES OF 'YOUR ARMY'

Interview Series Starts Next Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Glimpses behind the scenes of the United States army will be given by W-G-N in a new series of broadcasts, titled "Your Army," starting at 2 p. m. next Wednesday. Succeeding broadcasts, under the direction of W-G-N's special events department, will be aired each Wednesday at the same hour, the series also will be aired over the coast to coast Mutual network.

Many phases of army life and activity—from soup kitchens to flying cadet schools—will be described on these broadcasts. Following an introduction to the series next Wednesday Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will be interviewed.

Hostesses to Be Heard.

On following weeks there will be broadcasts showing the inner workings of other army departments. High ranking officers will be interviewed about the departments they command. They will describe life in the ROTC, the quartermaster corps, the medical corps, the air cadet corps, nursing service, army camp hostesses force, and the food kitchens. Each program promises to be informative and entertaining.

Schedule of Broadcasts.

A tentative schedule of the first eight programs follows:

July 23—Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will describe life at the flying station at Chicago airport.

July 30—Interviews with officers and ROTC trainees at Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 6—Interviews with two women, lieutenants in the army nursing service.

Aug. 13—Interview with Col. Henry B. Barry, commanding officer, Chicago quartermaster depot.

Aug. 20—Interviews with officers of the Medical corps who will describe how the army physicians and surgeons protect the health of the soldiers.

Aug. 27—Interviews with two hostesses from Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 27—Interviews with officers who will tell the requirements for entrance into the army aviation cadet corps.

Sept. 10—Maj. William R. MacKinnon, commandant of the bakers and cooks school at Fort Sheridan, will tell how and with what menus the army is fed. June Baker, W-G-N's home economics expert, will also appear on this program.

Each week thereafter another aspect of army life will be described. The entire series will present a rounded picture of the machinery which runs the United States army. The programs will originate in the studios of W-G-N.

Donald McGibeny Starts News Reports Over W-G-N

Donald McGibeny, journalist, adventurer, and veteran radio news analyist, has begun a series of news broadcasts and commentary on W-G-N. McGibeny is heard Sunday thru Friday from 10:30 to 10:45 p. m.

W-G-N Songstress

Mary Small, former child entertainer, is now 19 and has a radio show of her own on W-G-N-Mutual. She is featured at 9:15 p. m. every Monday.

"Aurora," popular song hit with a South American flavor, will be Mary Small's solo on W-G-N-Mutual's Imperial Time broadcast at 9:15 p. m. tomorrow. Other selections will be "5 o'clock Whistle," "Tale of Two Cities," and "Begin the Beguine."

W-G-N Sales Up 25 Pct. During First Half of '41

Local time sales for W-G-N were up 25.8 per cent for the first six months of 1941 according to an announcement by William A. McGuineas, sales manager. The increase represented a gain over the industry's general average and was attributed, in part, to W-G-N's sales record of 18 straight weeks of increased sales from Feb. 21 to the last week of June.

AIR KENT COOPER SONG SATURDAY ON W-G-N SHOW

A. P. Manager's Ballad to Be Sung by Baggiore.

"My Dixie Girl," a ballad by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, will be sung by Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as the feature of the Chicagoland hour over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will speak.

Cooper will attend the broadcast and hear his tune played for the first time over the Mutual network. The rôle of a composer is a new one for Cooper, who has been identified with newspaper work since 1893 when he started as a reporter in Indianapolis.

Medley of Memory Songs.

Another highlight will be a medley of memory songs, including the Egbert Van Alstyne favorite "Melodies." Marion Claire, soprano soloist, will sing "Smiles" and "School Days." Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, will sing "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree."

Miss Claire, Baggiore, and the chorus will be featured in a medley of Franz Lehar songs.

Miss Claire will also sing Lehar's "Melody of Love."

The complete program follows:

"Gold and Silver Waltz"..............Lehar
Orchestra.
"Melody of Love"....................Lehar
Marion Claire.
"My Dixie Girl"....................Cooper
Attilio Baggiore and chorus.
Franz Lehar selections:
"In Marsovia"—Chorus.
"Vilia"—Marion Claire and Baggiore.
"My Little Nest of Heavenly Blue"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Gypsy Love—Miss Claire, Baggiore and chorus.
Address by Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Medley of memory songs:
"Memories"—Ensemble.
"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" Baggiore and chorus.
"Smiles"—Miss Claire.
"O, You Beautiful Doll"—Baggiore.
"Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland"—chorus.
"Schooldays"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Honeymoon"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, and chorus.
"Russian Sailor Dance"...............Gliere
Orchestra.
"Love's Own Sweet Song"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, Kalman, and chorus.

The entire program will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

UTLEY IS GUEST COMMENTATOR ON W-G-N SERIES

Clifton Utley, news interpreter and commentator on foreign affairs, has begun a series of programs as guest commentator on the W-G-N newscast which featured the late Capt. E. D. C. Herne. Utley will be heard Monday thru Saturday from 6:30 to 6:45 p.m. Herne died last month after an operation.

Utley has long been in contact with the news fronts of the world. He traveled thruout Europe and Africa for many years, studying political and economic problems. Utley comments on foreign affairs over W-G-N at 8 p. m. each Tuesday. He has frequently appeared on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, W-G-N-Mutual's weekly forum on current affairs, broadcast at 10 a. m. Sunday. Altho busy in radio, he still finds time to maintain his position as the director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. For his new guest series Utley intends to devote his time to pithy, up to the minute dispatches, with only occasional interpretation.

Discuss Draftee Extension on W-G-N Forum of Air

"Should congress extend the service of our entire new army for the duration of the national emergency?" will be discussed on the American Forum of the Air broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 7 to 7:45 p. m. tonight. Four United States senators will take part in the debate. Senator Claude Pepper of Florida and Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia will take the affirmative stand; Senator Raymond E. Willis of Indiana and Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin will argue that the draftees should be sent home after their year of army service has been finished.

Proposed Northwest Side Zone Changes

These charts show the scanty use to which some commercial zones under the 1923 zoning ordinance are put, and how rezoning would affect a representative area. The existing commercial zones, shown by the diagonal lines, permit such use as theaters, gasoline stations, and light manufacturing. Under the new ordinance, business zones (also shown by diagonal lines) would allow only businesses and professional offices.

SONG BY DEBUSSY WILL BE CLIMAX OF MELODY HOUR

Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will play the piano accompaniment for Kathryn Witwer, soprano, when she sings Debussy's "Mandoline" as the highlight of the Pageant of Melody over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday. The program will present a varied musical half hour featuring melodies from Victor Herbert to Beethoven. The orchestra will open the broadcast with the "Abu Hassan Overture" by Carl Weber. A medley of Debussy works is the second offering. Miss Witwer will sing "Beau Soir" and the second number is the selection that will feature Weber and Miss Witwer.

Michael Wilkomirski will be heard in a violin solo with the background of the chorus and orchestra presenting Arensky's "Serenade." Miss Witwer will be heard singing "Twilight In Barakeesk" from Victor Herbert's "Rose of Algeria" and the orchestra will play Moskowsky's "Malaguena" from "Boabdil" and the last movement of Beethoven's "Symphony No. 5."

Frances Brunt Takes Title Role in 'Government Girl'

Frances Brunt, young but experienced actress, is now playing the title rôle in "Government Girl," dramatic serial broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network Monday thru Saturday at 12:15 p. m. Nancy Ordway originated the part. Altho Miss Brunt plays the part of a Washington, D. C., office worker, she has never been inside a federal government building. She was born in South Dakota and has acted in the Washington Civic theater, the Cleveland Playhouse and summer stock at Chautauqua, N. Y.

HILDEGARDE WILL BE GUEST ON TOM, DICK AND HARRY AFFAIRS

Hildegarde.

More adventures of army boys who yoo-hoo at scantily clad girl golfers will be chronicled in the broadcast of the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow.

Hildegarde, favorite songstress of the air lanes and of supper clubs, will make a return appearance on this hilarious show. Besides appearing with the three W-G-N comedians she will sing the song about a pair of little refugees, "My Sister and I."

Tom, Dick and Harry will tell the story [in song] of "The Bearded Lady" and "Pindu, the Hindu Fakir." Ed Allen is the narrator and Robert Trendler directs the orchestra and gets involved in the Tom, Dick, and Harry comedy sequences. William A. Bacher produces the show.

Northerners to Feature Selections of "Lohengrin"

A collection of songs from Wagner's "Lohengrin," will be featured by the Northerners on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. Such favorites as "Now Wakes the Day," "The Bridal Chorus" and "Hail, Gallant Knight" will be included in the Wagnerian medley, in which the entire ensemble —the male octet, the string orchestra and Lois Wallner, soprano-soloist— will be featured. The entire program will be under the baton of Harry S. Walsh, noted choral director.

N. WEST SUBURBS REVEAL DROP IN HOME BUILDING

Four Fewer Units Than in 1940 Period.

Four fewer homes were constructed in five northwest suburbs during the first six months of 1941 than during the same half-year period of 1940, lagging far behind in the building gain experienced in other sections of Chicagoland. The five suburbs, Park Ridge, Prospect Heights, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, and Arlington Heights, were the only communities in the section where building values were greater than $100,000 for the six month period, according to a survey conducted by the Bell Savings and Loan association.

New building in the city and 87 suburban towns amounted to $62,000,706 for 1941, an increase of 50 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Of this amount $35,768,182, or more than half, went into homes in suburban areas.

Value a Bit Higher.

The total valuation of new homes built in the five northwest suburbs showed a five per cent increase over last year, as compared with a 51 per cent increase in value for all other suburbs with construction costs above $100,000 for the six-month period. Valuations for 1941 were $1,486,398 as against $1,419,465 for 1940. Two hundred and four homes were built this year, compared to 208 during the first six months of 1940.

Park Ridge led the northwest suburbs both in number of homes built and rate of increase, with 79 new homes valued at $605,606. This was eight more than were constructed last year during the period.

Home building in Prospect Heights was second in number and total valuation. Construction costs this year were $250,200, an increase of $11,870 over last year, but only 40 new units were recorded, three less than the January thru June period of 1940.

Drop in Des Plaines.

Des Plaines dropped from 52 homes valued at $272,628 to 37 at $216,957. An increase of $60,096 and seven more units was reported in Mount Prospect. This year's figures were 29 homes with a valuation of $231,735. Totals for Arlington Heights were 19 homes valued at $181,900 this year, compared with 20 units last year valued at $168,000.

In Grennan Heights subdivision, near Mount Prospect, 27 new homes were built at a cost of $181,900 and in Barrington-Biltmore estates, 13 homes at a cost of $151,550.

Three large buildings were reported in the northwest suburbs during the month of June. They include a $40,000 theater in Arlington Heights, a $28,000 warehouse in Barrington and a $17,000 public building in Palatine.

Roy Shield Will Leave Podium for Piano Bench

Roy Shield, director of music for NBC and conductor of the Roy Shield orchestra, will step off the podium for the first time in 10 years to assume his former rôle as a concert pianist on his orchestral broadcast at 4:30 p. m. today over WENR-NBC.

BUSSES, FOR 93 YEARS, FOLLOW AMERICAN WAY

Elk Grove Family Now an Institution.

a seat on the county board. He remained as supervisor until 1900. William's father, Louis, the first of Friedrich's sons to wander off the family reservation, established a creamery in Arlington Heights and served 30 years as a director of the school district and township highway commissioner.

William Busse Jr., under whose management the Mount Prospect State bank's deposits have grown from $11,000 to nearly a million dollars, also was the village postmaster for 21 years. Last year he was treasurer of the Illinois Bankers association, and is also a past president of group 3 of the association.

He is organizer and past president of the local Lions club, and is also in charge of the Mount Prospect United Service Organization drive which has exceeded its established quota.

Cherish American Way.

The American way of life has been cherished by the Busse family, from Friedrich on down. The first Busse walked all the way to Chicago to take out his first naturalization papers. He received his final certificate, still preserved in the family archives, eight years after his arrival in Elk Grove.

The call of the new world democracy, free from the whims of tyrants and the threat of wars, had been irresistible to him. A premonition which he often voiced, told him of "a great war in Europe when sovereigns would fall, war machines would move under their own power[and the army of Prussia would be able to stand in the shade of one tree." Perhaps he also foresaw its resurrection at the hands of another tyrant.

At any rate, he died, happy in the realization that his progeny had become firmly established in the land of promise. In 1938, the 90th anniversary of his arrival in Elk Grove, 1,051 members of the family gathered to pay tribute to the patriarch. Seven years hence an even larger group perhaps will reunite to celebrate a century as an American institution.

Symphony Will Present Work by Mendelssohn

Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony, written when the composer was only 24 years old, will be featured by the Columbia Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Howard Barlow at 2 p. m. today over WBBM-CBS. The dramatic overture "Patrie," and the "Entr'Acte and Bohemian Dance" from "Carmen," both by the French composer Bizet, open the concert.

CITY REZONING PLAN NEARLY READY

NEW ORDINANCE EXPANDS AREAS FOR RESIDENCES

Space for Business Sharply Reduced.

Mountainous tho it is, the task of rezoning Chicago is within a few weeks of completion, it was indicated last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the council subcommittee in charge of the work.

Lindell, as spokesman, said his committee hoped to submit the proposed ordinance in time for council action by Oct. 1. The other members are Aldermen John J. Duffy [19th], P. J. Cullerton [38th], Harry L. Sain [27th], and Frank Keenan [49th].

Public hearings begun a month ago, at which property owners can protest provisions of the tentative ordinance draft, are nearing their end. With these completed, a revised draft will be prepared, an official public hearing on it will be held, and it will then be sent to the council committee on building and zoning, which will report it out to the council.

These public hearings are being held by wards, and each alderman is invited to attend. Thus every alderman is presumed to be so familiar with the new ordinance that a vote on its adoption can be held with a minimum of debate.

Tentative Changes Few.

How thoroly the zoning subcommittee has done its preliminary work is seen from the fact that changes in the tentative draft which grow out of the ward hearings are averaging less than one-tenth of 1 per cent thus far, according to Lindell.

Practically all of these changes affect business areas, he said. Most of the objections voiced at the public hearings are by owners who want their property zoned to allow the erection of gasoline filling stations.

The proposed ordinance provides for eight use districts—single family, two family, group or row houses, apartments, business, commercial, manufacturing, and industrial. The present ordinance, adopted in 1923, designates only four zones, residential, apartment, commercial, and manufacturing.

One of the principal endeavors of the subcommittee is to expand the one and two family residential zones, and to cut down the volume of the commercial areas. The latter constitutes the major problem of the committee, Lindell said. When the 1923 ordinance was drawn, land owners were in a speculative mood, and many obtained commercial zoning because of the hope of bigger land values, but these hopes have long since faded.

Percentage Too High.

The result was that Chicago found itself with 17 per cent of its municipal area set aside for business and commercial uses, whereas 1.5 per cent is regarded as the ideal. If used to the limit, the present commercial zones would permit one store for each two persons in the city.

"If the streets which the 1923 ordinance zoned commercial were laid end to end, they would reach from Chicago to Los Angeles," Lindell said.

In reducing the commercial and business zones the subcommittee utilized results of land use studies made by such agencies as the Chicago Plan commission, of which Lindell is a member, and the suggestions of numerous business and improvement associations.

The ideal toward which the ordinance makers worked was to confine business sites to section line intersections as far as possible, with additional store sites on half section line crossings in the more congested areas. Under the 1923 ordinance most of the principal streets in the city are lined continuously on both sides with commercial zones.

Hit Residential Values.

These zones permitted the erection of gasoline stations, theaters, garages, and light manufacturing plants, which had a deleterious effect on residential values. A business zone, under the new ordinance, would permit only small stores and professions, while the more intensive commercial uses would be limited to districts insulated as far as is practicable from residence areas. Such intelligent planning goes far toward halting the spread of run-down areas, which has long been a problem in Chicago, Lindell said.

The new ordinance is powerless to discontinue the land uses which it would prevent in the future, he said, inasmuch as a zoning ordinance must take property as it finds it. However, a later ordinance might prohibit the replacement of these nonconforming uses once they are discontinued, the alderman said.

In framing the new ordinance the subcommittee is guided by the interpretation of the state's zoning laws by the Illinois courts. These courts, in general, have recognized that the character of a given zone in a built-up area shall be set by the use to which half or more of the area has been put.

KENDALL CO. TO MARK 100TH YEAR THIS WEEK

Lincoln Voted for Present Name.

Candidates for queen from each of the nine townships of Kendall county will journey to the county seat at Yorkville tomorrow night where judges will decide which one of the group shall preside over the county's centennial celebration beginning Friday and continuing thru Sunday. Township representatives will be decided by votes obtained from the sale of centennial souvenir buttons. Coronation ceremonies will take place Friday night.

Historical exhibits of the county which received its charter in 1841 will be on display during the celebration. There will be speechmaking, band concerts, vaudeville acts, amateur shows, and a baseball tournament. On Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Seth Eastvold of Eau Claire, Wis., will speak at union church services in Bristol park.

The story of Kendall county will be unfolded by units in the parade which will take place Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. A mass band made up of players from all high schools in the county will lead the procession. Indians on horseback and an Indian float will head the pageant. Costumes will include the headdress of Chief Shabbona who ruled over the Fox river valley more than a century ago.

Parade to Tell History.

Other parade features portraying highlights of the century will be the covered wagon era, the establishment of schools, the day of the circuit rider, the stagecoach period, a Civil war group, railroad building, the gay '90s, and a modernistic float.

Kendall county was named after Amos Kendall, postmaster general in the cabinet of President Andrew Jackson. It was first proposed to create the "county of Orange" as some 46 families had migrated to the community from Orange county, New York. On motion of Ebenezer Peck of Will county, the name was changed to Kendall, and among those voting for the amendment was Abraham Lincoln.

The Indian part of the pageant will be particularly appropriate as there were two Indian reservations in the county, those of the Mo-Ah-Ways and the Waish-Ke-Shaws.

Two Stagecoaches in Parade.

The two stagecoaches in the parade will serve as reminder of the days before the railroad when there were three stage lines thru the county.

During the Civil war, Kendall county met every quota without resorting to draft.

A Marsh binder in the parade will be of special significance because of its manufacture in Plano at a time when reaping equipment was first being developed. Outside of Plano, Kendall county is strictly agricultural, but it has been the scene of pioneering ventures in the invention and development of agricultural implements including those of Cyrus McCormick and Deering. In an early day the Townsend family built a mill at AuSable grove where McCormick reapers were manufactured. In those days there were no railroads, and it was necessary to haul machine tools overland by oxen from Chicago to the farming area.

The Rev. Oliver C. Johnson is engaged in writing the history of the county to be published this fall. The Rev. Mr. Johnson, now in his 78th year, was born in Na-Au-Say township, four miles from where the early McCormick harvesting machines were built.

Recalls Plank Road.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson recalls remnants of a plank road between Plainfield and Joliet. Every township but Lisbon, he said, possessed groves of hardwood timber.

For the Saturday afternoon program of the centennial the Polish National Alliance, which has a camp west of Yorkville, will provide entertainment including Polish folk dances and music by the Polish drum and bugle corps. The Maple Lane Riding academy will present the "Gay Nineties" feature in the big parade.

Officers of the Kendall county centennial committee are Jacob Armbruster, chairman; Lewis Meyer, vice chairman; LaVerne A. Hanson, treasurer, and R. D. Arundale, secretary.

List Chairmen.

Saddle and Suds Club to Hold Steak Fry Today

Members of the Oakbrook Saddle and Suds club and their guests will hold a steak fry and party in Oakbrook polo field No. 1 at 26th street and York road at the conclusion of the club ride this afternoon. William D. Bradley is president.

Bowen Country Club Gives Youngsters a Setting of Beauty for Their Camp Outings

Young guests at Bowen Country club, the 72 acre Hull House recreation and outing area on Sheridan road north of Waukegan, greet their hostess, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, at the entrance of Lilac cottage, the house she is occupying on the grounds this summer. Altho Mrs. Bowen purchased and endowed the club as a memorial to her husband in 1912, this is the first summer she has visited there. Camille Dorsano, Josephine Terracciano, Mike Parelli, Dorothy Lorenz, and John Terracciano, left to right standing, are an attentive audience as Mrs. Bowen describes club landmarks. Louis Menalascino, Shirley Fein, and Ralph Fontana sit down for the stories. Except for the lawns beside the buildings, Bowen's broad acres are mowed. Usually, the hay is removed, but last year the camp director, Robert Hicks, suggested that city children should know what fun it is to slide down a haystack. Accordingly, the hay was stacked, and Chicago's west side youngsters have lost no time in adopting the time honored rural sport of sliding and jumping in it.

A CHILD'S CLUB EVOLVES INTO DEFENSE GROUP

Oak Park Will Train Air Pilots for Army.

A club that started as child's play in the Oak Park playgrounds is preparing to make an extensive contribution to national defense. The Oak Park Aviation club has been chosen by the government to undertake one of the six civilian pilot training programs in Illinois.

A noncollege free ground school course will be offered beginning Aug. 1, with classes meeting on Monday and Thursday evenings. The course is open to any male citizen with a high school education, between the ages of 19 and 26 years, who does not already hold a pilot's license. The maximum number to be trained at one time will be 52 competitive students and 13 noncompetitors.

To become a competitive student the young man must take a physical examination which will cost $6. The top ranking 10 men in the competitive class have the opportunity of continuing flying lessons which will lead to service in the United States army air corps.

Girls May Take Course.

The noncompetitive student is one who is not interested in continuing training for army service. Girls may enter the course as noncompetitors. If at the conclusion of the ground school course these students make a grade of 70 per cent or better they are automatically granted a private pilot's certificate and have one year in which to pass the flight test.

The Oak Park Aviation club, which is coöperating in the government program with the West Suburban Flying club, started in 1936 as a playground model airplane club for boys. The instructor, John Carleton, noticed the great interest of older boys in learning about real flying craft. He bought a plane and started giving lessons.

When Mr. Carleton left the club the boys applied to the village for permission to continue using the headquarters at 604 Harrison street and volunteered to get themselves a flying instructor. The new instructor was Richard Dick of United Air Lines, who served until Bob Lindsay took the job in August, 1940.

Began with Snow Party.

Starting in January of 1940 the club activities, outside that of classroom work in meteorology, navigation, aerodynamics, and theory of flight, began with a snow party. Twenty-five young people from Oak Park went by airplane to northern Wisconsin. A runway was plowed thru 4 foot drifts by a highway snow plow furnished by the state of Wisconsin.

Members began making cross-country flights. Budd Mordard and Fred Muntwyler flew a new Piper cub coupe home from the factory at Lockhaven, Pa. Neil Daniels and Dick Schliep spent their vacation flying Neil's Aeronica Chief on a tour of the north woods. Dick Airey initiated his mother to the fun of flying by treating her to a week-end trip to Wisconsin.

John Musengo flew to Louisville, Ky. Richard Dickerson flew a new cub trainer back to Chicago from Lockhaven. Lew Weimer, then club president, acted as a ferry pilot for the Chicago Chamber of Commerce Flying club. Robert and Helma Lindsay traveled with the light plane cavalcade to Florida. Charles Bostleman, Johnny Jones, Dorothy Morard and Helen Picchietti flew to southern Indiana and back one Sunday.

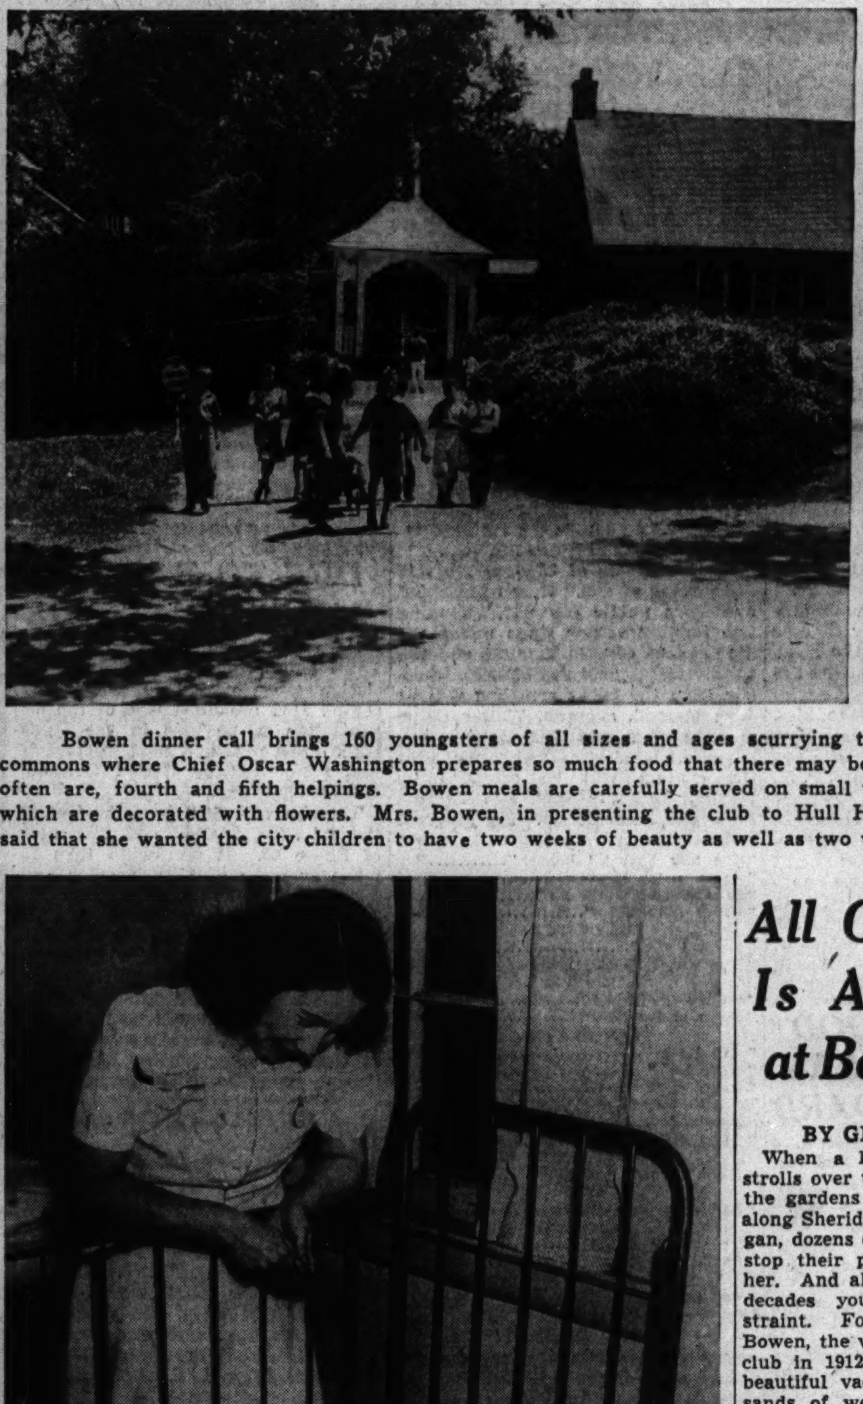
Fly to Enlist.

Then Frank Bostleman and Lew Wimer flew to Canada to register for enlistment in the royal Canadian air force. The call of the United States army for pilots was answered by the former playground club. Fred Haupt and Norman Ingle are stationed at Chanute Field, Rantoul. Jack Martin is stationed at the Panama Canal, Bob Hines at Guatemala, Clifford Rademacher in Alaska and Warren Palm in the Hawaiian Islands.

The Oak Park club has its own flying field at Hortonville, Wis. Members fly up to the Dynes Country club for a dip in the swimming pool and a dinner. The trip is two hours by air.

Last year Mr. Muntwyler became associated with George Walsh when he made his 38 jump parachute record at Westchester air port. Walsh convinced Muntwyler of the need for amateur flyers to have had the experience of parachuting. Muntwyler made the jump and eleven members followed suit. They were Frank Bostleman, Neil Daniels, Bud Morard, Weimer, Frank Peterson, Charles Peterson, Phil Eastman, Dick Airey, Charles Muntwyler, Bob Ellis and Bob Lindsay.

The Oak Park Kiwanis club has sponsored the aviation club, helping them stage minstrels to raise money. Now and then a member completes his necessary hours in the air and earns a license.



Bowen dinner call brings 160 youngsters of all sizes and ages scurrying to the commons where Chief Oscar Washington prepares so much food that there may be, and often are, fourth and fifth helpings. Bowen meals are carefully served on small tables which are decorated with flowers. Mrs. Bowen, in presenting the club to Hull House, said that she wanted the city children to have two weeks of beauty as well as two weeks of activity out of doors. The Bowen currant patch is a popular spot each season. City girls and boys make a novelty of what country children consider a chore and pick currants by the hour. These pickers are Joe Tuminello, Leonard Falcone, Louis Gonzalez, and Camille Vacco.

Sometimes Bowen Country club campers put down more food than tiny tummies can hold. Then they go to the little hospital, where Mrs. Jean Jacobus Austin, senior at Northwestern university medical school, nurses them back to health again. Small Joe Toledeo spent several days in the hospital eating sugar suckers in place of the man sized variety and quantity of food he'd tried to consume.

All Outdoors Is Adventure at Bowen Club

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

When a little white haired lady strolls over the wide lawns and thru the gardens of Bowen Country club along Sheridan road north of Waukegan, dozens of sun tanned youngsters stop their play a moment to greet her. And altho she's 82 and they're decades younger, there's no constraint. For she's Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, the woman who endowed the club in 1912 and thus provided the beautiful vacation spot which thousands of west side boys and girls have enjoyed and loved in the years since. Always known to the young campers as their hostess, this is the first summer Mrs. Bowen has resided at the club.

Refugees Buy Home.

"I've gone to Bar Harbor every season for 60 years," Mrs. Bowen says, "but some refugees gave me an offer for my house, so I sold it last year. I'd been here in the spring and fall, so I thought I'd visit all summer this year."

When one is 82, a vacation within sight and sound of 160 children is an experience. Mrs. Bowen began by watching them from the windows of Lilac cottage, the green shuttered house she occupies at the club. But when she had spent a morning worrying that some 3 year olds would swallow the whistles they'd gotten from their leader or that they'd fall out of their coaster wagons or that the boys throwing green apples might get hurt—"well, then, I concluded I'd stop looking out of the windows," says she.

Visits Hull House Daily.

Mrs. Bowen, whose Astor street home is a Chicago landmark, is president of the Hull House association and goes to the famous west side settlement house each day when in Chicago. Her interest in the welfare of the children there led her to purchase the 72 acres of ravine cut woods and meadow for them. She endowed the club and set it up as a memorial to her husband who died in 1911.

One of the first things she did was to ask her own gardener to lay out

Suburban Churches Open Religious Tent Meetings

A union evangelist tent campaign opened last Sunday and will continue every Sunday thru Aug. 17 at Roosevelt road and Highland avenue. West area churches coöperating are the South Oak Park church, Harrison Street church of Oak Park, and Berwyn Bible church.

Oscar Washington, Bowen chef, is confidant as well as cook for the hundreds of youngsters who visit the club each season. He's also the most regular and most interested spectator at the games and activities. Club leaders take turns helping in Oscar's spotless kitchen. Anita Strassman, left, and Lucille Mascione are two enthusiastic assistants. Oscar serves plenty of cooking advice along with the food, and the girls think his tips may be helpful some day.

MUSIC FESTIVAL SOLO CONTEST DEADLINES SET

Hundreds of Area Singers to Compete.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

The deadline for entry in the Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contests for Cook county participants will be tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. All signed entries on official blanks must be in the festival office on the fourth floor of Tribune Tower at that time. Several hundred west and northwest side singers are expected to take part in this feature of The Tribune festival of song. The deadline for those residing outside of Cook county will be Monday, August 4, at 6 p. m.

Betty Clement.

Offical entry blanks may be obtained at the festival headquarters office or at The Tribune's Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street.

Area Contest Aug. 5.

The first west and northwest side contest will be held Tuesday night, August 5, at 7 o'clock in the grand ballroom of the Graemere hotel. Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard. On the following night sopranos, mezzos, and basses will be selected. Voice teachers and coaches, radio, opera, and concert stars, and orchestral conductors will be the judges.

Two entrants in the west side vocal preliminary contest are Betty Clement, 22 years old, mezzo, of 2440 Lexington street, and Thomas John Brennan, 26, dramatic tenor, of 2204 North Lawler avenue.

Winners of Cook county sectional contests will go on to the Cook county finals which will be held in the grand ballroom of the Drake hotel on Wednesday night, August 13, at 7 o'clock. Six voices will be chosen that night to go to the Chicagoland finals which will be held the day of the big festival on Saturday, August 16. There four winners will be chosen, the two best men and the two best women singers. That night in Soldiers' field the finals will be held before 100,000 spectators. It will be the first time that the finals have been held in Soldiers' field.

Pageant Rehearsal.

The second west and northwest side dance-pageant rehearsals for "Injun Summer," which will be given at the Festival concert in Soldiers' field, will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the Ideal Dancing Studios, at 3907 West Madison street. Miss Mayblossom MacDonald will be in charge. There still is time for new entrants. No boy or girl under 7 years of age will be admitted.

Fretted orchestra rehearsals for mandolin, tenor banjo, Spanish and Hawaiian guitars will be held Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 o'clock in the Lyon & Healy recital hall, seventh floor, 64 East Jackson boulevard. Capt. Howard Stube will conduct this rehearsal.

MISSION GROUP MEETS TODAY ON COLLEGE CAMPUS

The Lutheran Mission crusaders will move in on River Forest today for their second annual celebration on the campus of Concordia Teacher's college. The crusaders were organized in 1939 by 23 laymen of Lutheran congregations in west and northwest suburbs who banded for mission work in the North Illinois district.

A service will be conducted at 2:45 o'clock today in the college gymnasium when the speakers will be the Rev. J. E. A. Mueller of Mount Prospect, the Rev. A. T. Kretzmann of Barrington, and the Rev. H. E. Brauer of St. Martini church in Chicago. Theodore Lams of Mount Prospect will be the organist. The Chicagoland a cappella chorus directed by Prof. Albert Beck of River Forest will sing.

After the services there will be an outdoor entertainment by the Lutheran Harmony band directed by Walter A. Borchardt.

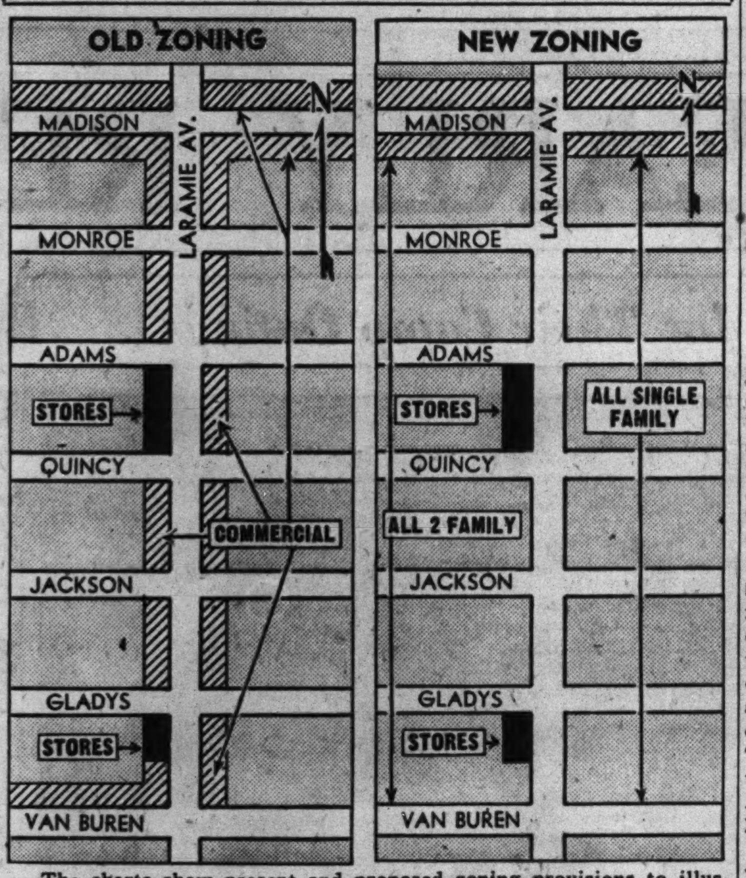
The first mission survey and canvass was financed by give congregations in circuit No. 11 supervised by the Mission board. The results were a mission Sunday school established at Northbrook, another near Arlington Heights and a mission congregation at Round Lake.

West side men on the membership committee for the crusaders are Louis A. Bunge, Elmhurst; Otto Schultz, Berwyn; Martin J. Weiss, Melrose Park; John A. Keil, River Forest; Charles H. Schmidtke, Downers Grove; H. B. Beiderman, Elgin, and Paul B. Wick, Oak Park.

Wed 55 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Morgan, 210 South Laramie avenue, celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary recently. Mr. Morgan is 82 years old and Mrs. Morgan is 72. They have nine sons and daughters, 29 grandsons and daughters, and two great-grandchildren.

Proposed Zoning Changes on Laramie



The charts show present and proposed zoning provisions to illustrate how the new land use ordinance would reclassify territory. The proposed ordinance would remove commercial zones from Laramie avenue and rezone the present apartment areas into single family dwelling sites. Stores and professional offices would be permitted on Madison street. Commercial zones, indicated by the diagonal lines, included amusement enterprises in the old code. Business areas (also diagonal lines) would not include amusement areas under the new code.

Aspirants for School Jobs Face Puzzlers.

Want to enter Chicago Teachers college? Then try your luck on these questions:

Are elements which form more than one type of crystal allotropic, amphoteric, amorphous, or deliquescent?

Did the English remain in the northwest after the Treaty of 1783?

Are Haversian canals characteristic of adipose, epilepthial, nerve, connective, or bone tissues?

Are adjacent angles supplementary if their exterior sides lie in a straight line?

These are a few of the brain puzzlers that confronted 941 Chicago high school graduates and 137 college graduates last month when they took written examinations for admission to Chicago Teachers college. Those who passed the written examinations—in English, general science, United States history, civics, arithmetic, algebra, and geometry—were then given oral examinations by committees of five college professors.

300 Now Candidates.

As a result of the examinations, 300 of the high school graduates and 53 of the college graduates are now candidates for admission to the teachers college next fall.

This year, for the first time, all applicants' written examinations were graded by an electric scoring machine. Besides reducing the scoring time from several weeks to a matter of a few hours, the machine completely eliminated the possibility of error on the part of persons scoring the tests, according to Paul Edwards, vice chairman of the college's board of examiners.

From West Side.

The names of west side students who survived both examinations and are candidates for admission to the college follow:

RAP ALD. WALSH FOR HIS VOTE ON TRACTION LAW

36th Ward Stirred by Negative Ballot.

Residents of the 36th ward charged last week that because of his inactivity in the city council Ald. Richard M. Walsh is losing popularity in his ward. Criticism also was leveled at the alderman because he voted against the traction ordinance recently passed by the city council. The ordinance provides for motor bus extensions on West North avenue.

Mrs. Rose Stelzer, 1646 Merrimac avenue, who was formerly active in Democratic circles, said: "Everyone in this ward wants that bus extension. The poor people who cannot afford automobiles need it. We do not understand why Alderman Walsh voted against it.

"He was popular when he was elected alderman but the people here have not seen many results since his election."

Ward Called Neglected.

Gilbert H. Stemble, 1916 North Narragansett avenue, a business man, said: "It may be that Alderman Walsh is stymied in the council because he is on the wrong side of the political fence. But we do know that the ward has been sadly neglected and we feel there has been little fight put up for the people here."

"Walsh is well liked personally," Stemble continued, "but many of us feel that a change in ward administration is necessary."

See Waning Strength.

Reports are also current in the ward that since his defeat in the campaign for ward committeeman last year Walsh has lost much of the strength of his own political organization.

In 1939 Walsh rode into the city council with the support of State's Attorney Courtney and State Senator Benjamin Adamowski. In that election he defeated Ald. George W. Robinson, the regular organization candidate. Last year Robinson and Walsh opposed each other for Democratic ward committeeman and Robinson won.

JPI Forum Will Discuss Rising Cost of Living

A discussion as to whether the national defense program is being exploited as a means of advancing prices on consumers' goods will take place at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Roof Garden forum at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. The speakers on the topic, "Can We Prevent the Rising Cost of Living?" will be Alice Balester of the Conference Against High Cost of Living and Stephen Spencer of the Consumers' Coöperative movement.

SUBURB PATRIOTS JOIN FORCES TO PRESERVE NATION

Old Flag Waves Above Glen Ellyn Quarters.

The same band of Glen Ellyn men and women who helped their village become a garden, who built a modern school high on a hill overlooking Lake Ellyn, who paved streets and built churches, now have another mission. They are working to save their country.

On the Fourth of July an old American flag, the property of a pioneer family, waved above the new headquarters of a Glen Ellyn organization at 413 Main street. These headquarters were dedicated that day to a renewed declaration of independence from European entanglements. The use of the building was donated to the Glen Ellyn chapter of the America First committee by the A. C. Hoy company.

The lease-lend bill was the renewed warning to Glen Ellyn residents that there was a need for a patriotic organization to stand for America first. A great number of residents had joined the Roll Call of American Women, protesting the pushing thru of legislation that would lead this country into European wars.

Protest Against Bill.

Communications against the passage of bill 1776 poured into Washington from Glen Ellyn. When the bill passed, in spite of the sentiment against it, residents decided on more unified action. Early in April several women met and agreed to enlist the aid of all social organizations in the village.

The first meeting on April 18 brought 18 people. It was decided to hold a rally, but rallies cost money and a hall would be needed. Every woman paid 50 cents. Since that initial fund, donations have poured into the America First chapter.

John Maselter spoke at the first meeting held May 5 in the Junior High auditorium. J. Kenter Elliott was speaker May 19 in Acacia hall and the Rev. John A. O'Brien appeared in this hall on June 9.

On June 23, the first members' meeting was held and the speaker was Walter M. Fowler, former village president. He told the chapter: "The President isn't the state, he is a servant of the people. My loyalty is to my country, of which the President is a functionary. We have had more than 30 Presidents but only one country and one constitution."

Glen Ellyn chapter now has 225 members, a headquarters, and a busy program of speeches, rallies, and educational material to safeguard Americans.

Scan Bulletin Board.

Every day, scores of people stop to peruse the bulletin board items, to ask for membership cards and literature. Announcements of meetings, written by the publicity chairman, Mrs. Audrie Alspaugh Chase, are regularly printed in the Glen Ellyn News, the Wheaton Journal, the Lombard Spectator, and Chicago newspapers.

Glen Ellyn women are forsaking social events to volunteer their time as organizers and as clerks at the headquarters. Among these volunteers are Mrs. Robert Gates, Mrs. Charles Boardman, Mrs. E. H. Waterman, Mrs. George Day, Mrs. G. M. Kendall, Mrs. D. W. Alspaugh, Mrs. Walter M. Fowler, Mrs. C. E. Shattuc, and Mrs. P. M. McDonald.

George M. Day is chapter chairman and coöperating with him is the original executive committee of eight women—Mrs. Landon Lay, vice chairman; Mrs. Gates, secretary; Mrs. A. C. Duncan, program chairman; Mrs. J. D. McChesney, membership chairman; Mrs. Chase, Mrs. E. E. Degenhardt, Mrs. Day, and Miss Ethel Zander.

ELECT MAYWOOD MAN TO URBAN LEAGUE BOARD

Dr. Percy L. Julian, Maywood, a research director for a paint and varnish manufacturing company, has been elected to the executive board of the Chicago Urban league. The announcement was made by Earl B. Dickerson, league president, last week.

Dr. Dickerson also announced the appointments of Dr. Morton M. Berman, rabbi of Temple Isaiah Israel, and Maj. C. Udell Turpin as members of the Urban league's advisory board.

Dr. Julian is the first citizen of Maywood to become a member of the league's executive board. However, a large number of west area residents have served the organization for many years. They are the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Coe, Dr. Norvil Beeman, Dr. C. R. Siler, Paul A. Olson, Harold H. Metcalf, C. E. Winchell, Alex Johnson, William Y. Gilmire, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Herman, Mrs. Helen Rosenfels, Mrs. Mildred Dobson, Frank V. Koval, Walter Peckatt.

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

Third Armored [bayou blitz] division of the United States army has claimed a number of west side boys. They are stationed with the 67th Field Artillery at Camp Polk, La., and commanded by Brig. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem Jr. The young men are Carlo Pighini, son of Mrs. Rose Pighini, 613 North Racine avenue, headquarters battery; James Biggins, son of Mrs. Margaret Biggins, 5629 Washington boulevard, battery C; Vincent W. Zacharius, son of Mrs. Rose Zacharius, 500 South Kedzie avenue, battery D; D. C. Pawlak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casimer Pawlak, 727 North Racine avenue, battery D, Alex Sipari, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Sipari, 711 South Hermitage avenue, battery A; Salvatore Giangrego, son of Mrs. Jennie Giangrego, 838 North Francisco avenue, battery A; James Loeb, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Loeb, Oak Park, battery B.

Orders received on July 10 at Chanute field, Ill., sent Sergt. Kenneth Humphreys to his home station, the Fifth pursuit squadron, Selfridge field, Mich. He is the son of Joseph Humphreys, 445 North Drake avenue. Humphreys was graduated from the electrical course, Chanute Field branch, Air Corps technical school, June 27.

In June Private John Kucera was sent to the 160th air corps attachment in Chicago after his graduation from the airplane mechanics course at Chanute field. He is the son of Robert G. Kucera, Cicero.

Paul E. Turk, son of Mrs. Fannie Turk, 2950 Fillmore street, has written from Camp Polk, La., where he has been assigned to company C, 36th Infantry of the Third Armored division. He says, "I was surprised to find the officers in camp so courteous. I was under the impression that if one made a mistake, he would be called down in abusive language. I am getting along fine and when I get used to army customs, it will seem like home."

GIRL HUNTS KEY TO LOST TRIBE MYSTERY STORY

Joins Search for Ancient Civilization.

Peggy Ross.

Long ago, about 700 A. D., a civilization existed in the vicinity now known as New Mexico. Indians lived in pit houses with roofs level with the ground's surface. They made exquisite jewelry from turquoise, and their pottery and household ware were carefully designed.

Suddenly these people vanished, leaving their homes, their jewelry, their pottery where they had laid them down an hour before. No historian has ever discovered where they went or why. To date there has been no answer found for the enigma of the lost tribes of the southwest.

A pretty girl from Oak Park, Peggy Ross, 18 year old daughter of Mrs. Delle Ross, 317 North Marion street, has joined an expedition to the southwest to try to find the ending for this story. She has been selected by the Field museum for the expedition, which will camp near Glenwood, N. M.

Peggy to Dig Up Skulls.

The leader of the group is Dr. Paul S. Martin, curator of anthropology at the museum. Peggy is the youngest of the expedition members and was chosen because of her volunteer work at the Field museum last winter.

Peggy will spend the summer digging up relics, cleaning pottery, unearthing bones and skulls, the remains of the Indians buried in the pit houses thousands of years ago. Peggy is getting her field work in preparation for a course in anthropology at the University of Chicago.

Mrs. Ross explains the odd story of her daughter's choice of a career. When Peggy was five years old a friend gave her a set of children's books about the Indian Lake dwellers. The child begged to have them read and reread. "We read those books ragged," says Mrs. Ross.

Borrows Money for Trip.

Peggy asked questions about Indians that wise historians had never been able to answer. Thru her grammar school and her days at Oak Park-River Forest High school Peggy read avidly about Indian pottery, lore and history of the movements of tribes. Miss Josephine Blackstock, director of Oak Park playgrounds, heard of Peggy's ability in art work. Thru the playground classes, the Zonta club became interested. The club members are lending Peggy the money to pay her expenses on the expedition.

After the young anthropologist graduated from Oak Park High school a year ago, she volunteered her services to the Field museum. She made layouts for the new Indian hall and sketches for the Mexican hall. These have been incorporated into the museum exhibits.

Searching for More Data.

Peggy found that the more she knew about the lost tribes of the southwest the more she wanted to know. This summer she is getting the opportunity to pry with her own hands into the secret that lies buried in the soil of New Mexico.

The Field museum has some evidence in its exhibits of the artistic people who lived there. Mr. Martin supervised the sorting typologically of the 5,000 unbroken specimens of painted Onasazi pottery. Ninety-five per cent of the collection was discovered between 1880 and 1890 by cowmen, ranchers and antiquarians who dug in Arizona, Utah, Colorado and New Mexico.

It is now possible to trace the ancestry of pottery from the modern Hopi work back to Kana, a black on white design, which represents an interval of 1,200 years, museum officials say.

St. Francis Assisi Church Selects Fiesta Committee

A committee has been appointed to make arrangements for a fiesta to be held by St. Francis of Assisi church, Roosevelt road and Newberry avenue, on Sept. 28 on the school grounds, 1206 South Newberry avenue. Miss Irene Holden, president of the Friends of St. Francis, is general chairman. Others appointed are Miss Victoria Warnesson, Miss Anita Warnesson, Miss Catherine Luse, Miss Mae Fennelly, Miss Amelia Jansen, Miss Mary Weibler, Mrs. Jane Warren, Mrs. Margaret Cummings, Edward Schaefer and Pius Reindl.

Becomes Bride in Campus Church

Miss Annabelle Charters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Charters of Oak Park, became the bride of Robert A. McGrath in a recent wedding ceremony in the Sacred Heart church on the Notre Dame campus, Notre Dame, Ind. Mr. McGrath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Aloysius McGrath of Oak Park, is a graduate of Notre Dame and of the law school of the Catholic university in Washington, D. C. Mrs. McGrath is a graduate of Rosary college, River Forest. Since July 1 they have been residing at 901 South Grove avenue, Oak Park. [Francis Photo.]

FACTORY GIRLS TO HAVE OUTING AT YWCA CAMP

Also Are to Discuss Club Co-operation.

Girls in the factories of Chicago are preparing for a vacation. Presidents of the three YWCA Industrial clubs of the West Side center, 101 South Ashland avenue, are among the 24 Chicago delegates who will attend the annual YWCA Industrial Girls Summer conference of the central region which will be held from tomorrow thru July 30 at Tower Hill, Sawyer, Mich.

The girls are Joanne Mariono, 3721 Lexington avenue, president of the Jolly Go Getters club; Mary Miller, 1928 South Homan avenue, president of the Cereus club for night workers, and Estelle Kemple, 2153 Lake street, president of the Joy Makers club.

Will Help Direct.

Miss Elsabelle Goss, west side industrial secretary, will accompany the delegation and help to direct conference activities. Mrs. Glenford Lawrence of the Chicago Commons, member of the board of directors of the Chicago YMCA, will be one of the conference discussion leaders.

More than 100 girls engaged in industrial work in Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio will meet for the conference. They will discuss plans for coöperation among the hundreds of YWCA industrial clubs in the middle west.

The conference theme will be "Women and the Defense Program." Between the discussion sessions they will have vacation fun along the shores of Lake Michigan, the first time many of them will be away from the smoke and dirt of factory machines.

Miss Elsa Graves, Oak Park, president of the Chicago YWCA's League of Industrial Girls, is conference chairman.

Have Handiwork Classes.

The girls' industrial clubs has become an integral part of YWCA activities. The clubs have handiwork classes, outing and social events. One of the most unusual is the Cereus club, which is for girl factory employés who work at night.

Every Thursday for the last three years the girls have added a club meeting to their topsy turvy schedule, and took their name from the night blooming cereus plant. They meet at the YWCA at 11 o'clock in the morning for sewing classes and a swim before lunch.

Most of the girls go to work at 3 o'clock in the morning at food and candy factories and at night shifts in defense factories.

Morton Grads to Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Krupar, 2626 South Wesley avenue, Berwyn, recently announecd the engagement of their daughter, June Ellen, to Albert R. Lesak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Lesak, 2302 South Scoville avenue, Berwyn. Both Miss Krupar and Mr. Lesak are graduates of Morton High school and Morton Junior college. [Stefany Photo.]

NEW ELMHURST CHURCH EDIFICE TO OPEN IN OCT.

With indications that the new edifice of the First Baptist church in Elmhurst will be completed the latter part of September, members of the organization are planning a harvest home dinner that will follow dedication ceremonies during the first week in October. At the dinner members and friends of the church will be asked to donate one day's salary to the building fund.

The new church building is being constructed at the corner of York street and St. Charles road. Architecture is of the New England colonial design.

PASTIME DRAMA GROUP TO GIVE ITS SECOND PLAY

Oak Parkers Will See 'Night Must Fall.'

The Pastime players, composed of 50 Oak Park young people who become actors and actresses during the summer, will present the second play of their fifth series on Thursday and Friday evenings. The melodrama, "Night Must Fall," by Emlyn Williams, will be given in the Lowell School theater, Forest and Lake streets in Oak Park.

George Schaefer is the director for the Pastime players. The business manager is Robert Stone. The organization is governed by a board of directors composed of Mr. Schaefer, Mr. Stone, William Neuert, Barbara Bourgeois, Ruth Reininga, Gertrude Robinson, and Louise Willing. The board of admissions is headed by Betty Ann Willems. Other members are Betty Bennett, Eleanor Morgan, and Harry Olson.

Plays to Be Given.

The fifth season of summer dramas was opened with the comedy, "George and Margaret." Other plays to be presented are "The Man Who Came to Dinner," on Aug. 7 and 8, and "Berkeley Square," on Aug. 21 and 22.

The program is made possible by the return to the village of students from Goodman theater, the Chicago Mummers, San Antonio playhouse, Rosary college, Lafayette college, and Northwestern and Rochester universities.

Members of the cast for "Night Must Fall" are William Neuert, Barbara Bourgeois, Ruth Reininga, Ruth Reininga, Ruth Hulburt, Helen Mattern, Richard Marks, Robert Stone, Mary Eileen Ruhnke, and John Erickson. The plays are produced entirely without adult assistance. Village merchants provide the furniture for the settings.

Roster of Actors.

The complete roster for the fifth season of plays consists of, besides those mentioned, Betty Bennett, Anita Brandt, Louise Burno, Jane Cameron, Albert Cotsworth, Fred Doyle, Grace Ellis, Wallace Engelhardt, Curtis Erickson, Jeanne White, Erickson, William P. Fox, Fred Gehlmann, June Goessele, Howard Hamilton, Hamilton Johnson, Alice Kemp, John LaMontaine, Emile LeGros, Bette Huss Lieb, Richard Marks, Elaine Maxwell, Thomas Mercer, Eleanor Morgan, Harry Olson, Cynthia Pine, and Ruth Reininga.

America First Notes

The new Downers Grove chapter of the America First committee, which meets in the Tivoli hotel, has started a campaign of letter writing in opposition to involvement in a foreign war. Chairman of the unit is P. C. Reed of the Tivoli hotel. Vice chairmen are George F. Repp, 1240 Chicago avenue; B. F. Long, 1001 Ogden avenue; C. S. Henderson, 5229 Boldgett road, and Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, Illinois state representative. Mrs. William M. Parrish is secretary and Mrs. E. H. Huntington is treasurer.

Thomas A. Thornton, an American Legion veteran, will speak at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the meeting of the Oak Park chapter of the America First committee, 736 Lake street. Mrs. Lillian H. Prugh is chairman of the chapter. The title of the speech by Mr. Thornton, who is a member of Grand Crosing Post No. 438, will be "This is Not Our War."

Glen Ellyn chapter of the America First committee will hear a lecture tomorrow evening by Dr. H. G. Swann, research associate in the physiology department of the University of Chicago. He will speak at 8:15 o'clock in Acacia hall, 413 Main street, and will describe how this country should keep from engaging in somebody else's war.

In East with Officer Husband

Mrs. Armsby Tod Hart is making her home temporarily in Philadelphia, Pa., where her husband, Lieut. Hart has been ordered to duty in the quartermaster corps of the United States army. She was Miss Evelyn Marie Hutchison before her recent marriage in the First Congregational church, Oak Park. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hutchison, 1000 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park. Lieut. Hart is the son of Dr. Ruth Wahl Hart of Eau Claire, Wis., and Honolulu, Hawaii. [Francis Photo.]

EVERY MOMENT IS ADVENTURE AT BOWEN CLUB

This Year It's True, Too, for Benefactress.

gardens at the club. "The children we bring here may not keep the gain in weight," she explained," but they can keep memories. They've a right to beauty." The children who arrive in new groups every two weeks agree. Many of them are men and women now—and they still remember Bowen club as the most beautiful spot they know.

The very name, Bowen Country club, suggests Mrs. Bowen's idea. It is a spot where children from crowded city flats glimpse something else, a different way of life. The children eat at tables for 10 rather than at long boards traversing the length of the dining hall. They are seated in mixed groups, and boys and girls take turns as hosts and hostesses. There are always flowers for decoration, but best of all, there is always plenty of food.

A Forgetful Physician.

There are 11 buildings at Bowen, including a little hospital where Mrs. Jean Austin, a senior medical student at Northwestern, is on duty this season. Dr. L. J. Osgood of Waukegan is the camp physician, "but he always forgets to send his bill," the camp leaders report. The swimming pool and asphalt tennis courts are favorite spots.

Mothers come to camp along with the tiny babies, and they live in the one year round building for campers, the home given by the first Mrs. Julius Rosenwald.

Robert D. Hicks, football and wrestling coach at Tilden High school, and Mrs. Hicks are superintendent and assistant at the club. Both have been associated with Bowen and with Hull House since 1920.

Oscar's Up Early.

Philosopher and friend to every youngster in camp is Oscar Washington, the chef. He says, "I get up an hour early every morning to keep in front with my work so I'll have time for the kids. If I do that, I never get cross, either. It's only when people get to hurrying and worrying about their work that they get cross, I think." Oscar wishes he had a winter job with youngsters, too.

The six men councilors in camp receive salaries. The 14 girl councilors are all volunteers. They receive no salaries. All college students or teachers, they apply early each year and pay their own transportation from great distances in order to help with the Bowen program.

They All Get Along.

"We have a league of nations here," Hicks says, "and we do get along. The majority of mothers and children are of Italian extraction, but we have Greeks, Mexicans, Negroes, Poles, Irish, Norwegians, Jews—everybody. There is nothing so helpful as a little living close to nature to help people overcome prejudices and get along with each other."

EARLY VISITORS CALL RIVERSIDE THE IDEAL TOWN

Rare Booklet Reveals Glowing Comments.

Riverside's charms may be taken for granted today, but in 1871 when it was in the prospectus stage its appearance evoked rhapsodies from the Rev. Edward Everett Hale, writing for a Boston monthly, and Charles Nordhoff, managing editor of the New York Evening Post.

The Rev. Mr. Hale was impressed by the roads "all built on a substantial, expensive, and intelligent plan, so mud is not an annoyance." And he added, "they have built their gas works so kerosene is not an annoyance in Riverside."

Editor Nordhoff said he had heard of Riverside as one of the curiosities of the west, and that after having seen it he wished sincerely that Chicago were New York, and that the Riverside Improvement company had favored his vicinity with their enterprise and skill.

The Riverside Improvement company may have seen to it that these journalists paid a visit to their real estate development. Anyhow, thru their pens the suburb, in its beginning, became nationally known.

Reprinted in Booklet.

The glowing comments were reprinted in a booklet published in 1871 by the company that had engaged Olmstead, Vaux & Co. as architects. This booklet, now rare, recently was obtained by the Riverside library and is being cared for zealously altho made available to those interested in the suburb's early days.

Wood cuts in the volume remind one of the old readers that did service before the turn of the century. The artists had imagination, notwithstanding the beauty of pioneer Riverside as a basis for their illustrations. Flags float from a dozen cupolas of the refectory veranda. On the lawn are ladies in crinolines and carrying dainty parasols.

Prancing steeds draw fancy equipages along Longcommon road, and running beside them is a boy rolling a hoop. Another boy, from whose straw hat a wide ribbon floats, is adding his sail boat to the many that lift their canvas above the Des Plaines. The water tower has much the same architecture as the one that characterizes the suburb today.

Notes Its Convenience.

Mr. Hale wrote of the convenience of the suburb for business men who have to do their daily work in the city. He noted that the walks were made of the kind found so satisfactory in Central park.

"Riverside," wrote Mr. Hale, "affords not only the comforts that encourage domesticity but also such outdoor facilities and thorofares as shall promote sociability, intercommunication, exercise, and the enjoyment of pure air at all seasons of the year. The climate is clear and pure, owing to the high ground; dry and healthy, owing to its removal from the damp and chill winds of the lake, and free from mosquitoes and sand flies."

Editor Nordhoff said of the planners: "They have led the way in a kind of undertaking which every thoughtful man must wish to see imitated and repeated near every considerable city in the country."

"I suppose," wrote Mr. Nordhoff, "when the millennium comes, this is the way all cities will be founded. For the present, Riverside is the only city I know of where this desirable plan has been successfully carried out. So well has the work been done that it may serve as a model to the millenarians."

W-G-N TO GIVE MANY GLIMPSES OF 'YOUR ARMY'

Interview Series Starts Next Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Glimpses behind the scenes of the United States army will be given by W-G-N in a new series of broadcasts, titled "Your Army," starting at 2 p. m. next Wednesday. Succeeding broadcasts, under the direction of W-G-N's special events department, will be aired each Wednesday at the same hour, the series also will be aired over the coast to coast Mutual network.

Many phases of army life and activity—from soup kitchens to flying cadet schools—will be described on these broadcasts. Following an introduction to the series next Wednesday Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will be interviewed.

Hostesses to Be Heard.

On following weeks there will be broadcasts showing the inner workings of other army departments. High ranking officers will be interviewed about the departments they command. They will describe life in the ROTC, the quartermaster corps, the medical corps, the air cadet corps, nursing service, army camp hostesses force, and the food kitchens. Each program promises to be informative and entertaining.

Schedule of Broadcasts.

A tentative schedule of the first eight programs follows:

July 23—Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will describe life at the flying station at Chicago airport.

July 30—Interviews with officers and ROTC trainees at Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 6—Interviews with two women, lieutenants in the army nursing service.

Aug. 13—Interview with Col. Henry B. Barry, commanding officer, Chicago quartermaster depot.

Aug. 20—Interviews with officers of the Medical corps who will describe how the army physicians and surgeons protect the health of the soldiers.

Aug. 27—Interviews with two hostesses from Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 27—Interviews with officers who will tell the requirements for entrance into the army aviation cadet corps.

Sept. 10—Maj. William R. MacKinnon, commandant of the bakers and cooks school at Fort Sheridan, will tell how and with what menus the army is fed. June Baker, W-G-N's home economics expert, will also appear on this program.

Each week thereafter another aspect of army life will be described. The entire series will present a rounded picture of the machinery which runs the United States army. The programs will originate in the studios of W-G-N.

SONG BY DEBUSSY WILL BE CLIMAX OF MELODY HOUR

Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will play the piano accompaniment for Kathryn Witwer, soprano, when she sings Debussy's "Mandoline" as the highlight of the Pageant of Melody over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday. The program will present a varied musical half hour featuring melodies from Victor Herbert to Beethoven. The orchestra will open the broadcast with the "Abu Hassan Overture" by Carl Weber. A medley of Debussy works is the second offering. Miss Witwer will sing "Beau Soir" and the second number is the selection that will feature Weber and Miss Witwer.

Michael Wilkomirski will be heard in a violin solo with the background of the chorus and orchestra presenting Arensky's "Serenade." Miss Witwer will be heard singing 'Twilight In Barakeesk" from Victor Herbert's "Rose of Algeria" and the orchestra will play Moskowsky's "Malaguena" from "Boabdil" and the last movement of Beethoven's "Symphony No. 5."

W-G-N Songstress

Mary Small, former child entertainer, is now 19 and has a radio show of her own on W-G-N-Mutual. She is featured at 9:15 p. m. every Monday.

"Aurora," popular song hit with a South American flavor, will be Mary Small's solo on W-G-N-Mutual's Imperial Time broadcast at 9:15 p. m. tomorrow. Other selections will be "5 o'clock Whistle," "Tale of Two Cities," and "Begin the Beguine."

AIR KENT COOPER SONG SATURDAY ON W-G-N SHOW

A. P. Manager's Ballad to Be Sung by Baggiore.

"My Dixie Girl," a ballad by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, will be sung by Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as the feature of the Chicagoland hour over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will speak.

Cooper will attend the broadcast and hear his tune played for the first time over the Mutual network. The rôle of a composer is a new one for Cooper, who has been identified with newspaper work since 1893 when he started as a reporter in Indianapolis.

Medley of Memory Songs.

Another highlight will be a medley of memory songs, including the Egbert Van Alstyne favorite "Melodies." Marion Claire, soprano soloist, will sing "Smiles" and "School Days." Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, will sing "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree."

Miss Claire, Baggiore, and the chorus will be featured in a medley of Franz Lehar songs.

Miss Claire will also sing Lehar's "Melody of Love."

The complete program follows:

"Gold and Silver Waltz"..............Lehar
Orchestra.
"Melody of Love"......................Lehar
Marion Claire.
"My Dixie Girl"......................Cooper
Attilio Baggiore and chorus.
Franz Lehar selections:
"In Marsovia"—Chorus.
"Vilia"—Marion Claire and Baggiore.
"My Little Nest of Heavenly Blue"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Gypsy Love—Miss Claire, Baggiore and chorus.
Address by Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Medley of memory songs:
"Memories"—Ensemble.
"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" Baggiore and chorus.
"Smiles"—Miss Claire.
"O, You Beautiful Doll"—Baggiore.
"Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland"—chorus.
"Schooldays"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Honeymoon"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, and chorus.
"Russian Sailor Dance"................Gliere
Orchestra.
"Love's Own Sweet Song"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, Kalman, and chorus.

The entire program will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

HILDEGARDE TO BE GUEST AGAIN OF TOM, DICK, HARRY

Hildegarde.

More adventures of army boys who yoo-hoo at scantily clad girl golfers will be chronicled in the broadcast of the "Affairs of Tom, Dick and Harry" over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. Hildegarde, favorite songstress of the air lanes and of supper clubs, will make a return appearance on this hilarious show. Besides appearing with the three W-G-N comedians she will sing the song about a pair of little refugees, "My Sister and I."

Tom, Dick and Harry will tell the story [in song] of "The Bearded Lady" and "Pindu, the Hindu Fakir." Ed Allen is the narrator and Robert Trendler directs the orchestra and gets involved in the Tom, Dick, and Harry comedy sequences. William A. Bacher produces the show.

Northerners to Feature Selections of "Lohengrin"

A collection of songs from Wagner's "Lohengrin," will be featured by the Northerners on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow. Such favorites as "Now Wakes the Day," "The Bridal Chorus" and "Hail, Gallant Knight" will be included in the Wagnerian medley, in which the entire ensemble —the male octet, the string orchestra and Lois Wallner, soprano-soloist— will be featured. The entire program will be under the baton of Harry S. Walsh, noted choral director.

UTLEY IS GUEST COMMENTATOR ON W-G-N SERIES

Clifton Utley, news interpreter and commentator on foreign affairs, has begun a series of programs as guest commentator on the W-G-N newscast which featured the late Capt. E. D. C. Herne. Utley will be heard Monday thru Saturday from 6:30 to 6:45 p.m. Herne died last month after an operation.

Utley has long been in contact with the news fronts of the world. He traveled thruout Europe and Africa for many years, studying political and economic problems. Utley comments on foreign affairs over W-G-N at 8 p. m. each Tuesday. He has frequently appeared on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, W-G-N-Mutual's weekly forum on current affairs, broadcast at 10 a. m. Sunday. Altho busy in radio, he still finds time to maintain his position as the director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. For his new guest series Utley intends to devote his time to pithy, up to the minute dispatches, with only occasional interpretation.

W-G-N Sales Up 25 Pct. During First Half of '41

Local time sales for W-G-N were up 25.8 per cent for the first six months of 1941 according to an announcement by William A. McGuineas, sales manager. The increase represented a gain over the industry's general average and was attributed, in part, to W-G-N's sales record of 18 straight weeks of increased sales from Feb. 21 to the last week of June.

Perched on one of the 12 foot letters of the giant sign recently installed on the roof of the Wesern Electric Hawthorne works are Miss Peggy McKeever, at top, and Miss Betty Amberg and Miss Dolores Hoppe. The 213 foot sign is visible more than three miles away. Total weight of the letters is approximately nine tons. The sign is one of the longest on the west side.

KITCHENS MADE LIKE DAY WITH NEWER LIGHTING

Fluorescent Lamps on Forward March.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Fluorescent lighting is on the march and there's a most interesting model kitchen now open in Chicago that strikes a new high for intensities of artificial daylight illumination.

It is, moreover, very attractive, beautifully planned, equipped and decorated. The floor, cabinet work tops, and wall paper in the breakfast corner are carried out in harmonizing shades of blue. This wall paper has diminutive flower bouquets in regency shades of yellow and rose red and the blinds at the windows are taped with red.

There's a satin finished honey colored mahogany breakfast set with the breakfast bar which has many uses as a partition between eating nook and meal making area finished in a material which simulates the the color and grain of the mahogany. The counter of this partition is finished in a deep shade of blue and offers room for toaster and coffee maker, grill and waffle iron, pepper and salt.

Like Natural Daylight.

Natural daylight appears to be streaming in thru the casement windows, shadowless, cool, abundant light, but instead of coming from the great out of doors it comes from daylight fluorescent lamps concealed behind window valances and from the flush panel unit located in a soffit over the sink.

There also are fluorescent fixtures placed beneath each cabinet for work counter lighting, as well as localized fluorescent installations above the range and the service bar.

Nor is incandescent lighting forgotten. This is furnished by two center fixtures. The one in the kitchen gives a well diffused light from a prismalite louvered glass fixture and in the dining portion of the room there is a colonial designed lantern which sheds adequate light on the dinette table.

Latest in Equipment.

Then, too, there's the very latest in planning and equipment. You have your water heater and electric dishwasher, your ventilating fan, and range and refrigerator plus a host of smaller appliances which are up to the minute, and up to the task that is theirs to do.

Fluorescent lighting is much with us these days as a utility light in kitchens and bathrooms and laundries.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, July 21.

This is the watering season in gardens. When it is once begun it should be thoroly finished and not undertaken again until the ground needs water. Water need not be given nearly as often when the ground is soaked. Incessant watering both night and morning does the plants little good, altho it may saturate the ground.

Tuesday, July 22.

Keep weeds removed. Do hand weeding and get rid of the weeds once and for all. The small city yard is not so large that hand weeding cannot be the chief method of eradication; such yards should be as free of weeds as the parlor of the house.

Wednesday, July 23.

Give window box plants another application of plant food. A good, high grade complete fertilizer will work wonders on boxed plants, but be sure to examine the soil and water whenever needed.

Thursday, July 24.

Sweet peas, nasturtium, and other plants are likely to be attacked by aphids and spraying should be continued. It is a good time to propagate bleeding heart, oriental poppy, and, alkanet by separating the roots or making root cuttings. Some growers find that laying the stems of many plants soon produces a new plant and at little cost. Among these plants are climbing roses, spurge, ivy, verbenas and others of equal value. Divide iris if necessary.

Give the Japanese plenty of water as they come into bud or flower. Plan to lift and divide all peonies that need it next fall.

Friday, July 25.

Keep faded roses removed from baby rambler roses and the plants will flower over a long period. By sowing columbine seed now a new supply of plants may be enjoyed. Sow about an eighth of an inch deep, press into the soil, water well with a fine spray, and give a bit of shade during the heat of the day. Soak dahlias at least once a week.

Saturday, July 26.

Sow seeds of quick growing annuals for autumn bloom. Among these are the white baby breath, Shirley poppy, lupin, etc. Keep the roses well watered. Buy pansy seed for August sowing.

Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

THIS LAST LAUGH IS SOMETHING TO CROW ABOUT

Louie Proves They're Not All Black!

Anybody knows a crow is black. That's why Louis Volk, who works in the box shop at the Western Electric's Hawthorne plant in Cicero, has been made miserable for nine years. He said a crow was white.

Volk is a quiet, hardworking fellow who lives at 7115 Armitage avenue. He discusses work and life at home and nobody ever questions his veracity. But when he started crowing about the white crow he had found in the forest preserve, that was too much for the workers at the Hawthorne plant. They almost laughed him out of the shop.

"You're color blind, Louie," they shouted.

"Naw," chided another, "he found a chicken and doesn't know the difference between a hen and a crow."

"Maybe it's a parrot," suggested some one else.

Sticks to His Story.

Volk stuck to his story. He said he owned a white crow. He said its name was Bobby and it slept with the chickens in his back yard.

It was nine years before Volk was beaten down by the ribbing. He quit talking about Bobby. But a few weeks ago he announced that he wanted to get rid of his white crow.

He had sold his chickens and had moved the disputed crow into his house. At 4 o'clock each dawn it began to caw. The Volk family couldn't get any sleep.

When Louie announced his decision to get rid of his pet the men renewed their kidding. "Why don't you bring that silly crow down to work?" they said. "We'll tell you what kind of a bird it is."

"All right," said Louie, "I will."

All Crows Aren't Black.

A crowd of workers gathered at the Hawthorne gate to wait for Louie next morning. To their amazement he came carrying a box. With a flourish he pulled out the squawking Bobby. There he was—an albino crow blinking solemnly at the crowd with a pair of pink eyes.

To make the triumph complete Volk offered the bird to the Brookfield zoo. Karl Plath, zoo bird curator, thanked Louie for the gift. "This is a rare specimen," said Mr. Plath. "We are more than pleased to accept your white crow."

All is quiet at the Hawthorne branch, especially in the box shop. Nobody laughs at Louie any more. And his friends are careful not to swing the conversation around to crows any more.

Red Cross Aid.

James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross, announces the appointment of Miss Xenia Weicher, 2430 South St. Louis avenue, as roll call chairman of the South Lawndale Red Cross. She will head the membership campaign in the area in November.

BOOKS ON MACHINERY WIN NEW POPULARITY AT AUSTIN LIBRARY

One line of national defense closer to home is the Austin branch of the Chicago Public library, 5609 West Race street. Miss Maude Blake, librarian, has been adding books on technical subjects for the last two months trying to keep ahead of the unusual demand for information on machine tools, welding, electric motors, and machine shop work.

Fifty books a day is the average circulation of these textbooks for which there was practically no demand before the national defense effort was started.

In order to keep abreast of this type of reading the librarians have had to acquaint themselves with latest developments in auto shop mechanics, diesel engines, foundry work, pattern making, and lathe turning.

Miss Blake explains the demand for books on aeronautics as being the result of the new airplane factories under construction in the west area. "Young men are taking home courses in preparation for jobs," she says.

Bride at Church

Mrs. Richard V. Hagle was Miss Geraldine Peterson before her recent marriage in St. Viator's church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Peterson, 5044 North Leavitt street, and Mr. Hagle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hagle, 3757 North Lawndale avenue.

MAYWOOD VFW TO INDUCT NEW MEMBERS TODAY

Induction of new members into Winfield-Scott post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Maywood, will be part of an Americanism program to be held this afternoon at the village hall, Electric and Taft avenues, Berkeley.

Henry Warner, past commander of the post, will be master of ceremonies. Ray Johnson and Henry J. Frantz are co-chairmen in charge of arrangements.

Donald Nolen, an officer of the Maywood police department, will be among the new members to join the post. Obligations to the candidates will be given by Commander Ray Slice. Neighboring posts will take part in the ceremony.

Speakers will be Fred Faulhaber, village president of Berkeley, Past Commander William Bryan and an orator from the speaker's bureau of the VFW. A. J. Durbrow will serve as chaplain. Roy Totten will be officer of the day. There will be entertainment by the auxiliary groups of the post, its junior band and Boy Scouts of Hillside, Berkeley, and Northlake.

* * *

Marine post tomorrow night will install Henry J. William, commander; Fred H. Wiberg, senior vice commander; Glenn H. Warren, junior vice commander; Dr. August Pecaro, finance officer; Fred L. Cooper, sergeant at arms, and Chester A. Caleb, chaplain. Installation ceremonies will be held at the La Salle hotel.

CALUMET REGION AWAITS MUSIC FETE

SCHOOLS TRAIN ARMY OF 3,000 TO AID DEFENSE

Fit Workers to Man Industry's Shops.

Nearly 3,000 men are being trained for jobs in the national defense program at south side and suburban high schools this summer. The program now boasts larger classes and additional schools in order to prepare more battalions of workers to man industrial machines for defense. The classes are open both to unemployed men and to workers who need more training for advancement.

The largest of the programs are taking place in the Hammond Technical High school, Thornton Township High school in Harvey, East Chicago public high schools, and Tilden, Lindblom, Englewood, and Phillips High schools in the Chicago public school system. The students range from youths to veterans past middle age and the instructors are teachers who have had experience in industry or highly skilled men who are taking temporary leave from factories.

Classes are running on a three shift, 24 hour plan at Hammond Tech. Three hundred fifty students are enrolled in a schedule which goes around the clock six days a week, according to Frederick Benson, principal and coördinator of the training program. The third shift was added for regular vocational students at the end of the school year.

In Two Sections.

The class schedule is divided into two sections — preëmployment and supplementary. The preëmployment division is for those who seek work in one of the skilled trades in Calumet region plants and consists of instructions on new practices for those whose practice has been dulled by work in other fields.

The supplementary courses are designed for those now employed who want additional training to qualify for better positions in allied crafts. Currently the preëmployment division includes nine classes in machine shop practice and two in welding. The supplementary group includes four welding courses, four machine shop courses and two classes in blueprint reading.

Class hours are from 6 o'clock in the morning to 12:30 o'clock, from 12:30 to 9 o'clock in the evening and from 9 until 6 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Benson said classes are so arranged as to provide instruction periods in each of the three shifts for those who may work staggered shifts in private industry.

May Add Classes.

If the number of enrollees drops greatly in the preëmployment division, as it appears to be doing, the principal explained, the school will make up the deficiency by adding more supplementary classes, for which there are a large number of applications.

Beginning at 8 o'clock in the morning, classes in defense training run for 22 hours at the Washington and Roosevelt High schools in East Chicago. About 175 students are enrolled in the courses, which were started recently.

East Chicago public school officials were told last week that $33,208 worth of equipment would be sent to them soon. According to Bruce B. Bell, vocational director of the schools, the equipment will include milling machines, surface grinders, engine lathes, turret lathes, grinders, drills, and arc welders.

Large Enrollment at Tilden.

A total of 1,200 students are enrolled in preëmployment and supplementary classes at Tilden Technical High school. Lindblom has 350, Phillips, 210, and Englewood, 375. The latter three schools have preëmployment classes Monday thru Friday from 8 until 2:30 o'clock and supplementary classes from 6:30 until 9:30 o'clock in the evening.

In addition to the 8-2:30 schedule, Tilden has classes from 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 in the evening for men who need "brushing up" in order to get jobs in industry and a class from 9 until 11 o'clock every weekday evening for employed workers who want to advance. All the students have had some experience, according to the principals, Robert Lakemacher and Albert Goodrich, even tho they may have been only carpenter or machinist helpers. The aim is to improve their skill as much as possible.

Scope of Instruction.

The classes include instruction in welding, aviation mechanics, auto body and engine, auto laboratory work, forge shop, machine shop, press, lathe, woodworking, ship building, airplane building, electric shop, sheet metal shop and drafting room.

Approximately 60 students are enrolled in preëmployment classes at Thornton Township High school five days a week. The classes are in advanced machine shop, basic machine shop, auto mechanics, electricity, and mechanical drawing. Three hour supplementary classes for employed men are conducted three nights a week and there are special two hour classes two nights a week in blue print reading and shop mathematics.

One hundred sixty men are in the evening classes. Civilian pilot training classes also are begin held at Thornton Junior college. Lawrence Britton is head of the national defense classes.

Six Brothers Pile Up a Service Record of 221 Years at Oil Refinery in Whiting

It's just a formality when Watchman Steve Mores inspects the passes of the Parker brothers (left to right)—James, Walter, William, and Oby—at the Dickey place gate of the Standard Oil refinery in Whiting. These are four of the six brother who have worked in the plant for a total of 221 years. Oldest of the family is James, who is beginning his 51st year of service. James, now chief clerk of construction, has had office jobs during most of his career and got to know most of the plant's 4,500 other employes when he was paymaster. His brother, Oby, works in another department, where he caulks rivets on a tower still. Oby, a 25 year veteran, is named after Obadiah Parker, his father, who began working for the Standard Oil company in 1887.

A veteran of 29 years in the Whiting plant is William Parker, who is shown turning a valve on the burning gas line as gas engineer in the light oils department. Because of fuels and lubricants needed for army engines this year, oil employers are depending on the skill and experience of men like the Parkers to keep production at capacity. The second ranking veteran in the Whiting plant is Walter Parker (at the right in the middle picture) conferring with David Beavan, extra shift foreman, as Parker makes his rounds as shift foreman in the tower stills. Walter will complete 50 years of service next January. He started working at the plant when he was 9 years old. Like four of his brothers, James Parker owns his own home in Whiting and recently he took exercise on his vacation by helping Mother Parker with the washing.

This is Charles P. Parker, a treater in the light oils department, who has been employed at the plant for 33 years. The six Parker families gather for a reunion every Christmas.

Home Building Up 63 Pct. in Calumet Area

From January to June this year towns in the Calumet area built 63 per cent more homes than they did during the same period in 1940, a survey by the Bell Savings and Loan association reveals. This is a 17 per cent larger gain than was recorded for the entire Chicago and suburban area.

Calumet area homes are only slightly more expensive than they were last year, however, averaging $4,436 each in contrast to an average cost of $4,108 during the first six months in 1940.

New homes in Chicago and suburbs as a whole averaged 51 per cent more in value than they did a year ago and there were 46 per cent more homes built during the first half of 1941.

364 Homes in Gary.

Gary built 364 homes at a cost of $1,581,015, to lead all suburbs in those comparisons during the first six months of 1941. Second highest in number of new homes was Hammond with 280 and second highest in valuation of new homes was Skokie with $1,379,450. Gary showed a gain of 173 homes and $714,158 in valuation over 1940.

Hammond constructed nearly twice as many homes as it did during the first six months in 1940, when 144 went up. Their valuation this year has been $1,317,650, compared to $699,095 from January to June last year. Lansing put up 82 homes, three times the rate of last year.

Value Is Greater.

Highland built three fewer homes during the six months studied in 1941 but their total value was $3,545 more than last year. The only other Calumet town which showed a decrease this year is Munster, which constructed 100 homes from January to June in 1940 and 43 homes in 1941. East Chicago built 37 homes during the last six months and 27 homes during the first six months of 1940 at an increased cost of $55,000.

As a whole, these six Calumet area towns started building 912 homes from January to June this year, compared to 580 new homes during the same span in 1940. These homes cost $4,156,275 this year and $2,382,924 last year.

Six Brothers at Same Plant for 221 Years

With operations at capacity to aid national defense, oil companies are beginning to doubly value reliable workers who have put in years of service under a variety of conditions. A large force of skilled men must be rallied by each plant in order to keep the nation's new tanks, trucks, airplanes and ships supplied with fuels and lubricants. Needed, in other words, are men like the "Standard Oil Parkers."

The "Standard Oil Parkers" are six brothers who have worked a total of 221 years for the Whiting refinery of the Standard Oil company. Week after week these brothers, employed in different departments of the plant, are lengthening a family tradition started by their father, Obadiah Parker, who started working for the company 64 years ago. Jim Parker, one of the brothers' sons, represents the third generation at the plant.

Half Century on Job.

James T. Parker, senior member of the family, recently celebrated 50 years of service with the company. He started as a messenger boy when he was 11 years old and advanced thru clerical positions to his present job as chief clerk of construction.

In honor of his golden anniversary, plant executives gave him a luncheon and gifts and President Edward G. Seubert, who began his term in the plant at about the same time, presented him with a gold watch from the company's board. The eldest Parker said he would not retire for several years.

James is closely pressed for marathon honors by his brother, Walter, who will reach the 50 year mark next January. Walter is shift foreman on the tower stills. The other brothers are George J., a foreman in the filtering oils department, 34 years of service; Charles P., a treater in the light oils, 33 years; William, a gas engineer in light oils, 29 years, and Oby, a caulker in the boiler shop, 25 years.

Young Jim is a machinist's helper who has been with the company three and a half years. His brother-in-law, Virgil G. Doman, who joined the company four years ago, is a roofer.

Story Begins in 1877.

The complete story of the Parkers with Standard Oil dates back to 1877, when Obadiah Parker migrated from Nova Scotia to Brooklyn and got a job in the Pratt plant, a Standard Oil unit. In 1890 he was one of a group of men chosen to begin operations at the newly built Whiting refinery. He died, however, in 1892 in a job that would now be assistant superintendent of the light oils division.

Obadiah's six sons have given the name of Parker a frequent and familiar ring since the plant grew up. James, for example, probably is familiar with more past and present workers than any other employé, since he was paymaster for 45 years. He also is remembered as one-time catcher on the main office baseball team. Now age has limited him to the rôle of spectator and the only athletic activity he has had recently was helping "mother" with the washing. Jim has a son, a daughter, and three grandchildren.

Walter Parker was so anxious to follow in his father's footsteps that he got a job as "call boy" at the refinery when he was 9 years old. He is now 59. He has a daughter and two grandchildren and his and his wife's principal hobby is traveling.

Another Is Candidate.

It may be that George Parker's family line will supply the fourth generation of Standard Oil Parkers. George Jr. has a son, George III., who was born last Independence day and plant executives say they are hoping to get first chance at his services. His grandfather is essentially a family man and the only thing that can draw him away from building a fence this month is conversation about the Tribune All-Star football game.

Charles, William, and Obadiah Jr. are drawn together by their common interest in fishing. Oby makes a practice of taking pictures of what he catches—a policy which helped considerably in telling a convincing story of how he caught a 22 pound northern pike on Memorial day.

Five of the brothers own homes in Whiting and the six families gather for a reunion every Christmas.

It was a happy occasion recently when James Parker exhibited the gold watch he received from company officials for completing 50 years of service. With him in his home are (left to right) Mrs. Virgil G. Doman, his daughter; grandchildren Susan and Gregor Doman; Virgil Doman, who also works in the Whiting plant, and Mrs. Parker, his wife. The oldest Parker also has a son, James, who works in the plant.

Women Elect.

Two officers were elected and plans for next year were outlined at the last meeting of the Past Presidents' club of the Windsor Park Woman's club. Mrs. G. V. Hill, 8008 Ridgeland avenue, was elected president, and Mrs. W. G. Evans, 7611 Crandon avenue, was made secretary-treasurer.

George J. Parker, who has worked 34 years for the company, is essentially a home lover. A foreman in the filtering oils department, he is putting up a new fence around his home in the evening. Lending moral support is his daughter, Agnes.

Leo Mothers' Club Plans Style Show and Card Party

The Leo Mothers' club will hold a style show and luncheon card party Tuesday morning at the Better Homemaking institute, 14 East Jackson boulevard. Mrs. Val Mahoney, 8151 South Morgan street, is chairman, and Mrs. Thomas Peel, 8933 Blackstone avenue, is co-chairman of the arrangements committee. Mrs. Thomas Curley is president.

DISTRICT HOLDS FEAST OF SONG NEXT SATURDAY

2,000 on Program in Hammond Park.

Americanization—the idea that the Calumet region, like the United States, is made up of many nationalities united as one—will be the theme of the Calumet District Music Festival Saturday afternoon and evening in Turner field, Hammond. The theme will be illustrated by nine dance, vocal, and orchestral groups representing different nationalities.

About 2,000 persons will participate in the show, which will send its contest winners to the Chicagoland Music Festival sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in Soldiers' field on Aug. 16. The performers will come from Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting, Gary, Crown Point, Munster, Calumet City, South Holland, Harvey, Lansing, Roseland, and Chicago Heights. Philip Maxwell, director of the Chicagoland Festival, will be master of ceremonies.

Sponsored by Park Board.

The festival is sponsored by the Hammond park board, of which Richard McClaughry is president. The opening of the evening program will be preceded by a parade of 15 units marching thru downtown Hammond to Turner field.

Finals of the festival's contests will take place at the Civic center Saturday afternoon. This will include vocal [tenor, soprano, baritone, bass, mezzo, and contralto]; instrumental [trombone, piano accordion, Hawaiian guitar, Spanish guitar, tenor banjo, and mandolin]; baton twirling, and flag swinging, as well as group contestants in band, choral, accordion band, and fretted orchestra. Admission will be free, it has been announced by George Calder, director of the festival and Whiting public schools supervisor. The winners will be presented to the audience as a highlight of the evening program.

Include Community Singing.

Other items on the evening program will be community singing under the direction of Carl Craven; an exhibition of baton twirlers and flag swingers; singing of the "Hallelujah Chorus" by the massed choruses directed by Richard Cooper; singing by the massed junior choirs from the community directed by Ethylene Brown, and the match-lighting ceremony made famous at the Chicagoland Festival.

Making up the senior massed choruses will be groups from the First Methodist, First Christian, and First Presbyterian churches of Hammond, the Hammond Orpheus choir, the Public Service chorus, and the First Reformed Church Choir of South Holland. Mr. Calder extends an invitation to other choruses familiar with the "Hallelujah Chorus" to come to the rehearsal at 8 o'clock Friday evening in Turner field.

Pageant of America.

Numbers in the Americanization pageant will be contributed by the Saengerbund Fidelia [German] mixed chorus from Hammond; folk dancers from the Hungarian Reformed church of Indiana Harbor; a Tamburitza orchestra from the Croatian groups of Whiting; a Negro mixed chorus from St. Mark's AME church in Indiana Harbor; Czecho-Slovakian folk dancers from the Immaculate Conception church in Whiting; a Polish choir from St. Stanislaus church in East Chicago; English, Scottish, and Irish folk dancers from the McNeil School of Dancing in Whiting; a Slovak girls' marching team, the "Harbor Cadets," from the Assumption church in Indiana Harbor, and a Nurses' choir from St. Catherine's hospital in East Chicago.

A feature of the show will be the singing of "God Bless America" by both audience and performers.

Assisting/Mr. Calder in presenting the festival are A. V. Scott, recreational director of Hammond and R. C. Dixey, Harold Haines, and Charles Lehman, representing local American Legion posts.

Legion Posts in Parade.

The parade committee has invited 48 ex-service organizations from Indiana's First Legion district and Illinois' Eighth district to take part in the pre-festival spectacle. In the line of march will be color guards from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled Veterans, Canadian Legion, and the Polish Legion.

Bands in the parade will be composed of members of the federation of musicians in Hammond, the 72 piece Carillo band of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, the Blue Island Legion Clown band, the Emerson High school band of Gary, and the American Maize Products company band. At the end of the parade all the units will mass for "Semper Fidelis."

Marchers will proceed north in Hohman avenue from Harrison park at 8 o'clock, thence east in State street and north in Michigan street to the west entrance of Turner field.

The parade will be led by Marshall Dean Mitchell. Division marshals will be Earl Snyder, Louis Colleys, McKinley Wallace, Jack Tucker, and George Hochbaum.

Heads Committee.

Mrs. Hugh B. Haines, 4624 Ellis avenue, has been appointed chairman of the reception committee of the Arché club.

NEW ZONE PLAN EXPANDS AREAS FOR RESIDENCES

Ordinance to Be Ready in Few Weeks.

Mountainous tho it is, the task of rezoning Chicago is within a few weeks of completion, it was indicated last week by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the council subcommittee in charge of the work.

Lindell, as spokesman, said his committee hoped to submit the proposed ordinance in time for council action by Oct. 1. The other members are Aldermen John J. Duffy [19th], P. J. Cullerton [38th], Harry L. Sain [27th], and Frank Keenan [49th].

Public hearings begun a month ago, at which property owners can protest provisions of the tentative ordinance draft, are nearing their end. With these completed, a revised draft will be prepared, an official public hearing on it will be held, and it will then be sent to the council committee on building and zoning, which will report it out to the council.

These public hearings are being held by wards, and each alderman is invited to attend. Thus every alderman is presumed to be so familiar with the new ordinance that a vote on its adoption can be held with a minimum of debate.

Tentative Changes Few.

How thoroly the zoning subcommittee has done its preliminary work is seen from the fact that changes in the tentative draft which grow out of the ward hearings are averaging less than one-tenth of 1 per cent thus far, according to Lindell.

Practically all of these changes affect business areas, he said. Most of the objections voiced at the public hearings are by owners who want their property zoned to allow the erection of gasoline filling stations.

The proposed ordinance provides for eight use districts—single family, two family, group or row houses, apartments, business, commercial, manufacturing, and industrial. The present ordinance, adopted in 1923, designates only four zones, residential, apartment, commercial, and manufacturing.

One of the principal endeavors of the subcommittee is to expand the one and two family residential zones, and to cut down the volume of the commercial areas. The latter constitutes the major problem of the committee, Lindell said. When the 1923 ordinance was drawn, land owners were in a speculative mood, and many obtained commercial zoning because of the hope of bigger land values, but these hopes have long since faded.

Percentage Too High.

The result was that Chicago found itself with 17 per cent of its municipal area set aside for business and commercial uses, whereas 1.5 per cent is regarded as the ideal. If used to the limit, the present commercial zones would permit one store for each two persons in the city.

"If the streets which the 1923 ordinance zoned commercial were laid end to end, they would reach from Chicago to Los Angeles," Lindell said.

In reducing the commercial and business zones the subcommittee utilized results of land use studies made by such agencies as the Chicago Plan commission, of which Lindell is a member, and the suggestions of numerous business and improvement associations.

The ideal toward which the ordinance makers worked was to confine business sites to section line intersections as far as possible, with additional store sites on half section line crossings in the more congested areas. Under the 1923 ordinance most of the principal streets in the city are lined continuously on both sides with commercial zones.

Hit Residential Values.

These zones permitted the erection of gasoline stations, theaters, garages, and light manufacturing plants, which had a deleterious effect on residential values. A business zone, under the new ordinance, would permit only small stores and professions, while the more intensive commercial uses would be limited to districts insulated as far as is practicable from residence areas. Such intelligent planning goes far toward halting the spread of run-down areas, which has long been a problem in Chicago, Lindell said.

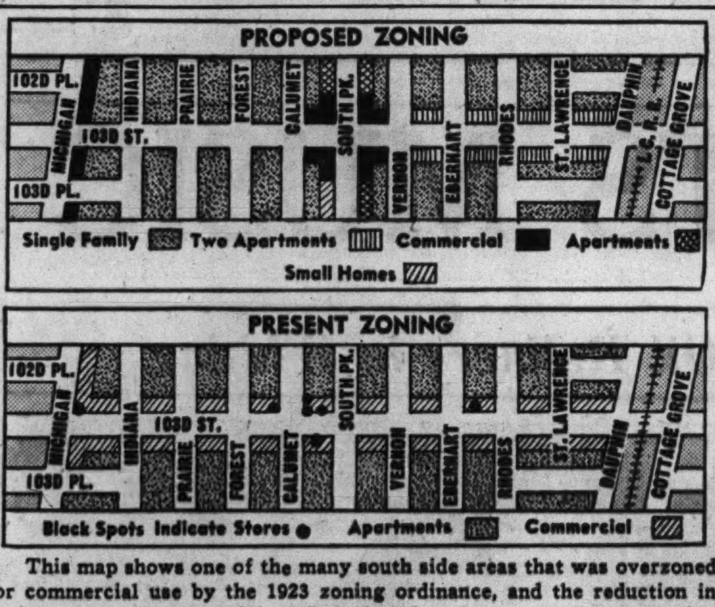
The new ordinance is powerless to discontinue the land uses which it would prevent in the future, he said, inasmuch as a zoning ordinance must take property as it finds it. However, a later ordinance might prohibit the replacement of these nonconforming uses once they are discontinued, the alderman said.

In framing the new ordinance the subcommittee is guided by the interpretation of the state's zoning laws by the Illinois courts. These courts, in general, have recognized that the character of a given zone in a built-up area shall be set by the use to which half or more of the area has been put.

Basis for Rulings.

Thus in any legal controversy it is presumed an Illinois court would be likely to hold that an area occupied 50 per cent or more by stores should be zoned for business use, even if it is surrounded by dwellings. Conversely, they would probably support the reclassification of a business zone to a residential one if it were shown to be occupied 50 per cent or more by residences.

Proposed South Side Zoning Changes



This map shows one of the many south side areas that was overzoned for commercial use by the 1923 zoning ordinance, and the reduction in business area that would be effected under the proposed new zoning code for the city.

KITCHENS MADE LIKE DAY WITH NEWER LIGHTING

Fluorescent Lamps on Forward March.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Fluorescent lighting is on the march and there's a most interesting model kitchen now open in Chicago that strikes a new high for intensities of artificial daylight illumination.

It is, moreover, very attractive, beautifully planned, equipped and decorated. The floor, cabinet work tops, and wall paper in the breakfast corner are carried out in harmonizing shades of blue. This wall paper has diminutive flower bouquets in regency shades of yellow and rose-red and the blinds at the windows are taped with red.

There's a satin finished honey colored mahogany breakfast set with the breakfast bar which has many uses as a partition between eating nook and meal making area finished in a material which simulates the the color and grain of the mahogany. The counter of this partition is finished in a deep shade of blue and offers room for toaster and coffee maker, grill and waffle iron, pepper and salt.

Like Natural Daylight.

Natural daylight appears to be streaming in thru the casement windows, shadowless, cool, abundant light, but instead of coming from the great out of doors it comes from daylight fluorescent lamps concealed behind window valances and from the flush panel unit located in a soffit over the sink.

There also are fluorescent fixtures placed beneath each cabinet for work counter lighting, as well as localized fluorescent installations above the range and the service bar.

Nor is incandescent lighting forgotten. This is furnished by two center fixtures. The one in the kitchen gives a well diffused light from a prismalite louvered glass fixture and in the dining portion of the room there is a colonial designed lantern which sheds adequate light on the dinette table.

Latest in Equipment.

Then, too, there's the very latest in planning and equipment. You have your water heater and electric dishwasher, your ventilating fan, and range and refrigerator plus a host of smaller appliances which are up to the minute, and up to the task that is theirs to do.

Fluorescent lighting is much with us these days as a utility light in kitchens and bathrooms and laundries. It also is used with great effect as a supplementary light in many types of decoration.

Our eating customs continue to undergo changes and as our dining rooms grow smaller, the breakfast portion of the kitchen comes to the fore. And on this breakfast corner is spent a great deal of thought and attention.

Breakfast Bars Handy.

Counters and breakfast bars are appearing in many forms and they are a convenience. As in this kitchen, they can divide the meal getting space from the eating corner, and much ingenuity is going into their planning. Sometimes this corner is designed with triple deck shelves above its counter top and cupboards below, with lots of room for appliances of all kinds, if wisely used and not overcrowded.

In no room in the house is it more important to have good lighting than in the kitchen. It makes for easier work and the thought and skill that has gone into our modern kitchen lamps and fixtures offers a variety of units suited to every kitchen and every purse.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, July 21.

This is the watering season in gardens. When it is once begun it should be thoroly finished and not undertaken again until the ground needs water. Water need not be given nearly as often when the ground is soaked. Incessant watering both night and morning does the plants little good, altho it may saturate the ground.

Morning watering is best and especially in the shade; considerable water is necessary to maintain grass or flowers near trees, for the tree roots sap the soil of moisture and plant food. The best way to water the lawn when dry is to lay the hose on the ground and allow the water to flow over a single place for a long enough time to penetrate five inches at least; then remove to another spot. Sandy soil requires much more water than a soil that is filled with humus, but the addition of humus to a sandy soil will make it more retentive of moisture.

Tuesday, July 22.

Sow seed of crops that make good ground covers for spading or plowing under in autumn. Vacant lots may be sown and excellent soil be obtained for many purposes. Rye, clover, cow peas, vetch, etc., are all good. Simply prepare the land, sow the seed and plow late in fall, permitting the ground to remain in the rough until spring.

Keep weeds removed. Do hand weeding and get rid of the weeds once and for all. The small city yard is not so large that hand weeding cannot be the chief method of eradication; such yards should be as free of weeds as the parlor of the house.

Wednesday, July 23.

Give window box plants another application of plant food. A good, high grade complete fertilizer will work wonders on boxed plants, but be sure to examine the soil and water whenever needed. Tie up or trim all plants that have made rampant growths. Dead wood can easily be seen and it should be removed. Cut it out entirely and cut back long, straggling growths for shape. Remove weeds near garden to prevent insects from hiding and breeding in them.

Thursday, July 24.

Sweet peas, nasturtium, and other plants are likely to be attacked by aphids and spraying should be continued. It is a good time to propagate bleeding heart, oriental poppy, and, alkanet by separating the roots or making root cuttings. Some growers find that laying the stems of many plants soon produces a new plant and at little cost. Among these plants are climbing roses, spurge, ivy, verbenas and others of equal value. Divide iris if necessary.

Give the Japanese plenty of water as they come into bud or flower. Plan to lift and divide all peonies that need it next fall.

Friday, July 25.

Keep faded roses removed from baby rambler roses and the plants will flower over a long period. By sowing columbine seed now a new supply of plants may be enjoyed. Sow about an eighth of an inch deep, press into the soil, water well with a fine spray, and give a bit of shade during the heat of the day. Soak dahlias at least once a week.

Saturday, July 26.

Sow seeds of quick growing annuals for autumn bloom. Among these are the white baby breath, Shirley poppy, lupin, etc. Keep the roses well watered. Buy pansy seed for August sowing.

Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.

Aspirants for School Jobs Face Puzzlers.

Want to enter Chicago Teachers college? Then try your luck on these questions?

Are elements which form more than one type of crystal allotropic, amphoteric, amorphous, or deliquescent?

Did the English remain in the northwest after the Treaty of 1783?

Are Haversian canals characteristic of adipose, epilepthial, nerve, connective, or bone tissues?

Are adjacent angles supplementary if their exterior sides lie in a straight line?

These are a few of the brain puzzlers that confronted 941 Chicago high school graduates and 137 college graduates last month when they took written examinations for admission to Chicago Teachers college. Those who passed the written examinations—in English, general science, United States history, civics, arithmetic, algebra, and geometry—were then given oral examinations by committees of five college professors.

300 Now Candidates.

As a result of the examinations, 300 of the high school graduates and 53 of the college graduates are now candidates for admission to the teachers college next fall. The school, Chicago's first experiment in a municipally owned four year college, trains candidates for positions as teachers in city's elementary schools.

This year, for the first time, all applicants' written examinations were graded by an electric scoring machine. Besides reducing the scoring time from several weeks to a matter of a few hours, the machine completely eliminated the possibility of error on the part of persons scoring the tests, according to Paul Edwards, vice chairman of the college's board of examiners.

List South Side Students.

The names of South Side students who survived both examinations and are candidates for admission to the college follow:

Anthony Penelope, 532 Bowen avenue; Mary Bantrolas, 2203 East 67th street; Enola Barland, 4918 Washington Park court; Alba Biagini, 9225 Houston avenue; Avonelle Birmingham, 7351 Dorchester avenue; Sidney Block, 7242 Bennett avenue; Adelaide Bozzone, 7733 Eberhart avenue; Genevieve Brennan, 8143 Eberhart avenue; Patricia Brodie, 8254 St. Lawrence avenue; Mary Catherine Burgan, 8746 Dante avenue; Ellen Butler, 7001 Wabash avenue; Ann Marie Callaghan, 7025 Louella avenue; Alonzo Chancellor, 6508 Langley avenue; Earl Clendenon, 6229 South Park avenue; Joseph Connery, 7241 Woodlawn avenue; Mary Considine, 8411 Ingleside avenue; Alice Corcoran, 1542 East 64th street; Phillip Cotsones, 6135 South Drexel avenue, and Ethel Covington, 6108 Ellis avenue.

Four Generations Welcome Newcomer

A new baby has made Valentine Breier, 93 years old, a great-great-grandfather. Mrs. Fred Geinosky, his great-granddaughter, is holding her 5 week old son, Frederick Jr., the great-great-grandchild. Mrs. William Preussner, 5238 South Laflin street, is the child's grandmother, and George Breier Sr., 2929 Bonfield street, is the great-grandfather.

5TH GENERATION ARRIVES; AT 93 HE'S ALL SMILES

Mr. Breier Tells His Friends the News.

Perhaps the most familiar figure along Bonfield street is Valentine Breier, 93 years old, who took up residence on that street 69 years ago on his arrival from Germany. Each fine morning since his retirement as a soap maker 30 years ago, Mr. Breier has left his home at 2969 Bonfield street and taken his daily walk, smiling and chatting with neighbors.

Recently when called upon to explain the extra large smile he wore, he announced he had become a great-great-grandfather. He explained that his great-granddaughter, Mrs. Fred Geinosky, 6121 South Marshfield avenue, had given birth to a son, Frederick Jr. Mr. Breier then revised his count of living descendants which now stands at five children, 34 grandchildren, 44 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild.

His wife, Margaret, died 17 years ago and he lives with a daughter, Mrs. Emma Grant. His other children are George and Joseph of 2929 Bonfield street; John, 2967 Bonfield street, and William, Gary, Ind. Mr. Breier was a captain in the German army during the Franco-Prussian war.

Married Recently

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Flanders, 7438 South Shore drive, announce the marriage of their daughter, Louise Lorraine, to H. Mansfield Grey, son of John Grey, 2650 East 75th place. The couple now live at 7750 Phillips avenue.

ENTRIES IN VOICE TEST MUST BE IN HAND TOMORROW

Hundreds Wish to Sing in Music Festival.

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Jacqueline Krump.
[John Schiffer photo.]

The deadline for entry in the Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contests for Cook county participants will be tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. All signed entries on official blanks must be in the festival office on the fourth floor of Tribune tower at that time. Several hundred south and southwest side singers are expected to take part in this feature of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE festival of song. The deadline for those residing outside of Cook county will be Monday evening, Aug. 4, at 6 o'clock.

Official entry blanks may be obtained at the festival headquarters office or at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street.

First Contest Aug. 7.

The first south and southwest side contest will be held at 7 o'clock Thursday evening, Aug. 7, in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard. On the following night sopranos, mezzos, and basses will be adjudged. Among them will be Jacqueline Marie Krump of 8217 Hermitage avenue, dramatic soprano. Voice teachers and coaches, radio, opera, and concert stars, and orchestral conductors will be the judges.

Winners of the Cook county sectional contests will go on to the county finals, which will be held in the grand ballroom of the Drake Hotel on Wednesday night, Aug. 13, at 7 o'clock. Six voices will be chosen that night to go to the Chicagoland finals which will be held the day of the big festival, Saturday, Aug. 16. There, four winners will be chosen, two men and two women. That night, in Soldiers' field the finals will be held before a crowd of 100,000, the first time that the finals have been held in the field.

Rehearse "Injun Summer."

The second south and southwest side dance-pageant rehearsal for "Injun Summer," which will be given at the Soldiers' field concert, will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Schultz Dancing studios, 6601 South Halsted street. Mrs. Ermie Schultz will be in charge. There still is time for new entrants. No boy or girl under 7 years of age will be admitted.

Fretted orchestra rehearsals for mandolin, tenor, banjo, Spanish, and Hawaiian guitars will be held next Tuesday and Thursday nights at 7:30 o'clock in Lyon and Healy recital hall, seventh floor, 64 East Jackson boulevard.

Russell Square Park Plans Life Saving Instruction

Public instruction in life saving and water safety will be given in Russell Square park beginning Aug. 4. The 15 lesson course is sponsored by the American Red Cross, which will award life saving certificates to those successfully completing the course.

Early Summer Bride

Miss Suzanne Wolbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wolbach, 5107 Blackstone avenue, was married recently to Arthur E. Frankel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Frankel of Shaker Heights, O. After a honeymoon in the east, the couple will make their home in Chicago.

WILL LAY STONE TODAY AT PETER AND PAUL CHURCH

New Structure Will Be Ready in Fall.

Father Terlecke.
[Smit & Young Studio.]

Laying of the cornerstone of the new SS. Peter and Paul school and church will take place at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at 2952 East 91st street. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Arthur F. Terlecke, pastor, assisted by the Rev. Raymond H. De Muth as deacon and the Rev. Joseph B. Kenkel as subdeacon. The ceremony is to include the blessing of the stone and the enclosing of the documents.

The new building will be in the modern style, constructed of gray brick, trimmed with Indiana limestone. Completely fireproof, the structure will contain three meeting halls, a church auditorium seating 500 persons, and 18 classrooms for grammar and high school pupils. Six classrooms will be ready by Sept. 1 and the remainder of the building a month later.

Equipped with Radio.

The school will have a public address system thru which the principal can communicate directly with all classrooms. With this equipment local and short wave radio programs can be sent to any part of the building. It also is planned to use phonographic music both for instruction and entertainment. The roof will be finished with a traffic top and surrounded by a four and a half foot fence for recreational purposes. A library and a science laboratory also will be included in the building.

Participating in the ceremonies this afternoon will be the parish girls' orchestra, directed by Capt. William Hensen; the Married Ladies' sodality, under the leadership of Mrs. Frances Bauer, Mrs. Mary Knoll, and Mrs. Florence Foertsch; the Mothers' guild, headed by Mrs. Helen Cantele, Mrs. Helen Tadrowski, Mrs. Esther Pocius, Mrs. Irene Gendek, and Mrs. Matthews, and the St. Joan of Arc sodality, led by Miss Virginia Matthews, Miss Rita Zienty, Miss Harriet Smith, Miss Lucille Vierke, and Miss Bernice Biegel.

Other groups on the program are the Girl Scouts, under the leadership of Miss Virginia and Miss Leonore Ruf, Miss Lavergne Johnson, Miss Florence Freidewald, Miss Dolores Gunzer, and Miss Anne Nowacki; the Holy Name society, headed by Edward Pocius, William Graff, Thomas Matthews, Al Grankowski, Carl Anderson, Edward Jummrich, John Dickinson, Herman Droit, and Florian Gordon, and the Boy Scouts, led by Clarence Nowicki and Frank Greigel, scoutmasters.

Formerly German Church.

The church was founded on April 6, 1882, as a German parish, tho the late Cardinal Mundelein discontinued the use of the German language in the church 13 years ago. Members now number more than 15 different national ancestries, according to Father Terlecke. Altogether, the church lists 750 families. There are 462 pupils in the grammar school and 100 in the high school.

Temple Sholom Organist to Play at U. of C. Tonight

Kenneth Cutler, Temple Sholom, organist, will give a recital at 7 o'clock tonight in Rockfeller Memorial chapel at the University of Chicago. Organ recitals to follow are those of Robert Kee, St. Mary's, Park Ridge, Ill., on Tuesday, and Winston Johnson, North Park Covenant church, on Thursday. Also on those evenings a carillon recital will be played by Frederick Marriott.

Wins U. of C. Scholarship at 16

Sydney Veronica Strack, 16 years old, a graduate this year at Hyde Park High school, has been granted a year's scholarship to the University of Chicago.

Queen Candidate

Miss Dorothy Swanson, 71 East 79th street, the south side candidate for queen of the Swedish National society's annual picnic next Sunday at Linne woods in Morton Grove.

SEEK TO CLOSE CITY DUMP AT LAKE CALUMET

Petitions protesting against the use of the Lake Calumet area as a city garbage dump have been sent to George F. Barrett, Illinois attorney general, it was announced last week by Maj. Henry W. Lee, sponsor of the movement. The petitions were signed by several hundred residents of the Lake Calumet region, Maj. Lee said.

The petitions object to the dump on the ground that it violates the state law conveying Lake Calumet to the city for harbor purposes and that it creates a public nuisance and a menace to health. They ask the proper public authorities to end the "illegal practice."

The Lake Calumet dump, near 103d street, is one of four such now in use by the city, and it is the only one that is city owned. The city pays the owners of the three private dumps from 21 to 22½ cents for each cubic yard of garbage it deposits.

EIGHTH WARDERS SCORE OLIN FOR TRACTION VOTE

Ald. Roy E. Olin [8th] was criticized by residents of his ward last week because he voted against the traction ordinance recently passed by the city council. The point made by most of the critics was that in so doing he cast his vote against several south side bus extensions which were included in the ordinance and desired by people of the district.

One route named in the ordinance is designated as the Jeffery avenue extension. It would run from the Jackson Park elevated station at 63d street and Stony Island avenue thru Jackson park to East 67th street and Jeffery avenue. From there the line would run to 99th street at Calumet park. Another extension proceeds on 83d street and Clyde avenue to 83d and State streets.

Disappointed in Olin.

Mrs. Frank A. Kreuz, president of the Grand Crossing Improvement association, said that the association board was disappointed in Ald. Olin's action when he voted against the ordinance.

Arthur P. Ryan, president of the Chatham Fields Improvement association, said: "We are all in favor of the unified traction ordinance. We would prefer to have had our own alderman vote for it."

Wants Bus Extensions.

Maj. Earl V. Cates, attorney for the Little Business Men's league, said: "Those bus extensions would have been mighty fine for the 8th ward.

"I disagree with Olin on his stand on the traction ordinance. I don't know his reasons for the action he took but I know the bus extension idea is wonderful. It would provide better transportation in the ward."

W-G-N TO GIVE MANY GLIMPSES OF 'YOUR ARMY'

Interview Series Starts Next Wednesday.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Glimpses behind the scenes of the United States army will be given by W-G-N in a new series of broadcasts, titled "Your Army," starting at 2 p. m. next Wednesday. Succeeding broadcasts, under the direction of W-G-N's special events department, will be aired each Wednesday at the same hour, the series also will be aired over the coast to coast Mutual network.

Many phases of army life and activity—from soup kitchens to flying cadet schools—will be described on these broadcasts. Following an introduction to the series next Wednesday Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will be interviewed.

Hostesses to Be Heard.

On following weeks there will be broadcasts showing the inner workings of other army departments. High ranking officers will be interviewed about the departments they command. They will describe life in the ROTC, the quartermaster corps, the medical corps, the air cadet corps, nursing service, army camp hostesses force, and the food kitchens. Each program promises to be informative and entertaining.

Schedule of Broadcasts.

A tentative schedule of the first eight programs follows:

July 23—Capt. Kenneth W. Mosher, commanding officer of the 6th corps area air corps detachment, will describe life at the flying station at Chicago airport.

July 30—Interviews with officers and ROTC trainees at Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 6—Interviews with two women, lieutenants in the army nursing service.

Aug. 13—Interview with Col. Henry B. Barry, commanding officer, Chicago quartermaster depot.

Aug. 20—Interviews with officers of the Medical corps who will describe how the army physicians and surgeons protect the health of the soldiers.

Aug. 27—Interviews with two hostesses from Fort Sheridan.

Aug. 27—Interviews with officers who will tell the requirements for entrance into the army aviation cadet corps.

Sept. 10—Maj. William R. MacKinnon, commandant of the bakers and cooks school at Fort Sheridan, will tell how and with what menus the army is fed. June Baker, W-G-N's home economics expert, will also appear on this program.

Each week thereafter another aspect of army life will be described. The entire series will present a rounded picture of the machinery which runs the United States army. The programs will originate in the studios of W-G-N.

PEERCE TO BE GUEST TODAY ON AMERICA SHOW

Jan Peerce, noted concert tenor, and Martha Ostenso, novelist, will be the guest stars on the "America Preferred" broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 11 to 11:30 a. m. today. For this program, the second in the series, presented each week with the coöperation of the United States treasury department, Pierre Van Paassen, journalist and author, will again be the narrator.

Other famous public figures, among them Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, Ania Dorfman, pianist, and Mischa Elman, violinist, will appear on future "America Preferred" programs.

In 'Midstream'

Nina Klowden, a former Northwestern university actress, plays a leading role, that of Jinny Storey in the serial "Midstream," aired over WENR at 4:45 p. m. Mondays thru Fridays.

W-G-N Songstress

Mary Small, former child entertainer, is now 19 and has a radio show of her own on W-G-N-Mutual. She is featured at 9:15 p. m. every Monday.

SONG BY DEBUSSY WILL BE CLIMAX OF MELODY HOUR

Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N concert orchestra, will play the piano accompaniment for Kathryn Witwer, soprano, when she sings Debussy's "Mandoline" as the highlight of the Pageant of Melody over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Wednesday. The program will present a varied musical half hour featuring melodies from Victor Herbert to Beethoven. The orchestra will open the broadcast with the "Abu Hassan Overture" by Carl Weber. A medley of Debussy works is the second offering. Miss Witwer will sing "Beau Soir" and the second number is the selection that will feature Weber and Miss Witwer.

Michael Wilkomirski will be heard in a violin solo with the background of the chorus and orchestra presenting Arensky's "Serenade." Miss Witwer will be heard singing "Twilight In Barakeesk" from Victor Herbert's "Rose of Algeria" and the orchestra will play Moskowsky's "Malaguena" from "Boabdil" and the last movement of Beethoven's "Symphony No. 5."

KATHRYN WITWER TO BE GUEST ON YOUR MUSIC I. Q.

Kathryn Witwer, soprano soloist on W-G-N and Mutual's Pageant of Melody program each Wednesday, will have a chance to display her musical knowledge when she appears on "Your Music I. Q." broadcast over W-G-N from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow. She will face a barrage of questions sent in by listeners who hope to stump the board of experts on this popular musical quiz program.

Miss Witwer will not have to face the fire alone, however, for with her will be three other experts: Cecil Smith, music and drama critic of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; Dr. Adrian Verbrugghen, son of Henry Verbrugghen, the former conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra; Peggy Lee, singer in the Butlery of the Ambassador Hotel.

Pierre Andre is the announcer on "Your Music I. Q." Mary Affick produces the program.

LONE RANGER IS WINNER 2D TIME OF SAFETY HONOR

For the second time in five years, "The Lone Ranger" program, aired over W-G-N and a coast to coast Mutual network hookup, has been presented with the annual award of the C. I. T. Safety Foundation. The honor was bestowed to the radio program contributing the most to traffic safety during the year.

"The Lone Ranger" first won the award in 1937, for its traffic safety talks made by the Lone Ranger the year before.

John Darr, representing the Commercial Investment Trust of New York City, made the presentation of a specially engraved plaque on the broadcast of the Lone Ranger last week in the studios of WXYZ, Detroit, where the broadcast originates.

CARLOS CHAVEZ TO CONDUCT AT RAVINIA TUESDAY

Carlos Chavez, founder and conductor of the Mexico Symphony orchestra, will be the guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in its Ravinia park concert to be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Chavez will present one of his own symphonies, "Sinfonia India," a modern interpretation of native Indian music. The other selections will include: "Symphony in B Flat Major" by Bach, "Symphony No. 3 in E Flat Major" by Schumann and "Symphony No. 1" by Shostakovich.

John Weigel, musical commentator for the Chicagoland hour broadcasts, will comment.

AIR KENT COOPER SONG SATURDAY ON W-G-N SHOW

A. P. Manager's Ballad to Be Sung by Baggiore.

"My Dixie Girl," a ballad by Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, will be sung by Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as the feature of the Chicagoland hour over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 p. m. next Saturday.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will speak.

Cooper will attend the broadcast and hear his tune played for the first time over the Mutual network. The rôle of a composer is a new one for Cooper, who has been identified with newspaper work since 1893 when he started as a reporter in Indianapolis.

Medley of Memory Songs.

Another highlight will be a medley of memory songs, including the Egbert Van Alstyne favorite "Melodies." Marion Claire, soprano soloist, will sing "Smiles" and "School Days." Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor, will sing "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree."

Miss Claire, Baggiore, and the chorus will be featured in a medley of Franz Lehar songs.

Miss Claire will also sing Lehar's "Melody of Love."

The complete program follows:

"Gold and Silver Waltz" .... Lehar
Orchestra.
"Melody of Love" .... Lehar
Marion Claire.
"My Dixie Girl" .... Cooper
Attilio Baggiore and chorus.
Franz Lehar selections:
"In Marsovia"—Chorus.
"Vilia"—Marion Claire and Baggiore.
"My Little Nest of Heavenly Blue"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Gypsy Love—Miss Claire, Baggiore and chorus.
Address by Col. Robert R. McCormick.
Medley of memory songs:
"Memories"—Ensemble.
"In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree" Baggiore and chorus.
"Smiles"—Miss Claire.
"O, You Beautiful Doll"—Baggiore.
"Meet Me Tonight in Dreamland"—chorus.
"Schooldays"—Miss Claire and chorus.
"Honeymoon"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, and chorus.
"Russian Sailor Dance" .... Gliere
Orchestra.
"Love's Own Sweet Song"—Miss Claire, Baggiore, Kalman, and chorus.

The entire program will be under the direction of William A. Bacher, W-G-N's chief of programs and production.

UTLEY IS GUEST COMMENTATOR ON W-G-N SERIES

Clifton Utley, news interpreter and commentator on foreign affairs, has begun a series of programs as guest commentator on the W-G-N newscast which featured the late Capt. E. D. C. Herne. Utley will be heard Monday thru Saturday from 6:30 to 6:45 p.m. Herne died last month after an operation.

Utley has long been in contact with the news fronts of the world. He traveled thruout Europe and Africa for many years, studying political and economic problems. Utley comments on foreign affairs over W-G-N at 8 p. m. each Tuesday. He has frequently appeared on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand, W-G-N-Mutual's weekly forum on current affairs, broadcast at 10 a. m. Sunday. Altho busy in radio he still finds time to maintain his position as the director of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. For his new guest series Utley intends to devote his time to pithy, up to the minute dispatches, with only occasional interpretation.

Two Substitute Programs While Lindlahr Vacations

Two programs, the "Food Quiz" and the "Hymn Singer" are presented over W-G-N during Victor H. Lindlahr's vacation. The quiz program is heard Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8:30 to 8:45 a. m. and brings together three famous radio personalities: Beverly Bayne, star of stage, screen and radio; Dale Kennedy, well known announcer on the Lindlahr broadcasts, and Norman Brokenshire, noted commentator whose voice is one of the most noted of the pioneer days of radio. The gospel program is heard on the same days at 8:45 to 9 a. m. featuring James Elwood who takes the second half of the Lindlahr time.

Mary Small's Program.

"Aurora," popular song hit with a South American flavor, will be Mary Small's solo on W-G-N-Mutual's Imperial Time broadcast at 9:15 p. m. tomorrow. Other selections will be "5 o'clock Whistle," "Tale of Two Cities," and "Begin the Beguine."

WPA ORCHESTRA AGAIN TO GIVE U. OF C. CONCERT

Siegmund Levarie will be guest conductor at the second concert in the fifth annual series of free outdoor programs given by the Illinois WPA symphony orchestra in Hutchinson court, 57th street and University avenue, Thursday evening. Naomi Cook, soprano, will be soloist.

Conductor Levarie, who is director of the symphony orchestra at the University of Chicago, which sponsors the concerts, will open with the overture to "Oberon." Schubert's Symphony No. 10 in C major, will be the principal composition. Other selections will be the suite from "Carmen" and waltzes from "The Gypsy Baron."

Miss Cook will sing the arias, "Voi lo sapete," from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Ritorna Vincitor," from "Aida."

Madonna K. of C. to Hold 15th Golf Tourney Today

The 15th annual golf tournament of Madonna council, Knights of Columbus, will be held today at the Glen Eagles golf course, McCarthy and Bell roads. A steak dinner and entertainment will follow the contest. Martin Morrison, deputy grand knight, is chairman of the tournament and is assisted by James Cassidy, Harold Storie, Vince Donegan, Joseph Halloran, James Ryan, John Pollick, and Thomas Carmody.

So. Side Hadassah Names New Officers for the Year

Members of the South Side District of Hadassah have elected the following officers: Mrs. Harry H. Krinsky, president; Mrs. S. L. Zax, Mrs. Harry Oscherwitz, Mrs. Joseph Gray, and Mrs. Gus Jacobsohn, vice presidents; Mrs. Theodore Lieberman, financial secretary; Mrs. Lester Wolfson, recording secretary, and Mrs. Harry Eisenstein, corresponding secretary.

America First Notes

Gary chapter of the America First committee will hold its next meeting at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the auditorium of the Emerson school, 6th and Virginia streets. Guest speaker will be Dr. Anton J. Carlson, physiologist of the University of Chicago. Kenneth C. Raub, chairman of the chapter, is in charge of the program.

Mrs. H. Close Hesseltine, vice chairman of the Hyde Park chapter of America First, points out that The Tribune poll revealed that the 5th ward showed a 70.85 per cent majority against going into the war. She said it was encouraging her workers in their anti-war crusade.

Currently Hyde Park's 1,200 members are writing letters to Washington, urging an advisory referendum and opposing extension of the one year draft law.

Picnic for Condors.

The Blue Condors Pleasure club, 5118 South Western avenue, will hold a basket picnic at noon today in the Red Gate grove at Archer avenue and 97th street. Arthur Ambroz is president of the organization. The picnic committee is headed by Otto Stransky Jr.

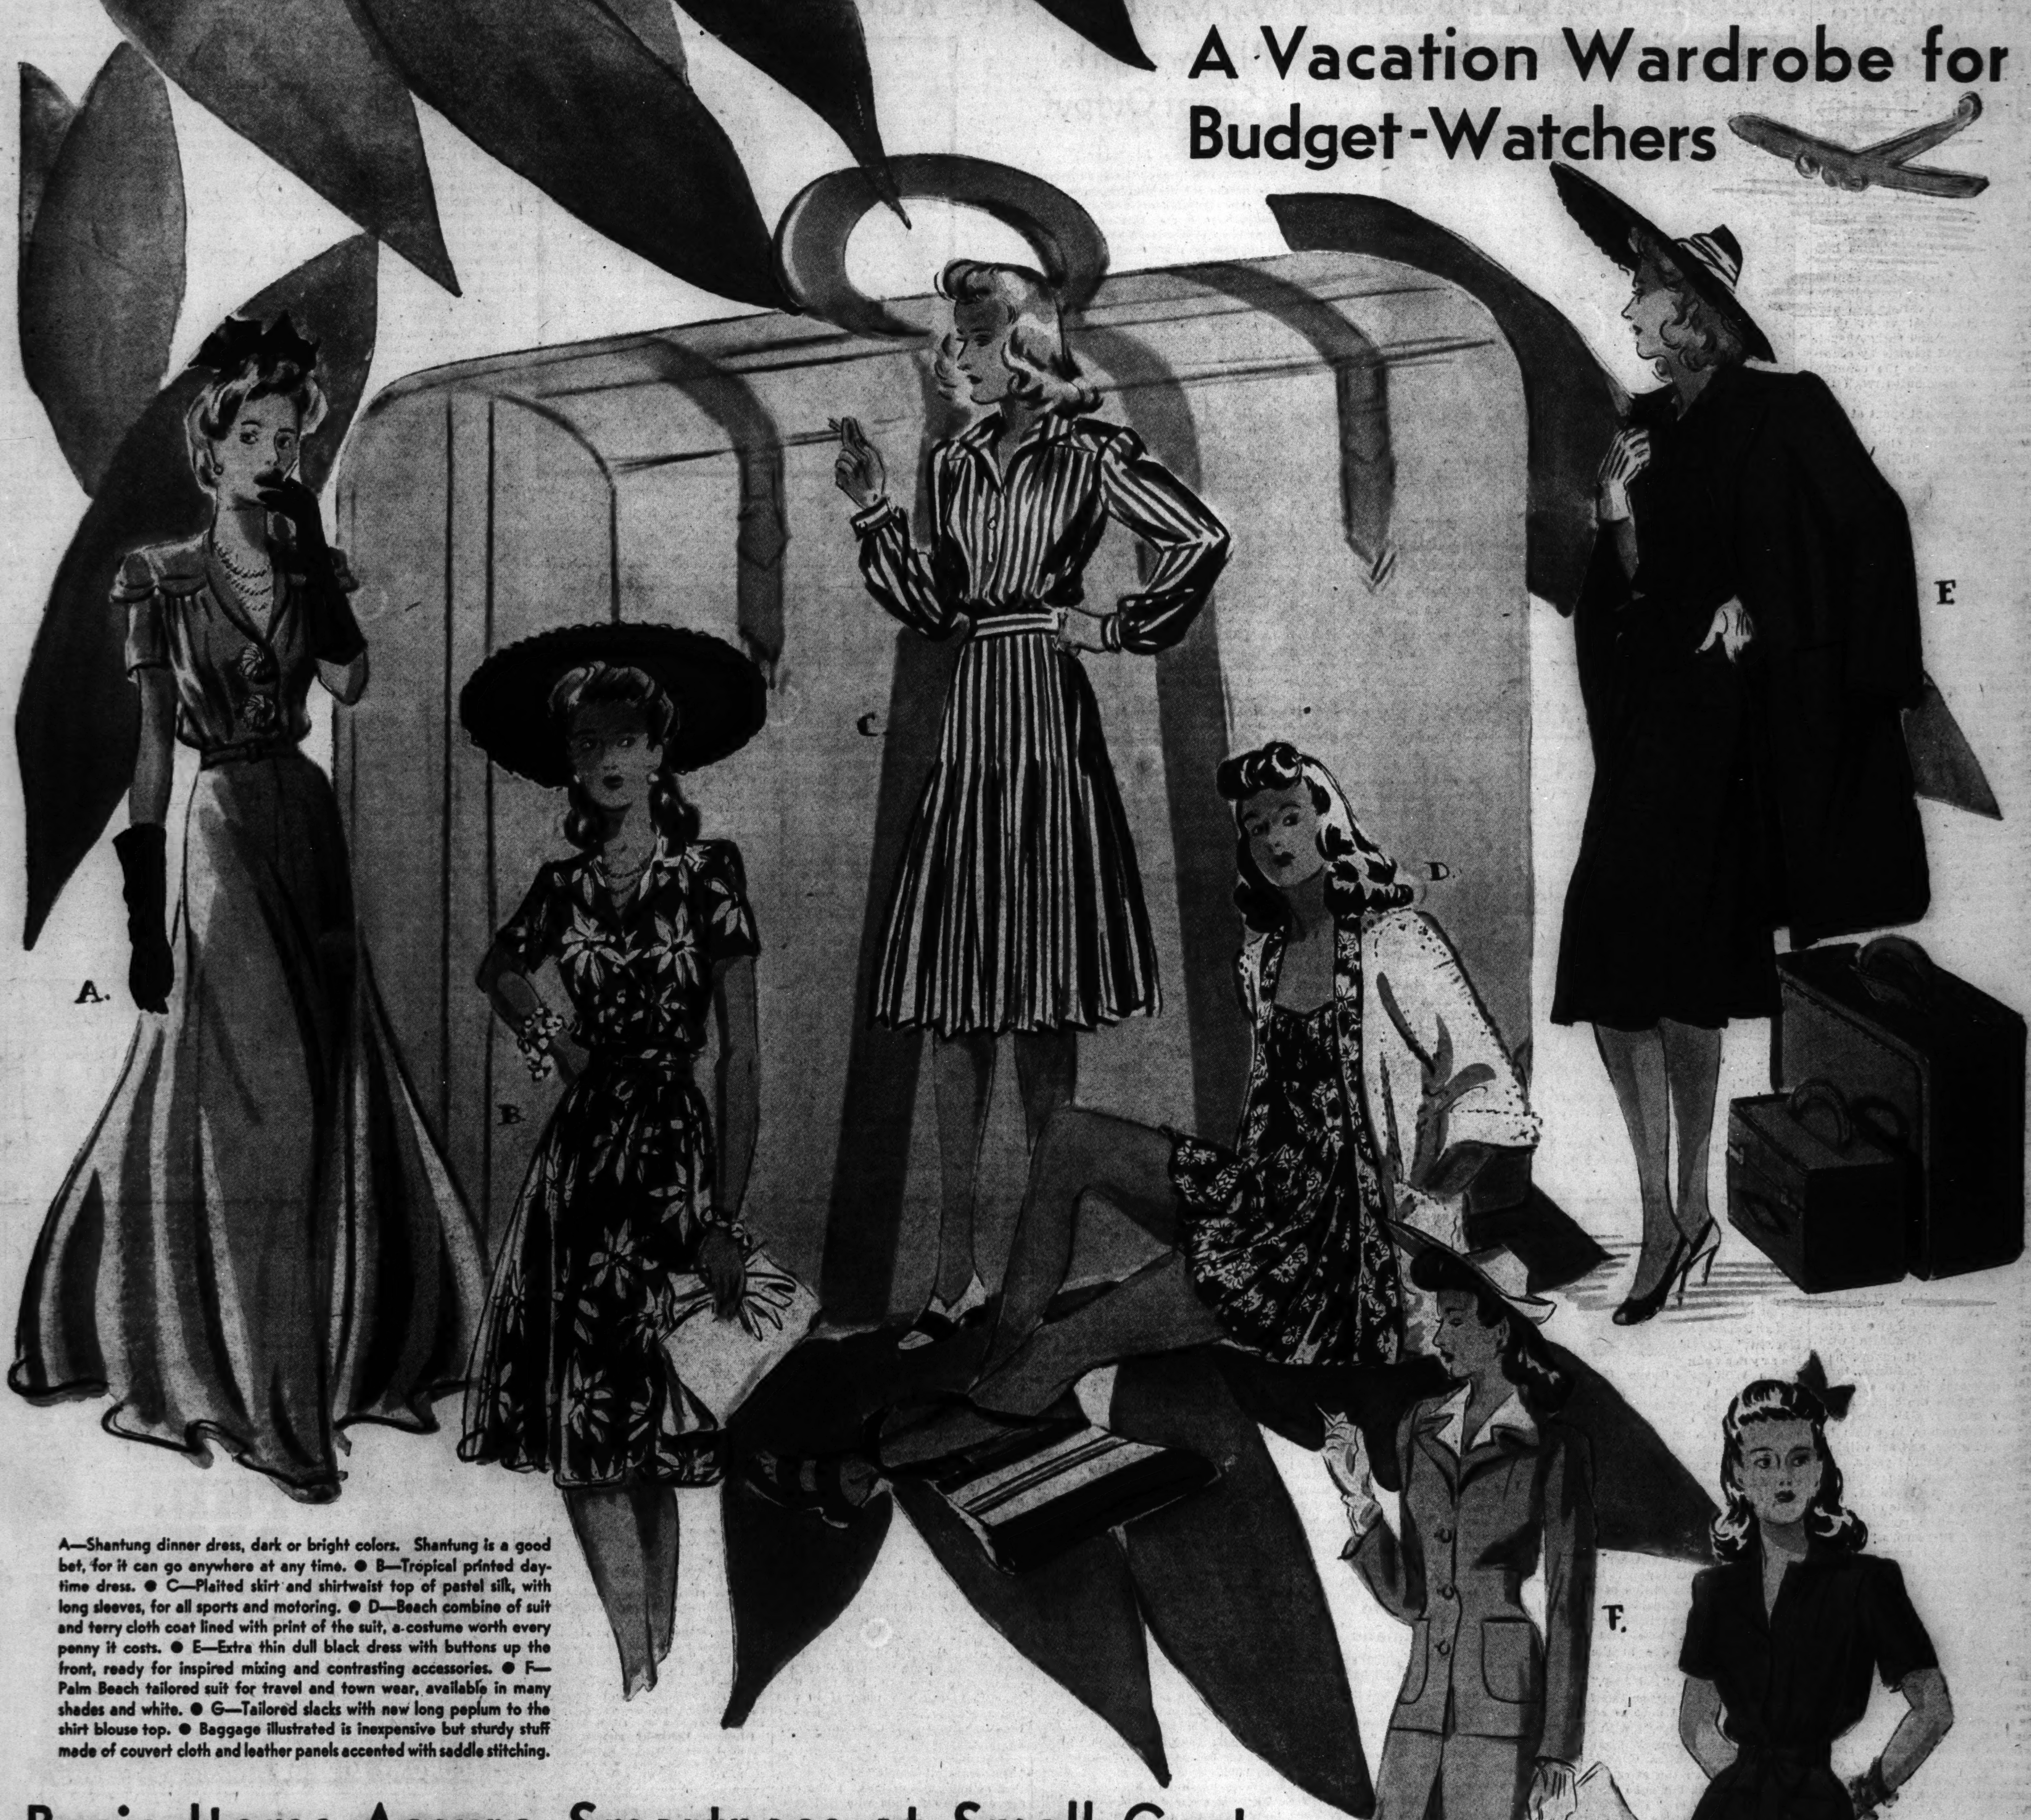
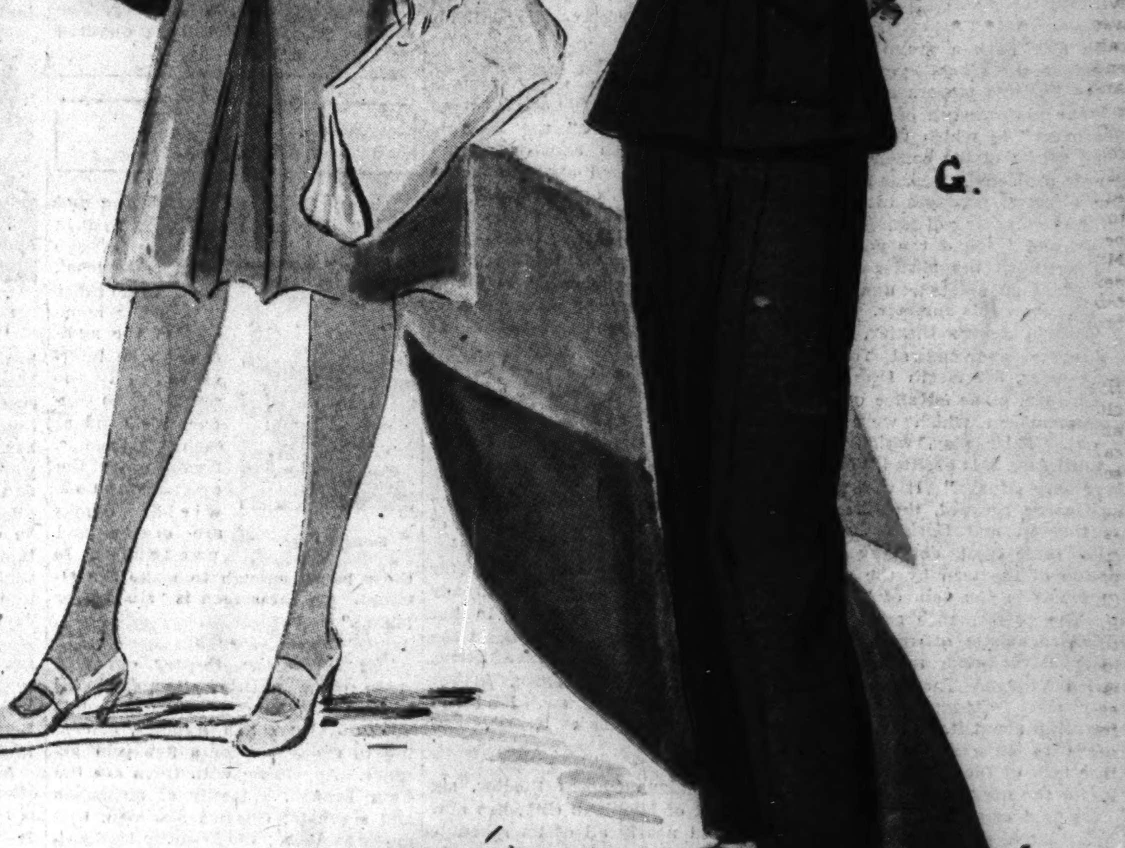
A Vacation Wardrobe for Budget-Watchers





A—Shantung dinner dress, dark or bright colors. Shantung is a good bet, for it can go anywhere at any time. ● B—Tropical printed daytime dress. ● C—Plaited skirt and shirtwaist top of pastel silk, with long sleeves, for all sports and motoring. ● D—Beach combine of suit and terry cloth coat lined with print of the suit, a costume worth every penny it costs. ● E—Extra thin dull black dress with buttons up the front, ready for inspired mixing and contrasting accessories. ● F—Palm Beach tailored suit for travel and town wear, available in many shades and white. ● G—Tailored slacks with new long peplum to the shirt blouse top. ● Baggage illustrated is inexpensive but sturdy stuff made of couvert cloth and leather panels accented with saddle stitching.

Basic Items Assure Smartness at Small Cost

By Rea Seeger

MAKING the most of your pay-play check for a successful vacation wardrobe, the kind that will see you smoothly thru two weeks of fun and relaxation, is merely a matter of clever shopping combined with imagination. Much of the shopping is made easier because of cottons and because the play clothes and casual things are so easily mixed, matched, and combined with other items in a wardrobe. If your vacation is planned for nearly every hour outdoors, then the largest sums of money are spent for telling swim suits, beach clothes, and the dresses for sports such as tennis, golf, bowling, and so forth.

The suit and coat come next, the dinner dress or dancing gown after that—the suit and coat because you travel in them and make your entrance upon the scene of your fun for the next two weeks to come. Distinctive tailored suits are amazingly abundant, they have absolutely surprisingly low price marks, and they may be changed with blouse or sweater. Added to that, the suit jacket may be worn with other dresses and skirts, the suit skirt likewise an obliging alternative with other jackets, sweaters, coats, and blouses. Cotton suits, in plain colors or in checks and breezy plaids, vie with chambrays and the sleek fitted models made of Palm Beach fabric or the tricky novelty weaves with a linenlike texture. Copper, chocolate, navy, and black are foolproof shades for such suits, and again the price tags are easy on the budget.

A flowered print afternoon dress is important. With such a simply cut and fashionably shirred daytime model in vivid color contrasts, much can be accomplished with accessories. With a huge straw hat it becomes an informal dinner costume or just what you need for Sunday night suppers or for a performance of the summer theater. All-white accessories keep it serenely cool but effective for the sultriest day. Colored hat, gloves, and bag change it into a sophisticated ensemble for a country tea party or important country club luncheon and bridge party.

The tailored shirtwaist dress is a classic selection for any sort of a vacation. You may wear it for golf, for sightseeing, for a grandstand seat to watch the races or a tennis tournament, for the movies, or any daytime occasion. The plaited skirt models are by far the smartest and the most youthful. Vivid accessories such as patent leather belt, gay play shoes, or striped linen bag and matching hat all are possibilities.

A straight, boxy topcoat of summer weight flannel is a necessity. This summer there are literally hundreds of fascinating novelty fabrics—cottonlike suede, gabardine cotton, and the thin flannels. Stunning high shades such as russet red, raspberry, carbon blue, green, yellow, and subtle tints of beige and caramel and the stunning copper tones offer and provide a most complete collection. Some are lined with blending silk, others half lined, and many unlined with taped seams.

Transparent black dresses are legion, especially those designed and cut for casual town and daytime wear, the ideal foundation dresses around which a smart girl plays the never-flagging game of accessories to change the entire ensemble. Such a soot black dress goes with beige, with the new copper shade, with suntan skin, and with white or multicolored accessories and magnolia complexions.

If you are streamlined for slacks you'll surely invest in the best tailored models you can find. The dark shades fit with greater distinction—at least they look incomparably better on the body lines than the pastels or dizzy florals.

Chicagoland Summer Theaters Reach Peak of Season

Port Playhouse Draws Critic's Highest Praise

By Cecil Smith.

Phil Baker's arrival in "Charley's Aunt" is still nine days away, and the loop's two current stage attractions—"Hellzapoppin'" and "My Sister Eileen"—have settled down into calm midsummer prosperity. The 20-odd summer theaters of the Chicagoland region, consequently, provide most of the variety and novelty of our theatrical world these days. In late July and early August, as vacationists and tourists by countless thousands explore the countryside, the rural playhouses reach the peak of their season.

Any one who has not spent at least one evening at a summer theater performance has denied himself acquaintance with a vital and important aspect of American theatrical enterprise. Out in the free air, beyond the reach of metropolitan complications and competition, many groups of young people are endeavoring, sometimes with good effect, to spread the range of the speaking theater and to bring its pleasures within reach of a truly democratic audience.

Since there are so many kinds and qualities of summer theaters—professional, semiprofessional, and amateur—their various enterprises require a good many explanatory footnotes. From time to time I have poked my head in at one performance or another, and this morning I offer a few random, disorganized impressions.

Within the limits of my own firsthand investigation, I am still persuaded that the very best performances, all factors considered, are those given each week from Wednesday thru Sunday at the Port playhouse in Port Washington, Wis. The company is entirely professional, except when an unusually long cast like that of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" requires the use of extras for bits and walk-on parts. Moreover, it is a well rounded company, in which the values of ensemble performance are stressed in a healthy manner. There are no stars, but there are many excellent actors.

When I saw "Out of the Frying Pan" [a New York comedy of last season which did not reach Chicago] a week ago, I was again favorably impressed by the lively pace, the intelligible diction and the easy behavior of the company. This week the Port players are presenting Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness."

Out at Michiana Shores theater, six miles east of Michigan City, things seem less unfinished and tentative than last season. The theater building itself, a striking Greek temple with a 20th century air conditioned interior, is now entirely finished, except for some murals which are still in preparation. The structure is by all odds the finest owned by any summer theater in the middle west. Around it, like tourist cabins, have sprouted some tiny dwellings, insufficiently concealed by the surrounding trees, in which the actors live in primitive rusticity. Michiana has become a real colony, in which the members eat, sleep, and act within a radius of a few hundred yards.

Everything except the cabins is very beautiful at Michiana, and after dark even the lights of the cabins are pretty. The performance I saw—of Robert Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna"—did not measure up to the artistic standard presupposed by so costly and elaborate a setup. The play profited from the hearty and robust gifts of Ian Keith, who acted the leading rôle in an effective swashbuckling manner. A couple of the supporting actors also were suave and capable. The rest of the cast, however, had to be dragged along by Mr. Keith, who succeeded in the chore but ought not to have been asked to perform it. What Michiana now needs is an ensemble strong enough to support its weekly visiting star. Mr. Keith, by the way, is back again this week in "Dinner at Eight."

Out in Oak Park a group of college and high school youngsters called the Pastime players presented an amateur performance of "George and Margaret" in which the gayety and good spirits of the comedy were engagingly projected. George Schaeffer, the director, produces his plays with an understanding of professional standards, and I found the performance to be much the most satisfactory of the four amateur undertakings I have seen this summer.

The Chicago Actor's theater, functioning every week-end at Tooker Village theater, 869 North Dearborn street, Chicago, made advance claims of professionalism which were not borne out. Their play, which continues until Aug. 3, is entitled "These Extraordinary Greeks." It was written by George Howard, the director of the theater, and Dorian Weiler, with its farce plot detailing the domination of the men by the women, somewhat in the vein of "Lysistrata." The performance seemed to be an anachronistic attempt to revive the flavor and manners of Greenwich Village. There was considerably more self-expression than craftsmanship about it, and Mr. Howard needs to objectify in his own mind the task of the director. I hope he will, for the near north side ought to have a real experimental theater.

As a feature of the Milwaukee Midsummer festival, which ends today, the Milwaukee players, an amateur group, will present tabloid versions of "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Romeo and Juliet" under a tent in Juneau park. Near by are a multitude of carnival attractions, including a delightful miniature zoo gotten together by the Wisconsin conservation department.

STAR OF "CHARLEY'S AUNT"

Phil Baker will play the leading role in that most famous of all modern farces, "Charley's Aunt," when it is brought to the Studebaker theater on Tuesday, July 29.

Notes of the Theater

The time and place for the opening of "Charley's Aunt," starring Phil Baker, have now been determined. On Tuesday evening, July 29, at the Studebaker theater, Mr. Baker will acquaint Chicago with his characterization of the Aunt, that remarkable individual who proves to be fully as mirth provoking, so they say in the east, as she was 49 years ago when the play was first produced. The estate of Brandon Thomas, the author, estimates that at least 100,000 performances of "Charley's Aunt" have been given in these last 49 years, to an audience probably exceeding the population of 46 of these United States. The states not included in the total—don't ask why—are Nevada and Delaware. Only "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has exceeded this record of popularity; "Tobacco Road" and "Life with Father" are overnight failures in comparison.

For the autumn and winter season the Theater Guild and American Theater society now say they have four of their six plays selected for the Chicago subscription audience—Frederic March and Florence Eldridge in Sophie Treadwell's "Hope for a Harvest;" Ethel Barrymore in Emlyn Williams' "The Corn Is Green;" Lillian Hellman's winner of the New York Critics' Circle prize, "Watch on the Rhine;" and Helen Hayes in Maxwell Anderson's "Candle in the Wind." There also is a possibility that Dorothy McGuire in "Claudia," due here in early September, may also be offered as a subscription item.

Dorothy McGuire.

The beginning of October should find Cornelia Otis Skinner here in the city in a dramatization of Somerset Maugham's "Theater." Nothing has been said about making this a subscription play. Two first rank musicals also are due in the first part of the fall season—the George Abbott production, "Pal Joey," with Gene Kelly and Vivienne Segal, and the B. G. De Sylva musical comedy, "Louisiana Purchase," with Vera Zorina, Victor Moore, William Gaxton, and Irene Bordoni. Considerably less certain than the attractions already mentioned, but none the less a fall possibility, is "The Beautiful People," by the irrepressible William Saroyan.

There have been many famous musical shows in the past, such as the "Passing Shows," the Ziegfeld Follies" [of which another edition is now being talked about for next fall], Earl Carroll's "Vanities," and George White's "Scandals." The sponsors of "Hellzapoppin" claim that the national fame of their madcap show is of a unique order, however, for it took only one edition of "Hellzapoppin," rather than a series of annual productions, to make its name known from one end of the land to the other. The current week of "Hellzapoppin" at the Erlanger is the eleventh, and the end, they say, is only two weeks away.

"But Deliver Us from Evil," a new play by Mrs. I. Dyer Kuenstler of Glen Ellyn, will be produced this week by the Village Summer theater in Hinsdale. Mrs. Kuenstler already has several published plays to her credit. Everett Clarke will direct the cast, which includes Renee Stone, Bobbe Avery, Alice Dineen, Arthur Harris, Glenn Sticknew, Robert Amundsen, Frederick Harris, and Paul Bowers.

The Michiana Shores theater, six miles east of Michigan City, has now announced nearly all of its schedule for the remainder of the summer. As noted elsewhere, Ian Keith appears this week as guest star in "Dinner at Eight," with Sunda Love in the leading feminine rôle. On July 29 the première will be presented of "Mary's Gate," a fantasy by Margery Williams [Mrs. Frank Dare] of Chicago. Beginning on Aug. 5, Irene Purcell will appear in S. N. Behrman's "Biography." "The Shining Hour" is scheduled for the week of Aug. 12. "Broadway" will be the final attraction, beginning on Aug. 26. The play for the week of Aug. 19 has not yet been decided upon.

Chekhoff's "The Three Sisters" occupies the Northwestern University Summer theater this week, with performances from Wednesday thru Saturday. On Monday and Tuesday evenings the Studio theater will present a bill of one act plays, consisting of Eugene O'Neill's "The Long Voyage Home," T. E. Morris' "Mirror to Elizabeth," and "The Common Clay Cart," by an unknown author. Summer theater productions are given in the Speech building on the Evanston campus, and Studio theater plays are presented at the Roycemore theater.

No fewer than 44 women, including residents of Williams Bay and summer visitors, will take part in the Belfry theater production of Clare Boothe's "The Women" this week. The performance is directed by Dwight W. Thomas.

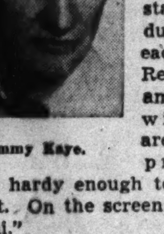
"My Sister Eileen" celebrates its 200th performance at the Harris theater tonight. The comedy opened on Feb. 17—a little over five months ago. After the opening John Quigley, the stage carpenter, and Abe Nelson, an advertising agent, placed bets upon the length of the run. Quigley thought it would stay until Memorial day, but not until July 4. Nelson felt sure it would still be running on July 4. On the evening of July 4, it was agreed, the loser was to throw a party for the company. Never one to go back on his just obligations, Quigley gave a generous party on the evening of Independence day—with turkey, chicken, and all the fixings. Who wants to bet that "My Sister Eileen" won't be here on Labor day?

Ingrid Bergman to Take Dramatic Role

Ingrid Bergman, Swedish stage and screen actress, will make her second excursion in the American legitimate theater on July 30, when she recreates the Pauline Lord rôle in Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie" at the Lobero theater, Santa Barbara, Cal. She probably will play the rôle later in the summer at the Maplewood, N. J., summer theater, managed by Cheryl Crawford and John J. Wildberg. The eastern production will be directed by Margaret Webster.

Vaudeville

Sammy Kaye and his "Swing and Sway" music are the stage feature at the Chicago theater. As usual, the bandleader is allowing members of the audience to be interviewed on the stage and to conduct his band at each performance. Recordings of the amateur baton-wielding efforts are made and presented to those hardy enough to make the attempt. On the screen is "Moon Over Miami."



Sammy Kaye.

The State-Lake theater offers a stage show entitled "Fun's Fun." The cast is headed by those comic veterans, Buck and Bubbles, returning to Chicago after a five year absence. Appearing with them are the Four Franks, a family of musicians and acrobats; Charles Newman, harmonic virtuoso; the Dorothy Hild ballet, and the Rossilianos, Polish dance team. "This Way, Please" is the film.

War May Curb Playwrights' Script Output

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—It is going to be harder for the play producers to find new scripts for next season's theater than it was this year, when it has been plenty hard enough. The second year of the second World war is going to find more and more dramatists engaged in war work than in literary work, and those who stick to their writing are going to find it increasingly difficult to turn out promising plays. It isn't easy to write in a shaking world.

This probably means that there will be many revivals of old time successes. Last season there were 10, and four of them each played a hundred performances or better in New York. "Charley's Aunt," 48 years old and still a silly farce, however funny its players can make it, ran thru 230 shows. Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," thanks to the theater lure of Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans, was played 129 times. Katharine Cornell's revival of Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma," got 112, and "Kind Lady," with Grace George, 106.

Already in the summer theaters they are trying a swing version of "La Belle Helene," with the Offenbach score and an all-colored cast. And with enough success to encourage a Broadway trial in the fall. This, however, in a comparative sense, is a modern item. The version used was written in the early '30's by A. P. Herbert, a member of England's parliament, and taken by him from a German source. The Offenbach music has been "swung" by Herbert Kingsley for several exciting numbers, but not for all. When the score is played and sung as Offenbach wrote it the audience reaction is most favorable.

The colored singers have gone into the experiment with great expectation of developing another novelty as popular as was the original "Swing Mikado" two years ago. Anne Wiggins Brown is singing the Helen rôle; Hamtree Harrington is the Menelaus, and Kelcy Pharr the Paris. That there may be no mistaking the spirit of this revival, the promoters are adding "The Glamour Girl of Troy" as a subtitle.

• • •

Another trial spin is being given a modern adaptation of that old comedy with a French basis, "The Masked Ball," which was John Drew's first starring vehicle on Broadway, and in which Maude Adams played her first leading rôle. Edith Ellis, who was quite a dramatist in the days when "Mary Jane's Pa" was a comedy success, and even as late as "The Dangerous Age," in 1937, has made the adaptation, and her daughter, Ellis Baker, is playing in the cast. If this resurrection should show life in White Plains, or Mount Kisco, where it is being tried, it, too, will make a Broadway bid in the fall.

Ellis Baker.

They are repeating a story around Broadway that several flustered ladies have inquired at the Empire theater box office about the current summer engagement of "Life Begins with Father," a natural slip, considering everything. They have been informed that "Life with Father," as far as its parent company is concerned, will continue thru its second summer; that some time in August Dorothy Stickney and Howard Lindsay, the original pair, will take a month off, turning their rôles of Vinnie and Father Day over to Percy Waram and Margalo Gilmore. The Lindsay-Crouse comedy has passed its 700th performance, which puts it within reach of those medium long-run favorites such as "The Bat," with 867, and "You Can't Take It with You," which lasted for 837. Or even "Lightnin'," with 1,291.

There is a chance that Emlyn Williams' "The Corn Is Green," in which Ethel Barrymore has been playing a happy starring engagement since last Nov. 26, will be closing shortly. The original intention was to go right on thru the summer, but everybody is getting a little tired, including Miss Barrymore. Incidentally, word has come from the other side that Mrs. Williams, the author's wife, has succeeded finally in getting back to London. She came to America with her two children shortly after the war started and the bombing of London began. Mr. Williams stayed on, playing the provinces and doing what he could to help with soldier entertainment and morale propaganda. When Mrs. Williams decided to rejoin him she got as far as Lisbon on a Yankee Clipper, but there she was stuck for six weeks with no way to get to London. She was about to come back to America when they found a seat for her in a Lisbon-London plane. The children are still in America.

Among the plays which have been offered to summer theater promoters is one called "The Gold Fish Bowl." It was written some months ago when the embittered prejudice against the President was at campaign heat, and it deals satirically with life in the White House, using all the family characters and, I understand, naming names. It makes fun of the Roosevelts, naturally and, its author claims, good naturedly. No manager, however, has been willing, so far, to take a chance with it, even in Vermont. Recently the play came to the attention of a friend of the family who thought if Mrs. Roosevelt were to read it and give her okay to its production, it would be a good investment. The script was sent to the White House. The first lady was not asked for an opinion as to whether or not she thought it should be produced, but whether or not she thought it funny. She evaded the issue as to humor, but said she could see harm in the piece so long as the Roosevelt name was not used. Consequently the White House family in the play become the Jeffersons.

That William Saroyan ["Time of Your Life"] boy is having a lot of fun conducting a publicity campaign for his newest play, "The Beautiful People," by remote control. William is at home in California and wires his instructions to his lieutenants in New York. A few weeks ago he instructed them to offer season tickets to the Saroyan play for $16.50. This buy would permit any one interested to see the play as many times as he pleased. There were few takers. Then William reduced the price. Not $16.50, but $9.50, he said, was enough for any one to pay. Still, few takers.

His next wire instructed the box office boys to give back to any patron dissatisfied with the play whatever he had paid for admission. In fact, added Bill, even if a patron liked the play and still needed the money, he should be invited to call at the box office and get it.

In two weeks only $127 was refunded, and most of this, the treasurers report, went back to those who had bought 55 cent tickets. They were quite satisfied with the play, even when they failed to understand what it was about, many of them are reported to have said, but now that they had seen the play, if it was just the same with the management they certainly could use their money again.

Controversy over the merits of "The Beautiful People" still is a feature of lobby discussions. I had dinner with two friends who had seen the play. Both were intelligent and experienced playgoers. One couldn't abide it and thought something should be done to warn the populace against the play as a costly bore, whatever the price of admission. The other had seen it three times and was preparing to go again.

Ed Wynn Plans Tour.

On Labor day in Hersey, Pa., Ed Wynn will begin a lengthy tour that will carry him thru every one of the 48 states. His show will be the same one he played in New York and Chicago last year, "Boys and Girls Together." The comedian hasn't made such a jaunt since the era of "The Grab Bag" in 1925-'26.

IN "MOON OVER MIAMI"

These bright little faces belong to Carole Landis and Robert Cummings, who are appearing in "Moon Over Miami." (Chicago theater).

Fun Houses Attract Crowds at Riverview

A midway full of "fun houses" gives Riverview park patrons a wide choice of ways in which they can enjoy being made ridiculous. Mecca of many is "Aladdin's Castle"—the dreamlike structure surmounted by a huge turbaned head, and containing devices that give the funseeker all the hilarious experiences, with none of the disadvantages, of a minor and rather good natured tornado. Other fun houses include "Jitterbug," "Hades," and "Spooktown."

For the Heidt of Fun---Visit the Beach Walk

By Will Davidson.

They are playing a new game out north—Go and Seek Heidt.

A ticket to the Beach walk of the Edgewater Beach hotel is all you need to play it, and it's fun. If you've had a bad afternoon at Arlington take some mutuel friend out there and you'll find one Horace you can put your money on and be sure of getting a good return.

Horace Heidt is a showman first, band leader second. Since those happy days in Oakland and San Francisco when he and Lobo, the patriotic dog, and a hearty gang of college men were setting records with their musical fun, Heidt has toured the land and ridden the air lanes to the delight of a pretty passel of people. His present show is up to his best standards.

There's Larry Cotton, who can sing the berceuse from the opera "Jocelyn" movingly and five minutes later join in a slightly mad burlesque of a musical comedy. There's Mimi Cabanne, who sets her own peak of achievement by singing "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," with the glee club assisting. There's Ollie O'Toole, impersonator, whose Kaltenborn is a delightful bit of mimicry. There's Fred Lowry, a whistler whose interpretation of the William Tell overture verges on the exciting. And there's Ronnie Kemper, another singer, but what a singer!

The Dorothy Dorben dancers go patriotic in a flag drill that has as its climax a bit of baton juggling by an attractive young couple named Ted and Flo.

This is the sort of entertainment that sets Beach walk records.

With generous Jan Garber in the midst of a highly pleasing run at the Trianon ballroom, the Aragon waves Art Kassel back into the fold Tuesday night for a limited run. Art, Marion Holmes, et al, did a good job there not long back, and should repeat handsomely.

Jan Garber. [Seymour Photo.]

Also on Tuesday night, Peggy Fears, who sells a song at a slow, easy walk as effectively as Hildegarde does at a gallop, comes into the Camellia House of the Drake.

Wednesday night the Rhumba Casino launches its new show, featuring Joan Merrill, one of the really top flight singers; George Tapps, the neo-Nijinsky; Gloria Gilbert, the beautiful human top; amusing magician Gali-Gali, and others, with Carlos Molinas' music. They'll have some new beauties in the Pan-American dancing line, too.

The new Panther room show Friday night is all to the Goodman. Benny will take over from Jimmy Dorsey, with quite a mark to shoot at.

The arrival of Maury Amsterdam at Harry's New Yorker has been delayed until the new show opens the 30th. But don't let that deter you—the present show is a top notcher.

Van Vactor Quintet.

David Van Vactor, the Evanston composer, will have his quintet for flute and strings published by the Society for the Publication of American Music in the fall on the basis of the recent annual contest conducted by the society. The work was written in 1932, first played in Chicago in 1936, and revised in 1940. A second publication of the society will be a piano quintet by Miss Ulric Cole, a 36 year old composer-pianist of New York City.

"Village Green."

Carl Allensworth's "Village Green," with Frank Craven in the leading rôle, was tried out in the Ridgeway summer theater, White Plains, N. Y., recently. It was found good enough to warrant revision and a probable Broadway production in the fall.

New Conductors and Soloists to Appear at Grant Park

Mark Love to Make '41 Debut This Evening

By Edward Barry.

This third week of the free Grant park concerts will bring to the lake front band shell several conductors and soloists who have not yet made a 1941 appearance there. Among them are:

Mark Love, the Chicago bass who has made a national reputation for himself as an oratorio singer. He also has sung many rôles with the Chicago Opera company, including both Ramfis and the king in "Aïda," Nilakantha in "Lakmé," and the father in "Hansel and Gretel." He has made hundreds—perhaps thousands—of radio appearances. With the Chicago Opera orchestra under Rudolph Ganz' direction tonight he will offer excerpts from both opera and light opera.

Glenn Cliffe Bainum, head of the band department at the Northwestern university school of music. His Grant park programs are always interesting because of the large proportion of unhackneyed music they contain. Tomorrow night's is no exception.

Anna Kruetgen, mezzo-soprano. She is the wife of Chicago's postmaster, Ernest J. Kruetgen. She will appear Wednesday with the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra under Richard Czerwonky's direction.

George Dasch, who is best known for his work as conductor of the Business Men's orchestra, Chicago's famous nonprofessional ensemble. Thursday he will head a group of professionals at Grant park.

Bruce Foote, who teaches at the University of Illinois and who has made a deep impression here in concert appearances because of the beauty of his baritone voice and the musical intelligence of his interpretations. He will be Mr. Dasch's soloist Thursday.

Irma Cooper, the soprano who was adjudged the best woman singer in the contests of the 1940 Chicagoland Music Festival. Miss Cooper is a South Dakotan who received her education in Iowa and in Chicago, and whose experience includes the teaching of music in schools. She has made innumerable appearances in concert and recital and at clubs and conventions. She will be heard Friday with Rico Marcelli's orchestra.

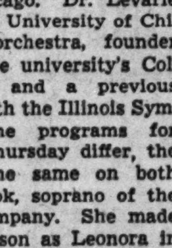
RAVINIA CONDUCTOR

When the Ravinia festival enters its fourth week of concerts on Tuesday night Carlos Chavez, Mexican composer and conductor, will direct, making his mid-western debut. Nicolai Malko leads this afternoon's concert.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Two al fresco concerts will be given by the Illinois Symphony orchestra this week. Wednesday's program in the Wilmette amphitheater will be conducted by José Echaniz once again. On Thursday night the orchestra will be led by Siegmund Levarie in Hutchinson court, 57th street and University avenue, University of Chicago. Dr. Levarie is conductor of the University of Chicago Symphony orchestra, founder and director of the university's Collegium Musicum, and a previous guest conductor with the Illinois Symphony. Altho the programs for Wednesday and Thursday differ, the soloist will be the same on both nights—Naomi Cook, soprano of the Chicago Opera company. She made her debut last season as Leonora in "Il Trovatore," and has appeared as well in oratorio and concert.



Siegmund Levarie.

Wednesday's program, José Echaniz conducting, with Naomi Cook, soprano soloist:

Overture to "The Bartered Bride" .... Smetana
Minuet for string orchestra ..... Boccherini
Variation on a Theme by Haydn .. Brahms
Symphonic Poem, "Les Preludes" .. Liszt
"Voi lo sapete," from "Cavalleria Rusticana" .... Mascagni
Naomi Cook.
"Ritorna vincitor," from "Aïda," .... Verdi
Naomi Cook.
Rhapsody, "España" .... Chabrier
Intermezzo, from "Goyescas" ... Granados
Tone Poem, "Finlandia" .... Sibelius

Thursday's program, Siegmund Levarie conducting, with Naomi Cook, soprano soloist:

Overture to "Oberon" .... Weber
Symphony No. 7, C Major .... Schubert
"Voi lo sapete," from "Cavalleria Rusticana" .... Mascagni
Naomi Cook.
"Ritorna vincitor," from "Aïda" .... Verdi
Naomi Cook.
Suite from "Carmen" .... Bizet
Waltzes, from "The Gypsy Baron" .... Johann Strauss

The free, outdoor concerts sponsored in outlying parks by the Chicago Federation of Musicians will be played by the following bands tonight and Friday: P. A. Cavallo's Symphonic band, Jackson park, tonight; Glenn Cliffe Bainum band, Lincoln park, tonight; Col. Armin F. Hand and his American Legion band with Rosalinda Morini, soprano soloist, Garfield park, Friday. All concerts begin at 8 o'clock.

Today and tomorrow the annual convention of the National Association of Choir Directors will be held in conjunction with the ninth annual choral music institute going on this week at Northwestern university. The staff of the institute is headed by Oliver S. Beltz and includes R. Buchanan Morton, Elizabeth Jane Anderson, Dr. Frank M. McKibben, Walter Allen Stults, Dr. Horace Whitehouse, Henry Overley, Emory L. Gallup, and the Rev. Clarence Seidenspinner.

In Kimball hall on Wednesday afternoon the American Conservatory of Music will present Heniot Levy, composer-pianist, and Lois Colburn Bichl, cellist, on the last of its free faculty recitals for this summer. The program is one of particular interest, offering as its concluding item the first performance anywhere of Mr. Levy's Quintet No. 2 for piano strings. In its performance he will have the assistance of Fritz Siegal, first violin; Theodore Silavin, second violin; Isadore Zverow, viola, and Jenska Slebos, cello. Mr. Levy's other contributions to the program will be the Bach-Busoni Chaconne and Brahms' Sonata in F minor, opus 5. Mrs. Bichl will play two sonatas, the third of Haydn and a violin sonata by the 18th century François Francoeur, arranged for cello by the contemporary English cellist and composer, Arnold Trowell. Olga Sandor will accompany the cellist. The program is free.

The Chicago Musical college will present two events in its Little Theater, in which faculty members will take part and which will be open to the public without charge. Louisa Hoe, soprano, and Charlotte Chambers, violinist, will give a joint recital on Thursday evening. On Friday Max Wald, chairman of the college's theory department, will deliver a lecture on "Music and Social Progress."

Morris Gomberg, violinist, and Ralph Niehaus, tenor, will be the artists appearing on the summer faculty series of the De Paul university school of music on Tuesday afternoon. The concerts are free and are held in the university's Little Theater, 64 East Lake street.

In honor of the 100th anniversary of the birth of the famous Czech composer, Antonin Dvorak, the Czecho-Slovak National Council of America has issued a biographical monograph concerning him by Dr. Jaromir E. Vojan. The council has its headquarters in this city at 4047 West 26th street.

Izler Solomon, director of the Illinois and Woman's Symphony orchestras, has been engaged by the Columbus [Ohio] Philharmonic orchestra to conduct its three concerts for the 1941-'42 season. The orchestra was new last April, making its bow under the baton of Abram Ruvinsky.

Grace Moore, operatic soprano, will be the featured soloist on the open air concert in the Temple of Music, Washington Park, Milwaukee, this Tuesday at 8:15. The orchestra is the Wisconsin WPA Symphony, conducted by Jerzy Bojanowski of Chicago.

The second program on the series devoted to the piano works of Johannes Brahms, being presented by Karl McGuire in the Evanston Catholic Woman's club, 1560 Oak avenue, Evanston, will be given tomorrow at 8:30. Doris Bartholomew will play the four ballads that constitute opus 10, and Mary Roth will be heard in the Phantasien, opus 116. The third concert is dated Aug. 4.

Hylton Gives Aid

Jack Hylton, popular English dance band conductor, recently helped to get the London Philharmonic orchestra, badly hit by war conditions, back on its feet again financially. When a radio appeal by J. B. Priestley was made to help the orchestra, Hylton organized and financed a lengthy provincial tour by the orchestra. It played in cinema houses, variety houses and the like under the slogan "Jack Hylton presents the L. P. O." The bandleader's name drew huge, enthusiastic audiences to the concerts, and there were many who were attending the performance of serious music for the first time. The tour placed the orchestra on a sound financial basis for some time to come, but the remarkable factor in the situation is that Hylton did not use an obvious opportunity to conduct the famous ensemble but discriminatingly stuck to the job of managing the tour.

Menuhin and Carlos Chavez on Ravinia Bill

By Cecil Smith.

Nicolai Malko, one of the notable conductors of the Ravinia festival's six year history, directs his final concert in the pavilion at Ravinia park this afternoon. On Tuesday evening Carlos Chavez, celebrated Mexican conductor and composer, takes over the Chicago Symphony orchestra for four concerts, on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday evenings and next Sunday afternoon. Yehudi Menuhin, internationally famous violinist, appears as soloist on Thursday and Saturday evenings.

For his first solo performance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Ravinia on Thursday evening, Mr. Menuhin has elected to play the great violin concerto of Beethoven. Last winter he played this same concerto in Orchestra hall, flying to Chicago at the last moment to replace Jascha Heifetz, who had become suddenly ill. On Saturday evening at Ravinia Mr. Menuhin will be heard in the brilliant and sparkling Mendelssohn concerto.

For many years Yehudi Menuhin was properly known and praised as an extraordinary prodigy, whose early exploits had been rivaled in recent memory only by those of the young Heifetz. At the age of 6 little Yehudi made his professional debut in San Francisco, arousing great enthusiasm by his performance of the very Mendelssohn concerto which he will play on Saturday evening. Years of study here and abroad, with intermittent concert tours, brought the young violinist's artistry to a point at which, when he attained his majority, he could continue to play in public successfully with no apology whatever for having once been a prodigy.

The advent of Carlos Chavez is awaited with the keenest interest, for his glowing reputation has preceded him to Chicago. A Mexican born and a Mexican in all his deepest loyalties, Mr. Chavez has contributed enormously to the advancement of music in our southern neighbor republic. He is a composer of major gifts, and he has sought to employ native Indian folk materials—melodies of great beauty and, to concert-goers in this country, of great novelty—as the basis for his orchestral works. We shall have two opportunities to become acquainted with his music, when he conducts the "Sinfonia India" on Tuesday and the "H. P." ["Horse Power"] symphony on Sunday afternoon. On Thursday he also will introduce his orchestral transcription of a noble organ chaconne by the 17th century composer, Dietrich Buxtehude.

Mr. Chavez is fired by the most continuous and generous interest in 20th century music. In addition to his own works, several other contemporary compositions are listed for his week of Ravinia concerts. The familiar first symphony of Dimitri Shostakovich, one of the most popular of all recent Russian works, is scheduled for Tuesday; the dances from Manuel de Falla's "The Three Cornered Hat" will be played on Thursday and the same composer's "Love, the Magician," on Sunday; Aaron Copland's "Quiet City" and Igor Stravinsky's suite from "The Fire Bird" are on Saturday's bill; and the Sunday program includes Serge Prokofieff's "Classical Symphony." In contrast to these modern compositions, he also digs back into the 17th and 18th centuries for the Buxtehude chaconne and a virtually unknown symphony by Johann Christian Bach, the youngest son of the great Johann Sebastian Bach.

Mr. Chavez was born near Mexico City in 1899. In 1928, at the age of 29, he founded the National Symphony orchestra of Mexico, giving his native country its first major symphonic organization.

Students Aided by 'Y' Institute

By the Rev. John Evans.

How the "What Might Have Beens If I Had Taken Up a Different Line of Work Originally," service of the Central YMCA's Institute for Counseling works is best shown by means of a real life situation. Dean Sidney E. Tarbox, director of the institute, tells the story:

"A 21 year old girl had failed to meet scholastic requirements at a large university. When she failed in examinations her parents wanted her to take up social work and the Institute for Counseling tests.

"Entering the institute in the fall of 1937, her initial tests showed her college ability to be better than average, with particular capacity for social science studies. At the same time, however, she exhibited a poor standard of reading comprehension coupled with a low rate of reading speed; far too low for her even to consider college work. The Institute for Counseling recommended that she be given help in reading at the Central YMCA college's remedial reading clinic.

"At the start of these reading tests the girl could read only 200 words per minute and rated only a 50 per cent comprehension on what she read. Six weeks later her reading rate rose to 400 words a minute with 100 per cent in reading comprehension. By the end of the first semester she had been removed from the school's probation list with a C-plus average in her courses.

"Her early spring reports continued to be good, but later ones showed she was slipping in her grades. Checkups showed she had overcome her earlier shyness to a point where she had been pledged to a sorority and was becoming active socially. In consequence her class work suffered. Still, armed with new social recognition and self-confidence, she insisted upon reëntering her former school to solve her problem 'on the home grounds.' This she did, and was graduated last June."

Dean Tarbox explained that the institute uses only standardized tests approved by the nation's leading psychologists. These tests are designed to provide objective measures of the following personal characteristics:

1. Intellectual aptitudes—the kind of mental activity for which one is best suited.
2. Academic achievements—the quality of one's specific technics of reading, study, and self-expression.
3. Vocational aptitudes—the capacity to develop certain skills which are important to various business, professional, scientific, and mechanical vocations.
4. Vocational interests—the degree to which one can expect that he will find satisfaction in each of a wide selection of important vocations.
5. Personality characteristics—the extent to which one has developed certain traits of personality that directly affect his chances for success and happiness in different vocational and social situations.

"Higher Education, a Guide to Students in the Selection of a College or University," is now in the third edition and may be obtained at the cost of 25 cents direct or 28 cents by mail from the Tribune Public Service office. Dr. Evans will answer questions dealing with educational problems.

Labor Stage to Abandon New "Pins and Needles"

Labor Stage will not present another edition of "Pins and Needles" next season. Louis Schaffer, its supervisor, said the rapid change in international events made it difficult to compile a topical revue, and he also felt the public was tiring of presentations emphasizing social significance.

One-Man Operas.

Marc Blitzstein, composer of the one-man operas, "The Cradle Will Rock" and "No for an Answer," has been commissioned by the League of Composers to do another, "The New York Opera," for production next season. Blitzstein is also writing a similar work known as "The Happy Family."

Popular Recordings

Victor comes thru with the top novelty of many a year in Sidney Bechet's one man band performance of "The Sheik of Araby" and "The Blues of Bechet." The famous hot soprano sax man plays tenor sax, bass, drums, piano, soprano sax, and clarinet in "The Sheik" and piano, tenor sax, clarinet, and soprano for "The Blues." This was accomplished in one of the most amazing recording stunts yet tried. Bechet first cut a tenor sax part for the Sheik. This was played back to him and to a new disk as he played a bass accompaniment. This second cutting was played back while he added drums, and so on until the side was finished. All this without any written arrangement! Both sides are excellent even when heard without knowledge of their mechanics.

• • •

Other Victor best bets: Artie Shaw's "Georgia on My Mind," Tommy Dorsey's swell "Love Me as I Am," "Nine Old Men," and Joe Reichman's amusing "Mrs. Austin from Boston." Bluebird: A hot Teddy Powell version of "All I Need," "Sans Culottes," the King Sisters' "Love Me a Little," "Sand in My Shoes," Glenn Miller's "Cradle Song," and Dinah Shore's "Jim, I'm Thru with Love."

• • •

Columbia's newest album has a wide appeal. It is an anthology of Theme Songs [Set C-63], including those of Goodman, Duchin, Kyser, Bradley, James, Scott, Heidt, and Tucker. Duchin has a good platter in "Wasn't It You?" "Be Fair"; Will Bradley rides fast thru "Boogly Wooglie Piggy," and Maxine Sullivan scores with "If I Had a Ribbon Bow," "Who Is Sylvia?"

Okeh introduces Henry Red Allen in a smash number "Ol' Man River," "K. K. Boogie" which has piano interludes you shouldn't miss, by Ken Kersey. Griff Williams adds to his growing platter stature with "I Must Have Been Blind," a nostalgic original that Bob Kirk sings beautifully, and "Beautiful Faces."

Buck's 'Jungle Cavalcade' an Exciting Film

"JUNGLE CAVALCADE."
From "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Wild Cargo."
Narration by Frank Buck.
Presented at Woods theater.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

"Jungle Cavalcade" is composed of exciting sequences from miles of film taken in the jungles of the Malay archipelago. It shows Frank Buck going about his interesting and perilous business of furnishing zoos of the country with live and uninjured forest denizens of every species. . . Narration—quiet and most interesting—is by Mr. Buck himself.

He makes no effort to be funny, but he understands and sympathizes with his prey and his descriptions of some of their peculiarities are made with considerable humor.

• • •

You may have the battle between a black leopard and a python and that between a python and a tiger. . . I couldn't bear to look except just long enough to learn which came out ahead. . . But then there are so many other events that make fascinating seeing! The wild elephant hunt, the pranks of the golden gibbon and the honey bear, the catching of a bird of paradise, the GREAT ADVENTURE of the little elephant. . . Mr. Buck's own encounter with a snake. . . All filmed against authentic backgrounds.

The Buck job is dramatic but Mr. Buck is not. Just a business man who, like other business men, sometimes gets tired. However, he LOVES his work. He says so.

• • •

The morning I visited the theater I had to wangle for a seat. Such a house! This would prove, I guess, that the world is still full of folk who care for Nature in the raw—which at its rawest isn't nearly as raw as present day civilization.

See you tomorrow.

Shakespearean Overture.

Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, the Italian composer now living in California, is writing his seventh overture for a Shakespearean play. This time it is "King John." The work is being composed for the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra's centennial and is dedicated to John Barbirolli, its conductor.

IN THE BALANCE

Cissie Cole's funeral was over. With a sigh of relief the little groups about the grave broke up and began to drift away.

All over. Lisle said it to herself, but she couldn't make it sound true. She went away up to her room to take off her black dress. Dale came up, too, and she could hear him walking about in his room. She slipped on a short-sleeved frock, and presently he opened the communicating door and came thru in shirt and flannel trousers.

"Well, that's a relief. Darling, you look like a little girl in that silly little dress."

"Little?" She tried to smile. "Do you know how tall I am?"

"Term of endearment, darling." He smiled at her with his eyes. And then quite suddenly the smile went. "Look here, I've got to talk to you, and it's about something so damnable that I've gone on putting it off, only now I can't any longer."

"Dale—what is it?"

"Darling, I'd give anything in the world not to tell you—or even to put it off, but I can't. I would if I could, but—well, the fact is I've got to tell you for your own sake."

"Dale!"

She was sitting on her dressing stool half turned from the glass. He came to her and took her hands.

"Will you try and remember that I hate what I'm going to do—that I'd give anything in the world not to do it? I've held my tongue all these years, and if I can't go on holding it now, it's because it isn't safe for you."

She drew her hands away. They were cold. She lifted her eyes to his and said:

"Please tell me, Dale."

"I've got to." He turned away with a groan and began to walk up and down in the room. "It's about Rafe. You mustn't go about with him as you've been doing—it won't do."

Lisle's head came up. She said quickly:

"What do you mean, Dale?"

"Not what you think—I'm not such a fool as that. Rafe makes love to every one, but it doesn't mean a thing."

"He doesn't make love to me. Do you think I would let him?"

"Of course not. Darling, I didn't mean that—I told you I didn't."

"Then what do you mean?"

Dale Tells Lisle of Boyhood with Rafe

He walked to the middle window, and then swung around to face her.

"Lisle, I'm trying to tell you. Will you just listen and not say anything? Rafe—well, he's always been like a younger brother. He, and Lal, and I, we were just like brothers and sister. None of us can remember the time when the others weren't here. Well, Rafe was the youngest. There's not three years between the three of us, but even a year makes a lot of difference when you're children. He was the one who had to be looked after—got out of scrapes and all that sort of thing. Well, we went on here together till Lal and I got married. That broke the thing up. Lal married Rowland Steyne, and I married Lydia. That left Rafe odd man out. I didn't think about it at the time—one doesn't. It was only afterward I realized that it sent him right off his balance with jealousy. He was 18 and he was at a loose end between leaving school and going up to Cambridge—and he didn't like Lydia."

He began to walk again, passing her and then coming back to pause and look at her. It was a deep, distressed look.

"Lisle—has any one ever told you about Lydia's accident?"

"Yes." She had to moisten her dry lips before they would say the word.

"Who?"

"Rafe—and Mrs. Mallam."

"What did they tell you?"

"Rafe said she fell. He said——"

"O, yes, she fell—poor Lydia. It was the most ghastly show. Never mind what they told you—I'm going to tell you the truth. I've never told it to any one before, but I'm going to tell it now because I've got to. We weren't climbing, you know—Lydia wasn't strong enough.

"We were just walking along one of those winding paths—Rowland and Alicia, Lydia and I, the Mallams, and Rafe. We got a bit strung out, and the minute you got round a corner you were out of sight of the others—you've got to understand that. You'd be right in the crowd one minute and completely cut off a minute later. Well, we came to a place where the path widened into a sort of bay scooped out of the hill. When you were in the bay you were right out of sight of the people in front and the people behind.

"Lydia and I and the Steynes were there together. Rafe had just gone on, and the Mallams had fallen a good way back. There was an easy scrambling slope going up from the inner side of the path, but on the outer side there was a most horrible sheer drop. Lal and her husband went up the hill after some flowers. Lydia and I were there together.

"Well, she sent me back to see if the Mallams were coming. I couldn't have imagined there was any danger, and I went. But I'd hardly got around the first bend—there was a second one just beyond—when I heard her scream——" He broke off. "Lisle, it was horrible! I went on hearing it for months. When I got round the corner again she was gone. There was a broken bush—she must have caught at it, poor girl, but it wasn't strong enough to hold her. And just where she had gone over, there was Rafe, staring down after her."

"Dale!" Her lips hardly framed the word. It came to him as a broken gasp.

He spoke himself, with a calm that appalled her more than any vehemence would have done.

"He pushed her over. I have never had the slightest doubt of it, nor, I think, has Lal. We've never discussed it at all. I don't know if she saw anything. I couldn't ask her—she was completely broken down. Rowland saw nothing, but Alicia—well, I've never been sure——"

Lisle sat there stiff and white, staring at him.

"What are you saying?"

"What I never meant to say to any one—what I should never have said even to you if—it hadn't happened again."

He came nearer, catching her by the shoulders so that she felt the warmth of his hands and wondered at it.

"Lisle—wake up! Don't you realize what has been happening? That accident to your steering—did you think it did itself? I tried to make myself believe that it was Pell who had been playing tricks, and I very nearly succeeded. And then—Cissie Cole——"

Lisle pulled away from him.

"How could it be Rafe! He was here with me after she went away."

"And he went off for a walk along the beach a good half hour before she fell. He says he only went half way and turned back. But suppose he didn't—suppose he went up the track on the cliff path and saw Cissie standing up there on the headland looking out to the sea. She was standing there with her back to him on the edge of the cliff—like Lydia. It was getting dark. She was wearing your coat.

"Her hair would show up in the dusk—fair hair, like yours. Wouldn't he take her for you? He'd left you at Tanfield, but why shouldn't you have taken my car or his and driven up there to see the sunset just as Lal and I had done? I tell you he saw Cissie there, he thought he was seeing you, and he pushed her over just as he had pushed Lydia over, and for the same reason."

Lisle moistened her lips.

"What reason, Dale?"

He went and sat down on the bed and put his head in his hands for a moment. Then he looked up again.

"Lisle, you have thought I cared too much for Tanfield—no, don't say anything, because it's no good. I've felt you thinking that time and time again, and I suppose in a way you were right, because I can see where that sort of thing gets you if you don't take a pull on it. Rafe's always been crazy about the place. Nothing else has ever counted with him. He doesn't love people—he loves Tanfield.

"He'd do anything, sacrifice any one to keep it.

"You've got to believe me, because I know what I'm talking about. If Lydia hadn't died when she did, Tanfield would have had to go. He saved Tanfield—that's the way it would look to him. What did Lydia matter? Just one life in all those generations. And then we come to you—the same situation, the same danger. He knows I'll have to sell. He knows that if you died, I shouldn't have to sell.

"Look back and think about the things that have been happening. I've had to, and I can't resist the weight of the evidence. You were nearly drowned. Who was making all the noise, splashing and ducking us, while you were calling for help? Rafe. The steering of your car snapped on the hill. Why? Evans said the track-rod had been filed half thru. I shut him up. He thought it was Pell, and that's where I began to be afraid about Rafe—little things I noticed in his manner when we were talking about it, and once I saw him look at you—well, there's no mistaking hate."

Lisle Recalls Rafe's Admission of Hate

Lisle sat there. She had asked Rafe if he hated her, and he had said yes—on the Wednesday night—just after Cissie had gone——

Dale went on speaking in a deep, troubled voice.

"I can't imagine why that car smash didn't kill you. He was down in the village waiting for it—do you remember that?—waiting to see you come down that hill and smash against Cooper's barn. You know, Lisle, you were born lucky. Just imagine his feelings when the car went to glory without you. And that meant he had to try again.

"He wouldn't give up—not with Tanfield at stake. Besides, once you start a thing like that, it gets you and you've got to see it thru. He must have been thinking what he could do next when he saw Cissie on the cliff and took her for you. It must have looked like the most marvelous chance—and he took it. That's how those prints of his got on the shoulders of the coat—he took her by the shoulders and pushed her over. And then he found he'd been tricked again.

"He hasn't had much luck, has he? You've had it all. But you mustn't try it too far—it might turn against you. That's why I'm telling you this. I must tell him I know and send him away.

"And meanwhile you've got to be careful. Don't let him drive you anywhere. Don't be alone with him. Stick to Alicia or to me. I couldn't do anything until this funeral was over—we mustn't have talk. Besides I only got the proof today."

She had to try twice before she could say,

"What proof?"

Dale's hand went into a pocket and came up with something bright. It dazzled as she looked at it, and she remembered the bright thing Alicia had tossed to him when she left them under the cedar. The bright thing lay on Dale's palm. He held it out to her.

"Recognize this?"

It was the cigaret case she had given to Rafe on his birthday, his name on it in her writing—"Rafe."

"When did you see it last?" said Dale.

She said, "Wednesday—just before Cissie came——"

Dale nodded.

"You haven't seen it since?"

"No."

"Nor any one else. He's been using that old battered wreck we used to chaff him about. Do you know why?"

She moved a very little. The movement said, "no."

Dale threw the case down on the end of the bed.

"Because this one's been lying up on Tane Head where he dropped it when he pushed Cissie over the cliff. Alicia found it there this morning. She missed that diamond and emerald clasp of hers and she went up there to look for it. A complete fool's errand, of course. I don't suppose she dropped it there at all—anyhow, she didn't find it.

"But she found Rafe's cigaret case. It was right on the edge, but it had slipped down into a sort of crack. I suppose that's why the police didn't find it—they must have been all over the ground." He reached out for the case and put it back in his pocket again. "He must have been wondering where he dropped it. He won't show much fight when I tell him—it gives me the whip hand all right. I'll pay his passage, and he can pack off to Australia and see whether that job he turned down is still going."

Lisle put up her hand to her cheek in a forlorn gesture.

"What about Pell? You can't—you can't let him—Dale!"

Dale got to his feet, came over to her, and put an arm about her shoulders.

"O, we won't let Pell hang," he said, and bent to kiss her.

Lisle had the feeling that the day would never end. There was a moment when Rafe asked her if she would like to go for a drive—"up over the downs to get some air. You look all in." Dale said, "No—she's too tired," and the numbness was pierced by a jagged stab of pain. Just why that should have hurt so much she could not have told. Rafe wanting her to go with him, his voice sounding kind. And Dale not giving her time to answer because he was afraid to let her go with Rafe as they had gone so innocently often, before their natural world had changed into a nightmare. Afraid to let her go with Rafe. . . . But she herself was not afraid. Perhaps that was just because she was too numb to feel afraid—too numb really to take in what Dale had told her. Only she couldn't struggle any more. She let Dale speak for her, and sat there without a word to say.

When she went up to dress Dale followed her into her room and put his arms around her.

"My poor darling—it's been a horrible day for you, but it's nearly over. And look here—I've got a plan. We'll get away from the others and have a nice, peaceful time just by ourselves. I never seem to see you now except in a crowd. I'm very fond of the family, but I do sometimes want my wife to myself. Funny—isn't it?" There was the smile in his eyes which she used to think was for her alone. It had always charmed her, but now she was too tired. Her eyelids fell. She moved a little, but he held her.

"Wait a minute and I'll tell you what I thought we'd do. I'm flying again tonight. I'll say so, and at the same time I'll tell you to get off to bed. That'll be about half past nine, but I needn't get up to the aerodrome till nearly 11. It's not dark enough for proper night flying till well after that. And what I thought was this—we could slip down to the beach and get right away from every one."

It wasn't in her to struggle. She said, "Very well," and moved away from him. This time he let her go.

When he spoke again he sounded as pleased and excited as a schoolboy.

"Look here, we won't go off together—that won't do at all. Lal——" he laughed a little—"well, I'm very fond of her, as you know, but she does butt in. I'll get the car and drive out by the back gate. Then I can leave it a bit down the lane and cut thru across the park—it's no distance that way—and you can wait for me down by the sea wall." He laughed again. "Rather fun having to make an assignation before you can have half an hour alone with your own wife! Better change into a short dress and put on beach shoes. I thought we'd go down by the rocks and see the tide come in. And you'll have to slip away without being seen, or we'll find we've got the family circle round us again. Will you do it?"

Dale Whistles as He Prepares for Walk

She said "Yes," and was glad not to have to say any more than that.

He dropped a kiss on the top of her head and went off to his own room. She could hear him whistling as he moved about there.

Later, when she was in her room again taking off the dress she had worn at dinner, slipping back into her cotton frock, stripping off thin silk stockings and fastening the beach shoes he had suggested, she could hear him there again, slamming a cupboard door, pulling out a drawer. But this time he didn't whistle.

She sat down on the edge of the bed to wait. Because it was part of the plan that he should get away first, and of course he had to change. He took some time over it, but at last she heard him open the door to the corridor. And then, all in a hurry, he came running back to look in on her with a laughing, mischievous expression and a finger on his lips.

When he had really gone, she stayed where she was for about 10 minutes and then made her way down to the sea wall. She saw no one as she went, and as far as she knew no one saw her go.

It was the first thing that Dale asked her.

"Did any one see you?"

"No."

"Nor me either." He was laughing and breathing a little quickly from his run. "What conspirators we are! Come along quick down by the steps! It's a marvelous evening!"

At the foot of the steps Dale turned to the left. He put his arm about her and they walked in silence. Tane Head was behind them, and the Shepstone Rocks ahead. The flowing tide had almost reached and covered the sandy ridge which lay beyond. It was easier walking here than on the side toward Tane Head, because each high tide came up to cover the sand and beat it hard. Easier, that is, until they came among the rocks.

"Where are we going, Dale?"

"Down to the ridge. We've just time."

Neither of them spoke until they were standing on the ridge piled against the outworks of the Sheptone Rocks by the current which set from Tane Head.

"It's nice here—isn't it?" said Dale.

She said "Lovely——" in a dreaming voice.

"We'll just have time to get round to the far side of the rocks."

"Shall we? Can't we stay here?"

"Just round the point, darling. There's something I want to show you. But we must hurry."

CALL IT LOVE

By

Margaret E. Sangster

(Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

(Posed by Veronica Lake.)

He shouldn't be playing waltzes—especially waltzes that were fraught with the pangs of memory.

HE WAS playing a waltz tune now—something light and frothy and Viennese that drifted up from the porch below and thru the open window and into her consciousness. Janice, with her fingers laced together in her lap, wished frantically that Allan would lay aside his accordion and go into a period of silence.

After all, on this day, he should have other things to think about than music. Allan should be packing suitcases and checking tickets and making hotel reservations—that sort of thing. He shouldn't be playing waltzes, especially waltzes that were fraught with the pangs of memory. Of course, in all fairness, Allan couldn't realize that she and Hal had loved best to dance waltzes—Allan hadn't known her while she was engaged to Hal. He couldn't realize that the swaying rhythm brought back memories of smooth, polished floors and moonglow on water and sunlight on white, hot beaches, and hands that touched hands and lips that——

Some one was knocking on the door, knocking with a soft insistence that wove itself into the very spirit of the waltz. Janice called, "Come in——" and the door opened and it was Betty, her kid sister—Betty, looking as crisp as a lettuce leaf in her green linen gown.

"O," said Janice, "it's you."

Betty said, "Yes, it's me. How's the bride-elect?"

"Sitting up and taking a little chicken broth," Janice told her. "How's the maid of honor?"

Betty answered, "So's to be about," and crossed the room and seated herself on the bed beside Janice. "You're looking a bit frowzy, old dear," she said, with a frankness that was almost brutal. "I hope you'll have a facial and a nap before evening. Allan deserves the best."

"Allan," replied Janice, "can take me or leave me——" she shivered involuntarily. Why had she said "leave me"—was it a throwback? Was she always going to ache at the thought of Hal coming to her and muttering, "It was a mistake, after all. It was just star shine and a swing band and early summer."

But Betty was speaking. "Now," said Betty, "that the big moment has come, why don't you let the dead bury its dead?"

"You're asking me to forget that Hal jilted me—a year ago?" Janice queried.

Betty looked uncomfortable. "Jilt is a filthy word," she said, "and besides Hal didn't jilt you—everybody realizes that you two got together and decided to call it off. What if it was only a week until the wedding? Allan came along before the summer was half over and fell for you, and from then on you've had a whirl of a time."

A whirl of time—nothing, thought Janice, but this eternal search for gaiety! The music of the accordion had gone into a faster rhythm—thank heaven, Allen was thru with waltzes for the time being. She rose from her place on the bed and crossed over to the closet and jerked open the door.

"Allan came before the summer was half over, and fell for me," she said. Her sweeping gesture took in a medley of chiffon and tulle and satin. "And now I'm all set—wedding dress, veil, slippers, even undies. This is an encore, Betty—I was all set a year ago. . . . Funny, isn't it?"

"Not so darn funny," said Betty. She rose and crossed the floor and stood beside Janice. "It's a lovely dress," she murmured, "and I like that little cap business with the Dutch points. . . . Allan's a good guy, Janice. He's worth a baker's dozen to Hal. Plenty of money and as good looking as Clark Gable and always a smile on his face—remember how Hal used to sulk?"

"Allan's not the sulking type—he doesn't take anything seriously enough," said Janice. "Life is just another tune to him."

"He takes you seriously," said Betty. "During the rehearsal last night he told me——" she broke off.

"What did he tell you?" asked Janice, but Betty said: "O, nothing." After a moment she added, "Allan plays the accordion like a streak, doesn't he?"

Janice Decides to Go Riding Alone

"I wonder if he'll take the accordion on our honeymoon," mused Janice, a shade bitterly. "O, Allan's all right—in fact, he's swell."

Betty asked abruptly: "Are you still crazy about Hal?"

But Janice shook her head. "That's done—and I'll never be crazy about anybody again," she told her sister. "A burned child dreads the fire, you know. . . . Yes, Allan's all right—and the nicest part of it is that—no matter what you say—he'll always take me with a grain of salt. . . . He and I will keep on having a whirl of a time until we're 90 or thereabouts—we'll go slithering over the surface of life like a couple of waterbugs on a brook." All at once she slammed the closet door and was starting out of the bedroom. "I'm going to have myself a little drive, Bett," she said. "The roadster's out front."

"Want me to trail along?" asked Betty, but Janice shook her head. "No," she said. "I'm going to invite my soul—such as it is."

As she went down the stairs, moving rapidly in her snub-nosed platform shoes, Janice could feel the music of the accordion sweeping forward to meet her. Allan, at the moment, was concentrating on a Cuban rhumba—once upon a time she and Hal had danced the rhumba, too. As she crossed the hall and stepped onto the porch, the throb of the tropical music beat against her temples. She was glad when Allan, at sight of her, broke the song in the middle and started on something else. Almost glad, that is, until she realized that he was busy with the Wedding March.

"How do you do, Miss Lindsay," said Allan, above the strains of Lohengrin—"or should I say Mrs. Kemp?"

"We'll let it go as Miss Lindsay for the nonce," Janice told him. "I'm off for a drive, Allan. I'll see you later."

"Later, my eye," said Allan. He shrugged out of the shoulder straps of the accordion and dropped it with a thump—it was fairly heavy—onto the floor of the porch. "I'll come along, honey."

Janice was already walking down the porch steps. She called back, "I'd rather you didn't, Allan." But Allan, with a laugh, had fallen into step beside her.

"Going coy on me?" he wanted to know, and took her arm just above the elbow. "If you think I'll let you bumble off on our wedding day, you've another think coming. Something might happen, baby—I'm taking no chances."

"Nothing ever happens," said Janice.

"Knock wood," Allan suggested. "You might run away from me, you know, at the last moment."

"It's been done," said Janice. "People have run away from other people—at the last moment."

Allan said, "One more remark like that and I'll wash your mouth with yellow soap."

They walked down the path together toward the car—a low slung chromium and cream affair. Two very personable young people, looking as tho they had stepped from the pages of next month's fashion magazine. Janice said, after a moment——

"You're a nice boy, Allan, and if I wanted company—but, well, I don't. I'd like to be alone."

Allan said, with surprising firmness, "I'd like for you to be alone—with me."

"Please, Allan," said Janice. "I'm not being coy—I mean it."

"I mean it, too," said Allan.

Suddenly Janice was angry—not furiously angry; angry in a cool, detached way. "Even Bluebeard was allowed a secret room," she told Allan. "This is my last afternoon—as it. Run on back to the house. Play your accordion, play double solitaire with Betty, play tennis with one of the ushers. Play anything."

Allan Insists on Going with Janice

"Every once in a while I don't feel playful, and this is one of the whiles," Allan told her. He opened the door of the car and helped Janice in. "Will you drive, Janny, or shall I?"

Janice slid into the seat under the wheel. There was something strange about Allan this afternoon, something implacable and unyielding. She felt like a wild thing in a trap as she threw out the clutch. "I'll drive," she said, and started the car with a jerk almost before Allan had comfortably arranged his six feet of flannel and tweed and assorted muscle.

Allan said—"Ouch, you almost broke my neck that time!" and then he laughed. "Where are we going?" he queried. "Might I suggest the nice stretch of road that runs alongside the lake? If I recall the incident, a certain young man asked a certain young woman to marry him while they were driving along that stretch of road. It has a faintly historic value."

Janice said somberly, "Why did you ask me to marry you, Allan?"

"I liked the shape of your ears and the way your eyelashes curled up," Allan told her.

"That's as good a pair of reasons as any," said Janice. She turned the car from a semi-suburban thorofare into a broad, thronged highway that led from the estate sector to the city.

"The lake's in the opposite direction," Allan said mildly.

"I know," Janice nodded. "But I'm not going to drive down the lake road—I'm going to town. I want to plow thru traffic—heavy traffic."

"Why?" questioned Allan.

Janice told him, "Because when I'm driving in traffic I don't have time to think." She swerved and narrowly avoided a collision with an oncoming convertible.

A minute went by, two minutes, three minutes, and then Allan spoke. "Is it painful to think?" he asked. "Or are you just being lazy?"

Janice told him, "It's painful. . . . Allan, when you asked me to marry you I tried not—to cheat. I told you all about Hal."

Allan nodded. "Yeah," he said.

Janice went on. "I told you that Hal fairly begged for his release. . . . And that he married another gal."

"If I recall the incident," Allan said, "he took it on the lam, and is living in South America."

Janice was staring at the road ahead, stonily. "Hal got married the week after he broke our engagement," she said. "That's why he broke it—he met somebody else. I wasn't hot enough to hold him."

"We'll run short of yellow soap before the ceremony," Allan said, "if you keep rambling on this way. Hal didn't break the engagement—fate broke it. Coming events cast their shadow——"

"Coming events?" echoed Janice.

Speeding Car Gives Janice Grim Satisfaction

Allan told her, "No." He laughed again and Janice pushed the car up a notch. With a grim satisfaction she watched the speedometer creep across the dial—she wanted to strain the car to its uttermost altho the car had done her no injury. She wanted to strain Allan, too—altho he had never harmed her.

"Listen," she said finally, "listen to this, Allan. When I was engaged to Hal, when we were together, I was tongue-tied and full of goose pimples. It was like that."

"Oddly enough," said Allan. "I prefer talkative women. It makes the long winter evenings pass so quickly when there's a steady stream of conversation. As for goose pimples—they aren't very attractive. I got them when I saw my first birthday cake, but after I ate the birthday cake I had a stomach ache. If I recall the incident——"

"Don't keep saying if you recall the incident!" raged Janice. "Life's only a series of incidents to you, Allan, but to some of us life's pretty blame serious. When Hal broke our engagement it—killed me. My wedding dress was already on a padded hanger—the hanger was stuffed with lavender sachet. I've always hated lavender—since."

"I always did hate it," agreed Allan.

"Most of the presents were in the house," said Janice.

"But they weren't as keen as our presents," said Allan. "And Betty tells me that your wedding dress is something to drool over."

"It's a duplicate wedding dress," Janice said flatly. "I sent the original to a thrift shop—it was sold for charity. . . . O, Allan, don't you ever suffer about anything?"

"Some five miles back I suffered about a speed cop, but I guess he had other fish to fry," said Allan. He hesitated and grimaced, "Janice, get a load of this! We're starting from scratch, and Hal and last year's wedding dress are in the discard, and being fond of you has taken a terrific hold on my imagination."

Janice was biting her lip. She could taste the sweetishness of her lipstick—it was a new lipstick that one of the bridesmaids had given her. "Are you so fond of me," she said at last, "that you'd mind if our wedding didn't happen? Or would you just go on playing your accordion and making wiscracks?"

"Why," grinned Allan, "should we speculate? Why should we wander in the realm of the impossible?"

Janice told him, "I'm not wandering. . . . Allan, when I started out alone this afternoon, I told Betty that I was going to invite my soul, and I told you that I didn't want to think—but I was lying like the dickens. . . . I really wanted to be alone so that I could decide whether I was doing the right thing."

"Huh?" asked Allan.

"About—marrying you," said Janice.

"If that's all that's on your mind, darling," said Allan, "you're okay. Let me be the judge of such details."

They had come to a traffic light. It turned red and tho Janice had every intention of going on thru, she didn't. Some instinct of lawfulness made her bring the roadster to a grinding stop.

"It's only this afternoon," she told Allan, "that I dared face facts. . . . When I was sitting on the edge of my bed upstairs, and you were downstairs on the porch playing waltz after waltz, I couldn't help remembering how Hal and I had waltzed together and I couldn't help remembering the feel of his arms around me . . ." She gulped. "Allan, last summer when we met——"

"You were wearing a gingham bathing suit," interposed Allan, "and you had polish on your toenails. It was a queer shade, almost a mahogany color."

"Hush," said Janice. "Last summer when we met I went after you, hammer and tongs."

"I'll remind you of that when we're 50," said Allan.

Janice went on as if he hadn't spoken. "I'd been jilted publicly and I wanted to show them——"

"Show who?" asked Allan."

"The whole bunch," Janice told him. "Betty and the other girls who were so sorry for me and the men who were Hal's friends and were going out of their way to be nice, cutting in every two seconds at the country club, and my mother and father, and our butler and the upstairs maid—and everybody. And so, when you swallowed the bait and asked me to marry you——"

"On the road alongside the lake," threw in Allan, "and it was raining. . . . By the by, Janice, the light's green again."

With a small exclamation Janice once more perked the car into action: "When you asked me to marry you," she said, quite as if Allan hadn't interrupted, "I accepted you then and there, and at the beginning it was fun to realize that everybody was surprised. It was fun, too, just being with some one who thought that life was a meringue——"

"What's a meringue made of?" asked Allan. "I never knew."

"White of egg and sugar beaten to a stiff froth," Janice told him. "A meringue hasn't much substance."

"O, Allan, it was only today that I realized that I couldn't go on—making a second mistake doesn't justify a first mistake." Her tone was desperate. "Allan, let's call off our wedding. You can give out that you jilted me just as Hal jilted me."

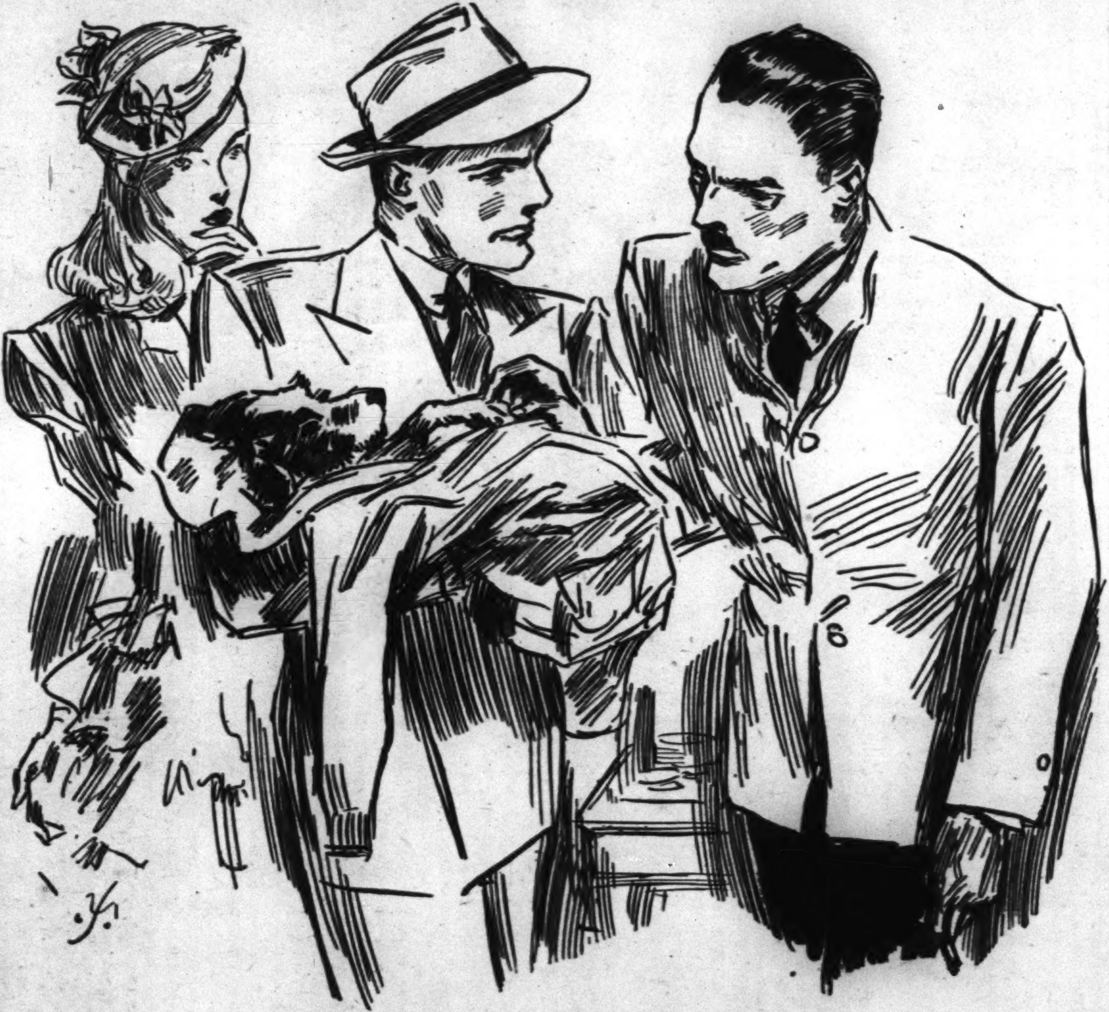
"No," said Allan.

Janice told him, "But it won't be fair to have people gossiping about it, to have them saying I let you down . . . I—I know how it feels, Allan!"

"I wasn't referring to who shot what off whose head," said Allan. "My 'no' meant that we wouldn't call off the wedding."

"But I've come to my senses," Janice told him. "I don't want to be married."

"You need to be married," said Allan. "As for me—well you haven't a Chinaman's chance of squirming out of your bargain, Janny!"



And then they were at the veterinary hospital.

Ring Bites Into Finger as Janice Grips Wheel

Janice gripped the wheel hard, so that the out sized diamond on the third finger of her left hand bit sharply into her flesh. "You can't hold me against my will," she said, "you're a gentleman, Allan."

"Only up to a point," said Allan. "As a matter of fact, most gentlemen are fall guys."

"But you don't really care for me," said Janice. "And you're good looking and gay and rich—you could marry anybody, Allan."

"You're wrong twice," said Allan. "I do—and I couldn't."

"I can make us miserable," said Janice, "even more miserable than we are right now!"

"You only think you're miserable," said Allan. "And I'm as happy as a bug in a—" his voice rose sharply—it was like a swift sword cutting a rope of inconsequential words asunder. "For heaven's sake, Janice," he shouted, "there in the road ahead of you . . . turn the wheel hard."

Eyes distended with horror, Janice—following the direction of his voice—saw the dog in the road. It was a small dog, white with brown splotches, evidently a mongrel. In the stream of traffic it was running aimlessly—lost and confused by wheels that must have seemed as high as mountains. Janice screamed shrilly, and then Allan's hands had closed over hers on the wheel and had jerked the car to one side and they had missed the dog by a matter of inches.

But the car that was directly in back of them didn't jerk to one side—in time.

When they had slithered to a stop some 12 feet farther along the highway, Janice was crying but Allan didn't pause to comfort her. With a smothered bit of profanity—that was half a prayer— he jerked open the door of the roadster and started back down the road at a gallop. The second car had gone on—it was a big car and only stopped for thorobreds—and miracle of miracles, the mongrel dog was going on, too. Obviously the second car hadn't passed over the dog—its body had been caught, and had been tossed by a bumper. It was still alive, and it was in the center of the road and it was limping painfully and there was blood on its bewildered small face. Cars swerved to right and left and men yelled and women shuddered, but the little dog, weaving blindly, zigzagged between the mountainous wheels. Allan called—but the call seemed to terrify the animal even more; it crept forward as if intent on self-destruction.

As Janice watched thru tears, Allan—himself zigzagging between wheels—followed in the puppy's wake. It was a matter of minutes before he was able to reach down and snatch up the shivering creature and tuck it under his arm. Even at the last the puppy tried to escape—it yelped in agony and struggled with a weak violence and made as if to bite the very hands that had plucked it from ultimate disaster, but Allan's grip only tightened. And then he was racing back down the road and climbing into the chromium and cream car and slamming the door.

"Snap into it, Janice," he said. "If I remember the incident, we once passed a dog and cat hospital—it would be about a mile or so farther along this same road . . . Hand me the white sweater that's across the back of your seat."

Janice gulped, "Is it dead?"

Allan told her—"Not yet, but I think there's an internal injury—the pup seems to be bleeding from the nose and mouth. Hand me that sweater and get going."

Janice obediently handed over the white sweater, and got going. She heard Allan say gently—"No you don't, fella," and glancing sideways she saw that the dog had finally accomplished its blind purpose and had bitten Allan in the thumb. Allan's blood was mingling now with the puppy's blood. "O," she gasped, and turned a little white, "that will wreck your accordion playing for a while."

Allan said—"Janice, if you faint I'll smack you down as soon as we get to the hospital. My hands are full now." After a minute he added, "I've got Button Nose fixed so that he can't kick or hurt himself any more."

"Or bite you any more," breathed Janice. Somehow it didn't surprise her to hear Allan say, "Biting me doesn't matter——"

And then they were at the veterinary hospital and were going inside and a doctor in a white coat was taking the hurt animal from Allan's hands and was strapping him onto a table, and the dog was howling at the top of its lungs.

And the next thing Janice knew she was lying on a couch in an outer office and Allan was holding a glass of water to her lips and spilling most of it down her neck.

"I knew you were going to keel over," said Allan. "Sissy!"

Janice struggled to a sitting position. "Where's the dog?" she said. "Did it die on that table?"

Allan said, "The doctor's examining it with a fluoroscope to see what bones are broken." He started to wrap his finger clumsily in a handkerchief.

Janice said, "You should put some peroxide on your finger." She added, almost against her will—"Why on earth did that dog try to get away from you? Why did it bite you when you were saving it?"

"Because it didn't know any better," said Allan. He continued to wrap his thumb, giving it his closest attention. "If you want to," he said, "you may hold my other hand, Janice. Maybe, it will make you feel a trifle less shaky if you hold my hand."

Janice accepted the invitation, she reached over, almost shyly, and held fast to Allan's other hand. It was a good, hard hand—and it was warm, too, and it did make her feel less shaky. Not only about a dog with blood on its face, but about a dim summer and waltzes and the wedding march and an encore dress. She darted a look at Allan and—catching her eye—he smiled, and his fingers tightened on hers. He didn't speak, and neither did she, but somewhere a clock ticked loudly—or was it her pulse, Janice wondered? Why?—she asked herself at this 11th hour—should the clasp of Allan's hand thrill her? And then, before she could beg Allan to explain the strange singing mystery, the doctor was entering the room.

"The dog," said the doctor without preamble, "isn't badly hurt. His injuries are quite superficial—bruises and shock and that sort of thing—but he's a pretty scrubby specimen, at best. I take it he's a stray."

"He was—" corrected Allan.

"It might be better," said the doctor, "if I were to put him to sleep. The world's full of strays."

"The only difference between being a stray and not being a stray," said Allan, "is belonging to some one. Eh, Janny?"

Janice nodded wordlessly, and Allan laughed.

"Since the lady and I are in complete agreement," he said, "we'll consider the point settled." He rose and his hand, still holding Janice's hand, pulled her to her feet. "We're going on a little trip," said Allan to the doctor, "for two or three weeks—or thereabouts. When we're back we'll stop for our dog. In the meantime—" he released Janice's hand and fumbled in his pocket and brought out a wallet—"I'll pay you in advance for his treatment and board. See that he has his quota of vitamins—"

Allan Takes Over Wheel on Drive Back Home

They were back again in the car, driving down the highway. Without discussing it, Allan had appropriated the driver's seat and turned the car in the direction of the house and the accordion and Betty and the bridesmaids and the ushers and the closet filled to overflowing with chiffon and tulle and romance. Janice, huddled beside him on the seat, gnawed her underlip and realized that it didn't taste of lipstick any more—the lipstick had probably worn away. She said slowly, "earlier in the afternoon Betty told me that I was frowzy—that I needed a facial and a nap."

"I've seen you when you were looking better," Allan told her, "but you'll pass in a crowd. There'll be quite a crowd at our wedding."

"Yes," agreed Janice.

Allan went on. "I'll have to put some adhesive tape on my thumb," he said. "I hope I don't fumble the wedding ring because of it."

"I hope you don't," breathed Janice. All at once she shivered convulsively. "When I think of that dog running blindly with the whole world crowding in on it—"

"Most of us run blindly at one time or another," said Allan. "And the world has a way of crowding in on us—until something hits us—"

"Yes," nodded Janice.

"And even then," said Allan, "we sometimes keep on running."

Janice stole a glance at the man by her side. There was nothing particularly gay about him at the moment. He looked dusty and a little tired. She wondered why she'd never realized that his chin, seen in profile, was very firm and that, tho his mouth was devoid of compromise, it was extremely tender.

"Yes," she said, "we keep running until somebody comes along—somebody who's fool enough—or regular enough—to follow us and snatch us up and get bitten for his pains . . . Allan, what is it that makes people risk getting bitten—for their pains?"

"I dunno," said Allan. All at once and quite unexplainably, he was laughing. "Call it love," said Allan, "that'll do as well as anything—in a pinch!"

IN THE BALANCE

"She was standing there with her back to to him on the edge of the cliff—like Lydia. . . . She was wearing your coat. . . . Wouldn't he take her for you?"

INSTALMENT XII.

AN EXPRESSION of incredulity appeared upon the well cut features of Inspector March.

"You asked her about her will in Ashley's?" His voice was as incredulous as his expression.

"O, yes," said Miss Silver brightly. "She was buying a bathing dress, and there was no one else at the counter. We had quite a private talk while the saleswoman was serving some one at the next counter."

"Go on—tell me all about it."

Miss Silver folded her black gloved hands over a shabby black handbag.

"Well, I think that was really all. I asked her if there were any substantial legacies, and she mentioned Mr. Rafe. That was really all, except that I urged her most strongly to ring up her solicitor and instruct him to destroy her will."

March made a movement.

"He would be very unlikely to act on instructions given over the telephone."

Miss Silver coughed in a slightly reproving manner.

"That would be no matter. What I urged Mrs. Jerningham to do was to go home and tell the whole family that she had instructed her solicitor to destroy the will. If any one was contemplating another attempt upon her life, he would naturally hold his hand until he was sure that the will under which he would benefit was still in existence. He could not afford to run the risk of committing a murder only to find that the money was now irrevocably beyond his reach."

"That would apply to Dale Jerningham as well as tc his cousin, Rafe."

"It would apply to Mr. Dale Jerningham, to Mr. Rafe Jerningham, and also to Lady Steyne."

"And you seriously believe that her life has been attempted by one of these three people?"

"Has been — and will be again." She paused, and added, "Is that not your opinion, Randal?"

He pushed his chair back

"Neither your opinion nor mine is of very much value. What we want is evidence, and so far all the evidence in this case is lumped into the scale against the wretched Pell. I went over and saw Rafe Jerningham this morning—that's where I've been—and a more useless, profitless morning I never spent. I saw Mrs. Jerningham first. She's a very good witness, and she was quite clear about the coat. She wore it last on Sunday evening. Rafe brought it to her. Rafe helped her on with it—faint prints on the collar all present and correct. He certainly didn't take hold of her by the shoulders in the way he would have had to in order to leave those much clearer, fresher prints.

"And no one else touched her at all. She went straight in, took the coat off, and hung it up in a cupboard in her bedroom. She wasn't anywhere near her husband. The rather uncertain prints which may or may not be his, the one in the middle of the back, may have been done at some other time. It's all mixed up with Pell's prints. But Rafe Jerningham did take hold of that coat and whoever was wearing it, and as his prints are the freshest of the lot, he took hold of it on Wednesday night. Only I can't prove that."

"Did he offer an explanation?"

March laughed.

"O, yes—slick as you please. He'd fetched his cousin's coat and helped her on with it. And that was that. There aren't any flies on Mr. Rafe Jerningham. He knows as well as you and I do just how much of that print stuff would go down with a jury."

Miss Silver Doubts Lisle Changed Will

Miss Silver got up.

"I must not take up any more of your time."

He said, "Wait! About Mrs. Jerningham—was she going to take your advice—change her will?"

She shook her head with an air of concern.

"I am afraid not. She did not say, but—I am afraid not."

March went to the door, but stopped there without opening it.

"I've gone as far as I can. The chief constable is very insistent that there should be no scandal unless we've got evidence that can be taken to a jury. I've let Rafe Jerningham see that he's under suspicion, and that's as far as I can go. You can't give a girl police protection in her own home. Could you induce her to go away, do you think?"

Miss Silver shook her head again.

"What would be the use of that, my dear Randal? An accident may happen in one place just as easily as in another."

"In fact," said March grimly—"accidents will happen. I have often wondered what proportion of them were really murders."

It was not until they were having coffee under the cedar after lunch that any one mentioned the inspector's visit. It was Lisle who mentioned it and immediately had reason to wish that she had held her tongue.

Alicia yawned ostentatiously.

Rafe—what had happened to Rafe? Something—but she couldn't have said what. She was not looking at him, or he at her, but for a fantastic moment it was just as if a wire ran tightly stretched between them and from his end of it there had come—well, that was just it, she didn't know what. Shock—anger—surprise—fear—a signal—a warning? She didn't know.

It was all over in a flash, and they had emerged into the reality of Dale's anger.

"March? When did he come?"

"This morning, when you were out."

Dale set down his coffee cup with a bang.

"And no one told me—no one thought it worth their while to mention it? What did he want—and why wasn't I told about it? Or didn't he want anything at all? A social visit, perhaps! Are we going to have that policeman walking in and out all day and every day?"

Rafe tilted his head back against the canvas of his chair.

"Probably. But why so heated? It might be worse. He's quite a nice chap when he isn't being a policeman, I should think."

"What did he want?"

"To see me—and Lisle."

"What for?"

Rafe's eyes were half shut. He gazed thru his lashes at the heavy green of the cedar overhead.

"Finger prints," he murmured—"on Lisle's coat, you know—some new process. Naturally the whole thing would be plastered with our prints. That's the worst of being such a united family."

"Mine—and Dale's," said Rafe amiably. "Possibly William's and Evans'—probably Lizzie's. A nice bag of tricks for our modern scientific police. You put 'em in a hat and shake 'em up, and then you put in your hand and pick your murderer."

Alicia said, "Really, Rafe!"

Dale laughed angrily.

"Quit fooling and tell me what happened!"

Rafe opened his eyes and sat up.

"O, nothing. We're all still here—no gyves on any wrist, tho I think he had his eyes on mine. You see, I helped Lisle on with that coat last time she wore it, and our imaginative inspector is all het up over some especially clear prints which I must have left on it then."

Dale stared at him in a kind of horror.

"You don't mean to say the man suspects one of us!"

Rafe Jerningham leaned sideway and stubbed out his cigaret on the short, dry turf.

"He has a nasty, suspicious mind," he said. "He'd suspect his own grandmother for twopence."

"But it's insane!" said Dale. "Cissie Cole. Good heavens—what possible motive could any of us have had?"

There was a pause. Lisle didn't look at any of them. She looked down at the dry turf between her feet—short, burnt grass with the color scorched out of it. It was in the shade now, but presently the sun would reach it again. The shadow of the cedar would shift away from it and the scorching would go on. She heard Rafe say in his pleasant, casual voice:

"O, one can always think up a motive. In March's place, I could produce half a dozen."

After a moment Dale said in a horrified tone:

"Rafe, you don't seriously mean——"

Rafe got up.

"March does. He hasn't got any evidence of course—he'd never dare take those prints to a jury. He knows that, and he knows that I know it. We had quite a pretty fencing match—honors easy. But we'll have to watch our step, I think. All of us."

Alicia Steyne turned her eyes upon him. He was smiling, a hand in his pocket getting out a cigaret case. She said in her high, sweet voice:

"Why have you gone back to that old battered thing? What have you done with the one Lisle gave you for your birthday?"

With the shabby old case in his hand he smiled at her. Then he snapped it open and took out a cigaret.

"It's gone missing. It will turn up again all right."

"Missing? Since when?"

"O, a day or two. Have you seen it?"

Alicia looked at him, then she looked away.

"Perhaps."

"Mysterious—aren't you? Well, I'm not offering a reward, so it's no good your holding on for one." He strolled away.

Rafe a Perfect Picture of Idle Young Man

From where she sat Lisle could see glimpses of his light shirt among the trees on the seaward slope. He walked slowly, aimlessly—the perfect picture of an idle young man with the whole summer afternoon to idle in. But there was the funeral—Cissie's funeral——

Suddenly she felt as if she could not sit here any longer between Dale and Alicia. She got up.

Dale said at once, "Where are you going?"

"I thought I woud rest for a little before the funeral."

"Wait a minute. You saw March, too?"

"Yes."

"What did he say to you—what did he want to know?"

"Very little, Dale—just when I wore the coat last, and whether any of you had touched me when I was wearing it."

"And you said?"

"Rafe helped me on with it—I told him that."

"Well, if it comes to that, I suppose we all touched you."

She shook her head.

"Not while I was wearing the coat."

He laughed and looked up at her, all his anger gone.

"Darling, I'd just got home—we'd had a most affectionate meeting."

She began to move away.

"I wasn't wearing the coat then. Rafe brought it to me afterward."

When she had reached the terrace she looked back. The shadow of the cedar had shifted. Dale was still in it, but the sun touched Alicia. At the instant in which Lisle turned she saw Alicia's hand go up with something bright in it. It dazzled and flew from her to Dale. He reached forward and caught it.

As Lisle went into the house she

What Has Gone Before

Lisle Jerningham, bride of six months, is upset because she has overheard gossip that her husband, Dale, killed his first wife for her money and made it appear an accident. And it is hinted that he tried to kill Lisle recently when she almost drowned. Returning home from a week-end party where she heard the gossip, Lisle meets Miss Maud Silver, a special investigator, on the train and confides to her what she overheard. Miss Silver gives Lisle her business card. Dale finds the card afterward in Lisle's purse but does not tell his wife. Lisle's life at Tanfield, the Jerningham estate, which has been in the family for 500 years, is difficult. Dale insists on pouring money into the upkeep of the place, tho he could easily sell it and move to a smaller, less expensive home. He has spent all his first wife's money and is now spending Lisle's. His cousins, Rafe and Alicia, are staying with them, and Alicia, in love with Dale, openly hates Lisle. Lisle, having no near relatives, has willed the bulk of her money to Dale, tho Rafe is named as one of the beneficiaries. She is more upset than ever when she narrowly escapes death a second time as the steering gear of her car gives way. Dale hints the car was tampered with by Pell, a mechanic whom he fired because of his affair with a local girl, Cissie Cole. Lisle gives Cissie a coat to cheer her, and the next day Cissie, wearing Lisle's coat, is found dead at the foot of a cliff. Pell is suspected as her murderer, but Dale and Alicia were also on the cliff that night, and Rafe admits he walked along the beach near by. Lisle makes an appointment with Miss Silver but has to break it. Miss Silver decides to take her vacation and come to the inquest. The verdict at the inquest is willful murder. The police inspector tells Miss Silver that finger prints of Pell, Dale, and even Rafe were found on the coat Cissie was wearing and that Rafe's were the most recent. Miss Silver begs Lisle to change her will, leaving everything to charity, and to announce to the Jerninghams the change she has made. Rafe admits to the inspector that a short cut could have been taken by him to the scene of the murder in time for him to have been the murderer.

Cooking Editor Investigates the Supply of Spices

The Shortages No Threat to the Housewife

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

We've been reading a lot about the skyrocketing cost of certain spices, due to the international situation and curtailment of imports. Some women have rushed out to lay in a stock of seasonings in order to be prepared for the worst, a rather foolish thing to do under any circumstances, since spices and herbs lose pungency on standing and, under ideal circumstances, should be bought fresh every six months.

I made a little investigation of the spice situation, and from representatives of the American Spice Trade association obtained the following information.

The spice shortage is a serious problem to canners and meat packers especially, but in general does not affect the housewife.

The household package of spice will be a bit smaller, but probably will sell for the same price. This shouldn't be of concern to the housewife, I think, for it's seldom that she uses an entire package of spices or herbs while they're still fresh and pungent.

Sausage makers, manufacturers of scrapple and other sage flavored meats are really in distress. Sage, which used to come from Dalmatia, isn't being imported at all. And we used to import seven million pounds a year! Meat packers are paying $1.50 a pound for sage, wholesale, when they can get it. Some of them have contracts for large amounts of sausage for the army, and these contracts specify "pure, natural sage" flavoring.

Marjoram, mostly a Mediterranean herb, isn't coming in from Europe any more, but we're able to get supplies from Chile. Mediterranean countries used to supply us with bay leaves, too, which now are brought in from Guatemala.

Mustard always has grown in this country, altho we imported some from England, the continent, and the orient. Now we're thrown back upon our own supplies entirely. California, Montana, Washington, and Idaho will keep our mustard cans filled.

No Hungarian paprika comes to us any more, but there still is some from Spain. California supplies some, and spice experts think Illinois is a potential producer. A Louisiana experiment in paprika [ground from a sweet pepper] was ruined by a cyclone which unfortunately laid waste the first year's crop.

The best celery seed always came from France, but we have domestic supplies and some comes into New York harbor from India via the Cape of Good Hope. Celery seed doesn't come from the kind of celery plant we use every day. It's something more special.

Much of our mace, nutmeg, and ginger always has come from the West Indies. We still get it when priorities permit. Cloves, cinnamon, and pepper, mostly East Indian spices, ride the Pacific waters to our western coasts when there are boats to carry them and when priorities permit.

There are huge supplies of pepper on hand. New York is now the pepper center of the world, almost all the stocks of this spice passing thru our hands.

I don't think any of us homebodies need worry about spice shortages.

Grace R. Bryant and John E. Best Married

The marriage of Mrs. Grace Roblin Bryant of Elmira, N. Y., and John E. Best of Cicero took place on June 13. Mr. and Mrs. Best left for a wedding trip to the Pacific coast. The bride is the widow of the late Frank M. Bryant of Elmira.

Numerology

By Evelyn Holmes

July 20, 1941.

Universal day—A "home" day. Take comfort at home and help to keep things harmonious.

Special numbers—In general, the odd numbers are considered more fortunate than the even numbers. Nine is considered fortunate, thirteen can be classed as lucky for some things while 22 is very unfortunate. One shouldn't choose nine, 12, 13 or 22 for a house number. It is interesting to check up on the names of ships. Sailors are superstitious and avoid certain numbers by instinct. It depends so much on what you use the numbers on what type of number to choose. You want your home peaceful and protected, your love affairs more stimulating so the prosaic numbers wouldn't be good, but on trips you want safe numbers. What is a lucky number for you might be very unlucky for some one else, depending upon your birth numbers.

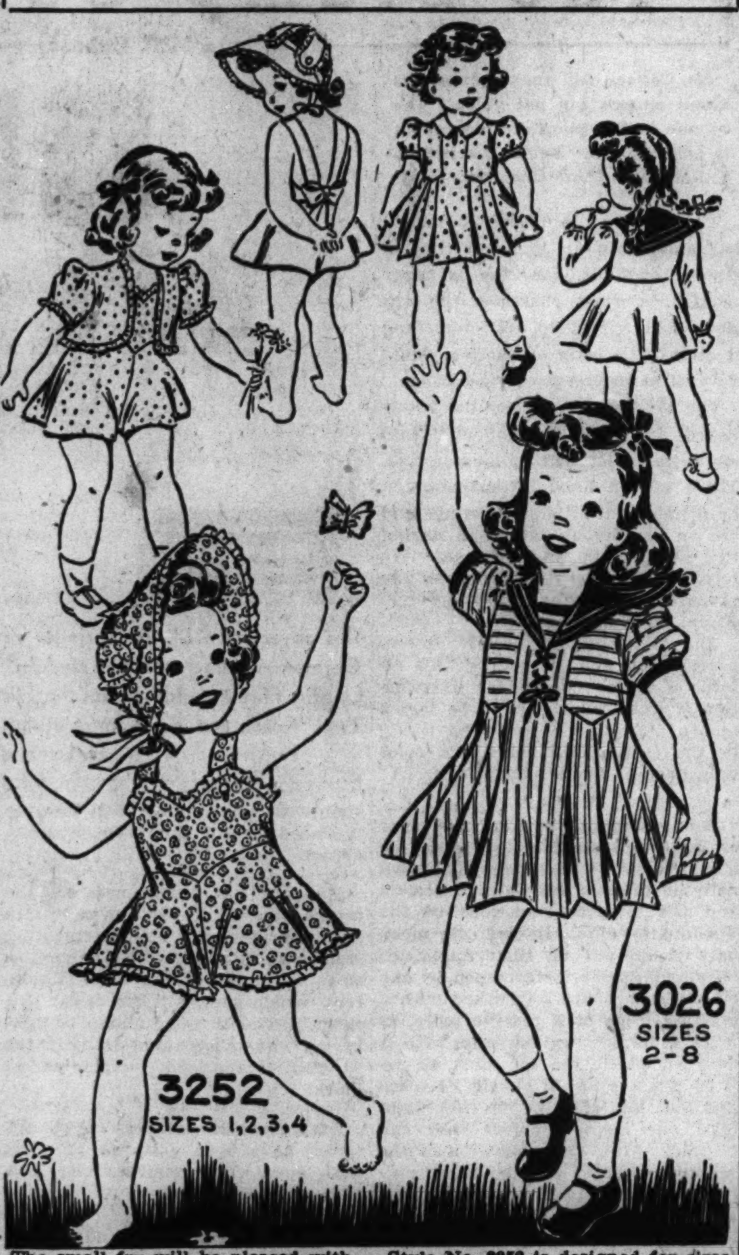
Children's Pattern



The small fry will be pleased with these two patterns, which will offer the smartness they like. And mother will appreciate the designs, too, because they're easy to make and require a minimum of material. At the left is a sunsuit with matching bolero and sun bonnet. Contrasting or self-material ruffling is the only trimming on this comfortable little romper.

Right, a frock with nautical lines as smart as those big sister is wearing these days. There's a sailor collar, sailor suit "dicky," and the real thing in lacings. The skirt is plaited in a crisply tailored manner.

Style No. 3252 is designed for sizes 1, 2, 3, and 4.

Style No. 3026 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

The Ridge Farm benefit last week at the Walter Murphy estate in Lake Forest was virtually a "come-as-you-please" party, with the two extremes of country casuals and the more formal afternoon costumes represented by Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Howard. At the children's fiesta preceding the fashion show, Mrs. Douglas was wearing a spectator sports dress of bottle green, red, and white linen, appliqued from neckline to hem in a chain of red flowers which divided it into green and white panels. Quite in contrast was Mrs. Howard's pale olive crêpe gown printed in carnation red flowers. The little hat which matched it exactly was of olive straw trimmed with tiny red carnations and tied with trailing green veiling. . . . Tyrolean fashions inspired the charming gown which Miss Annie Lawrie Ryerson wore to the party. Over her white sheer dress with loosely gathered sleeves, embroidered in an all-over pattern of tiny Alpine flowers, went a cerise taffeta bodice, peasant style. Her rôle in the fashion show was to model a striking white silk jersey bathing suit paneled in scarlet and aqua, and topped by a scarlet coat. . . . One of the most unusual costumes in the fashion show was Miss Ann Carpenter's barbecue apron, a pinafore of barber pole stripes in red and white over a white blouse. The two stitched potholders in navy blue which dangled by cords from her waist were miniatures of the apron's heart shaped bib.

Among the first models to come down the grassy runway in the Murphy garden was Miss Lee Cudahy, a hunter's green jacket over her Guatemala print gown with little stylized figures in green, red, yellow, and white. More of the print material was twisted into a matching turban. Another stunning print gown was Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams' café au lait crêpe stenciled in chocolate brown leaves and worn under a monotone coat. . . . For romantic evenings there were Mrs. Joseph C. Belden Jr.'s shell pink chiffon gown with angel wing sleeves; Miss Eleanor Cochran's demure Quaker cut gown of black and white stripes on marquisette with silk roses at the waist; and young Mrs. De Witt Buchanan's pink skirted dance dress with black lace bodice. . . . But none of the older models outshone subdebutante Kyle Adams, who floated by in a white piqué evening gown appliqued in huge, quilted, red poppies. The white piqué ruffles about the bodice and hem were edged in red rickrack braid.

Miss Muriel MacChesney, a debutante of last season, recently wore a stunning fitted red wool coat over a delft blue and white printed sports dress for an afternoon at Arlington Park. Another attractive race fan in the Post and Paddock club that same afternoon was Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin in a mustard wool dressmaker coat with a red straw "flower pot" hat, something like the one Helen Hayes wore as Viola in "Twelfth Night." A "yummy" color combination, some one described it.

Strolling down Michigan avenue the other day I saw petite Mrs. Douglas Buchanan, looking trim and charming, and as cool as a cucumber, even tho the day was hottish. She wore a black wool coat, buttoned like a cardigan sweater, with small white saddle stitching along the edge. Her crownless black felt hat had the same sort of stitching around the brim, and her black and white checked silk dress had its neckline outlined with the saddle stitching. The checks were tiny, just right for such a little person as Mrs. Buchanan. . . . Lovely, blonde, Barbara White, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward W. White, was a "dream" at a recent dance in Lake Geneva. She wore a slick white linen evening gown with a deep band of russet brown at the bottom of the flaring skirt and a generous sash of the same brown linen. The neckline was heart shaped and the sleeves, believe it or not, were long. Over her heart was a monogram in brown. Her sandals were brown, too, altho I've seen her wearing white ones with this particular gown. White orchids were in her hair, which she wears in a long bob, parted in the middle. . . . Miss White is so fond of the combination of russet brown and white that she has a daytime outfit of the same. Gray and yellow make a cool, pretty summer color combination, and I'm sure many well dressed women and girls must have outfits of this, but for the moment, I cannot think of one person I've seen wearing it this season.

Mrs. Douglas Buchanan.

Miss Jane Zimmerman, who spends her summers at Lake Geneva, sometimes wears a misty, fragile creation of gray chiffon with panels of rose chiffon, that is enchanting with her fluffy blonde hair. The shoulder straps and the low décolletage are softly shirred. Another of Miss Zimmerman's stunning evening gowns is of heavy white crêpe with a tomato colored top.

Seen at the races at Arlington Park recently was Mrs. Alanson Donald in a dress that was distinctly "race-y," for animals in a shade of deep blue-green chased each other in horizontal stripes around and around her simple white frock. Mrs. Donald, as is her custom, was stockingless. . . . Miss Miriam O'Connell, also seen often at the Post and Paddock club, one day wore a stunning buttercup yellow silk dress, gathered at the waist, with a full skirt and long sleeves. Setting it off perfectly were masses of handwrought silver jewelry set with turquoises. . . . That same day Mrs. Frank A. Lagorio was wearing a dull sand-gray crêpe dress with long sleeves pulled to a cuff that reminded one of a nun's robe. With it she wore a wide brimmed hat of the same color, with brilliant red stripes that looked as if they were woven in, and this cheery color was picked up by an enormous brooch of rubies at the front of the dress. . . . Mrs. Harry H. Lobdell has one of the prettiest of race-going frocks. It is of white with a pattern of leaves woven in it. Mrs. John H. Merrell was seen at the track recently in a bright yellow and green print and flowered hat to match.

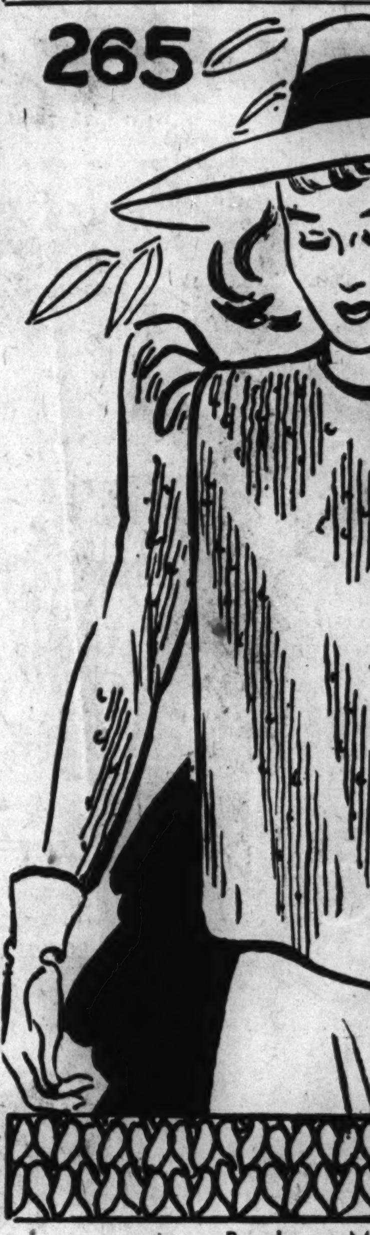
Simple Short Jacket



By Jean Macdonald.

Extra jackets are a necessity for any one in the fashion swim. Matching the dress in color, this jacket is knitted in a stockinette stitch and is fastened at the neckline with three large buttons. Instructions are available in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measurements.

For instructions in knitting the simple short jacket, No. 265, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Mrs. R. J. Keith on Music Clubs' National Board

Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president of the Illinois Federation of Music clubs, was elected to the national board of the National Federation of Music Clubs at its recent biennial convention at Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. Keith also was elected by the state presidents to the vice chairmanship of their national council.

The new national president is Mrs. Guy P. Gannett of Cape Elizabeth, Me. Mrs. Vincent Hilles Ober of Norfolk, Va., retiring president, remains on the board of directors.

Elizabeth Carroll Glenn of New York, young violinist, was national winner in her division of the young artists' contest and, besides the $1,000 prize, received the Schubert award involving appearances with the New York Philharmonic and Philadelphia orchestras. Two contraltos, Marie Louise Beltz of Belton, Tex., and Eula Beal of Los Angeles, Cal., divided the $1,000 prize in the voice department, altho neither was named a national winner.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

Sunday, July 20.

Excellent vibrations for planning the future in today's early hours. But avoid afternoon and evening clashes in realm of emotions. Week ahead calls for poise and patience, yet offers keen persons much of value to work with and for.

How We Learn.

That there is no fate in which man does not himself participate as choosing what he will have in the menu of destiny is shown by his power to choose which end of each planet's duality he will have. All negative choices are uncomfortable in the end. Man may choose violence, war, depravity, or any other negative if he wants. He will sooner or later learn thru suffering to choose positive.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from birthday today promises self-development, inner satisfaction if sought earnestly and honestly. Friends help; be coöperative; give yourself; welcome every one. Danger: Aug. 23-Sept. 6; Dec. 26-Jan. 7; May 26-June 10.

Tomorrow.

Background vibrations a bit tricky, but smaller items can be well improved.

Sally's Next Party to See a Stage Play

By Sally Joy Brown.

Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

One of the most famous little boys in history will be the center of attention at our next party. He's been known to young and old for many, many years and the story about him has been read all over the world.

I am sure that most of you boys and girls have enjoyed Charles Dickens' tale about the famous little orphan, "Oliver Twist," and here's your chance to see what he looked like in the flesh.

We're going to Agnes Marie Foley's studio-theater to see her talented young troupers, boys and girls of all ages, present the story of Oliver Twist. On July 31, 100 children will come with me to see a three act play taken from the famous old story and including all the important characters, wicked old Fagin, Nancy, and Bill Sikes, and the kind Mr. Brownlow.

There will be room for 50 boys and 50 girls in the charming little theater, which has a real stage and footlights, but is furnished with seating equipment which is just the right size for young people.

All of you youngsters who enjoy plays are eligible to try to win an invitation to our party on July 31. All you have to do is write a letter which will convince me that you'd have a really enjoyable time if you were chosen as my guest. You must remember, however, to write that letter all by yourself, and to be sure to include your full name, not just Bobby or Betty, your address, and your age.

Every letter will be read next Thursday morning, and the youngsters who win invitations will find their names and addresses listed in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

I'll tell you more about our play during the week, but of course, you don't have to wait to write your letter! As a matter of fact, if you do it right away, there's less chance that it might slip your mind until after the deadline, which would be tragic. The address is Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

• • •

Here's our second instalment of good news for you youngsters, that is, for those whose names are included in the following list. They're winners, and each will receive a personal invitation to see the Chicago Cubs play the Boston Braves on July 24. Be on the watch for the mailman, boys and girls, and I'll see you all on Thursday!

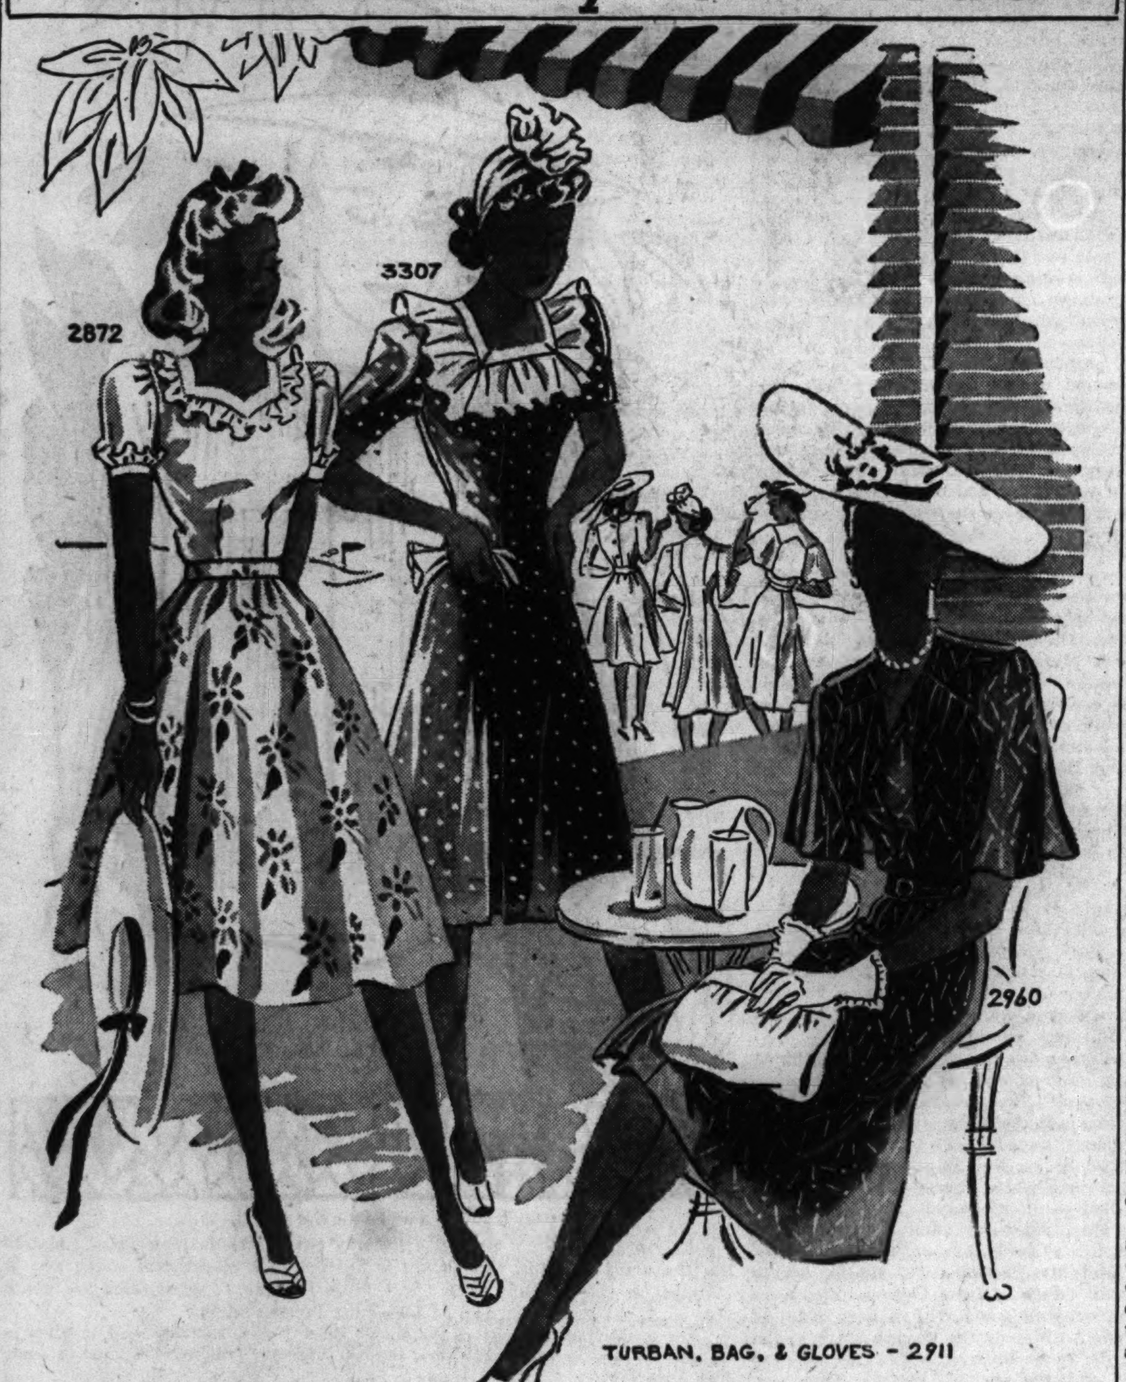
Patterns by Clotilde



There's a variety of summer fashions in our patterns today, which are designs for all figure types and for many moods.

At the left, a demure, shirtwaist-and-dirndl type of dress for the youthful figure, a mode which makes up beautifully in piqué, as well as other summertime fabrics. Combinations of plain colors and prints are tremendously effective, and self-fabric ruffles do honors at heart-shaped neckline and above sleeve binding.

Center, a princess line frock with contrasting bib collar. The neckline is square and the beruffled collar should harmonize with the main color of the dress, or with the dot, should you choose the suggested polka dotted material. Both sheers and heavier fabrics make up well, and either piqué or sharkskin is an excellent choice for the collar.

Right, a handsome, distinguished costume for the figure which usually is difficult to dress. Its long lines literally dissolve the extra inches of the silhouette, and the brief cape is a fashion touch in current favor. Since it's such a simple outfit, it well may carry a dashing hat with gloves and bag to match. The pattern for the accessories is:

No. 2911, available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2872 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19.

Style No. 3307 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements.

Style No. 2960 is designed for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, and 52 inch bust measurements.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

For 15 cents buy the summer Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to New York address in coupon.

Mothers Have Special Task During Summer

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

Vacation days are here once again with their long, warm, sunny days, and the stress of homework and the restrictions of the schoolroom are a thing of the past.

The whole outdoors becomes a playground, and parents, as a rule, bend over backwards to make the weeks happy ones for their children. But we can't just turn our boys and girls loose and let nature take over and keep them up to the mark physically. It's very essential that regular eating and sleeping habits be observed, for children play hard, put all they've got into what interests them at the moment, and will literally live in the water if they're not watched. They never realize fatigue in themselves; nor will they stop to eat, at the proper time, the right kinds of food. So we must be watchful and think for them in these respects.

The sun may prove to be an enemy instead of a friend unless we use common sense and take it in small doses. No child [or adult, for that matter] should have his body exposed to the full rays of the sun for any length of time the first time he dons a bathing suit or trunks. The sun dries up the natural moisture in the skin, burn doesn't show and isn't felt at the time, and the results of unwise exposure may sometimes be deep seated and lasting. There are many lotions on the market today to help nature in this respect; but, better still, if you watch the children carefully and use discretion the excessive burning and resulting pain will not occur.

And bear in mind that, altho the sun and salt water seem to cause quicker and redder burning, undue exposure near a lake, pond, or river can do plenty of damage. This holds true even when children stay at home and run about in wispy sunsuits.

Food is next on our list of suggestions for warm weather health.

Summer feeding of the baby usually is a matter of prime importance to all mothers these days and is seldom neglected, but the rest of the family doesn't always fare as well, and even runabout children aren't watched as they should be. When the weather is excessively hot and humid the tendency is to eat sketchily and to prepare food with a minimum of effort, without worrying too much about its real energy and vitamin balance. It's too easy to say, "We eat when we feel like it when vacation days arrive. We don't have any set meal time. Everybody is free to raid the ice box and take his choice," or, "We cook very little in the summer."

Such an arrangement may be all right if only adults are involved [altho even they need one substantial meal a day in summer], but it never can work out where children are concerned. The summer will work for their health if mothers do their share to help things along. And one of the things to be done is to see to it that children have the proper foods in the proper proportions all the year 'round. Too much cold food, too many cold drinks, and too many sweets, whether they are at home or abroad at the seashore or in the mountains, do much to tear down rather than build up the children against the coming fall and winter months.

A child usually plays hard and doesn't recognize weariness. If his mother doesn't mention rest thru the day he'll keep on from dawn until dusk without let-up.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The Washington Philatelic society has announced an informal type of stamp auctions for the summer months. Certain phases of the auctions will appeal to collectors, and it seems this form of auction would go well at meetings of local clubs.

The Washington society has established an "Auction Hopper" into which go all lots put up by members. These are on hand for examination by members at all club meetings and are on continuous exhibition during the week prior to their sale. No formal catalogs of these items are prepared, according to Albert F. Kunze, club auctioneer.

The Washington society meets every week and, of course, this affords a better chance for examination of items which are to be sold a month after their entry than would be the case with clubs which meet only once or twice a month.

It is possible that clubs could adopt an auction system which would be a combination of the well known daily auctions of the Chicago dealers and the informal auctions of the Washington club. In this case members would put up their duplicates on standard sheets furnished by the club. Each would be marked with a starting price or a reserve price, as it is sometimes called, and with a date at which the lot must be retired if not sold. It should be specified that lots must be on view at at least one meeting before they can be sold. After the expiration of the minimum period any member may call for any lot to be put up for sale. A single bid above the starting price would constitute a sale. In the event the system of entering bids on the sheets is used, a single increase at the oral auction would constitute a sale.

The usual club rules would govern at such auctions. These should provide a commission of 10, 15, or 20 per cent for handling the sale, and a flat fee for the charge on lots which remain unsold on the retirement date. Bids should be specified to be made in multiples of 5 cents up to $1, in multiples of 10 cents up to $5, and in multiples of 25 cents thereafter. All transactions should be for cash, and the successful bidders should claim their lots at the close of the auction, pay for them, and remove them from the premises

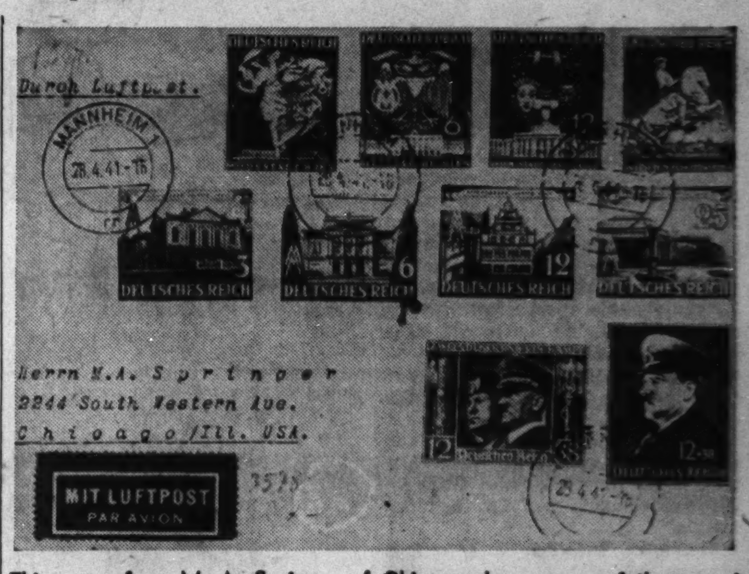
Since this type of auction is conducted without a licensed auctioneer, clubs in the state of Illinois should not accept lots or bids from nonmembers. Other states may have laws which differ. The institution of this form of auction should have some beneficial effect upon attendance at meetings since those who want certain lots may find that the stamps were put up for sale while they were absent.

In connection with stamp auctions it is hoped all may modify their systems so that buyers will not be compelled to wait thru the sale of several hundred lots to obtain those which were purchased at the start of the sale. At present it is usually necessary for bidders on United States stamps to wait around until the sale is ended before they can pay and depart.



This cover from M. A. Springer of Chicago shows some of the recent German commemorative stamps. There are sets from Vienna and Leipzig fairs in addition to the Hitler birthday issue for 1941, and the Zwei Volker und Ein Kampe stamp showing the conjoined portraits of Hitler and Mussolini.

Hungary has commemorated the return of southern provinces lost in the World war by overprinting stamps of 10 and 20 filler denominations with the words "Del Visszater," which means "The South Returns." The 10 filler stamp is light brown and overprinted in red; the 20 filler is red and overprinted in black.

At present 10 numbers of the 800 series have been assigned to army postoffices. The numbers and locations are as follows:

801—Newfoundland.
801-A—Argentia, Newfoundland.
802—Bermuda.
803—Trinidad.
804—Jamaica.
805—St. Lucia.
806—Antigua.
807—British Guiana.
808—Bahamas.
809—Location not announced.

According to Edgar C. Hanford, writing in Stamps, British censorship will be applied to letters addressed to an American army base when the APO number is not included in the address. Where the APO number is included in the address the letter will be subject to censorship by army authorities only.

The postoffice department announces that 99,896 covers were postmarked at Washington when the new 6 cent air mail stamp was placed on first day sale June 25. Stamp sales amounted to 115,257 copies at the Washington postoffice, and 112,614 copies at the philatelic agency, a total of 227,871 copies for which $13,672.26 was received.

Sales of the philatelic agency for the fiscal year ending June 30 amounted to $1,157,985.20.

A provision in a bill recently enacted by congress will require that all migratory bird hunting stamps remaining unsold at the end of the fiscal year be placed on sale at the philatelic agency. This provision will add extra work to that handled by the agency, and it will be necessary to call back all unsold stamps at various postoffices.

In the spring of 1939 this department had the pleasure of announcing the 1940 edition of the American Air Mail catalog. Now comes a supplement to this famous work which brings it up to date. The supplement is intended primarily for use with the 1940 catalog, and contains additional facts recently discovered, as well as corrections and price changes.

In addition, however, there is a complete listing of all new flights made since April, 1939. The supplement is available in paper and in fabricoid binding at the publication office of the American Air Mail society, Albion, Pa.

The Philatelic truck of the Postoffice department which will be on view in Chicago July 22 thru July 26 will be located on the Congress street plaza, just east of Michigan avenue. It will open at noon Tuesday and at 9 a. m. on the following days and remain open until 5 p. m. each day. Children are encouraged to visit the exhibit on one of the first four days as the final day will be set aside for senior collectors. All visitors will receive a souvenir label commemorating the exhibit.

J. T. Gaydos, 1437 Gregory street, will have cachets for the initial trips of the new streamliners, City of Los Angeles and City of San Francisco, of the Chicago & North Western and Union Pacific railroads the latter part of this month. Send covers at once.

Household Forum

by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some favorite household help; something that lightens labor and gets results? Is there some comfort or convenience you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Dorothy M., Chicago—Seems as if ideas for use of our waxed paper milk containers are springing up on all sides. I made some handy flower pots from some of mine last month. Cut them from the top to within four inches of the bottom and they serve the purpose nicely.

Freda M., Milwaukee—My husband "crimps" the edges of my cake tins and this keeps them from sticking together and taking time to separate. Any one who has trouble separating stacked cake tins when batter is ready to bake will find this "crimping" a help.

* *

E. M. C., Chicago—Friend husband discovered that empty shoe polish cans were just the thing to use to carry moistened gut fish line leaders. First he cuts a piece of blotting paper, moistens it and fits it into bottom and lid of can. This will keep the leaders in fit shape for quite some time. These polish cans are easy to open and close snugly.

* *

Anna M., Racine, Wis.—Wouldn't it be a fine idea if all shoes were manufactured with air conditioned rubber heels? Such heels to be built on the balloon tire principle so that the compressed air might take the jolts.

* *

Mrs. Ellen Ray, Chicago—I use my refrigerator trays to carry ground meat to a picnic. I freeze it in trays for several hours and then when it reaches the picnic ground it is ready to be sliced into hamburgers and cooked on the spot. We always build a fire wherever we park. If you picnic in fireless fashion this suggestion is "out."

* *

Mrs. Lillian M., Evanston—I had a lot of trouble keeping my potted flowers from getting knocked off our porch railing. My son had a bright idea. He drove some 3 inch nails into rail top and flower pot holes can be slipped over them easily. These nails do the work and my flower pots "stay put" now.

* *

N. A., Chicago—Keep a package of large white blotters in a buffet drawer and you'll find it will come in handy when liquids are spilled on the table.

* *

Teresa G., Valparaiso, Ind.—I paste an envelope inside my box of stationery and keep my stamps in it. Since I first tried this I never have to "go hunting" for my stamps.

* *

Mrs. D. Dean, Chicago — Wonder why no one has ever thought of popularizing a transparent type of thread that you could sew on any color material? I'm sure it would be a best seller.

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. Result, many brides use overstrong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues. Today, there is no need to use such deadly solutions. Science has given us Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal daintiness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Book Tells Intimate Facts. Give your daughter this frankly written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today," which you can get FREE, sent to you postpaid in plain wrapper. Wagon Wheel Medallion

By Ellen Bruce.

Here is a crocheted wagon wheel medallion which is designed to break all speed records in crochet time. One little medallion may be created in about 10 minutes by the average crochet worker, and the expert can name her own time. It is simple, attractive, and thoroly original in design. Ivory, mercerized, crochet cotton is the medium suggested for luncheon doilies.

For instructions in crocheting the wagon wheel medallion, No. 961, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Colonial Beauty Pervades a New Home in La Grange

Lady of the House

Just Grass.

I have always liked grass—just plain green grass. I liked to roll on it when a child, and the feel of it against my bare feet, hot from sand and sun. I liked to wade in it and find the wild strawberries hidden deep among its stems, and pick the wild flowers nodding brightly above it.

I still like grass—leaves, stems, flowers, and seed tops—altho I know only a few of the cumbersome Latinish names that belong to the numerous grasses that grace our countryside. There is something about a field of timothy and redtop and clover falling in fragrant windrows beneath the shining blades of the mowers that stirs nostalgic memories.

Long ago I learned to include some grasses in my little bouquets and recently I have been able to make some cool and even colorful arrangements of grasses alone. There is really a deal of other color in our "green" grasses. I don't mean the dainty little blue eyed and other flowering grasses of the spring, but the infinitely varied shades of summer and autumn grasses, which, as you know, include the cereal grains.

The slender spikes of timothy, like wee cattails, the bearded ears of barley and wheat, panicles of oats and wild rice, dainty colorful redtop and others of its ilk, marsh grasses, ribbon grass, and a host of others of the thousands of species that make up this important family lend themselves admirably to filling in flower arrangements. There is something as enticingly cool about a crystal bowl filled with grasses as a crisply iced green salad on a hot day.

Buddies.

"Hi, Dan, come back! A lady came to the door," shouted the chubby dark eyed lad who, gun in hand, went dashing after the man going down the step as I opened the door to his ring. Grandpa Dan came back and in the course of stating his errand I learned how much this old man and bright eyed youngster meant to each other. As the little fellow proudly explained that the gun was "not an automatic, but a superdefense" my thoughts involuntarily flew to other little boys playing war games some 20 odd years ago.

Nessberries Again.

The neseberries are as you described them, somewhat similar to the crab apple, or perhaps very much like a large sized haw apple. The nessberry, however, is a hybrid berry the result of a cross between the raspberry and the dewberry or blackberry. A botanist named Ness of the Texas agricultural experiment station turned the trick on this one.

—ADAMANDRA PORWIT.

Patience Rewarded.

After weeks of coaxing with fat sunflower seeds, watchful waiting and much disappointment, the cardinal family—mama, papa, and today, baby—now eat off my kitchen window ledge. They come for early breakfast and at intervals during the day. A day or two ago they had lunch with me, and it was worth the long wait to see them bob their bright heads and peek thru the window as they crunched their seeds.

—W. M.

Gypsy Jam.

Remember how that tantalizing summer fragrance from fields and woods used to lure us to go "berrying"? The wild strawberry, first and best. Then raspberries, blueberries, huckleberries, pin cherry and wild black cherry, blackberry, Indian berry, wild plum, grape, elderberry. Even wild gooseberries and currants. Thornapple and little wild crab apples.

I am away behind this year and feel that summer has stolen a march on me sending everything along so early. So I must get what plunder I can where it is spread for the taking and make some gypsy jams and jellies to embellish next winter's teas. I want to try wintergreen, either from the berries or the leaves after the method of mint jelly. I remember that somewhere in my collection there is a rule for that. Also the suggestion that checkerberries may be used in any fruit salad to give it added interest, and that they are delicious cooked in sugar syrup and candied like orange peel.

Preserving Cheeses.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Young and fresh and gay, just like the scent she uses to help her defeat the heat! A new family of daintifiers, ranging from soap to bath bubbles, is especially designed to bolster feminine charm and keep your spirits high.

If you like beautiful containers, a fragrance that seems to sing, and bath glorifiers that help you feel downright orchidaceous, you'll want to become acquainted, intimately, with a new family of aids to dainty loveliness.

These are strictly of the gives-you-a-lift school. The boxes are gay but restful, in pink and blue pastels with an enchanting, filmy sort of design, slim elms swaying in a breeze, elusive dryads releasing skylarks from their earthbound captivity. Pretty, feminine, and somehow significant! They convey the spirit lifting quality of their contents.

The fragrance that runs thru this new family of daintifiers is the kind that takes your blue moods right out of the cellar for a skyride. It's cooling, refreshing, and what the younger set would describe as gay-making. You can't quite analyze it as a perfume. You'd have to be a scent detective of the greatest skill to name its base. It's a blend of flowers and freshness, and a nice little high note of zestfulness that makes it a perfect summer choice.

• • •

Here are the members of the royal family: First, the concentrated perfume in two sizes; then, what's called "lilting fragrance," your daytime scenting agent that you can use lavishly after your bath or whenever you want to freshen up; there is dusting powder, feathery and highly fragrant; talc, soap, and wonderful bath bubbles. These last deserve special mention. They billow like mad and, of course, scent the water, and you! They're just what you want when you're in the mood for a leisurely, luxury bath.

You can even carry this scent harmony to face powder. It's in five quite beautiful shades, and its texture, like its perfume, will enchant you.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: As usually given, the definitions of grand coups, and grand coups of the double or triple variety, are vague and ambiguous. For example, does each trump shortening have to arise from the ruffing of an otherwise good trick in order to count in the evaluation of the 'order' of the coup? Does the shortening count if it arises from an opponent's lead of a suit that dummy could not have led? I should like your precise terminology for the following hand which I played in the South position in a recent rubber game.

"North dealer.

"North-South vulnerable.

"The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	1 no trump	2 clubs	Pass
2 diamonds	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 hearts	Pass
Pass	Double [!]	4 clubs	Pass
Pass	Double [final bid]

"Of course, West's first pass probably cost his side a game in spades, but East's clever double of the makeable heart contract helped to salvage something. His initial no trump bid, coupled with his double, led me to believe that the heart contract would be slaughtered, and so I blithely tried to rescue at four clubs. The only way in which I can rationalize this bid is that it led to more interesting play than the correct pass would have.

"West opened the heart ace, and for some reason shifted to a trump. East ducked, and I won with the eight. The king of clubs was won by East, who continued his coöperation by leading the king, ace, and five of spades. This enabled me to prepare for the coup by shortening my trumps once. The ace of diamonds was followed by the queen, which East covered. [Hence my second trump-shortening resulted from the ruffing of a trick which was not otherwise good.] A heart entry enabled me to ruff another diamond [this time a good one] and the last high heart enabled me to lead a diamond from North thru East's J-3 of clubs to my Q-10.

"Do you call this a simple, double, or triple grand coup?—L. R. W., Chicago."

The original and puristic definition of "grand coup," whether of the single, double, or triple variety, was the shortening of a too-long trump suit thru the deliberate ruffing of winning tricks. Since, however, the mechanics of this interesting play are precisely the same whether the ruffed card is a winner or a loser, a more liberal and logical definition has come into vogue. Now experts refer to a grand coup as the process of shortening their own trump suit thru the ruffing of cards in dummy, and it does not matter whether the said cards are high or low.

Referring to my correspondent's actual hand, I can understand that he was well pleased to hold his loss to a minimum, but was this not very much of a Pyrrhic victory? After all, he did go down, whereas the three heart contract that he took his partner out of would have been fulfilled against any ordinary defense. Indeed, the most interesting feature of the entire deal is the highly extraordinary, even brilliant, defense that would have had to be waged against a three heart doubled contract. Unquestionably, East would open the king and ace of spades, but he would have to tread warily from that point. If he continued with the five of spades, declarer [North in that case] would get rid of his singleton club, and thereafter routine play, including the ruffing out of East's diamond king, would bring home the contract. There would, however, be two ways to defeat a three heart contract—both of them requiring the closest sort of coöperation between East and West. One way would be to cash two spades and the club ace. Then East could lead another club, which West would have to ruff with the ace. Now East would still be assured of a trump trick. The second way would be for East to cash the two top spades and the club ace, then to continue with the spade five. Later, when West got in with the heart ace, he would lead a fourth round of spades and East would be assured of a heart trick on an overruff.

Weighing all the pros and cons, however, it must be seen that the normal contract, three hearts, had a far better chance for success than the four club contract which was reached only because of South's remarkable "rescue bid."

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

There are no trumps, and South leads. North and South are to win five tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads spade ten, North discarding the eight of clubs. South follows with heart five, and West lets North win with the ten. North leads club ten; East plays queen, West discarding heart six. East leads the spade, which South wins, North discarding a diamond. Then South leads the club seven. West can take his choice of a discard.

The spade and then the diamond saves the trick. If West lets go the spade first, North lets the club seven hold; a situation provided for on the first trick. South makes his spade four and loses the heart. If West discards the diamond, North overtakes the seven of clubs and makes the four of diamonds, losing a club at the end to East's six.

The Magic of Color Evident in This House

By Edith Weigle.

The story of color and what it does to bring beauty to a home is most interestingly told in a brand new house in La Grange. The six rooms are furnished in colonial American, woods being, for the most part, dark mahogany. Wall, floor, and window treatments are kept light and delicately colorful.

The woodwork and the ceilings thruout are white, and on the first floor the living and dining room windows are charmingly hung in old fashioned white embroidered mull, caught back over large gold button knobs. This material, light and airy, is ideal for summer rooms.

In the living room one large window looks out on the rear lawn and is flanked by built-in bookshelves with lower cabinets. The photograph today shows the fireplace wall of this room, which is painted a subtle, light green, the mantel being white. The textured wall to wall carpeting picks up this green in a deeper tone.

A pair of rose flowered armchairs is placed at right angles to the hearth. Note that the tables beside these chairs do not match, nor is it necessary to place on them matching lamps. It's often much more interesting to use a lamp on one, a bowl of flowers on the other.

The mantel decor is especially delightful for summer. At either end of the shelf are yellow Chinese vases on black teakwood stands, filled with green huckleberry, and between them are three small Chinese bowls, also filled with greenery. Above hangs a large, decorative Audubon print of crested birds.

On the opposite wall is a graceful mahogany couch upholstered in a wide gray and gold stripe. Matching end tables hold white porcelain lamps whose white silk shades are topped with rose ruffles. The fourth wall is centered by a window looking out on the front lawn. On one side of this window is a fine copy of a small Sheraton tambour slide writing desk; on the other, a mahogany table which holds a bowl of flowers. Above it is a handsome gold mirror.

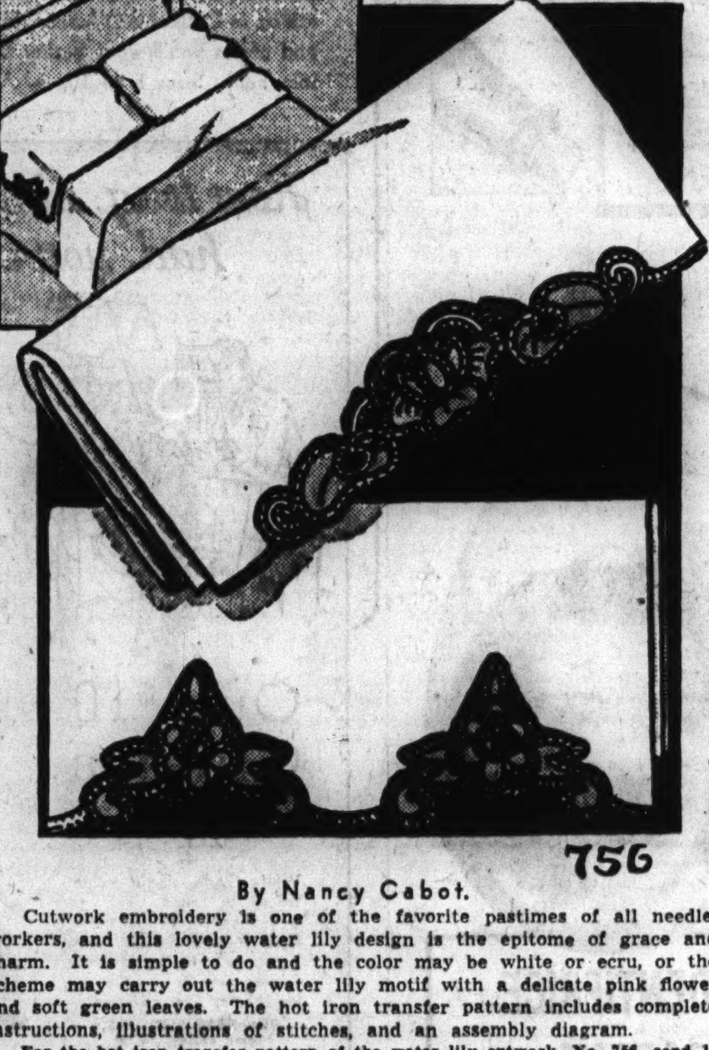
In the basement is another living room for informal occasions and so attractive is it with its blue walls, fireplace, comfortable early American furniture finished in a soft gray-beige and its small hidden-away bar and game table that it will probably be the favorite gathering place of the family.

Will describe the other rooms in this home at a later date. In the meantime you can see it for yourself by driving to 345 North Malden avenue in La Grange. It is owned by the men and women of St. Francis Xavier parish. An admission charge of 10 cents made to see this house and it is open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Letitia Park Holt Is Engaged to Le Roy Herbst

The engagement of Miss Letitia Park Holt to Le Roy Herbst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Bernard Herbst of Oglesby avenue, was announced at a luncheon recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Holt of Elkhart, Ind. Mrs. Herbst will give a luncheon at the Camellia house on Saturday for Miss Holt, who is arriving from Elkhart with her mother. Miss Holt was graduated from Stephens college and from the University of Illinois, where her fiancé also received his degree.

Cutwork Embroidery



By Nancy Cabot.

Cutwork embroidery is one of the favorite pastimes of all needleworkers, and this lovely water lily design is the epitome of grace and charm. It is simple to do and the color may be white or ecru, or the scheme may carry out the water lily motif with a delicate pink flower and soft green leaves. The hot iron transfer pattern includes complete instructions, illustrations of stitches, and an assembly diagram.

For the hot iron transfer pattern of the water lily cutwork, No. 756, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Pale green, rose and gold with touches of white in draperies and woodwork make this living room in a newly built La Grange home most artistic. Open for public inspection, the house is at 345 North Malden avenue.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor]—There seem to be cracks in our foundation walls, opening up of joints between basement walls and floor, and the result is that we have a wet basement. What can we do for this trouble?

J. K.

Answer: You can fill in wall and floor joints with elastic material, calk all cracks and point up mortar joints. There are first aid remedies for all these troubles. See your waterproofing expert or contact local point supply or building materials dealer.

Springfield, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor]—Is stone veneer a satisfactory material for outside walls? How should concrete or cinder concrete block be treated and how laid if used for outside walls?

HAROLD T.

Answer: Stone veneer is highly decorative and satisfactory if properly used. Concrete or cinder concrete block can be painted or whitewashed. They can be laid in random sizes and courses to give the appearance of irregularly cut stone walls.

* *

Elgin, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor]—We have a flat roof over an outside porch and would like to cover it in some way so we can use it. Are there canvas materials suited to the purpose and what finish should they have?

JOE T.

Answer: Use a special high grade deck canvas especially suited for such use. You can give it several coats of paint.

Lottie H. Wertheim and William Daniel Betrothed

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Wertheim of Zurich, Switzerland, announce the engagement of their daughter, Lottie Hanna Wertheim of Waterbury, Conn., to William M. Daniel of Rockford. The wedding will take place early in September in New York City.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

The folks who distribute fashions to the nation report from all corners of our country that women are going in for dressed-up clothes in a really big way. They don't mean evening clothes. They mean dresses to put on at any time a woman feels she wants to look her best. Tiered, tunic, and ruffled dresses, dresses trimmed with lace, dresses with low and pretty necklines, with soft jabots, with cape sleeves, dresses possessed of all the tricks of flattery are what women are going in for more and more. And the sheer black dress with any or all of these beautifying notions is one of the leading items in favor from coast to coast. Wide brimmed hats, or hats with softly ruffled or otherwise undulating brims, are the most sought-after millinery.

What this means is that the women of America are making a fashion, a new and exciting style, and one which all the experts I have talked to say will be bigger and better next fall and winter.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, with Ease for Stomach, too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, stomach upset, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative-Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with Syrup Pepsin for perfect ease to your stomach in taking. For years, many Doctors have given pepsin preparations in their prescriptions to make medicine more agreeable to a touchy stomach. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully the Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines to bring welcome relief from constipation. And the good old Syrup Pepsin makes this laxative so comfortable and easy on your stomach. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist today. Try one laxative combined with Syrup Pepsin for ease to your stomach, too.

Legion Auxiliary to Discuss Its Conclave Plans

Plans for the annual convention of the Illinois department, American Legion auxiliary, to be held Aug. 23 to 25 at Springfield, Ill., will be discussed by the Cook county council of the auxiliary Friday afternoon, Aug. 1, at the Hotel Sherman.

Mrs. Frances Mieczynski of North Chicago, department president, will describe business and social meetings already scheduled in connection with the conclave, and Mrs. Mildred Knoles, department secretary, will talk on "Credentials." Jim Cassidy of the American Legion will supply information on transportation. Officers will be elected. Mrs. Ann Bernhard, council president, will be in charge.

Bleaching is one of the basic processes for many of the newest finishes, such as ambered walnut, honeytone maple, harvest-wheat mahogany, bone white pine. Many well grained and lovely old woods bleach successfully, dark stains disappear, and there's an end to woodwork that calls for a newer, fresher face. Obtainable now are materials and directions and formulas for bleaching woodwork and furniture, plus varnish removers and lacquers.

For your modern minded home are doors to be used in new or remodeling work which are flush type and conditioned for long life and wear. These doors have been built to resist weather changes anywhere.

Many Interests Provided for Ephraim Colony

By Verna Wilson.

EPHRAIM, WIS.

With the excitement of a busy Fourth of July definitely in the background, Ephraim summer residents have settled down to their relaxed vacation routines, which can be adjusted so easily to suit any whim or occasion which may present itself.

Again the Peninsula Arts association is acting to fill a variety of leisure interests. Under the leadership of its energetic president, Mrs. Arthur F. Byfield of Highland Park, community sings are being enjoyed by a growing crowd every Sunday evening in the village hall.

It is with the enthusiastic coöperation of the association that the Peninsula Players are branching out from their dramatic field to present the Wisconsin Symphony orchestra next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Weather permitting, the concert will be given at the outdoor "theater-in-a-garden" just south of Fish Creek, where plans are being made to open all the grounds surrounding the theater for the occasion. The conductor, Jerzy Bojanowski, conducted the Paderewski Memorial concert in Grant park in Chicago last week.

As a fitting preliminary to the annual flower show and the garden walks planned for later in the summer, last Wednesday evening at the village hall Prof. L. G. Holmes of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture gave an illustrated lecture on landscaping, under the auspices of the Peninsula Arts association.

Miss Paula Bach, who has studied at the Evanston School of Fine Arts, again is in charge of the children's art classes sponsored by the association. Among her most apt pupils are Jeannette, Mayna, and Jimmy Avent, who are continuing interests developed first in Shanghai, China, where they formerly lived with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Avent. Mrs. Avent and the children were forced by war conditions to leave China last November, at which time they joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. D. Bradley, in De Kalb, Ill. Since June they have been occupying the Bradley log guest cottage in Ephraim. Recently Mr. and Mrs. Bradley also entertained Maj. and Mrs. R. H. Rice of Wilmette.

Mrs. Avent expects to join Mr. Avent on the west coast when he arrives from China late in August. In the meantime, she also is renewing her interest in painting as a member of the art colony started last year under the leadership of Mrs. Edward M. Tourtlelot.

• • •

Mrs. Emery H. Wilder of Dundee, who, with Mr. Wilder and their daughter, Deborah, has taken the Jacobs cottage for July, is another member of the art group. However, her painting does not interfere with her plans to entertain friends while in Ephraim. Mrs. Edgerton Throckmorton and her daughter, Miss Caryl Casselberry of Dundee, arrived Tuesday to be house guests of the Wilders.

Earlier in the month they entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ames Ross of Highland Park and their daughter, who returned to the village this week to occupy a log cabin which they have taken for the balance of the season.

Only a short distance north of the summer home occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Wilder, Mrs. John Matter entertained at a bridge party on Tuesday at her Twin Pines home for Mrs. Edward Smith of Highland Park, who is a house guest of Mrs. Malcolm Vail. On Friday Mrs. Egbert Spencer of Barrington was the guest of honor at a luncheon at the Matter home. Mrs. Spencer, who spent many summers in Ephraim, and Miss Ann Bridges of Raleigh, N. C., are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Miller H. Pontius of Chicago, who are spending their second season at Grey Logs on the Eagle Harbor shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Matter are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Milton Matter of Marion, Ind., next week. They arrived aboard their sailing yacht Maryanne for a stopover en route to a Lake Superior cruise.

An otherwise quiet week-end was enlivened last Saturday for many Ephraim and Fish Creek summer home owners by the wedding of Miss Virginia Fischel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel of St. Louis and Howard Benoist Jr. of St. Louis. Guests gathered at 5 o'clock at the Fish Creek Cottage Row home of the bride's grandmother to witness the impressive ceremony.

The weather man was particularly gracious in providing ideal weather for the outdoor reception and supper which followed as the setting sun cast shadows across the spacious lawns of this summer estate bordering the waters of Green Bay.

Bright sunshine also was an important factor in providing pleasant surroundings for the 40 members of the Roll family who gathered from several states at the Anderson hotel recently for a family reunion. Arrangements for the week-long revival of old relationships were made by Dr. H. F. Roll of the Garrett Bible institute at Northwestern university. Among those present for the occasion was Dr. E. E. Roll, president of North Central college in Naperville, Ill.

All except two of the family were making their first trip to Ephraim.

At Sister Bay new personalities are arriving each week along the Shore drive. Mrs. Robert Tower, with her small daughters, Jane and Anne, came recently from Westchester, N. Y., for a month's vacation with her mother, Mrs. Robert E. Barbee, at Wildwood. Mrs. Alexander Dawson is entertaining her daughter, Mrs. Charles Kimball of Rosemont, Pa., formerly of Hinsdale.

TO BE MARRIED IN FALL

Miss Julia Louise Toren, who will be married in the fall to Robert F. McCall, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. McCall of River Forest. Miss Toren, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Midgley Toren of River Forest, is a granddaughter of the late John W. Midgley, editor of the Tribune under Joseph Medill. She attended Denison university.

Chicagoans Will Attend Sessions of Colored Women

Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay Davis, octogenarian club leader, will be among the Chicago delegates to the 22d biennial convention of the National Association of Colored Women opening next Friday at Oklahoma City, Okla. Mrs. Davis has not missed a convention since the association was formed in 1896.

This organization is composed of five regional units and branches in 42 states and the District of Columbia. Individual associate clubs sponsor or participate in community educational, health, philanthropic and civic programs, and maintain day nurseries, working girls' homes, and homes for aged and infirm. Regional divisions serve as a clearing house for problems peculiar to their regions, provide scholarship loans for needy students, support legislation beneficial to the Negro race, and further interracial understanding.

The national association itself maintains the Frederick Douglass home at Anacostia, D. C., as a perpetual shrine to the pioneer Negro journalist and orator, and has a scholarship loan fund, named for Hallie Q. Brown. Payment of $25,000 for its national headquarters in Washington, D. C., will be completed at the convention. Mrs. R. R. Moton, widow of a former president of Tuskegee institute, heads the association.

Tennis Tourney at Nantucket This Week-End

NANTUCKET, MASS.

Two Lake Forest boys, John and Douglas Lee, are entered in the boys' singles tennis tournament which winds up this week-end at the Yacht club. The championship match will be a feature of the tennis tea to be held this afternoon.

"Gaslight," which sets a new high for dramatic thrills, will be presented by the Nantucket Players at the Yacht club tonight, tomorrow, and Tuesday. Next week-end the Players will appear in the popular "Personal Appearance."

Twenty-one years have passed since the schooner Allen Gurney nosed up to Steamboat Wharf and dropped anchor for the last time. Her sailing days over the old windjammer was launched on a new career, and became the famous Skipper, an eating place known far and wide for its delectable quahaug chowder and shore dinners. Among the recent guests to enjoy the Skipper's hospitality were Mrs. Leeds Mitchell Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley L. Yonce of Lake Forest.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rigler of Kenilworth were listed among the guests at the Chanticleer in 'Sconset last week. Miss Ruth Lambert of Chicago has taken a cottage in this picturesque village on the island's eastern shore, and Miss Zola Kenney of Aurora and Mrs. Chester MacChesney and Miss Muriel MacChesney of Chicago are vacationing at the old 'Sconset inn.

Mrs. Alfred C. Prime's illustrated lecture, "Let's Go Shopping in Old Philadelphia," will be the feature of the Neighbors meeting Tuesday evening at the Baptist church. On Friday the first of the Neighbor's "historical afternoons" will include a trip thru the Whaling museum.

• • •

Other outstanding events of the week ahead are the annual flower show at Bennett hall on Wednesday and Thursday, and the British war relief ball at the Yacht club Friday evening. A special feature of this year's flower show will be the children's events which will include bridal bouquets and breakfast trays for dolls and minature gardens.

The Misses Leone Champlin and Virginia Corrigan of Chicago are staying at the White Elephant. Another visitor from Chicago, Miss Elizabeth Gaul, is a guest at The Breakers.

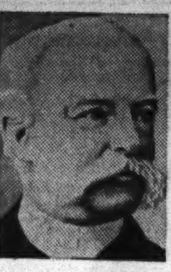
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, July 14, 1893.

Dear Julia: Your note, with check for the relief committee which is raising funds for the firemen's families arrived just now. We will turn it over at once to the proper authorities. It is so good of you to offer such a practical form of sympathy. It has indeed been a sad, sad week in Chicago. The horrible fire on the World's Fair grounds, in which nearly 20 firemen were killed, makes us all feel very serious. The building that burned did not belong to the World's Fair official buildings—that is, it was not erected by the national commission or by any of the states. It was an undertaking of the Hercules Ice Making company. It was of frame construction, covered with what is known as "staff," a sort of plaster, and my guide book refers to the "imposing towers," one at each of the front corners and one in the middle. This central tower was used as a smoke stack and in it the fire originated. The loss of life was among the firemen who had climbed to a perilous position on the tower and whose escape was cut off by flames bursting out beneath them.



A. C. McClurg.

Will was a witness to it. He had been spending an hour at the fair, with an out of town client, and they happened to be near the scene. Both men are interested in watching fire fighters and they lingered to see what they supposed to be a mere incident, for fires are now put out so readily by our fine force. Within half an hour the holocaust was over.

Capt. James Fitzpatrick had gone up to the tower with 13 men, all hastening cheerfully to their task, feeling it would take only a short time, as they had put out an insignificant blaze only a week or so before in the same spot. Capt. Fitzpatrick knew there were lifelines on the west side of the tower, but thought he would have no need for them. Suddenly there was an explosion of the ammonia pipes below. The tower tottered. The men jumped, but only to crash into a fiery pit beneath or to lie mangled and bleeding on the sharp ledges of the roof where there was no possible way of saving them. Will says the spectacle of those strong, brave men dying at the post of duty, watched by thousands who could do nothing for them, was horrible.

The city's heart is stirred by the disaster. Receipts from the admissions to the fair on Sunday, the 16th, are to be given to the injured men and to the families of the dead. I noticed in our papers today that Charles T. Yerkes, street railway magnate, is to buy the first admission ticket on Sunday, paying $2,500 for it. The entire receipts are expected to total $100,000. Many merchants and other citizens who feel the calamity deeply are contributing generously and we hope there will be even a larger sum to be distributed.

But in spite of the disaster, the World's Fair and its correlated events must go on, and we attended a gathering at the home of Gen. and Mrs. A. C. McClurg, 125 Lake Shore drive, welcoming the literary lights who have been in session here this week. It was a brilliant occasion, with poets, historians, and novelists meeting in the handsome, stone trimmed red brick house overlooking the lake. The rooms looked lovely, adorned with thousands of roses and sweet peas. Hundreds of people called during the afternoon.

Receiving with Mrs. McClurg were Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, Mrs. Charles Henrotin, Mrs. William G. McCormick, Mrs. Edmund Burke, Mrs. Slason Thompson, Mrs. John M. Clark, Mrs. Thomas W. Grover, Mrs. Albert Erskine, and many others we know well. The guests were outstanding men and women. President William Rainey Harper, who always looks like Pickwick to me; the bald and solemn looking humorist Eugene Field; James B. Angell, Margaret Sangster, Hamlin Garland, Kate Field, Edward G. Mason, and the Rev. Dr. Twitchell of Hartford, friend of Mark Twain—these were some we met.

Dr. Twitchell told us a story about Mark Twain. Will had heard it before but it was new to me. After listening to Dr. Twitchell's discourse one Sunday, Mr. Clemens sauntered up to the front of the church, where the dominie was receiving congratulations for his masterly effort, and said: "Well, Twitchell, that was an eloquent sermon, but I've got a book at home that contains every word of it." The clergyman indignantly repudiated the accusation of plagiarism, but Mr. Clemens bade him come over in the afternoon and see the book. When he arrived, Mark Twain took him into the library and brought out an unabridged dictionary, saying: "Here it is."

And now, I must close. Your loving friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Medal for Indian Achievement to Be Presented Sept. 26

Nominations for the ninth annual Indian achievement medal, to be presented by the Indian Council Fire to an outstanding Indian on Sept. 26, Indian day in Illinois, are now in the hands of the committee of award. Mrs. O. A. Rosborough of Chicago, recently appointed Indian welfare chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, is the only woman on the committee, which includes, among others, John Collier, commissioner of Indian affairs; Dr. Willard W. Beatty of Washington, D. C., director of Indian education; Oliver LaForge, president of the American Association on Indian Affairs; Dr. B. D. Weeks, president of the Bacone Indian college of Oklahoma, and three medal winners of former years, Mark L. Burns, Chippewa, superintendent of the Consolidated Chippewa agency in Minnesota; Dr. George L. Frazier, Sioux physician, recently retired from the Indian service, and Peter B. Graves, Chippewa.

Millions Risk Injuring Their Teeth— Be Safe! Brush Your Teeth the Liquid Way

Liquid Dentifrice Cannot Injure—Contains Absolutely No Abrasives

Today millions of people are unknowingly causing serious damage to their teeth—by regular brushing with dentifrices containing abrasives or scouring materials.

Gradually, as months go by, these abrasives cut cavities into the soft part of teeth along the gum line exposed by shrinking gums, where there is no hard enamel to protect them.

In fact, among people who brush their teeth regularly, a very large percentage of all cavities along the gum line that require filling are probably the result of this injury. This was shown by a clinical study in a leading dental journal.

Disclosed by Scientific Research

These startling facts were recently confirmed by scientific research. Eminent independent scientists made laboratory toothbrushing tests with a number of dentifrices containing abrasives. Every one cut cavities into the soft part of the teeth.

In the same manner, these scientists tested the new liquid dentifrice—Teel. In no case did Teel injure the teeth in any way, because Teel contains absolutely no abrasives of any kind.

Teel doesn't depend on abrasives for cleansing. Instead, it uses a newly-discovered patented cleansing agent that's almost magic-like in the way it helps reveal the natural whiteness and beauty of your teeth. It isn't soap, yet multiplies into thousands of tiny, cleansing bubbles in the mouth.

How Teel Reveals Beauty of Your Smile

These active bubbles amazingly help remove the daily accumulation of decaying food particles and dulling surface film. Thus your teeth look so much whiter, more thrillingly beautiful. They "feel" satin-smooth—your mouth gloriously refreshed.

Start This Safe Liquid Way Today

Naturally, you want to save your teeth from this injury. If, however, you feel that your teeth need an abrasive scouring, at least occasionally, we suggest that you follow special directions on the Teel package.

Get Teel at any drug, department or 10¢ store. And see your dentist regularly for his professional advice.

There's Beauty in Every Drop!
Teel FOR TEETH

* Recent clinical studies conducted by dentists under a Research Foundation showed that 8 out of 10 adults examined had the soft part of one or more teeth exposed, with no hard enamel or gum to protect it. Procter & Gamble.

Writer Visits Two Estancias in Argentina

By Cousin Eve.

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA.

The Buenos Aires madness goes on.

Mornings, when layers of curtains, Venetian blinds and French windows have been pried open, one steps on the balcony with the pigeons and absorbs the atmosphere.

The Plate river afar on the left; and between the towers, domes and domiciles of a great city the sky is the fresh azure of a moderate zone. The many parks are green.

So this is winter in the Argentine!

I am getting back to normal from a journey to two estancias near Villegas, 400 miles to the southwest. It was a night's jaunt and rough going, but a most charming adventure.

The excursion was planned for me by Fred Six, a leading packer of Buenos Aires with Chicago connections, and was fun from the start. An Argentine girl who had never been on a train before went along and we both were thrilled. B. A. has seven stations and we left at 9 p. m. from the West station, heading for the pampas and the Andes. It was dark on the train, and as our staterooms were glacial if spotless we found the cafe car which had a stove and a dozen or so British cattle buyers dining.

At night the train rocked and rocketed, except at way stations. Then the mournful moos of the young steers on eastbound trains echoed in the dark.,

Writer Visits Two Estancias in So. America

There is a great meat shortage in the Argentine, and until September no chance of fall meat cargoes to fill the large fleet of British ships waiting for them.

The porter roused me at half past six and at seven we were off at Villegas with our scant luggage, including fur coats. It was dark, with a few brilliant stars in the vast rim of the sky. And a piece was missing from the lower half of the moon in its last quarter, not the upper half as with us. Suddenly Noel Emerson dashed out of the dark. He had raced the train across country and was a split second late.

Arrived at the hacienda of the La Ema estancia, it was day but the sun was still beyond the horizon of the endless sweep of pampas. The ranch house is of one story, furnished after the English style with everything the heart can desire except steam heat. The rooms are large with the marble floors, peculiar to Spanish countries, that keep them cool in summer and chilly in winter. A cheerful fire welcomed us in the living room, with some sprinting dachshunds—and here came our lovely young hostess, Mrs. Noel Emerson, followed by a maid with morning tea.

Mrs. Emerson would be called chic anywhere. That day she wore gray woolen slacks, and her brilliant skin, shining dark hair, and morning glory blue eyes were delightful. She said later she was born, reared and married on an estancia, but it seemed to me she was more up to date in thought than many women in large cities.

Noel Emerson had spent seven years in England in school and college, and when that was done had gone back to Argentine and the pampas. He is handsome, wonderfully set up, about 6 feet 5 and they call him "Tiny." Hardly had we become acquainted, met all the dogs and cats, and made a brief toilette, than breakfast was announced. I was desperately hungry, and it was a real English breakfast with hot dishes and plenty of toast, jam, and conversation.

We decided not to make a chore of seeing the estancia, but to prowl happily from one phase of its life to another. La Ema is a medium sized ranch of 30,000 acres belonging to the senior Emersons and only one of their large holdings in this district. They were in Buenos Aires on a visit and we went later to their house and looked it over. It had central heating and a billiard room, a conservatory and much handsome silver in the large dining room, as comfortable a dwelling as one might find the world over.

From here we strolled to the office of the estancia, examined the maps and charts of the divisions among the thousands of cattle. A long, straight road cuts the ranch into two equal parts, and the subdivisons, each with its quota of cattle, are fenced with barbed wire.

The commissary was interesting, too—a cement house with a score of padlocked bins from which the week's supplies are doled out on Monday morning. There were crusty rolls, beans, maté, the native herb tea, sugar for the alert, cheerful natives.

Then it was time for a ride around and we passed the polo field, the swimming pool, and the private golf links of the Emersons, and took to the wide road between the grazing fields. In one lot were many hundred calves, separated from their mothers only that morning and bellowing sadly. We rode from field to field, and in every direction was the same vista—flat plains, cattle, and more cattle—the same champagnelike air and blazing sun. On the return we found a string of polo ponies in the stable yard, a race horse, and some new dogs waiting for us. Then a magnificent percheron was led out of his stall, and half a dozen well mannered bulls.

The cattle that bring top prices here are a dark red-brown without one white hair. After seeing all these sights and more, we went back to the hacienda and sat in the sun on the veranda. It was at least 10 degrees warmer outside than in. A more perfect day never was—the pure air, limpid sky, and dazzling sun of the plains of Argentina are beyond words. Vultures flapped and squawked in midair, and all the dogs came up to sit in a circle round about. Besides the dachshunds, Fritzie and Gretchen, there was a Dobermann-Pinscher, a collie, a Scotch shepherd dog, and a snow white kitten.

Then a beautiful little boy, Robin, toddled into the scene. At 2½, he rides his own shaggy pony tethered under a tree. Tiny Emerson spoke of 10 of his brothers fighting in England, and I had an occasional slant on the normal life of the estancias, when they played polo and dined about with the neighbors. Mrs. Emerson gives a whole day fortnightly to British war relief when the ladies of the district meet and make clothing.

After luncheon everybody retired for the siesta, which is the habit of the country. Most of the year the heat is intense and the men begin to work before dawn. The siesta is a break in an otherwise too long day.

Time was not so long ago that a week-end at an estancia meant full evening dress for dinner. A man might wear his overcoat, while the true blooded English girls were arrayed regardless of zero weather. In the old days each guest had a crescent shaped footstool covered with sheepskin to keep his feet from freezing, and I was duly thankful to be alive now, not then.

The multimillionaire estanciaeros are getting less conventional like the rest of the world and are not exacting with their guests. Anything more charming than the hospitality of "Tiny" Emerson and Leila can't be thought of. The day at La Ema was a dream too quickly over.

Another estancia equally famous which I visited was La Caledonia at Moores, a not so long drive from the Emerson's. As we bounced along the road the treeless land was flat as a bridge table, but there all the time was this handsome great hacienda, with its avenues of native trees, its swimming pool and stables, swallowed up by the vast perspectives.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanhope Gildea are the owners of La Caledonia. They are an interesting and up-to-date couple and I had heard beforehand what a chic person she was, educated abroad and all that, with winters in Washington and Buenos Aires. And as for Stanhope Gildea, rumor had it that he was about the handsomest of all the hombres in the country, and he really was marvelous with what are called "chiseled features," golden brown coloring thruout, and a polo playing figure. Best of all Mr. Gildea was amusing, with much satire about people coming to the Argentine with a yen to see the pampas and the Andes. The real pampas are a vast, arid expanse a thousand miles away, it seems. And the Andes, as they dwindle to the southward, are hardly worth the time it takes to find them.

Railroads are few in Argentina, and the one I had traveled on was one of the best. La Caledonia was an even larger camp than La Ema, and the house was equally comfortable with central heating I believe they said. The cattle on both these ranches were of the finest English breeds, and both rancheros raise sheep as well as beef. British capital more than that of any other nation has made Argentina fabulously rich. Meat is the life of the country and 75 per cent of it is eaten at home.

It would have been an added delight to stay on with the Gildeas at Moores, except for an important engagement in town.

Driving with the Emersons along the lonely way by moonlight startled rabbits and wide winged birds streaked the road with white as they crossed our path. And just when things were loneliest and spookiest they told of the notorious kidnaper who tried, at this very spot, to kidnap "Tiny's" sister.

He was a bad hombre who killed many people and finally made the error of slaying a policeman. This roused the police, who never rested until they shot the desperado.

The return trip to Buenos Aires was smooth and comfy. The drive across town reminded me of other drives from stations in the early morning in Paris. Streets had been washed in the night, shops were awake, and outdoor cafés were serving early patrons, while flower venders set out their fragrant wares.

We were lunching that day with the American ambassador, Norman Armour, at the American embassy and the Avenue Alvear looked superb as we flew along. Trees and grass were green, and the courtyards of the palaces and their façades more intriguing than ever. Spanish domiciles with their drawn blinds shutting out the naughty sun and air, always make one wonder what is going on inside in the dusky rooms and patios.

Mr. Armour had said the embassy was grand and it was. It reminded me of the former ducal houses in London, with its great central branching stairs. Just as you started up a plaque on the wall certified that the President of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, had dwelt here from Oct. 13, 1936, until November 6.

The tone of stair carpets and marbles was beige and gray until the second floor, where the pillars and walls were Grecian and white. Mr. Armour received his guests in the long drawing room at the right end of the state suite, assisted by several of the secretaries and the military and naval attachés and their wives. Mrs. Armour had flown to the United States a week before; I hadn't seen her since Paris was their post some years ago, and was sorry to miss this vivid and charming person.

Evidences of her taste, however, were everywhere in the embassy, which is made human with works of art and relics of the past that have beauty.

Norman Armour is a wonderful host, alert and tactful with his American guests, and really seeing that they have a good time in his home.

There must have been at least 30 at the table. The long dining room has windows overlooking gardens, trees, terraces, bridges, and table flowers that day were scarlet poppies in a line of silver bowls. Back of me, on the wall, were some marvelous ancient Chinese murals under glass that Mr. Armour told me had come from the depths of caves in Shansi.

Norman Armour was born in Chicago, the only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Armour, who moved to Princeton, N. J., years ago. The Armours were relatives of the Whitehouses, a family noted in Chicago history, but long since extant. The ambassador spoke with feeling of his uncle, Allison V. Armour, who died only last March, and asked news of some of his well remembered playmates at home.

It was a wonderful luncheon, with Argentine partridge as pièce de résistance, and beautifully served, as befits the train of life of the envoy of this great country.

Going back with a lady from B. A. who wished to please, we stopped at an Antiquidades occupying several floors of a large house. The place was jammed with china, pictures, ornaments, table decorations, clocks, and statuary, all in terrible taste. Not one thing in all this welter of goods had beauty or elegance.

They were the contents of great houses of other days, on Florida or the picturesque parks, closed or torn down to make place for showy modern buildings. There were soup plates piled six feet high. There were huge platters of garish china, tons of brass lions growling on mantel sets; also many nudes. We saw rooms full of these depressing horrors, on several floors, but not one object that I would have taken gratis.

This then was the Buenos Aires of the past! And yet the Argentines of today are the smartest looking people! The women are beautiful with great allure and style; and the men I have been seeing at the races and about, are sleek and fat with large shining eyes.

The few houses I have known are not like ours. Ceilings are very high, floors are apt to be marble or tile, and furniture is odd rather than comfortable. I rarely sit on anything that suits me—but that is my fault perhaps. Anyway, everybody stands up in the Argentine most of the time. Except for bridge.

There is an attempt at the modern, both in art and every day articles, but the results are peculiar rather than attractive. Hermes of Paris has a shop on Florida and features clocks with leather faces—all leather, in fact. It is a striking novelty, but soon you miss the bright little black and white faces of your own timepieces and dislike this clock that seems to have jaundice.

On Sunday we went to the Jockey club for lunch at Palermo, the regular course at B. A. There was a great crowd and a radiant day. The food was excellent and we made our bets inside while lunching. The Jockey club has enormous wealth and the whole setup was opulent, handsome, and cheerful. People took coffee on the veranda and, altho it was a warm day, many of the girls wore short fur jackets, which are a novelty for them.

We found a table and sat luxuriating in the scene. There were three separate tracks for various kinds of weather, and in the center was a serpentine, a winding piece of water among green lawns and little formal hedges. Nurses and children of members with their dogs were inside this oval, which looked like an old English print, full of rich color.

There wasn't very much thrill in these races—it was only the setup which was so charming. There were two jockeys who won the race whenever they rode, and the returns on the favorites were negligible.

Finally I decided to bet on a steed called Silvery, no matter what, and, contrary to all expectations, Silvery won. It was just one of those things. He hadn't a good jockey, but nice long legs, and I was very pleased. It was dark almost at sunset, and we came to the Plaza in a purple twilight.

Tabaris is said to be the best night club in South America, whatever else is said about it. Our party dined there about 11 o'clock at night, and found it singularly like the same kind of thing in Shanghai, a resort full of poor and hungry looking "hostesses."

The ballroom is framed by two score boxes in a raised gallery. In these are supper tables, also in the balcony above. But we dined on the floor. The dance floor is in front of the stage, from which two orchestras give their uproar, one at a time. One band plays on top of the other, with a platform between.

It looks really very amusing, these two bands in action. The dinner was excellent and at midnight a stage rose out of the void and a floor show was given that might have been much better than it was. Our chief interest was in the girls who frequent the place. There must have been 60 of them of all nations, speaking various languages. They were of many ages, sizes, and complexions, but uniformly unattractive. Not one "hostess" had a pretty face, a good figure, or real charm. We felt sorry for them. Their clothes were cheap, soiled finery, their feet were ill shod, and they made a drab and depressing time for us. We hoped to hear Argentine music, but the bands played Broadway ditties. Spanish girls might have pleased us, but these mixed samples of femininity didn't.

The gauchos who patronize the place were either Americans, like us, or big butter and egg men from Brazil, with a few refugees thrown in.

This water color study of two nondescripts by Roy M. Mason, called "Goin' All t' Hell" has been awarded the Watson F. Blair prize of $400 at the International Exhibition of Water Colors which opened at the Art institute on Thursday. It is noteworthy for its deep, jewel-like tones and its simplicity.

International Water Color Exhibit Opens

By Edith Weigle.

The event of the week was the opening of the huge International Water Color exhibition at the Art institute. From 19 foreign countries and all parts of the United States artists have sent 537 paintings and drawings in water colors, pastels, gouache, and tempera for this 20th annual show. Entries were juried by Adolf Dehn of New York City, Fletcher Martin of Iowa City, Ia., and Kenneth Shopen of Chicago.

Three prizes totaling $1,100 were awarded, two by the committee on painting and sculpture of the institute and one by the jury. The Watson F. Blair $600 prize went to Charles E. Burchfield of Gardenville, N. Y., for his "House of Mystery," a painting in somber browns and blacks of a sinister looking building with a single lighted, red curtained window adding a touch of warmth to the scene. This paper hangs in a gallery in which Burchfield has a one man show. Marc Chagall, Russian modern, and Andrew Wyeth, young Pennsylvania artist, also have a gallery each.

The $400 Watson F. Blair purchase prize went to Roy M. Mason of New York City for "Goin' All t' Hell," a mellow toned study of two old bums lounging on a wall by the sea, silently brooding the hours away. Their figures are seen in sharp relief against the tall white wall of a nearby building. In the right foreground is an inlet of the ocean.

Tom Dietrich of Appleton, Wis., was given the William H. Tuthill purchase prize of $100 for his modern conception of an industrial landscape showing factory buildings along the banks of a river. Carried out in bright blues, tawny reds, and yellows, the picture has a definite pattern of diagonals which leads the eye to the horizon and gives the illusion of depth.

Honorable mentions went to Raphael Soyer of New York for his pastel figure composition, "After the Bath," and to Ogden M. Pleissner of Brooklyn for his superbly composed "Monday Morning."

A number of painters in Chicago and its environs are represented in this international show. They are as follows: Ivan Le Lorraine Albright, Robert Amft, Emil Armin, Carl Frederick Austen, La Force Bailey, David Bekker, Antimo Beneduce, Rainey Bennett, Bernice Berkman, Irene Bianucci, Kathleen Blackshear, Aaron Bohrod, Raymond Breinin, Fritzi Brod, Jacob Burck, Copeland C. Burg, Francis Chapin, J. Francis Chase, Adelyne S. Cross, Julio De Diego, Briggs Dyer, Hermann Dyer, Richard Aberle Florsheim, John T. Futter, William J. Gordon, James Green, Earl Gross, Malcolm Hackett, Betty Hall, Janet Haugseth, Virginia B. Herbert, William Jacobs, Ralph W. Johnstone, Virginia Kaar, Max Kahn, Eugene Karlin, Richard Koppe, Marcella Lewin, Norman MacLeish, Edward Millman, Robert B. Moir, Thurman Nicholson, Gustav Rehberger, Felix Ruvolo, Charles L. Schucker, Lester O. Schwartz, William S. Schwartz, Kenneth Shopen, Jennie Siporin, Mitchell Siporin, Julia Thecla, Joseph Vavak, Donald L. Weismann, Bob White, Ruth Wilber, Charles A. Wilimovsky, and Zsissly.

The exhibition thruout is excellent from the standpoint of quality and variety. There are few dull moments anywhere. The standard of technical skill is high and the subject matter lively and interesting. There is even, delightful feature, humor in this show. Peggy Bacon's brush, winged with satire, depicts a group of artists cluttering up a peaceful seaside landscape with their cars, folding chairs, big umbrellas, easels, and other impedimenta in a pastel called "The Life Beautiful."

Adolf Dehn exposes the vanities and absurdities of fashion in "Easter Parade, Fifth Avenue" and Lucille Corcos points up the humor of the home musical in "We Love to Hear Bashka Sing." Then, there's Richard Taylor's farcical conception of "The Poet," in which practically everything is going on, or coming off!

France is represented by the works of 26 of her painters, among them Derain, Leger, Lurcat, Braque, Rouault, Mané-Katz, Matisse, and Bernard Lamotte. And 19 artists of Mexico have sent exhibits.

An exhibition of graphic arts by artists of the Illinois art project of the WPA is being held at the South Side Community Art center, 3831 South Michigan avenue, until July 31. The work of 28 craftsmen includes lithographs by Eleanor Coen, Max Kahn, Todros Geller, Mitchell Siporin, Briggs Dyer, and Ethel Spears.

•

A collection of modern posters is on view at the Lakeside Press galleries, 350 East 22d street, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Mondays to Fridays until Oct. 31.

WEDS JULY 26

Miss Jessica Agnes Nowak, daughter of Mrs. Anthony S. Nowak of West Lyndale street, will become the bride of John G. Cadrobbi of Glendale, Cal., on July 26. After a wedding trip thru the west, Mr. and Mrs. Cadrobbi will live in Glendale.

Business Women's Federation Branch Opened in Brazil

The recent establishment of a branch of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women in Brazil is announced by Lena Madesin Phillips of New York, international president. The Brazilian branch is the second to be founded in South America. There is an Argentine branch of long standing, with headquarters in Buenos Aires.

Since its founding in 1930 the federation has achieved representation on five continents. A sixth is to be added soon, for Mrs. Jouba Sugden, a South African business woman, recently has returned to her country after a visit in the United States and has agreed to undertake organization work there. Despite the war, Miss Phillips reported, federation membership is growing rapidly in several countries and in Great Britain alone it has doubled since the outbreak of the war.

Woman's City Club Pushes War on Rats

This summer is notably busy for the Woman's City club. Plans for extension of the city-wide rat extermination campaign in the autumn are being formulated by a newly appointed committee which will hold its second meeting tomorrow afternoon at club headquarters, 410 South Michigan avenue. Other organizations are being invited to help in the campaign, according to Mrs. J. Sharpless Fox, president. The committee is assembling data on rat control which will be used in talks before clubs thruout the city in order to obtain public coöperation in the drive.

"Mrs. John Q. Public Meets Her Government" is the title of a series of Tuesday afternoon meetings being held at the club this month and next. Study classes on the rezoning ordinance now in preparation by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] are being conducted by Miss Mary Louise Ramsey. The club's members are attending the public hearings that are being held this summer on the ordinance, ward by ward, and giving testimony on their respective wards.

Already scheduled for later Tuesdays in this series are a motion picture on noise reduction for July 29 with Jules E. Jenkins, president of the Greater Chicago Noise Reduction council, as speaker, and a talk, "Can You Prove That You Are an American Citizen?" by Elizabeth N. Wilson, assistant director of the Immigrants' Protective league, on Aug. 5. Friday afternoon current events classes continue thru July, with three scheduled for August.

Miami Beach Hotels to Stay Open This Summer

Due to the increase in travel during the summer months, 100 hotels are remaining open at Miami Beach this year to accommodate what is expected to be the largest number of people ever to visit the city in the summer time.

In addition to the hotels, more than 750 apartment buildings remain open to attract visitors who prefer that sort of accommodations.

Miami Beach for years has been known as one of the leading winter resorts of the world, but in recent years the summer business has increased to the extent that the city is now regarded by many as being the world's most famous year round resort.

Horse Show in Wheaton Big July 27 Event

By Judith Cass.

Horse show fans, who thought that they were not going to have a show during July, were pleasantly surprised last week when Mrs. Louis F. Swift announced that she was going to hold a show, the Galloping Hills Horse show, on Sunday, July 27. It will be at the Swift estate in Wheaton, and will be an all-day affair, starting at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. Light luncheon may be bought on the grounds and there will be entertainment, including pony rides for children, to keep them from being bored.

Admission will be 50 cents a person, with parking space $5 a car. The space for cars is limited, so tickets should be bought in advance if one wants to have his car at the ring. There isn't a better known, nor more expert, horsewoman in these parts than the former Libby Chase, so the show is certain to be a good one. As Miss Chase, Mrs. Swift often staged children's shows in Lake Forest, but this is the first adult show she has managed. As a matter of fact, it is the first privately sponsored one ever held in this part of the country, she and I both think.

Calling it a private show, however, does not mean that it is not open to any one who wishes to show his horses, or that the public is not welcome to see the show, for Mrs. Swift is hoping for a big show and a big audience. Entries close today. Trophies and ribbons will be given in all classes and in the hunter stake 60 per cent of the entry fee will be given as a first prize. Thirty per cent will be the second prize and 10 per cent the third.

Mrs. Charles H. Coffin Jr., Miss Anne Bryant, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Montgomery Orr, Mrs. Theodore Woodruff, and Theodore Mohlman are some of her neighbors who are assisting Mrs. Swift with arrangements. Among the Lake Foresters who are working on the committee are Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Miss Ginevra Mitchell, Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, Mrs. Merrill Hubbard, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. William B. McIlvaine Jr., Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., and Mrs. John G. Curtis, Mrs. Orton Prime of Milwaukee and Oconomowoc, the Misses Nancy and Sally Miller, David Adler, Col. Wilson Evans, Denison B. Hull, and Robert Peggs are the others on the committee.

Tonight at the Key club six men will take part in a punch mixing [not tasting] contest. The guests will do the tasting after the men have finished the mixing from their favorite recipes. John C. Murphy, Edward V. Platt, Mitchell D. Follansbee Jr., Walter Frazier, Vincent Conlan, and Philip Maher are those who have agree to enter the contest.

When the punch-mixers turned their recipes over to the club it was discovered that all had planned to use American wines. Mr. Frazier favors a Sauterne punch; Mr. Murphy will use Riesling wine as his base, and Mr. Conlan prefers Cabernet. Mr. Maher will mix a Rhine wine punch; Mr. Platt a sherry one, and Mr. Follansbee a Burgundy one.

The Rummage Shop at 27 East Ohio street will have its stock replenished and all those who contribute "white elephants" will have an amusing and delightful afternoon on Tuesday when the women who run the shop give one of their novel parties. It will be at the Bell school in Lake Forest, starting at 3 o'clock. The entertainment will consist of dancing by the children and grandchildren of the hostesses, and a "Whizz Kids" program in which Mrs. Michelson Maher, Mrs. John C. Murphy, Miss Sarah Hinde, Mrs. Kent Chandler, and Mrs. Joseph C. Belden Jr. will take part.

Another party Tuesday afternoon will be a tea the Lake View Musical society will give for Hans Lange and the Philharmonic String quartet, at the home of Mrs. Walter F. Straub in Winnetka. The society will present the quartet in a series of three chamber music concerts next winter. Mrs. Harrison M. Havner, president of the society, and Mrs. William A. Wieboldt will be in the receiving line with Mrs. Straub.

Wednesday friends of Arden Shore will gather at the camp north of Lake Bluff for the annual picnic and pageant. The boys and girls who enjoy vacations at the camp, and their mothers and grandmothers, will stage the pageant. Mrs. William E. Casselberry, Mrs. Proehl Jaklon, Mrs. Grant Ridgway, Mrs. George Richardson, Mrs. Richard Gambrill Jr., Mrs. Reed Landis, Mrs. Morrow Krum, Mrs. Stuart Templeton, Mrs. Owen B. Jones, and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish are some of those on the board of the camp. Mrs. J. Eugene Davis is president of the board.

Betty Jean Alexander.

Miss Betty Jean Alexander of Elmhurst has been appointed rushing chairman for Delta Delta Delta sorority at Northwestern university this year.

Miss Alexander, who lives at 249 West St. Charles road in the western suburb, has been prominent in activities on the Evanston campus. She is president of the Young Women's Christian association at the university, and recently was elected to the Northwestern chapter of Mortar Board, senior women students' honor society.

Lillian Taylor Wed to M. A. Phillips July 12

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davy Taylor of Evanston announce the marriage on July 12 of their daughter, Lillian Louise, to Merritt A. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Phillips of Hartford, Mich. The wedding took place in St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Evanston. Miss Taylor was graduated from Northwestern university in 1931 and received a master's degree there in 1936. She also attended the summer session of the American School of Classical Studies in Athens, Greece. Mr. Phillips was graduated from the Western State Teachers' college.

Women's Clubs to Co-ordinate Defense Plans

By Betty Browning.

Mrs. W. T. Bruckner.

First steps have been taken by Chicago's organized women to coordinate the activities of their respective organizations for national defense. At a meeting called by Mrs. William T. Bruckner of Hinsdale, Illinois director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, representatives of 17 groups on July 8 informally expressed approval of her proposal that women's organizations work together to avoid confusion and duplication of effort.

A survey of existing activities and plans of various groups was agreed upon as a logical approach to the problem of coördination. Accordingly, a questionnaire has been drawn up and sent out to some 50 organizations to find out what they are doing and planning and what leadership they have to offer.

Enclosed with the questionnaire in each case is a brief of the national defense program outlined by the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, national president, sent word from Washington, D. C., last week that her plans for organizing women for national defense "in every state, county, city, and town are rapidly advancing. Many states, districts, and individual clubs already have departments and committees [corresponding to the setup outlined by the federation]. Programs are now being built."

This national defense program calls not only for coördination of women's defense activities but for registration of women willing to give their leisure time for volunteer service; an educational campaign stressing Americanism, housing, consumer problems, nutrition, nursing, training of women to replace men in farming, industry, and aviation, providing recreation for soldiers and sailors, and assisting in the sale of defense stamps and bonds.

Organizations receiving the questionnaire and the federation's program are requested to suggest any additional activities which they may consider of value.

It is expected that the questionnaires will be returned early in August and that a second meeting will be held shortly thereafter. At the recent meeting Mrs. Bruckner, who is the immediate past president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, was chosen temporary chairman, and Mrs. J. Sharpless Fox, president of the Woman's City club, was made temporary secretary.

Mrs. Bruckner made it plain that this is to be a joint venture of all interested organizations, not a federation "baby."

"We must all work together to make the plan effective," she asserted. "We of the federation are quite willing to subordinate ourselves."

The ultimate aim, Mrs. Bruckner emphasized, will be to coördinate the activities of women's organizations with those of men's groups.

The League of Women Voters, the American Red Cross, the American Legion auxiliary, the women's department of the Chicago Church federation, the Chicago Housewives' league, the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen, the Women's Advertising club, the National Council of Jewish Women, and the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs, as well as the Illinois federation and the Woman's City club were among the organizations represented at the initial meeting at the Illinois federation's headquarters, 30 West Washing street.

Halted by Caribou.

THE PAS, Man.—Thousands of caribou, in some place so thick they halted the Hudson Bay railway train for Churchill, were reported treking north in the middle of May by Fred Kerr, veteran fur dealer. He said more than 4,000 animals, including calves, were moving north for spring feeding. One of the greatest migrations of caribou in the north's history was reported last November.

Sports Events on Calendar of Bar Harbor Set

BAR HARBOR, ME.

Sports and social events will be combined to form the calendar for the remainder of the month at this noted coastal resort of society, with Chicago colonists playing an active part in the various events. The sports program will include golf, yachting, tennis, equestrian activity, fishing, and swimming events.

The popular Scotch foursome tournaments will be resumed at the Kebo Valley Golf club next week and the second of a series of weekly putting tournaments will be held tomorrow.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Montague of New York entertained at tea at her Seal Harbor estate this week for a company of more than 200 guests. The delphinium and Japanese iris gardens, prizes of this region, were opened for the occasion. Mrs. James Rowland Angell, Mrs. Morris Clothier, Mrs. Katherine Crocker, Mrs. Franklin W. Robinson, and Mrs. Palfrey Perkins presided at the tea tables. Chicago summer colonists attending included Mrs. Walter Ayer, Miss Mildred McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Clifford Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Vance McCormick, and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick.

Kenarden lodge, the summer estate of Mrs. John T. Dorrance, will be the scene of a concert Tuesday for the benefit of the British War Relief society and organized by the Mount Desert Island branch. The artists will be Mme. Karin Branzell, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera, who will be accompanied by Dr. Emile Enthoven, and Celius Dougherty and Vincenz Ruzicka, well known concert pianists. Patronesses include a number of the Chicago colony.

The prize flowers of Hare Forest, the summer estate of Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago, were among the highlights of the annual flower show held last week at the Malvern hotel under the sponsorship of the Bar Harbor, Mount Desert, Seal Harbor, Ellsworth, and Northeast Harbor Garden clubs. Mrs. Palmer served on the committee for the arrangements of the show, along with Miss Mildred McCormick. Mrs. Palmer's entries were awarded several blue ribbons in the roses class, while Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick of Chicago and Burnmouth, Bar Harbor, won blue ribbons in the pansy exhibition from her lovely estate.

Mrs. Potter Palmer III., Rose Palmer, and Potter Palmer IV. are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer at Hare Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Sargent Collier and their children, Anne and Eleanor, are visiting her mother, Mrs. Robert H. McCormick at Burnmouth. Mrs. Harold A. Howard of Chicago is planning to entertain at a large dinner party at Mosseley Hall, her Bar Harbor estate, next Friday.

The presidents' dinner of the Pot and Kettle club, exclusive men's social and sports organization of the summer colony, will be held Thursday, July 31. Several Chicagoans are active in the noted men's club, which is located on the Ellsworth road in a pine grove overlooking Frenchmen's bay. Chauncey McCormick is among the members of the Pot and Kettle.

The first cabaret dance of the season of the Bar Harbor club, of which Potter Palmer is president, was held Tuesday night and was attended by a large number of the younger set, including Miss Pauline Palmer.

Mrs. Charles Summer Frost of Lake Forest, Miss Virginia Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hughitt Frost Jr., and Charles Bosworth Frost have arrived at Up-Away on Cairn Wood road in Northeast Harbor, and Brooks McCormick and his wife and Roger McCormick are with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, in Seal Harbor.

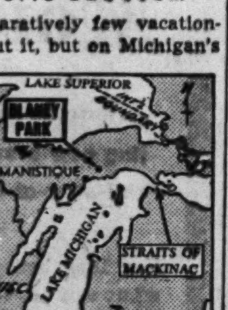
This Is Where You Forget All Your Problems

By Frederic Babcock.



So far comparatively few vacationists know about it, but on Michigan's Upper peninsula, close to Lake Michigan and not a great distance from Lake Superior, is the near-perfect realization of one man's dream of what a vacation spot should be and look like. It is called Blaney Park, and it embraces 33,000 acres of scenery. The scenery includes lakes, streams, and forest land, all under one ownership, all enclosed, and all developed as a sanctuary and playground for both wild animals and human beings.

Areas of that size are usually associated with the far west. How such a huge tract came to be set aside for recreation in the northland is a story that could be made into an American epic. Here the story can be set forth only briefly.

• • •

A few years ago Blaney Park was a model lumber town. It was the center of the logging industry of that part of Michigan. Then the industry gave out—partly because there were no more logs to cut and partly because of changing conditions—and the owners of the property tried to decide what they should, or could, do with it. Private forestry, farming, and ranching were considered, but none of them proved to be feasible. It looked as if somebody had a white elephant on his hands.

The principal owners were G. Harold Earle and Stewart Earle. With G. Harold Earle taking the lead, and his brother lending moral and financial help, a solution of the puzzle was finally worked out. Why not, pondered G. Harold, turn the whole thing into a great recreational area for the use of the public? He could, and he did.

There were 22,000 acres at Blaney. Sixteen miles away, on the shore of Lake Michigan, the Earles had an 8,000 acre tract known as Simmons Woods. They combined the two into one project, added 3,000 acres, and went to work.

Dams were built across streams to provide lakes. Golf courses and swimming pools and camping areas were designed and created. Buildings of the lumber camp were transformed into modern inns and cottages and clubhouses. New buildings were erected. Propagation of deer, beaver, partridges, wild ducks, and song birds was encouraged. One of the largest resort enterprises of the American midlands began to take shape.

Today the place is a real haven for the person tired of city life. Unlike so many other resorts, this one hasn't a juke box or a slot machine in a carload. The traveler seeking wide open places in the wide open spaces will do well to keep right on traveling when he gets to Blaney. But the traveler in search of the peace and quiet of the forest, or of outdoor sports that will aid him in recapturing his perspective and forgetting about war and taxes, will be hard put to find a better locale for his meditating or his playing.

• • •

The playground has a golf course with trout pools along the fairways, a dude ranch, an airport, miles of bridle paths thru the woods, an outdoor swimming pool with lights underneath for night swimming, a new theater and community hall, a huge dining hall done in knotty pine, and a wealth of animal and bird life. Sports facilities include fishing, tennis, horseback riding, boating, shuffleboard, and archery. Cottages scattered about the lakes and streams boast of baths and fireplaces—and cleanliness. Deer and duck hunting are permitted, but restricted to certain areas and to a small number of hunters. Picnics are held on the private beach in Simmons Woods. The game sanctuary is in charge of a competent ornithologist. One of the main attractions is a camp and log cabin museum devoted to relics of Paul Bunyan, legendary hero of the north woods.

Blaney Park is 425 miles north of Chicago, 22 miles east of Manistique, and 70 miles west of the Straits of Mackinac. It can be reached from this city by train, bus, or private auto.

On our visit this summer we were greeted, first by W. W. Witt, a hotel man of long experience and now general manager of the enterprise, and, later, by Stewart Earle. From them we learned some of the story and most of the details. Then, to get the rest of the picture, we set out by ourselves. Wild deer were everywhere. Vast areas were being reforested, rural landscaping was being carried out in a large way, and the whole effect was of a millionaire's estate that, miraculously, could be invaded by the masses.

It was all fascinating enough, but the prize was reserved for the finale. Making our way thru a cathedral of hardwoods, with flowers for a carpet and leafy branches for a roof, we came upon a brown brook and, beside it, a deserted cabin of hewn logs. It was just the place for a summertime, or a lifetime, escape from life. It was such a retreat as you might find in Brown county, Indiana, or somewhere in the Rockies, but in few other places in America.

It took less than a moment to decide that this was the home to buy, rent, or steal from the Earles. But the Earles won't either sell it or lease it, and we haven't yet figured out how to steal it.

Some day, after we've settled this and a few other problems, we're going back to Blaney and force the owners' hand. We're going to have that log cabin—or else.

Old Steamboat Towns Being Rediscovered

CASSVILLE, Wis. — Discovery of the Mississippi river as Wisconsin's newest fishing frontier is bringing into new prominence many of the old steamboat towns along the river's 300 mile Wisconsin reach. Cassville, in the state's southwest corner, is inviting travelers to sample its "fisherman's paradise" and to see the little known public playground, Nelson Dewey State park.

For the angler there is Twelve-Mile slough, a long, half mile wide Mississippi bayou. Cassville has one of the 10 huge dams that have been buckled across the Wisconsin stretch of the river in the last few years, and Twelve-Mile slough, because of this dam, has assumed the characteristics of a large, fresh water lake. It has several varieties of bass, great northern pike, wall-eyed pike, catfish, and crappies. South of the village is Bertram lake, a spring fed body with especially good fishing for pike and bass.

Named for Lewis Cass, governor of Wisconsin when it was known as Michigan territory, Cassville is better known as the home of the first governor of Wisconsin state, Nelson Dewey. The governor's 750 acre estate is now a state park, and from its high bluffs, reached by a new motor road, the traveler may see some of the finest views on the Mississippi. The old home, surrounded by an old-fashioned flower garden, is open for inspection.

Facilities for camping and trailers are provided in the park. They include a picnic house with indoor fireplaces.

College Orchestra at Mackinac Fete

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich.—Nearly a hundred of the outstanding college musicians from the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., will take part in the Mackinac Island festival here July 25, 26, and 27. Thirty-three colleges and universities are represented.

Under the direction of Dr. Joseph E. Maddy, president of the music camp, and Clark Kessler of the Chicago Symphony orchestra the group will present a symphony program in the garden in front of Grand hotel on the final day of the fête.

The Indian village on the waterfront is nearing completion. There the descendants of the Indians who traded their furs on the island 150 years ago will live during the three days of the festival.

All the "natives" of the island will be dressed in the costumes of a century and a half ago.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

NO TROUBLE IN CANADA.

Maywood, Ill., July 14.—To the Travel Editor: I have been reading your articles on travel in Canada and have noted two letters in the Voice of the People which interested me.

One stated that in Canada, if you went to a five dollar a day hotel, you would pay $5.50 if you were an American and $5 if a Canadian.

I drove all thru Canada from Detroit, around the Gaspe peninsula, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick last year and did not find such to be the case. Of course, we are not five dollars a day people. We stopped mostly in cabins. The highest rate we paid was $1.25 a head and in many cases got a cabin for $1. We found prices to be about the same for everything in Canada as what we paid in the United States excepting gas. We paid from 28 to 35 cents a gallon. The Canadian or imperial gallon is equivalent to five quarts for our measure. This was equal to about 23 to 28 cents for an American gallon.

Another letter stated that the writer had trouble getting into Nova Scotia. We had no trouble anywhere in Canada. When we went into Nova Scotia from New Brunswick we went over a little bridge. A sign over the bridge announced that we were entering Nova Scotia. There wasn't a soul around us, and we didn't meet any one until we stopped at an information booth about a quarter of a mile beyond the line.

We had a wonderful trip and can recommend this journey to any one wishing to see something a little different.

NOTICE TO SHUT-INS.

Because of lack of space, hundreds of shut-ins' requests for inclusion in this column have been omitted in the last year. This crowded condition has now been somewhat alleviated. We hope to be able to find room for all names submitted to us from now on. If you wish to hear from travelers, send in your names and addresses, or ask your friends to do it for you. TRAVEL EDITOR.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Travelers and other Tribune readers are invited to send cards and letters to those unable to share in the wonders of travel. These requests have been received since the last previous list was published:

Mrs. Mary Janes, route 2, Mattoon, Ill. [Mrs. Janes, suffering from rheumatism, has been confined to her wheel chair for nearly seven years. She will not be able to answer those who write her.]

Grace N. Kingston, Troy, Ill. [Miss Kingston has been in a wheel chair for more than 10 years. Her hobbies are original poetry and scrapbooks of letters from outstanding persons.]

Glen Ayers, Oak Forest, Onalaska, Wis.

Bill Haight, St. Mary's hospital, Galesburg, Ill. [Mr. Haight, 21 years old, is a victim of infantile paralysis. He has been in a respirator for the last 10 months.]

Della Gaffney, 17813 Woodbury avenue, Chicago. [Our correspondent writes: "Miss Gaffney is very deaf and has suffered several serious accidents in the last three years. She feels 'out' of so many conversations because of her defective hearing. She would deeply appreciate cards and letters from readers who are fortunate enough to see new things of interest. She may be able to answer letters when not in too great pain."]

Glacier Travel Shows Big Gain

BELTON, Mont.—Travel in all western national parks has shown a great increase this season, with Glacier getting its share. In the first 15 days of July this season 37,293 persons visited the park, as compared with 30,213 in the same period a year ago. This was a gain of 23 per cent.

The heavy traffic started the week-end of July 4. All hotels, chalets, cabin camps, and camp grounds have been nearly filled.

Railroad travel shows a 29 per cent increase.

Traffic Record Broken on Mountain Highway

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.—Proof of the popularity of the Whiteface Mountain Memorial highway with motoring vacationists is seen in traffic figures just released. They show that between May 17, when the road opened for the 1941 season, and July 8 more than twice as many individuals made the ascent as compared with 1940.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

FOREIGN TRAVEL

Culture Finds Its Way to the South Sea Isles

[This is the third instalment of the diary of a Tribune foreign correspondent's flight from America to the orient.]

By E. R. Noderer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD PAN-AMERICAN CLIPPER OVER THE SOUTH PACIFIC, EN ROUTE TO NEW CALEDONIA, May 15 [By Air Mail].—Three-thirty a. m. in the South seas is just as early as anywhere else, and when a brown Polynesian boy hammered on my door at the Pan-American hotel on Canton Island at that hour I found it just as hard as ever to pull myself out of bed.

There, 2 degrees below the equator, it was already as hot as a mid-July afternoon in Chicago. I lay in bed, panting, and wondering where the waves of torrid air were coming from. Then I remembered that I had left an electric fan on all night.

I remembered, too, all the stories I had heard of the South seas—about how everybody lay on the beaches all night and at breakfast time merely stretched out an arm and caught a falling coconut. Where, I wondered, was all this?

Instead of lying on the beach, I was on an American mattress, cooled by an electric fan, and when I did manage to rise I took a "cold" shower. It is true the cold water was lukewarm, but still it was a shower. Electric lights, fans, cold showers—civilization had come to the South seas on the wings of Pan-American.

• • •

As I walked out to the Clipper with Hotel Manager Jack Bramham, light was beginning to thrust its way over the horizon in splotches of orange and crimson. The rays of the sun edged the clouds in gold.

Daylight came quickly as we boarded a plane at 5 a. m. A few minutes later we were off. There was no wind. The plane stuck to the water, but after a run of 1 minute 15 seconds the pilot rocked it off and we climbed to 10,000 feet to escape the heat, which was still oppressive.

About 7:15 we passed Gardner Island, another circular coral reef with a lagoon in the middle. There was a freighter on the beach, and a number of people could be seen around it. It apparently had been driven ashore recently, probably in a storm, and the figures we saw were doubtless shipwrecked sailors. They could not have been so badly off, however, as there appeared to be some small huts on the atoll.

At 10 a. m. we flew low over the Funafuti Islands. These were not on our course, but we learned a little later that some United States naval air officers on board our plane were responsible for our passing this way. They were Commander Charles Coe and Lieutenant Commander Frank Obeirne, who had boarded the Clipper at Hawaii. They were the strong, silent type—they would talk, but not about the navy or what they were doing there. However, the ever present grapevine telegraph soon informed us that they were aboard for two reasons—to take a gander at a number of South sea atolls with a view to determining their availability as air bases, and to get in a little practice at flying airplanes like the Clipper. Our navy, it appeared, expected to take delivery on some patrol bombers of Clipper size.

The Funafuti Islands were a part of the Ellice group, owned by Great Britain. They were long and narrow, some swooping thru the sea in great, scimitarlike curves. Most of them were densely covered with royal and coconut palms.

The largest in the group was Fongale, on which there were a number of red roofed houses and a pretty white church. We came down almost to water level and had a look at the island. It was 6.8 miles long and varied in width from 50 to 150 yards. On the beach were outrigger canoes and small sailboats, and from the water's edge a number of natives stared at us.

The natives not long ago were cannibals, who in their day had devoured many a missionary.

It was intensely hot at sea level. When we had passed the islands we climbed rapidly again.

About 5 p. m. we sighted the rugged peaks of New Caledonia. Some of them towered to 5,000 feet. They were very sharp and rugged. To avoid climbing above them we traveled thru passes. Far below we could see deep, narrow valleys, white with swift rushing streams. Here and there a waterfall fell like a long, silver ribbon.

The peaks hid some of the world's richest deposits of chrome, nickel, and iron ore—a prize which the Japanese have long eyed covetously. As we neared Noumea, the port where we were to land, smoke rose in clouds from the second largest nickel smelter in the world.

• • •

We landed smoothly after the stewards had done the usual anti-bug work with the insecticide guns. For the first time we encountered a foreign language—French—for New Caledonia is Free French.

In the customs house, a low, white stucco building, the customs officers charged us $1.15 for a French visa. The officers were clad in white, with high crowned, long peaked, French army style caps. They smiled gratefully at any one who could speak a few words of their language. Signs on the wall were in both French and English. They said "No Smoking" and "Defense de Fumer," which means the same thing.

By the time we had got thru the customs it was 6 o'clock and dark. On the quay outside a launch awaited us. We got aboard and in a few minutes drew up alongside the Southern Sea, a magnificent yacht which at one time belonged to Cyrus H. K. Curtis, the American publisher. It was furnished in teak thruout and had fine public rooms, baths, and all the comforts of a large hotel. Pan-American had bought it and brought it here because there was no suitable hotel for overnight passengers in Noumea.

A full crew is maintained on the vessel, altho it hasn't moved from its anchorage since it arrived a year ago.

A half hour after we arrived dinner was served. I ate at Capt. Beardsall's table, but had to leave early to catch the 8 o'clock launch for Noumea. Ed Hall, in charge of the marine division of Pan-American, had volunteered to take me ashore to see a man who could tell me about the bloody revolution under which New Caledonia switched from the control of Vichy to the "Free French" side.

A half dozen other Clipper passengers went ashore with us. We went to a tearoom, where we met John Brock, a New Caledonian broker who also acts as a general factotum for Pan-American, handling whatever problems arise on shore.

With Hall and me were the two American naval officers Coe and Obeirne, the Australians Wiltshire and Dovey, and the American representative of an airplane engine factory, Bill Lind.

Since I wanted to get the New Caledonia story, I got Brock over in a corner and began asking him questions. The Australians and Lind, who weren't much interested in what I was doing, suddenly got up and left, with the announcement that they were going out to see what they could see.

After they left Brock suggested we go out to his "kiosk" on the beach. Hall and I and the naval officers crowded into his car and set off in the blackout. Noumea keeps the lights out to minimize the chances of a German raider throwing a few shells. We couldn't see much of the place, but it appeared to consist mostly of low, one story buildings, some of which were guarded by native soldiers. These gentlemen were very black, with kinky hair, short legs, and long arms. They looked formidable—not the sort of persons you would care to run into in a blackout.

After about 15 minutes in Brock's car, we pulled up on the beach. Overhead, millions of stars gleamed blightly. The naval men pointed out the southern cross. I remembered that Kingsford-Smith's airplane had been named the Southern Cross.

Brock lighted a torch and showed us the way into the kiosk.

It turned out to be a circular native hut with a conical thatched roof, about 15 feet in diameter. The sides were covered with palm leaves, firmly laced to a network of branches. The whole thing was remarkably substantial, altho it was built in two weeks at a cost of $50. The land rent was $1 a year, he said.

When we went in Brock struck a match and lighted an oil lamp on a table covered with an assortment of bottles. He had had a party the night before, he explained apologetically, and hadn't had time to clean the place up.

He took a basin from the floor and poured water into it from a large, straw encased jug in which to wash some glasses. These he dried on a pair of swimming trunks hanging from a peg on the wall. Then he poured us each a drink of French brandy which he removed from a hole in the floor.

The place was a curious mixture of the old world and the new. We sat in a jungle hut, with the calm Pacific lapping the shore just outside the door. From a thermos jug Brock took ice cubes to cool our drinks. And then he turned on a portable radio and, as we talked about the war and New Caledonia in these primitive surroundings, the radio blared: "I'm Nuts About You."

Whiteman Plays at Music Camp

INTERLOCHEN, Mich.—Paul Whiteman will bring his 17 piece band to the National Music camp here Monday and will present a public concert that evening.

While Whiteman's group will present the greater part of the program the National High School orchestra will join the band in the presentation of Ferde Grofe's "Mardi Gras" from the Mississippi suite, and Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

Auto Caravan to Tour State Parks

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—A weekly all-day auto caravan from Starved Rock State park to White Pines Forest State park has been announced.

Conducted each Friday, the tour is coördinated with the nature study program carried on at Starved Rock. This program includes two trips thru the park on week days, four on Sundays, and evening lectures. In June 722 visitors participated in the nature hikes and almost 2,000 heard the lectures.

Three graduate students have been assigned to Starved Rock to assist the park naturalist during the current season. In addition to lectures and tours, the staff is conducting nature programs in the lodge lounge on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Western Mystery.

The "Medicine Wheel," high on the Big Horn mountains in northern Wyoming, is made of stones forming a circle 78 feet in diameter. Other rocks, projecting from an altarlike hub, form 28 spokes and six small cairns on the rim. Who built the wheel and why are mysteries.

Save Time Safely and Easily on the LINCOLN HIGHWAY
Rushing to your destination, then rushing home again takes some joy out of a vacation trip. The Lincoln Highway, broad, smooth, and shorter, helps you make extra good time without feeling a need to rush. And that means a greater margin of safety and far easier driving. That's why travel-wise motorists make U. S. 30 the basis for their travel plans. Coast-to-coast, the Lincoln Highway saves hundreds of miles — a real boon to limited vacation budgets. For fun, new scenes and economy — travel the Lincoln Highway.
Fine accommodations at prices to meet every budget add to the pleasure of driving on the Lincoln Highway. Although U. S. 30 avoids many metropolitan areas, well-marked, optional routes take you into the larger cities if you desire.
Plan your trip this year on famous U. S. 30.

Orchids, Music, Bananas Greet These Tourists

[This is the third of a series of stories on a recent expedition to Central America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Anson Brown.

I was awakened at 2 a. m. by the piercing shrieks of a woman. By the time I reached the hallway most of the other occupants of the hotel were speeding toward the outcries. It was a race in pajamas and nightgowns to see who would be first to prevent the murder. As we neared the mêlée the shrieks turned to groans. None of us had a weapon, but perhaps the sheer force of our numbers could overwhelm the attacker. We were almost there when a door burst open. A large figure with disheveled hair loomed in front of us.

PUERTO BARRIOS, GUATEMALA.

"Stop!" he cried. We stopped. "I'm most embarrassed, ladies and gentlemen." He started to grin. "But, you see, my wife is having another nightmare."

"Well, lands sakes alive, a body might warn us about such things." And a much blushing spinster whirled away on her bare feet, clutching her negligee and curlers. With that, some one laughed. After all, the situation was ridiculous.

The whole group of us had just landed that afternoon, and, altho we had got well acquainted in the course of our three day boat trip from New Orleans, we hadn't been running around in our night clothes. I'll never forget how funny lovely Mrs. K—— of Lake Forest looked with grease covering her face and her hair all tied up like Topsy. And Mr. J——, the fat banker from Cincinnati, in a peppermint striped nightgown and tasseled nightcap, thought it was so funny that he danced a jig and suggested that we all go downstairs the way we were and have a beer, except that the bar long ago had been closed.

And that wasn't all. I went back to bed and finally fell asleep. Then at 4 a. m. the Barrios band, all in uniform, started blaring in the square just below our quarters. Just another one of those countless Latin-American holidays. The music was martial, with loud brasses and boomings, and rolled thru the hotel like a heavy breeze. No sleeping after that.

The band roared for an hour. So I dressed, tho half asleep, and wandered to the nearby waterfront. I sat on a stone wall, dangling my feet over the low tide, and listened to the queer black birds that sang like meadowlarks. The sun was well up and the warmness of a tropical day was floating over the harbor.

What a strange welcome to Guatemala—"murder," music, and no sleep!

It had been a swell trip down from New Orleans—dancing, deck games, and rich palatable food that would add pounds should the trip by water continue. I have traveled on all types of boats in the course of my wanderings, and the service, food, and fun aboard the Santa Marta ranked with the best of them.

By breakfast time on that last day we were well in sight of land as we coasted along the green low shores of Guatemala. I finished my work, put the typewriter away, and packed, squeezing the dirty shirts, movie film, and overlooked toothbrush into the far crevices of the bulging suitcase.

All morning we pushed along the shoreline. In the distance we could see the shadowy mountains stretching up to 14,000 feet. Every one on board was excited. It is always that way when a new port is reached. The unknown lies ahead; new faces, new places. Are there really ancient crumbling Mayan cities in the jungles? What does a chewing gum tree look like? Who are the people there? Above all, would I like it? I can answer that last one now. I not only like Guatemala, I'm nuts about it.

Puerto Barrios is a squalid, hot dumpy town. Its streets are dirt, it rains too much, and the mosquitoes have barbed hooks on their noses. The wind in the palm trees along the shore sing of the South Seas, the poinciana trees line the roadways with flames, and the bougainville tumble in lavender shadows all over the rickety fences. It's a village of contrasts and bananas. There are bananas everywhere. The ships are loading them, the kids are eating them, and the passengers break their necks on the peelings. Bananas, coffee, chewing gum—that's the life blood of Guatemala, and all three commodities leave for the United States from Puerto Barrios.

Then there are orchids, and, if you aren't luck enough to find a few growing wild at the edge of the village, you may buy one for a couple of pennies. There are quite a few American families living in Barrios, and the women raise orchids in and out of their homes as you and I might plant zinnias and petunias. On my wanderings around this scorching but bustling little port I came upon a gardenia bush that had countless blossoms on it.

And so this latest trip has started off with a bang, from nightmares to gardenias, with bananas, brass bands, and mosquitoes thrown in for good measure.

IT'S ALL IN THE NAME OF SCIENCE

Snake handling looks easy—when some one else does it—at the Butantan institute near Sao Paulo. The snake farm is one of the chief attractions of that part of Brazil.

Chicagoans on Cruise to the West Indies

Despite unsettled conditions in many parts of the world, Americans are still cruising to the West Indies and Central America.

When the Kungsholm sailed a week ago for Haiti, Panama, the San Blas Isles, and Cuba she carried a capacity passenger list of 494 persons.

Among those on board from the Chicago territory were:

Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Cheschelr, Miss Beverly Cheschelr, Mrs. Russe H. Hartman, Miss Dorothy Jane Hartman, Miss Jule Rezek, Mr. and Mrs. Allen W. Hinkel, Miss Nancy Hagny, Miss Barbara Smyth, Miss Ella Annette Frodin, Miss Vivian Simpson, Miss Dorothy J. Swanson, Miss Leona L. Beck, Arthur Eck, Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Fagan, Miss Mercedes Kernell, Leslie W. Fick, Stanley H. Walter, Miss E. Loretta McDermott, Miss Ann Welinske, Miss June Iverson, Miss Florence Koranda, Miss Virginia Loeb, Miss Ella L. Sherwood, Miss Ann Pomroy, Miss Opal W. Christofferson, Miss Rose O'Donnell, Mrs. Alice M. McInerney, Miss Lois Saxton, Carl L. Steiner, Irving L. Lansing, Miss Ronnie Rygg, Mathias N. Bauler, Harry P. Bauler, Nicholas Bauler, Chares J. Kaminski, Edward J. Meyers, Dr. William A. Link, William B. Greene, Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Davis, Miss Pauline Davis, Patrick E. O'Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Otto D. Mowry, Miss Virginia Mowry, Miss Estelle Weiss, and Owen M. Carter.

Nearest Possession.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico. —Uncle Sam's nearest outlying possession is the territory of Puerto Rico, 963 nautical miles from Key West and 1,400 miles from New York.

Only One Stop on 273 Foot Elevator

LAKE PLACID, N. Y.—You don't have to call your floor when you enter the electric elevator which runs 273 feet up thru the granite heart of Whiteface mountain to the summit. For there's only one stop, and that's the top.

This unusual lift in a mountain takes "climbers" who have motored up the Whiteface Mountain Memorial highway on the last lap of their journey to the tip of the towering Adirondack peak. After leaving their cars at the end of the road, motorists enter a naturally air-cooled tunnel [constant summer temperature 42 degrees] and walk up a slight incline 424 feet to the elevator entrance. The door slams shut, and in a minute they are on the promenade of the summit house at the end of the shaft and viewing the panorama of the northern Adirondack wilderness spread out more than half a mile below.

Telescopes placed on the promenade are popular with visitors. The instruments of the weather station and radio research laboratory in the summit house also come in for a lot of attention. You can't see weather made, but you can see how it is checked and the information transmitted thruout the country.

Fifty Tall Peaks.

New Mexico's far flung mountain system embraces elevations ranging from 6,000 to 13,400 feet above sea level, with more than 50 peaks rising 8,000 feet and higher.

What were the origins of the western rodeo and dude ranch ideas? —L. K. B.

Cheyenne, Wyo., which this week will put on its 45th annual performance of Frontier Days, is usually credited with having started the rodeo idea. In August, 1897, a group of Cheyenne business men, returning from Greeley, Colo., where they had attended the Potato day celebration, discussed the possibility of having an annual event of some kind in their own city. One of them suggested an exhibition of cowboy and range sports. The suggestion was adopted. The first program consisted of horse races, cowboy free-for-all stake and wild horse races, pitching and bucking horse riding contests, and an "Overland Trail" scene, with an ox train, a stagecoach holdup, and vigilantes. From this one-day show there has been built up a five-day spectacle that attracts première performers, and spectators, from all parts of the country. The idea has spread thruout the west.

The Eaton brothers of Wolf, near Sheridan, Wyo., are generally given credit for having started the dude ranch business. Tiring of entertaining their eastern friends, free of charge, at their cattle ranch, they decided to take in a few guests at a time on a paying basis. The guests were so well satisfied with this arrangement that their numbers grew, and soon the Eatons had to enlarge their facilities. Other ranchers joined in the movement, and now it has spread, not only all over the west, but to the east and south as well.

We are planning a visit to Bermuda. Is it too hot for a summertime stay there? —C. L. O'C.

The 150 coral islands are cooled by sea breezes, and the thermometer never goes above 90 degrees. Altho many Americans still address their mail to "Bermuda, B. W. I.," the group is actually closer to Nova Scotia than it is to the West Indies. It used to be considered a winter resort, but nowadays its summer tourist traffic is larger than that of the cold months.

New England

Quaint and lovely is New England. If you are one of those who have often asked for something different in a vacation, this is it. From the Taconics to Truro, wherever you step in this trim land, the grace and charm of colonial days are with you. To within sixty miles of New York, this country has scarcely changed since Revolutionary times. Lots of vacation fun and your favorite sports are here, but in a setting of enchanted lakes, villages, farms, inns in the green rolling hills of New Hampshire or the pixilated Berkshires—a holiday backdrop you will never forget.

Consult the advertisments in the Travelers' Guide today or let the Chicago Tribune Travel Bureau help you to plan a trip to New England. This department of the Tribune Public Service Office can supply you with information about steamship, railroad, bus, and plane travel, cost of transportation and accommodations en route for trips and tours to any part of the world which interests you. Services are free. The Tribune Travel Bureau sells no tickets—gets no fee or commission from the sale of tickets. So feel free to call in person, write or telephone.

Traveling with the Indians to Inland Mission

[This is the 19th in a series on South America. The next will appear in an early issue.]

By Mason Warner.

PENIEL HALL MISSION, BOLIVIA.

Sunday is the great day for travel for Indians in the interior of Bolivia. They go about in throngs. Bound for Peniel Hall mission, on the Hacienda Guatajata, 60 miles from La Paz, our only means of transportation was by motor truck, locally termed "camione." We were called at our La Paz hotel at 6 a. m., chartered a taxi to take us to the truck station at El Alto, on the plateau, and arrived there in due time. The station was a level square, two acres in extent, and on it were gathered no fewer than 40 trucks, and more than 2,000 native men, women and children with their baggage, bound in every possible direction.

Our machine was scheduled to depart at 7:30 a. m., but we did not start before 9. The waiting Indians presented a pandemonium of sound and a kaleidoscope in color. They were all in gala garb, but they never put down their bundles as they milled about, moving in and out and all around the lot. Most of the trucks were on their way long before we started. We could not learn any reason for our delay, for our heavily laden car was ready to go some time before our departure.

It was an open, two ton truck, with side racks six feet high. On the floor were piles of bundles, boxes and baskets, luggage and freight, more than four feet deep, and on top of that cargo were piled 25 to 30 Indians, jammed as tightly as sardines in a can and held together by the racks.

My grandson and I were to ride with the driver in the cab, but police regulations provided that only one passenger could ride with the chauffeur. So the boy had to get out and pile up with the Indians while passing the police at the city gate. As soon as we were in the open country he came back into the cabin and rode with us, a little bit disheveled, but none the worse for his close contact with the natives.

The long drive was over perilous mountain roads, with snow clad, glacier bearing cordilleras in full view all the way. Many accidents occur on the road we traveled, but our chauffeur was both expert and careful, and he did not spill a single Indian while winding around sharp curves or ascending or descending steep hills.

On our voyage from New York to Callao we were fortunate to have as fellow travelers and ship companions the Rev. and Mrs. Earl C. Merrick. We made inland excursions with them at several ports on the way and became such friends that they invited us to visit them at their mission and take advantage of an opportunity to see how the Aymara Indians lived.

The Rev. Mr. Merrick is managing director of Peniel Hall mission, an evangelical, educational, and agricultural institution. He was born on a farm in Simcoe county, Ontario, Canada; earned a B. A. and B. Th. at McMaster university, Hamilton, Ont. For two years he attended the Moody Bible institute in Chicago. He served as a minister of the Baptist church of Canada until 1934, when he was appointed to serve as a missionary in Bolivia.

We arrived at the mission about 1:30 p. m. We attended Sunday school in the evening, notwithstanding that we were cautioned to beware of fleas, said to accompany all natives all the time. More than 300 Indians were present. Their smiling faces and keen interest in the service were a marked contrast to the stolid and apathetic Indians we had seen on our journey from Guaqui to La Paz and from La Paz to the mission. In the congregation were many peons from nearby haciendas, but the majority were from communities of free Indians who owned and farmed their lands. The fleas did not bother us.

The home of the missionaries was a modest, one story affair of seven rooms. Lack of competent servants put the burden of cooking and housework on Mrs. Merrick's shoulders—a burden which she carried with cheerful grace. She had servants, but the cook could not cook without constant supervision, and it required the use of all of Mrs. Merrick's authority to compel the laundress to use soap and hot water in her work.

We slept soundly our first night at the mission, and every night thereafter while we were there, tho we were occasionally awakened by the wailing notes of a shepherd's flute as he played to placate the storm gods and protect his flocks.

Early morning presented a charming scene. A flock of sheep was started to the pasture with the shepherdess spinning wool as she walked with her baby swinging on her back. Small boys took pigs out to root in recently harvested fields. Natives started to work on a garage that was being built of adobe blocks and mud plaster. Birds were singing in the eucalyptus trees, planted by pioneer missionaries. Roosters were crowing and hens were cackling. Plow pulling bulls, their season's work over, were going to munch luscious marsh grass at the shore of the lake. Donkeys and burros were roaming at will all over the place.

A lately arrived donkey from a lower altitude, with a loud, truculent bray, offered comic relief. He lifted his voice and uttered a full lunged challenge. Then came the collapse. The belligerent note dropped to a series of gasping and distressed moans while he was recovering his breath. He never learned. He repeated the performance every hour of the day.

The story of the Peniel Hall society goes back to 1911. Antonio Chiriotto, an Italian immigrant to America, worked in San Francisco for years and accumulated a tidy fortune. He later went to Buenos Aires, where he founded the society. The mission in Buenos Aires made so little headway that when Chiriotto died he bequeathed to the Canadian Baptist Missionary society $35,000 to found a mission in any community offering greater rewards for Christian endeavor.

After investigating many sites the organization bought the Hacienda Guatajata, a typical Bolivian ranch embracing 1,000 acres, divided into 38 parcels of land, scattered over five square miles, fronting one and one-half miles on Lake Titicaca, and running back three miles into the mountains. Interspersed among the holdings of the mission are five or six free Indian communities, also a score of farms owned and operated by other haciendas, presenting an irregular checkerboard effect.

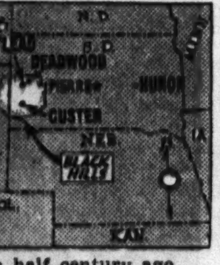
"Roarin' Days" Are Relived in the Black Hills

By Harold Murray.

Vacationists to the Black Hills of South Dakota will find not only the scenic beauty of the region but honest to goodness Americana in the picturesque lore of the "roarin' days" of the gold rush of more than a half century ago.



Ghosts of Wild Bill Hickok, Calamity Jane, Deadwood Dick, and others whose deeds were the subject of dime thrillers still haunt the dark, shadowy hills. And still alive are many pioneers whose reminiscences of these characters are of fact, not fiction.

Deadwood, the narrow gulch town in the northern part of the hills, was once known as the toughest town in the country. Now a modern community, it still carries on in the easy western, happy-go-lucky, wide open manner. Faro games are dealt and roulette wheels click busily in the back rooms of most of the saloons.

• • •

In peaceful Mount Moriah cemetery, overlooking Deadwood, the graves of Calamity Jane and Wild Bill, "the only man I ever loved," are a romantic reminder of the gold rush days. Inside a fence are Jane's headstone, giving her the status of a Mrs. Burke, and Wild Bill's pink limestone statue, with part of the right cheek, all of the nose, and most of an arm sacrificed to the onslaught of souvenir hunters.

These tell little of the turbulent, thrilling lives that led to the mountainside resting place. But Deadwood hasn't forgotten their stories. Annually—this year Aug. 7, 8, 9, and 10—it relives its pioneer times in a "Days of '76" celebration. Then the roar of six shooters is heard, there is the old time night life, and each afternoon a rodeo is held.

Visitors can see the portrayal of the miners' court which tried and acquitted "Crooked Nose" Jack McCall for the murder of Hickok. This trial, portrayed by townfolk, is a true reproduction of the actual hearing in the old Gem theater.

"Wild Bill, daring but usually cautious two gun marshal," writes the Deadwood historian, "had violated a lifelong rule when he sat down to play cards in No. 10 saloon. He sat with his back to the door. He hesitated when he joined the game, since that was the only seat available, but the other players scoffed at his superstition.

"He made a fine target for Crooked Nose Jack, who lurched from the bar and shot him in the back. Wild Bill slumped on the table and from his lifeless fingers slipped the hand known since around the globe as the Dead Man's hand, aces and eights, paired."

McCall tried to run away, but was caught by Calamity Jane and others in the saloon. He explained he had shot Wild Bill in the back because, due to Hickok's gun prowess, he was afraid to face him. The killing, he said, was in payment for the shooting of his younger brother by Wild Bill in the course of his term as marshal in Kansas. McCall was acquitted after a stormy hearing and given 60 seconds to leave town. Later he was retried in a federal court and hanged.

The reproduced trial is given week nights, except Wednesday and Friday, during the summer months.

In Custer, where gold was discovered by a member of Gen. George A. Custer's party, the discovery will be celebrated on July 28 and 29. At Lead, near Deadwood, visitors, tho not permitted underground, are allowed to tour the operating plant of the famous Homestake gold mine, largest in that part of the world.

For the vacationist seeking the wide open country the United States ranger service, with the help of CCC boys, has established many camping places in the hills.

To the east of the Black Hills is Huron, known as the mecca for pheasant hunters.

Summertime is sailing time, and the fans are out in force in Atlantic City's Back bay.

St. Anne's Feast Day at Shrine on the St. Lawrence

QUEBEC.—With the shrine at Lourdes, France, closed to visitors the basilica of Ste. Anne de Beaupre has become the goal of American pilgrims.

St. Anne's feast day, July 26, is expected to attract a record throng from all parts of the continent. Habitants from remote villages in the Gaspe, French-speaking boys and girls with their dog carts from neighboring hamlets, and pilgrims all the way from Mexico and British Columbia will gather at the shrine.

More than half a million persons visited Ste. Anne de Beaupre in 1940 and it is estimated that 15,000,000 have been there since its founding in 1658.

Said to have been initiated by a group of shipwrecked sailors who, more than 300 years ago, erected a crude shrine to Ste. Anne on the banks of the St. Lawrence river, where they had been saved, the basilica since that time has held large numbers of crutches, canes, and splints.

The old basilica, a fine specimen of Corinthian architecture, was destroyed by fire in 1922. A new one, holding 5,000 persons, is now nearing completion.

On which day does advertising produce best?

Is your advertising timed to suit the buying habits of your prospects? Does it fit into the selling operation of your dealers?

You can schedule your advertising to take maximum advantage of sales opportunities in Chicago when you advertise in the Chicago Tribune. It enables you to capitalize every favorable factor of day and date.

EVERY DAY OF THE WEEK, net paid total circulation of the Tribune is in excess of 1,000,000. On weekdays, this is from 600,000 to 640,000 more than delivered by other Chicago daily newspapers. And on Sundays it is from 290,000 to 725,000 more than delivered by other Chicago Sunday newspapers.

Right in Chicago and suburbs, Tribune net paid circulation on weekdays is 455,000 more than delivered by other Chicago daily newspapers. On Sundays, it is from 380,000 to 430,000 more than delivered by other Chicago Sunday newspapers.

The Tribune is the only newspaper with circulation volume equivalent to majority coverage of all families in the city and suburbs.

At one low cost it delivers more circulation in metropolitan Chicago than any two other Chicago daily newspapers combined and more than the two other Sunday newspapers combined. And in addition, of course, it reaches hundreds of thousands of other prospects in the rich adjacent territory.

EVERY DAY OF THE WEEK, this assured constant audience for advertised goods and services of every kind reassembles in voluntary session with the Tribune.

This friendly contact, day in and day out, creates and perpetuates the special relationship between readers and the Tribune which produces the greater returns for Tribune advertisers.

Because the Tribune is the medium on which the men and women of this great market are accustomed to base their buying, retailers, whether they sell to men or to women, place more of their budgets for advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper.

NO MATTER ON WHAT DAY you prefer to advertise, you can sell more in Chicago by building your advertising program around the Tribune whose seven-days-a-week customers are your best prospects. Rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in America.

Average net paid total circulation over 1,000,000 every day of the week

Chatham Will Open 6 Houses to the Public

HYANNIS, MASS.

A focal point of interest to society next week will be the town of Chatham where six old and interesting houses are to be opened for public inspection under auspices of the Congregational club.

Included in the tour will be a visit to Crosstrees, home of Joseph C. Lincoln, writer, and Mrs. Lincoln. Half hidden by high green hedges, its shingles weather-beaten by the varying cape winds, it stands sturdily overlooking the Chatham bars.

Many absorbing tales have emerged from here by this best loved author of Cape Cod books.

All the homes are distinguished by their ancient architecture and virtually all contain old collections of furniture and utensils. There will be many vacationists, no doubt, who will avail themselves of such a rare opportunity to visit some of Chatham's fascinating houses.

• • •

While the Congregational club's pilgrimage will command the attention principally of visitors in the mid-cape section, at other resorts activities will be centered on some other major event.

There is quite a large colony of Chicago residents now summering at Bass river. The Chicagoans include Mr. and Mrs. Earle Fox and their children, Billy, Joyce, and Sarah, and Mrs. Fox's sister, Mrs. Ballard Higbee, and two young sons, Tommy and Ballard.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Chesley Sr., who a few months ago decided to settle permanently on the peninsula, are enjoying a pleasant reunion with their daughter, Mrs. Charles A. Duncan II. of Evanston, and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harry W. Chesley Jr. of Chicago's south side. Mrs. Duncan is at her parents' home for a month's stay, accompanied by her 15 month old son, David Charles II. Mrs. Chesley Jr. is on the Cape for a much shorter visit, stopping with the senior Chesleys en route from Puerto Rico to Chicago.

The Bass river resort also is the vacation spot of Mr. and Mrs. George I. Haight, who are there with their son, Daniel. Returning to that place from Quincy, Ill., is Mrs. Charles H. Williamson.

• • •

At exclusive Oyster Harbors, an ideal watering place on Little Oyster Island, social and sports programs continue at a rapid pace. The management of the Oyster Harbors club, center of activity on the island, sees to it that never a day goes by without some special feature being arranged for the enjoyment of young and old alike.

Young Hugh Dangler, son of the David Danglers of Lake Forest, proved himself a capable master of ceremonies at a recent junior dance and also did a bit of entertaining himself. Hughie's contribution to the first in a series of original talent programs was a group of classical accordion solos.

Before the young folk gathered at the club for their weekly party—featured, incidentally, by instruction of the "O Susanna" routine—Theodore Danforth, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth of Chestnut Hill, Mass., Miami Beach, and Oyster Harbors, invited several friends to the Danforth home for dinner.

The adults are looking ahead with keen anticipation to an evening of fine music July 27 when the Mozart festival orchestra of the Cape Cod Institute of Music in East Brewster is scheduled to present a "pop" concert on the lower terrace of the club. Jo Hawthorne, Cape Cod born young maestro, will conduct the musicians, and Samuel Carmell, violinist, will be the soloist.

Two Chicagoans are among the patronesses announced for the "pops." They are Mrs. Robert M. Roloson and Mrs. Edward C. Crossett.

The riding master of the Oyster Harbors colony has disclosed that because of added interest, the children's horse show and gymkana may be held earlier this season. There also is a possibility, he said, that two will be staged, one this month and a second in August.

A recent house guest at the Hyannisport summer home of Mr. and Mrs. William France Anderson of Hinsdale was Judge Charles Thompson of Chicago. Due to arrive there this week-end is the couple's son, Robert G. Anderson of Chicago, who will spend a two week vacation with his family.

The Andersons have leased their residence to Mrs. D. Mark Cummings of Lake Forest for the month of August. Mrs. Anderson plans to go to Seal Harbor, Me., where she will be a guest at the summer home of Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, a resident of Chicago, and to Camden, Me., for a stay at the summer place of her brother, Robert A. Gardner.

The round of entertaining at the Hyannisport colony last week included a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Secor Cunningham of Chicago, who returned to the Cape this season for their 34th summer.

In Woods Hole, the marine biological laboratory noted the arrival recently of Dwight I. Hopkins, E. S. Guzman, and Mr. and Mrs. Sewall Wright, all of Chicago. Residents of Chicago will recall that Prof. Frank R. Lillie, former faculty member of the University of Chicago, is president of the M. B. L. corporation and is among those who can recount the early history. The laboratory was founded in 1888 by a group of colleges, universities, scientists and philanthropists for the advancement of biological research.

Population Triples.

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va.—Altho there isn't a defense industry, or even a factory of any kind in this resort community, the population of Old Point Comfort has tripled in the last year. The new residents are officers and enlisted men attached to various coast artillery units at this strategic spot, which guards the entrance to Chesapeake bay and the nation's capital.

TO WED LIEUTENANT

Miss Gladys Marilyn Hunt, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gilbert Hunt of East 68th street, have announced her engagement to Lieut. Jerome J. Howe, son of Mrs. Margaret Howe of Prairie avenue and the late Patrick C. Howe. Miss Hunt is a graduate of the Starrett School for Girls and of the University of Illinois, of which her fiancé is a graduate. He received his commission from the United States Air corps at Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala., in April.

Pilgrimage to V.F.W. Home Is Aug. 17 Event

A state-wide pilgrimage to the national home maintained by the Veterans of Foreign Wars at Eaton Rapids, Mich., for widows and orphans of war veterans will be held Aug. 17 under the auspices of the Illinois department and the Ladies' auxiliary.

Plans for the trip will be discussed at a meeting of the state executive board of the auxiliary, to be held from this afternoon thru Tuesday evening at the La Salle hotel. Mrs. William T. Rice of Chicago, newly elected state president, will conduct the meeting. The auxiliary's national defense program and its service to hospitalized war veterans also will be discussed.

Members of the Chicago Club for Crippled Children will hold an all day party on Wednesday at Brown's Lake Camp for Crippled Children, near Burlington, Wis. The club contributes annually to the support of the camp and otherwise assists crippled children. In 1933, one year after its founding, the organization opened a brace shop at the Michael Reese hospital in order to furnish appliances to needy patients. A new and larger shop recently was completed at an additional cost of $8,000. A trained nurse is supplied by the organization to aid the children who come to the shop. Members volunteer their services in the hospital clinic, and have presented the hospital with a variety of equipment. Mrs. Herbert H. Kant is the club's president.

A musical will be presented by artist students of Mme. Hanna Butler, Wednesday morning before the Chicago Woman's club at the clubhouse, 72 East 11th street. Mrs. Charles H. Alsip has planned the program. Luncheon and cards will follow.

300th Anniversary of Montreal to Be Observed Next May

MONTREAL, Que.—Altho the 300th anniversary of its founding is a year away, Montreal is already preparing for the celebration.

Thruout the province of Quebec the dramatic story of the city's starting and growth will be reënacted in pageants, exhibits, parades, and civic dramas.

On May 18, 1642, Maisonneuve and his little band of religious enthusiasts landed on the spot where the Montreal customs house now stands, and there "planted the mustard seed of the old world in the new."

For more than a hundred years pioneering priests and French-Canadian fur trappers made this garrison city their fortress. It became a focal point of struggle in the French and Indian war against Great Britain.

WED JUNE 22

Mrs. Irving Zellman, who was Miss Frances Goldfein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Z. Goldfein of West Marquette road, until her marriage on June 22 at the Shoreland hotel. She is a graduate of Carleton college. Mr. Zellman, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Zellman of South Kedvale avenue, was graduated from Northwestern university's law school.

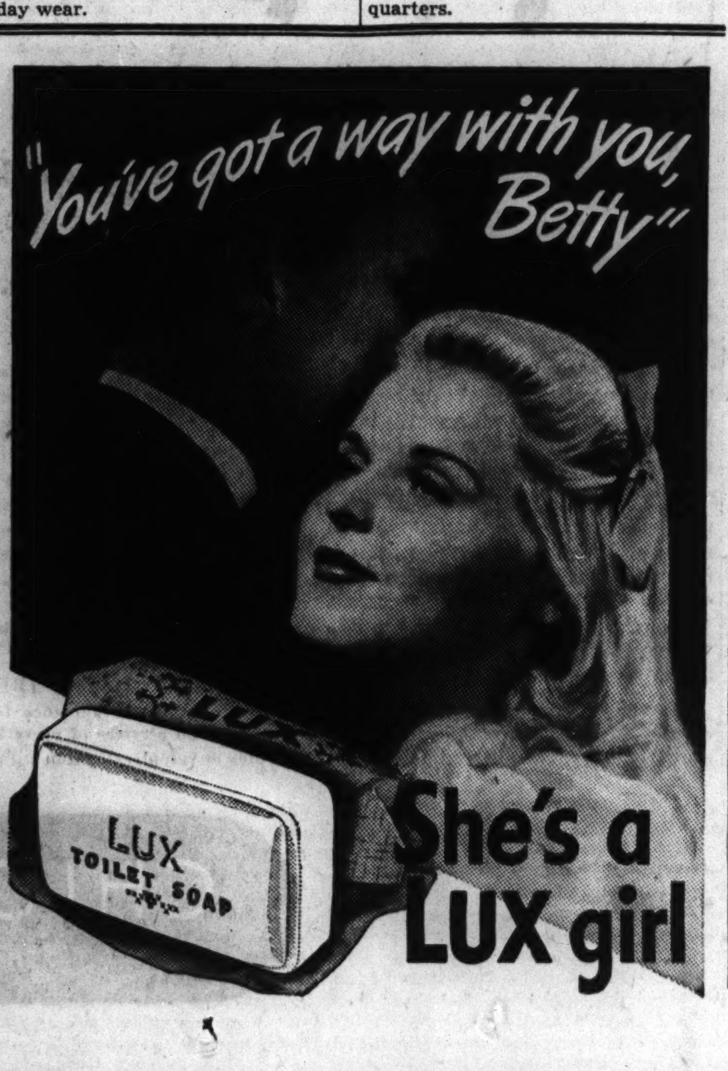
Tell Betrothal of Jane Lucille Strashun

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Strashun of Indianapolis, Ind., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Lucille, to Maurel Ruthbaum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rothbaum of Chicago.

Wear Proper Shoes.

Many disorders of the back can be traced to the wearing of the wrong kind of shoes. A reasonably broad-toed shoe, with a straight or nearly straight inner border, and with a fairly low heel, is practical for every-day wear.



New Hampshire Club Center of Social Activity

BRETTON WOODS, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Renee L. Mathey [Frances Glessner] of Paris, who are staying at the Ledges, Littleton, are at the Profile Golf club frequently for golf and tennis. This club, owned by members of the summer colony of Franconia, Littleton, and Sugar Hill, is a social clearing house and many gay bathing and tennis parties combine with golf events and teas to make the season interesting. Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Edge [Elizabeth Glessner] of Bedford Hills, N. Y., whose summers also are spent at the Glessner estate, are prominently identified with the club when here.

• • •

Mrs. Ernest Poole, who has been chairman of the Red Cross branch at Sugar Hill and Franconia, has resigned to be free to be more with her daughter, Mrs. Henry R. Lanchester, the former Elizabeth Poole, who has been ill since returning with her parents from England. She now is in Boston. Mr. Poole recently returned from there to devote more time to his writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice F. Hanson of Lake Forest are at the Mount Washington, Bretton Woods. Mr. and Mrs. George M. Mulford of Evanston also have arrived there on a tour of the mountains. The Misses Margaret and Mildred Hughes of Sao Paulo, Brazil, and Chicago were members of a gay party of young people at the Saturday evening dance in the Moon room after playing in a bridge tournament.

• • •

The Misses Mary Hannah and Florence Burris of Chicago are at Forest Hills hotel, Franconia, and were among those attending an evening picnic on Monday at Skyline Farm, Littleton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomas Taussig of Chicago and Mr. and Mrs. Harry McLerie of Chicago are at Pecketts on Sugar Hill.

Frequent visitors at the White Mountain resorts for luncheon are Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher McCullough Durbin of Chicago, who again are spending the summer at Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Foster's Meadowbrook club, Derby, Vt. This club is only 60 miles from some of the leading resorts, and visited during the season by many Chicagoans who knew the Fosters at their Opera club in Chicago some years ago.

Mrs. Ernest Poole, Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner, and other members of the Chicago colony in the mountains who also are founder members of the White Mountain Garden club, attended the club meeting Tuesday at Lost River, where they were entertained by Phillip Ayres, New Hampshire state forester, whose headquarters now are at this beautiful state forest reservation and park.

The club members also will attend the coming meeting of the New Hampshire Federation of Garden Clubs to be held at the Mountain View house, Whitefield, on July 23.

3 Named to World Relations Group of University Women

Dr. Helen Reid of Bryn Mawr university, Dr. Dorothy Woodward of the University of New Mexico, and Dr. Anna Powell of Denton, Tex., former state president of the Texas branch, American Association of University Women, recently were appointed to the international relations committee of the association. The committee each month issues an "International Problem of the Month" bulletin from association headquarters in Washington, D. C., for use of members individually and in study groups. Besides its analysis of world affairs the committee aids university women refugees. Since June, 1940, more than $30,000 has been contributed to this work. Dr. Alzada Comstock, professor of economics of Mount Holyoke college, heads the committee, and Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer, specialist in international relations, directs its work at headquarters.
